Some smart man has been busy placing rocking horses inside the front doors of 13 cent stores and chain groceteries. These attractive mechanical ponies will gallop with a tug of the reins and 10 cents in the slot. To mothers of young children, these horses are a menace. It takes all mama's energy to go all around the baby chairs store and root out all her groceries, without having to steer two or three youngsters past a wooden pony.

Presumably, these public toys were leased to store managers with the thought their installation would attract business. Instead, we don't know of a mother who doesn't walk an extra block to shop in a store without horses if she can possibly manage it.

On the other hand, it may be that the story which permits these wooden ponies collects half the take. On a busy Saturday, this could mean a fair profit.

As for us, we're steering clear of big toy horses when shopping.

Radio Jobs

Career books for teenagers are increasing to such an extent that today you can not only find a most worthy job almost any career, but you can often find one written and conditions in which to work information more useful as it is accurate in details of local conditions and problems.

We have just finished reading "Jobs For Marion," a new booklet on broadcasting. Because its author, Jone Deigle, is a Canadian writer at CBL Toronto, the book rings true when it describes work and conditions in large and small radio stations in this country.

This book is obviously written in novel form to attract young people. Published in 1952, "Jobs For Marion" is one of the favorites on public library lists. Certainly the aspiring radio announcement will know a good deal more about radio after reading this book.

Directions

We aren't people more explicit when giving directions. Yesterday, in a drug store we picked up a little bottle of antiseptic ear drops to cure off a cold. When we got home to mix up the gargle with water we read the leaflet.

Instructions on the bottle said to take a teaspoonful of gargle and dilute it with a wine glass of warm water. Now we ask you, how much exactly is in a wine glass? Does this mean a sherry glass, port, brandy or what's it?

Oh well, we mixed it up by guess and by gosh. But don't let anybody tell you druggists are exacting on detail.

Uncle Proudmouth says he heard somebody say the other day that a boy's voice changes at adolescence and a girl's when she answers the telephone.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell Gives Travelogue

The October thank-offering meeting of Foxboro Presbyterian church was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Bartlett, on Thursday evening.

A service of worship for the Thanksgiving season was followed by the theme "The Splendor of God". Mrs. Skinner played quiet music and Miss Bell had charge of the service.

A reading "To Give You a Lift" and the "Diary of a Bible", was read by Mrs. Earl Ketcheson. A Bible contest was also held with Mrs. Hayton being the winner.

At the close of the worship period, the remainder of the evening was given over to Mrs. Edward E. Follwell, of Belleville, guest speaker, who gave an illustrated informal talk on her recent tour to Europe. Mrs. Follwell with her witty and humorous remarks carried her audience to the beauties and splendors of the Emerald Isle and the kindly hospitality of the Irish as her various conducted tours.

She also showed many pictures of Switzerland, relating many of the customs and habits of the Swiss folk as well as travelling through Holland, Belgium, Scotland and last, but not least, England, where she attended the Coronation and one of the garden parties at Buckingham Palace.

All in all, it was a delightful evening.

The Rev. Mr. MacMurray voiced the thanks of the gathering to Mrs. Follwell.

Mrs. Bartlett served bountiful refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by all.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Strange Problem Is That She Looks Too Young!

It's strange indeed how one man's, or one woman's trial can be another's fondest yearning! Or, to put it another way, how often one sees the very thing one most likes to have in the possession of someone else who doesn't want it.

This observation refers specifically, at the moment, to a young woman of 25 who writes a complaint which will sound very old indeed to most, if not all, other women. Her grievance is that she looks too young.

Impossible, you say? Well, here's why she feels as she does:

"I am one person in a million, I guess, who has the curse of the world in my head and heart, but not on my face. Although I have taught school, have been married and have been married for two, I do not look as old as 25.

"The result I want help is because my husband and I quarrel about it. He imagines that I am trying to make myself look as young as girls in high school, so that I will be whistle-bait, too.

"I have taken the advice of friends and have done everything I can think of to make myself look older, but it does no good. I wear a hat, so that I will look older, and it looks as though I were playing dress-up in one of mother's hats, and it makes me look even younger. Every time we go to see a friend at the hospital, they always ask my age between the lot and up. You look about 16 or 17,' they always say. When I go after a job, I do not get it until after an exhaustive inquiry into my education, because they look at my face and awfully young, and incapable of holding the job.'"

So there it is! A young woman who has something for which every woman in the world longs—a very youthful appearance—and she wants to get rid of it!

A Trivial Matter

(It things have really to to such a point that this young wife and her husband are actually quarreling about what seems to me a most trivial matter, and if she is really anxious to make a radical change in her appearance, then I think her best plan would be to enlist her husband's cooperation in the project.

She might tell him, as so doubt she already has, that she is most unhappy over his criticism of her looks and is eager to find a way to keep them more in line with his ideas of what they ought to be. Then she might ask him if he would pick out some acceptable beauty shop to which he could take her and see what a carefully worked out hair-do and make-up job could do for her. From what she says, I gather that all her experimenting to make herself look older has been done on her own, without the advice of any expert on the subject of personal appearance, so it may be that she has been doing her hair, using cosmetics and selecting clothes that are not right for producing the effect she wishes.

If she can get her husband tickerest himself sufficiently in her self-improvement program to accompany her to the beauty parlor and act part of a kindly critic while different coiffures and different cosmetics are tried out, she might get him to go with her to pick out some clothes under the supervision of a stylist at one of the local dress shops or department stores.

Once she has persuaded her husband to go along with her, in this way, I should leave him no room for further quibble, and might even use his son's a personal pride in her new appearance because he had helped to bring it about.

If the town she lives in is not large enough to have much to offer in the way of up-to-the-minute beauty shops and dress shops, then she should go to the nearest large city which, I think, is not too far away, and shop around there.

I am making these suggestions, not because it seems to me important, or even very sensible, for her to try to look older, but simply in the interest of perhaps producing peace in the young woman's home. Also, because it may be that she has not, so far, perhaps, been making the most she might of the looks she has, and a little professional attention might work wonders. Even if such professional attention did not make her look actually older, it might result in her being so smartly turned out that her husband's objections would naturally disappear.

The whole problem may simply be that she does not know, as many women do not know, how to select an individual hair-do, to use cosmetics, and to pick out clothes which suit her face and figure to best advantage. The wrong clothes, inartistic application of make-up, and an unbecoming hair-do could easily make her husband dissatisfied with her looks while not actually realizing why. So he thinks it is that she presents too childish an appearance. If she will make it her business to learn some of the secrets of the feminine mystery known as chic, it will probably solve everything.

Readers Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Attention Mrs. J. M.:

You did not enclose an envelope bearing your name, so I could not mail you the wine recipes you wanted. If you would write again and give me your name and repeat your address I will mail it to you.

Question:

. . . I misplaced my recipe I cut from the paper for Sandwich Spread. Would you send it to me? Also some recipes on Tomato Catsup and H.P. Sauce.

Answer:

I am mailing you copies of the Sandwich Spread and Tomato Catsup recipes which have appeared in this column in the past month or so. The bottled commercial sauce you refer to is made of fermented soy bean puree and juice. It is a complicated and highly technical process that has to be fermented. It is imported from China. If you would like such condiment sauce that calls for kidney bean puree and thick, I'm not wheat kernels" I will send it. I have never made it, but you might want to look it over.

Question:

. . . wonder if you could help me out on canning chicken . . . a friend says she knows everything I can think of to make myself look older, but it does no good. I wear a hat, so that I will look older, and it looks as though I were playing dress-up in one of mother's hats, and it makes me look even younger. off broth to use as the liquid in canning meaty pieces. Strip the meat from bony pieces and cut in small pieces. Precook meaty pieces with bone preferably as it improves flavor—in covered dish with a little water at 250 deg. Fahr. in water atmosphere, until tender, and pack hot, adding 1 teaspoon salt to 2½-lb. tin—can or pint jars, or 2 teaspoons salt to 1 quart jars. Either tin cans or jars should be pressure cooked: 30-or. tins or pint jars at 230 deg. Fahr. or 10 lbs. pressure, 45 minutes; quart jars at 220 deg. Fahr. for 120 minutes. If you do process these in hot water bath give them 3 1-2 hours at boiling and be sure to boil contents of jars after opening and before tasting.

Question:

. . . I plead send recipe for pumpkin jam . . . can I can huckleberries and make huckleberry jam . . . I would like to know how to make huckleberry pie . . . I am a bachelor.—Jack W.

Answer:

Welcome to our cooking fold Jack W.

Canned Huckleberries

Wash and drain well perfect huckleberries. Pack raw in sterile jars. Pour over them boiling hot syrup made of 1 cup sugar to each 2 cups water. Seal with sterile rubbers, tops and rings. Process (that is boil) in hot water bath. Pint and quart jars require 20 minutes. Remove from hot water bath as soon as possible, being very careful not to chill jars and cool away from draughts.

Huckleberry Jam

Wash berries, picking out any imperfect ones, drain well. Weigh. To each pound add 1 lb. sugar. Crush berries with potato masher and bring slowly to boil, stirring constantly. When boiling add weighed sugar, and boil until fruit and sugar have thickened to jelly-like consistency, stirring all the time. Pour into hot sterile pint jars and seal, working quickly so as to be sure you do not touch rims with fingers or non-sterile equipment.

Huckleberry Pie

Line deep pie plate with tender pastry. Mix together 4 cups huckleberries, tablespoons flour or quick-cooking tapioca, 1-2 cup (or 1 cup) sugar, 1 teaspoon each grated lemon rind and juice and if desired 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg. Put this in lined pie plate. Seal on gashed top crust. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 and bake 35 or 30 minutes longer. Good luck. I am mailing recipe for Pumpkin Jam.

Storage Of Cookies Important

By JOAN BARBERRY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The definition of a biscuit, cookie, bun, scone or other similar-baked goods is somewhat of an individual matter.

It may not be important, except to the persons as the case may be, the woman who ordered scones in a Montreal restaurant, and was given hot tea biscuits. It rather put her out for the rest of the day.

The dictionary is definite about what constitutes a scone. It describes it as a soft cake of barley meal or wheat flour, of size for single portion, usually triangular and cooked on a griddle. It comes from "schoon (hot) fine (bread)."

The definition of cookie is broader: "Plain bun, small flat cake, biscuit," says the dictionary.

How To Keep Them

Wisely ignoring such intricacies the consumer section of the department of agriculture has come up with the following sound advice on how to store "different types" of cookies.

Cookies that are soft, like a hermit or brownie, should be stored in a container with a tight cover. Id. It may be a cookie can or just a plain one pan. If the cookies still tend to dry out, add a piece of apple, orange or bread, but be sure to replace it frequently. Another good way to keep soft cookies is to wrap each of them tightly in aluminum foil.

With crisp cookies the treatment is the reverse. You store them in a container with a very loose fitting cover. If the weather becomes humid they may soften. Should they do, crisp them again by placing in a warm oven for about five minutes before serving.

They Freeze, Too

Another excellent way of storing cookies is to freeze them. If you happen to have a home freezer or locker. Almost any type of cookie may be frozen, except meringues, macaroons and any other small cake made with egg whites. Cookies such as oatmeal, cookies, brownies, sugar cookies and so are all excellent when frozen.

Prepare cookies for freezer by cooling, cooling and then wrapping them tightly in freezer wrappers or placing in freezer bags. Wrapped cookies may be placed in cardboard boxes so they will not crush in storage.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE VALUE OF REST

Over-fatigue is one of beauty's greatest enemies. But, despite this fact, the "dervousnail" woman keeps right on going as long as she can toddle along on her two aching feet. She is the one who, at the time when people needed relaxation and rest, is generally now—when everybody's up and at 'em, on the gallop, chasing here, racing there, worrying and wondering what it's all about. Today there are too many over-wrought, over-worried women prostrated with what doctors call nervous exhaustion.

What about you? Are you regulating your life so that you are not in a constant state of fatigue? If you are tired, can you flop down, go limp and catch forty winks? Probably not. Thousands can't even sleep at night; they are so tired. Which explains the lot of sleeping capsules annually consumed in this country. It's really sad, but it should be lived zestfully of course. But one should have long periods of refreshing relaxation.

The woman who is over-tired, never up to par, is inefficient, not capable of doing her best work, nor is her judgment always good, no matter what kind of work she does. she can't do it as well or get as much accomplished if she isn't feeling fit. Activities that are enjoyed when one is up to standard become a form of drudgery, fatigue affecting the mind and the spirits as it does the body.

Mothers are so wise about their children these days. They see that the youngsters rave the right kinds of food, regular hours of sleep, time out of doors, etc. But often in their efforts to keep the kids strong and healthy they overlook their own needs. A peanut butter sandwich and a glass of tea for luncheon isn't enough!

If you are in that class, suppose you try to relax—just for fun. Lie down, let your muscles go limp declare your mind of whatever is bothering you. Can't do it, eh? Well, you are one of millions.

So, try again. Lie on your back, lift your arms and drop them; lift your legs and let them down slowly. Get nervous knots? Naturally. Every day, in every way, we get to untie them if existence is to mean anything to you. Keep trying. Take long, deep breaths. Do this for ten minutes. Try it twice a day for a week and a sense of tranquility will soon come to you. It has worked for others; why not for you?

GOOD MANNERS

What About Being Fair To Tea-cher

I know . . . don't you? . . . many parents are there that if we, like Jack or Jill do well in school, it is because their Jack and Jill are just naturally bright. But if their Jack and Jill don't do well in school, it is just naturally the teacher's fault.

How about that . . . for being fair?
The Greenback Shaver

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I have just received an invitation to a "Greenback Shower" to be given for a girl I know very slightly. As a matter of fact, she is what one would call a "mere acquaintance," and I don't know her family or her fiance. Since the shower is to be given in the afternoon I couldn't attend it even if I wanted to (which I don't), because I work every weekday from one to seven. Do you think I should make an effort to send a "two one-dollar bills" that is the shower gift "called" for on the invitation? I don't want to seem a "short sport" about responding to this request, but I'm confused. Never before have I been invited to a shower for just an acquaintance. And besides I have to budget my salary very closely because of several responsibilities I have.

H.S.

My advice is that you make no effort to contribute to this "money grab." Your absence from the shower too obviously had in mind only the gathering in of loot from soliciting non-guests. There are four reasons why you should not send the "two one-dollar bills." The first and most important reason is that you don't want to. The second reason is that you don't know the guest of honor well and so there was no reason for you to be invited, except, of course, to send a present. The third reason is that it is not necessary to send a shower present to, attend the shower. And the fourth reason is that you have more important claims on your income.

However, do write a note to the hostess explaining that you will not be able to attend the shower as unexpected business will seven o'clock on that day.

Serving Time Is Packed Portions

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When, at our formal dinners for four or six, I serve cheese that comes in small individual portions, should these be unwrapped before serving?

Hostess.

Yes. That's the best service.
Child's Name In Signature
Fe Card

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

We have one child, a six-year-old boy. When I send greeting cards for Christmas, from my husband, my child, and myself, should I sign them "Helen, Arthur and Tommy" . . . our son's name last? I thought this is right, but several of my friends insist that the child's name should come first.

H.M.

Your son's name should be written last. Also . . . and this is important to you . . . when a child's name is included with the mother's and father's name in a signature the father's name should come first . . . Arthur, Helen, and Tommy.

Widow's Name On Church-Envelopes

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Once a month in our church, envelopes are distributed for contributions toward the support of the church. On these envelopes are written Mrs. John Clark (for example) on the outer envelope. My father died recently, and now Mother wishes to ask me if she should continue to write "Mrs. John Clark" on the envelopes, or, as my aunt suggests, "Mrs. Mary Clark."

S.C.

Your mother should continue to write as "Mrs. John Clark" . . . correctly so . . . and continues to use her husband's name.

HURT IN RIOT

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—A local administrator and two policemen were injured in a riot at Medroma, 60 miles southwest of here, Thursday night. The disturbance occurred when police tried to stop the distribution of pamphlets which French officials considered seditious. Gendarmes arrived and dispersed the crowd of 2,000.

MELMORE W.M.S.

The Melmore W.M.S. held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Arnold Reilly. The president Mrs. G. Morgan presided over the meeting, which had as its theme "Unique Friendship."

Mrs. Morgan was assisted by Mrs. R. McFarlane and Mrs. Carl Milligan in the worship service.

At the close of the worship service, one minute of silence was observed in memory of a recently departed member and was followed by moment of silent prayer, for the missionary for prayer, Miss Beasie M. Calnan.

During the business period, letters of thanks for expressions of sympathy were read from Mrs. Roy Badger and Mrs. William McMechan and family.

Miss M. Reilley and Miss B. McFarlane were appointed delegates to the convention in Hamilton.

The treasurer reported $131 raised to date and it was decided to hold a pie social in November. Lunch and programs conveners were appointed and other business discussed.

The second chapter was also given and was entitled "Old Testament Purposes."

Two short poems, "The Point of View" and "Try Smiling," were given by Beatrice McFarlane.

A reading "Just One of Those Days," was given by Mrs. Jack English.

Mrs. Sherry Demille read a Negro version of "The Parable of the Lost Sheep," after which she read a poem "The Thankful Heart."

...o Be More Birds to Shoot ...ue to Protective Measures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's big stampede may not have as much fun as their duck-hunting forefathers but—thanks to conservation and protective measures they know there will be birds to shoot next year.

Pioneer hunters 1953 to tell the younger generation of that era when ducks did not fly by the law of the government, when guns were unlimited and when conservation was a term that had nothing to do with the winter's meat supply.

Old-timers recall flights of geese so large that it took a flock 30 minutes to pass a given point. They of mallards splashing upwards as a meal and blotting out the sun.

...ose Spot

Most of the tales come out of the Qu'Appelle valley where the most legendary Jack Leader and provide luxurious entertainment for anyone who wanted a day shooting. Anyone, that is, with the right kind of money.

Leader's Hotel, on Pasqua lake, is one of Saskatchewan's most popular hunting spots. Notables visiting the point have included the Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor, Lord and Lady Minto, Lord Byng of Vimy, and Bernard Baruch.

Fred Dunk, former curator of the provincial museum, describes a typical shoot in the valley in which he and a companion bagged 35 ducks in one morning and stretched to 200 birds their total for a two-day shoot.

Spring shooting was allowed, the sale of game for commercial purposes was common, and bag limits and licences were unheard of.

It was the era of the unplugged automatic shotgun and live decoys, some of which were trained by hunters to hook or quack at the desired moment.

General Rule

Cesse, ducks and Prairie chicken hung in front of butcher shops. Housewives stretched their pin money, the records disclose, by trapping Prairie chicken during the winter and peddling them to the local meat vendor.

The method of taking the wildfowl were as varied as the bags were large. Guns as big as eight gauge were in common use, and firelight shooting was the fad at the turn of the century.

Old letters reveal that some hunters frequently used multiple guns. One of these contraptions consisted of eleven six standard shotguns secured to a log, pointed at a duck roost, and fired by means of a long fuse from the hunter's blind.

But all that changed when Saskatchewan became a province in 1905. Spring shooting was abolished in 1907, a licence fee was levied in 1910, and in 1915 the sale of game was prohibited.

Provincial archives reveal that predecessors of today's game wardens were hired by the agriculture department, and were known as "seed inspectors." Game conservation was just a sideline.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

SUCK QUANTITIES

Today only a few very old people can remember passenger pigeons, but a number of records have been preserved for us. Most writers mentioned their fear that they would be accused of exaggeration when telling that migrating flocks darkened the sky and took hours to pass. Two of the most famous ornithologists of the last century, Audubon and Wilson, estimated their number as something like two billion. Probably no other bird has ever been seen in such enormous concentrations.

The average citizen is apt to think that there are now very few birds of any kind—but there are far more than he suspects. Near the beginning of the century they were undoubtedly at their lowest figure; however, the Migratory Birds Convention Act, which came into force in 1917, put a stop to unnecessary slaughter in both Canada and the United States.

The great flight of hawks now mort nearly approaches that of passenger pigeons. It is possible to see a mass flight that runs into the thousands. A subsidiary flyway passes over Toronto, and there in one day five or six thousand hawks have been seen in migration. Crows are said to journey together in a band ¼ mile wide. Various members of the blackbird family migrate in flocks of perhaps 10,000 or so. At Cap Tourmente, greater snow geese, which nest far north on Arctic islands, may be studied early in October of each year. This is the one spot where they collect on their way south, and sometimes as many as 45,000 are counted.

We are told that 4,000 eastern Grebes can be found at Clear Lake in Northern California, and that a million murres live on one of the Pribilof Islands. Fourteen hundred goldeneye ducks have been spotted in a Christmas census at Montreal, and 1320 were bottlings at the same time at Toronto.

Alas, there are more species than most people are aware of. Only a few bird watchers realize that the kinds of shore birds have been recorded for the Montreal district, that there are 43 kinds of ducks in North America, and that more than 120 species of birds have been identified in the Toronto district around Christmas time.

Recently the well known American ornithologist, Roger Tory Peterson, made a tour of the continent north of Mexico for the purpose of recording the birds he saw. The result brought the total number of species he had identified in a year up to 546.

OCTOBER, HOLIDAY

Golden sunlight flooding the Farmers
Bare and brown in the new-plowed fields,
Autumn trees flaunting flaming torches
With all the glow that the season yields,
Over hills and far away
Height and hol for a holiday.

Fast a week whose flags are flinging
Their saffron splendor against the sky,
Then a little street that hires and hastens
As car motor car glides swiftly by
Through city streets we wend our way,
Height and hol for a holiday.

Just a drive in October weather,
Leaving behind all toil and care,
Spending a day on the open highway
With beauty and grandeur everywhere;
Old whisky winds seem far away,
Then height and hol for a holiday.

—Helen B. Anderson.

It was a beautiful Thanksgiving morning as we drove over fine roads beneath a sun-filled sky, with radiant autumn trees on every side, through the quiet hamlets of Hillier and Consecon into the town of Trenton, where a warm welcome awaited us. It was a late holiday for some of us, but thoroughly enjoyed and a fitting close to a busy summer. What memories crowd in upon us as we traverse familiar roads in the autumn — memories of our youth! So, quoting from a well-known poet, "We are young, however old, when summer dies."

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morton, with Mr. and Mrs. Merrit Hoyle and Mrs. Lois Weeks attended the plowing match at Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vandewater attended the wedding of her niece, Miss Marion Aylsworth, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth, and Mr. Edgar Burley, in Deseronto United Church on Saturday, October 10, with reception in the church parlors.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Clapp and Christopher, of Toronto, with Mrs. Gladys French, of Whitby, were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clapp, Hillier.

Garden Notes

Bulbs Are the Pastels of Spring

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Put down brown bulbs into the earth. In the spring they will overflow like oil paints and color the earth... We might say that spring begins when we plant bulbs, at least we create a picture of it in our mind, which comes true when the bulbs finally bloom. We should choose our bulbs as the artist chooses his colors and apply them to paint a picture of bright beauty in our garden.

No flowers are more colorful than those of the bulbs, and coming after the drab days of winter they are especially welcome.

Let's look at some of the small bulbs first. Many of them if left undisturbed, will multiply and form a bed, a carpet, or a sweep of color which will be a joy to anticipate each spring. Scillas, grape hyacinths and snow drops will, if left alone will form colonies.

Leave Alone

Daffodils should be left to spread. They resent disturbance, but will reward you with a sweep of gold on a bank, a slope, or wide band of color at the foot of the shrubbery border.

Plant the tulips where everyone can see and enjoy their bright hues. Buy as many as you can afford and arrange them in beds, clumps in the perennial border. Do not plant them in a single row. They may look brave, but rather pathetic. Plan your tulip garden with an eye to color. Make a solid bed of one color with a contrasting border. Be sure that they will be the same height, and will bloom at the same time.

In choosing colors consider their background. Against a light stone dark rich colors will look well. Where the background is dark evergreens light and bright colors will look best.

Pansies and forget-me-nots will be at the same time as the tulips. You could plan a bed to include these, planning the tulips now and setting out the others in the spring. Picture a bed of purple tulips, yellow pansies and bright blue forget-me-nots, or you might choose rose tulips and white pansies. Yellow tulips would look very well with a wide border of purple pansies. Tulips can add a border to the rose bed and make that spot with color early.

Like the Sun

Plant a big clump of tulips on either side of the entrance to your grounds, or to your front door, or in staggered rows, or clumps in front of the foundation plantings. But do not forget to give them a place in the sun. Or they will fail you after a few short years.

Narcissi are a favorite with many, may be planted in clumps, or beds. Their foliage consisting of narrow grass-like leaves is not too decorative, but the blooms are fragile and beautifully perfumed. They make good cut flowers and combine well with daffodils and tulips.

Hyacinths seem to be a little more difficult to grow, but are well worth a little extra care. Where there is little snow, a light mulch can be added after the ground has frozen. This will prevent heaving by frost in most places this is not necessary.

There is a right depth for each type of bulb and while they look well in clumps they should not be planted too close together. The following table will be found handy for the guidance of the novice:

crocus - 3 to 4 inches apart; scilla - 3 to 4 inches deep 4 inches apart. Snowdrop 2 inches deep, 6 inches apart; grape hyacinth 3 to 4 inches deep, 4 inches apart; daffodil and narcissus 6 inches deep 6 inches apart; tulips 6 to 8 inches deep, 8 inches apart. Note if tulips are to be left in the ground through summer or for several years plant them 8 inches deep. Hyacinths, 6 inches deep, 6 inches a apart.

Dressen Leaves 'Beloved Bums' For More Lucrative Job With Oakland

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

OOD SHOW!

If city and district softball doesn't do another thing it can rest assured that its 1953 season was one of the best since the popular sport was taken over heresbouts.

The last night President Cy Barriage and his executive rang down the seasonal curtain in a blaze of banquet glory that was attended by a truly representative "gang", who paid tribute to champions and near-champions in the true spirit of sportsmanship.

The softballers rounded large plates of turkey despite the fact the "beau-man" from Hamilton, Frank Feaver, secretary of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association was on hand. Incidentally, Frank didn't do a bad job either as far as the knife and fork calisthenics were concerned.

The boys heard laudatory speeches and saw presentations made to team and individual champions. They paid tribute in their own way to the team that reached the high place in a manner more of the congratulatory type than that of jealousy. In fact it was one of the best "knife-and-fork" do's we have attended in many a moon, and we express our sincere appreciation to Prexy Cy and his executive mates.

Jack Devine emceed the show in his usual capable manner, and Prexy Barriage formally welcomed the gang. One minute's silence was observed to the memory of the late Harry Knott, and brief addresses given by Alderman Claude Tice, Don Lee, Don Thomas and others. The civic welcome was given by Alderman Charles Hyde.

In the presentation of trophies, the W. J. (Bill) Ott Trophy, emblematic of this league championship, was presented to Assistant Miss Whalen of the Point Anne team, by Secretary Feaver.

The Labatt Trophy, symbolic of the championship of the "AA" division, won by Northern Electric, was presented to the team representative by Don Lee.

Individual champions received their awards with Don Barclay of the Ulen Boys, being presented with the Pellar Trophy, given annually to the leading hitter in the "A" section. The award was made by "Warpy" O'Brien popular coach of the Ulen Boys, being presented with the cheque and his congratulations and also paid tribute to the Glen Roy opens.

Harry DeBushe was presented with the Conger Lahigh Trophy for being the top hitsmith in the "AA" division. The award was made by ex-Alderman Harry Sullivan.

A special feature of the presentation session was that of the handsome Warden Allan Trophy to the Glen Roy jeaners for winning the annual Kingston Penitentiary Softball Congress in 1953. The beautiful "mug" was presented to team captain Johnny Batchelor by Robert Prindell of Warden Allan's staff.

"This trophy," he smiled, "would not be given to a finer bunch of sports."

Frank Feaver, who guest-spookered the function, was introduced by Gerry McGuinness. Feaver paid tribute to the fine efforts of the representative teams of the Belleville and District League and called a glowing laud to Chief Gerald Vance and his merry men for the fine job they are doing in minor baseball.

He reviewed the history of softball in Ontario since its inception, stating it had grown from a minor sport to the point where 100,000 athletes now play the game. Canadian teams are now counted as being among the best in the world. In fact one has won a world's championship already.

Softball, he said, lends itself to recreation in a way that it can be played almost anywhere. It can be played on a pasture or on a lighted diamond. Its popularity is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Feaver pointed out that perhaps this year saw the keenest play in the playdowns series. He quoted the experiences of the Belleville teams, the majority of which were seated by the closest possible scores.

In tribute to Chief Vance and the minor softball authorities Feaver said, "They are doing a grand job building character and keeping the youngsters away from the 'street' temptations.

"These youngsters," he said, "are your senior players of the future. Look after them well and you will be repaid with fine, outstanding citizens as well as championship athletes."

"Play Up and Play the Game!"

League appreciation was expressed by Alderman Bob Temple. "Hamish" MacDonald, CJBQ piano stylist, was in his best form at his favorite instrument.

SAYS HE'S THROUGH!

President Cy Barriage of the Belleville and District Softball League, announced his definite retirement today.

"I am through with softball for all time," he told this department.

It appears Barriage was waylaid and given a beating following the banquet last night by alleged "sports" of a well-known softball team. Barriage was unable to go to work this morning.

"If that is sportsmanship in this city, then I want no more part of it," he said through bruised lips.

BASEBALL!

Reid's Regent Juniors will dig out their gloves and spikes again this afternoon, when they trek to Picton to meet the Bloomfield - Wellington Combines in the first game of three for the Belleville and District League championship. The second fixtury will take place tomorrow afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock at the C.N.R. Park.

Chipper Little Skipper Goes Back to Old Pro-Dodger Love In Quick Decision to Move

By CARL LUNDQUIST

BROOKLYN, (UP) — Charley Dressen left his beloved Dodgers today for a new "jackpot" job with Oakland in the Pacific Coast League, "which will pay me more money than I made in Brooklyn the past 5 years."

"I'm happy about the whole thing," he said. "I'm going back with my old friend Brick Laws with a wonderful opportunity to do a rebuilding job with a club that finished in seventh place.

"I still love the Dodgers, but they left me little choice. But I'm sick of this big league mishmash, anyway. I guess we're still friends."

Dressen said that with Laws, the owner of the Oakland club, there never was any hard feelings and he expected a contract.

"I won't have any kind of a contract at all," he said. "I'm not going to mention the amount of money involved. But it's a lot more than I did in Brooklyn. And the job couldn't be better for me. I just finished talking with Brick on the telephone. He told me to come on as long as I wanted to."

Dressen made his decision quickly after his explosive dispute with Dodger President Walter O'Malley over a long term contract. Dressen demanded a three-year pact, O'Malley insisted the club would not deviate from its policy of one-year contracts.

"I would have compromised on two years and I think he could have done the same," Dressen said. "But since that was out of the question, this is the way it had to be."

The other little skipper thus went back to the team he managed in 1944 before coming up to the Dodgers and where Casey Stengel had managed before moving to New York Yankees in 1949. And with his quick decision Dressen may well have gained up an opportunity to remain in the majors.

"Ever since this happened, my telephone has been ringing and I've been getting wires and other things with all sorts of offers," Dressen said. "I haven't talked about the Baltimore job, but, of course, I couldn't talk to Mr. Miles (President Clarence Miles of the new Orolle franchise) because he was in the hospital. There were other offers from some pretty good spots.

"But when Brick called I decided that was the place for me."

Vice-president E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi of the Dodgers said: "We're happy Dressen-Charley is happy.

"But, of course, we're losing the best manager in baseball."

Bavasi emphasized, as did Dressen, that the departure was on a completely amicable basis.

"We're going to give him plenty of help at Oakland in the form of players," Bavasi added. "Dressen said that in his final negotiations with the Dodgers they indicated they might establish a semi-working agreement with Oakland. However, the Dodgers still must supply their two Class Triple-A farm clubs at Montreal and Fort Worth first top priority talent. Beyond that they have several others farm where they send most of their younger players. Dressen's approach on defense, he seems to be in an excellent frame of mind."

'Bobo' Olson More at Ease Than Turpin

ASBURY PARK, N.J., (UP) — Dr. Vincent Nardiello, New York state boxing commission physician, said today that Carl (Bobo) Olson is "much more at ease mentally" than Randy Turpin for their world middleweight title fight Wednesday night.

"Olson is an excellent condition," said Dr. Nardiello. "I'm certain he will make the weight for the fight and, of course, so will Turpin. Olson, however, is more at ease. I examined him after a workout and his pulse was 90, which is remarkable. He has all kinds of reserve and could take plenty.

"Turpin's pulse the other day after I examined him was 116, which is very fast," the physician continued. "He seems to have something on his mind. I don't know what it is, I'm no psychiatrist."

Olson boxed six rounds today, sparring with Maurice Hagler, Wes Echols and Jimmy Savala.

Dr. Nardiello was accompanied to Asbury Park by Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, Joseph Waltham, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control. Waltham said he thought Olson looked very good but held back on any opinion, however, Christenberry said, "he looked very good, fast on his feet and the offense, he seems to be in an excellent frame of mind."

Montreal Stude Wins Senior Tennis Title

Raymond Page, University of Montreal, won the Intercollegiate senior singles tennis championship beating defending titlist Ken Lawson of the University of Toronto, 6-0, 6-1, at Toronto Lawn Tennis Club. Varsity's No. 1 doubles team of Gerhardt Dahl and Lawson won the doubles crown when they downed Bobbie Rand and Gordon Hall, Toronto's No. 2 team, 6-1, 9-7.

Page had little trouble with Lawson, and was never threatened. The match took less than an hour to play. The winner went through the team championships without a defeat, and was the only man to beat any of the Varsity team, beating Lusk Thursday. Varsity won the Intercollegiate title with 24 wins in 24 matches.

Lawson, Varsity's second seeded player, earned the right to challenge Page for the title by beating Arnold, Varsity's No. 1 man 6-4, 6-4. Arnold and Lawson had gone through their singles team matches undefeated to become eligible for the challenge to Page.

Greyhound, world's champion trotting horse, retired from racing at Indianapolis 14 years ago today. The 1935 Hambletonian winner was undefeated in competition from two years old to nine years, and in his great career set 17 world records. He is still revered as winner of the fastest three heats ever raced at Goshen in 1938—in 2:01, 2:00¼ and 2:00 flat.

BILLIARDS PLAYER DIES

LANCING, England, (AP)— Tom Reece, who retired from active world billiards record of 499,125 points in 1907, died today. For five weeks of play Reece was still shooting without a miss, but he then declared 499,125 points was enough although, under rules of the game in that day, he could have played longer.

Biltmores Win Second in Four

GUELPH—Guelph Biltmores won their second game in four starts by handing Quebec Citadels their third consecutive defeat 5-3, here last night in an OHA Junior "A" game.

The Hatters outplayed the Cits, but steady defensive work and the cool work of Grant Butler in goal kept the score down.

Bitte took advantage of Quebec penalties on four goals. The game was scoreless and ragged until the 6:28 mark of the second period, when Bob Forhan scored from Bill McCreary and Bob Allersley. With in 79 seconds Guelph built up a 3-0 lead.

Bill McCreary played a standout game for Guelph scoring one goal and picking up three assists. Bob Forhan scored twice, Bob Allersley and Jim Holmes one each. Raymond Cyr, Richard Bouchard and Stan Parker were the Cit marksmen.

The final goal of the game, potted at 19:19 of the third period, resulted when Bouchard drove the puck from centre ice and everyone, including Bill goalie Mike Cirka, watched it roll into the net.

Edmonton Eskys Boss Favors 8 to 12 Yankee Import Boost

EDMONTON Oct. 17 (CP)—President Ken Montgomery of the Edmonton football club is in favor of boosting the number of United States imports from eight to 12.

"It would be a step in the right direction," Montgomery said in an interview yesterday.

Under the present system, Montgomery said, a club would be allowed to bring in an unlimited number for training and pre-season exhibition games which must be cut to 12 after the schedule starts. But only eight would be allowed to play in any game.

In Toronto, President Bill Hoss of the Argonauts turned down the suggestion.

"We want no part of that business," Hoss said. "I'm against any increase."

"What is going to happen to our Canadian boys?" he asked. "The way things are now I figure our Canadians aren't getting enough senior football at all."

Hoss also declared: "When clubs start carrying another four Americans in reserve beyond the October 1 import-cutting deadline they'll price themselves right out of business."

Jim McCaffery, president of Ottawa Roughriders, said in Ottawa he also opposed the move.

McCaffery said Canadian players are already being squeezed out and added he will propose that an import be required to play six years instead of the present four before he can be classed as a Canadian.

McCaffery pointed out several teams that now have three or four imports who will be classed as Canadians Canadians thus denying opportunities for more Canadian players.

If football clubs are allowed 12 imports instead of eight, they should be able to play all 12 of them, Lew Hayman said today in Montreal.

"If we have to pay 'em we should, but he didn't say it was the succinct comment of Montreal Alouettes' general manager in taking a different slant on Montgomery's suggestion.

"In Montreal we have been in favor of more imports because of lack in number of quality Canadian personnel," said Hayman. "About 12 to 14 is positive we wanted and would suffice. But all should be permitted to play. It's a matter also of keeping salaries and a pertinent point in connection with the Edmonton reference to protection of investment. We would still have to pay the Canadian the same."

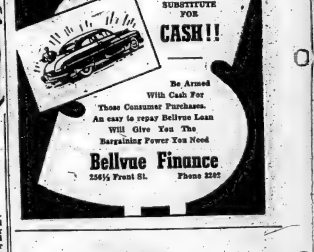
Arthur U. Chipman of Winnipeg, immediate past president of the Canadian Rugby Union, said that "something will definitely have to be done about the import restriction."

He was commenting on Montgomery's suggestion.

Chipman indicated he had some ideas of his own on the subject but said "I want to get them straight in my mind before I turn them loose."

He said he thought any team which has a player out with a serious injury should be allowed a replacement. Chipman also favored pushing the import-cutting deadline back to the start of the schedule instead as at present October 1 deadline about midway through the schedule.

CHAMBERS OUT FOR REST OF YEAR



EDMONTON, Oct. 17 (CP) — Halfback Jim Chambers, who joined Edmonton Eskimos in 1951 from Montreal Intermediate ranks, probably will be out for the remainder of the season. The Edmonton club disclosed today the fleet Negro back underwent an operation Thursday for removal of a knee cartilage.

Gad, Men, They're 'Ooking' the Ball On the Ovals-But It's Cricket

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Poker apart in many respects, baseball and cricket are of the same boot when it comes to the controversy about what a ball does between leaving the pitcher's hand and reaching the batter.

Science may rule that the curve ball is a figment of the imagination or an optical illusion, but there are hundreds of disgruntled cricket and baseball players who have struck out often at curves balls to whom these theories...

In cricket, it's known as a swerve all, and there's a long tradition that dwells on ball breaks more sharply in a warm, humid atmosphere than on a clear and frosty day.

The whole subject led A. Piddington, writing in the Daily Telegraph, to explore three self-advanced theories, starting from the fact that curve bowlers just don't exist before the 1860s.

Away Nowadays

Not too seriously, Piddington suggested that the human arm had matured to the point where it suddenly began having natural curves. Scientists will snort at it, he agrees.

Secondly, he speculates that altered composition of the cricket ball may have been responsible for the sudden appearance of the curve. This, he says, is unlikely because it's doubtful whether the generous manufacturers would suddenly have combined to produce a favorable ball.

Thirdly, he put forward the theory that the atmosphere has changed.

In this connection, he cites statistics to show that during the early 20th century has been accompanied by an increase of .002 carbon monoxide in the air between about 1900 and 1930. Smoke pollution was plentiful before that span, Piddington says, and could have coincided with the outbreak of the curve ball.

Supporting "this admittedly risky assumption" is the record of an English bowler named George Hirst, who used to deliver a ball that opposing batters swore came from somewhere in the direction of cricket's equivalent to third base.

Hirst went to Australia for exhibition games in 1897 and found that his curves had evaporated in the drier, cleaner air Down Under. From that time "it has become axiomatic among cricket writers that humidity helps bowlers," says Piddington.

He does not pretend to know the real answers, but he makes a suggestion that they could stand further research.

Now that the Ashes have been won by England, the government likely has better things for its scientists to do.

"But some cricketer who has a laboratory, or some scientist who has a cricket pitch, might find it not entirely profitless to deliver the answers."

Varsity Blues are still pretending to be worried about McMaster Marauders' fearsome air attack while Varsity, At Hamilton, is worried, period.

This paradoxical situation prevailed as the two teams prepare for their Varsity Stadium tilt this afternoon. The Marauders have lost their two starts while Varsity has blanked its two attempts.

"I only hope we can keep it fairly close," said Varsity Coach Lapchick of a man mounting the outfield. "If it doesn't look too good, the other teams seem "to be waiting for us."

McGill coach, Viv Obeck, may see Saskatoon inference but Smith considers McMaster has at least a even chance with the Redmen. But he considers Varsity, Western and Queen's too strong.

Earlier in the week Varsity coach Bob Masterson, accorded the Marauders' more respect. "The can murder us with one or so long passes," he said. So he rallied the Blues on pass defense it week.

"We have to resort to a passing game," Smith retorted. "Our line is no weak. Western ran all over it. But we should have beaten McGill.

Varsity won't be troubled by Ed arnie's long passes in this game. arnie, injured in a pre-season me, won't be in the McMaster roup, Smith said.

That leaves it up to Joe Kosanki to do the major share of the ackbreaking for the Marauders. osakowski's short-passing game hould give the Blues an opportunity to demonstrate the lessons ey learned in this week's practices.

Eddie Skrypek will be Blues' arting quarterback. Also Marron has made several other changes which, he hopes, will ep his team steamed up for the hole game.

This is also an active weekend r Balmy Beach, the most improved team in the OHFU. Saturday the Beach oppose the leaguesading K-W Dutchmen in Kitchr and Sunday afternoon the ame teams tangle in Maple Leaf adium.

Since acquiring quarterback ob Scheidebach and halfback ick Gregory the Beaches have oved to within two points of e Dutchmen. So the two weekd games could determine the p-old fate of the league.

The Dutchmen are aroused, Dutchmer reports say, because the each ravaged on the exchange of ilms of a recent game between these teams in Kitchener. Beaches were given permission to film the game with the understanding they lend the pictures to the Dutchmen. The Beaches never received the films.

In another OHFU game today the winless Brantford Redskins travel to Sarnia to oppose Red Douglas' third-place Imperials.

The Imps have been playing far below last season's form but Douglas is determined to arouse them for remaining games.

An intriguing situation could develop in the Big Four this weekend. Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Roughriders meet in the capital today. Argonauts invade Montreal Sunday. Victoria for Roughriders and Argos would create a four-way tie for first place.

With only four games remaining in the schedule, Argos and Roughriders can't afford to lose if they hope to be around when the playoffs start.

In the Western Conference, Winnipeg is at Edmonton today while Regina plays Calgary. Monday Winnipeg continues on to Calgary. The Edmonton has already clinched first place while Regina and Winnipeg are almost certain to meet in the semi-finals.

Western Mustangs, defending Intercollegiate Champions, round out the heavy football weekend in a meeting with McGill Redmen in Montreal today. Western has won its first two games, McGill has won and lost in two starts.

Perez Goes Bam Out Goes Cam

NEW YORK (UP) — Lulu Perez' right-hand explosiveness has enabled him to gain his 32nd consecutive victory last night on an eighth-round knockout over Joey Cam at Boston. The nationally televised and broadcast fight was held at St. Nicholas Arena.

Featherweight contender Perez of Brooklyn, scaled 127½ lbs; Cam, 128½.

It was an excellent fight, in which 22-year-old Cam—a 4-1 underdog—surprised the 1,900 fans by his ability to nail fast-stepping Lulu with right smashes to the body and left hooks to the head.

However, 20-year-old Perez had the advantage in punching power. He floored Cam with a right to the chin in the third round, and put him down for the count with a left-right to the same spot in the eighth.

Wear Shooting Glasses to Save Eyes

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Field Sportsman, Author and Creator of Sabmar Tables)

Every year, along about this time, I am reminded of the damage that is done each shooting season to the eyes of certain hunters who persist in going into the field without shooting glasses. One of my close friends is an eye specialist and he, during the course of the shooting season, tells me of the accident cases which come his way, almost all of which could be avoided by the simple precaution of wearing shooting eye protection.

I know of a young man who has taken up rifle shooting as a hobby. He has gone into it thoroughly, studying ballistics, devouring the gun catalogues and digests, even loading his own shells. For about time one of my friends—a gun expert, himself—has been urging this young man to wear shooting glasses.

Unusual Circumstances

Not long ago the rifle enthusiast encountered an unusual combination of circumstances. One of his hand-loaded cartridge cases proved to be defective; the percussion cap he used also was defective. In addition, the gun he was using is a model which permits "blow-back" under such conditions.

My friend, the eye doctor, had quite a time of it, digging powder chunks of metal and burned powder grains out of that right eye. While I have said it is the duty of an expert, I understand that, the eye will recover. We sincerely hope so.

Time was when we had some excellent crow shooting hereabouts. Each winter the birds would gather at this roost, literally by the hundreds of thousands. They were such a nuisance that the folks who lived nearby finally cut down the big trees for lumber and cleaned out the brush. Now the crows roost elsewhere.

Reds were in the roost one evening shooting the evening flights, and as it grew dark, I found that my green shooting glasses kept out too much light and so I ordered my shooting, so I took them off.

It must be remembered that these trees and bushes were used each night by thousands upon thousands of roosting crows. Thus, every branch and twig was covered with a liberal coating of whitewash."

I had killed two crows and caused the flight lane to shift, so I moved through the brush to take my position under the incoming birds. Then it happened. One of those filthy twigs scraped its way across my right eyeball.

Able To Save The Eye

As fast as I could get there, I showed up at the doctor's office where he met me by appointment. Fortunately he was able to hold the infection down to a low-grade affair and the eye recovered in about a week's time. After it was all over, he told me that I was lucky as I very well could have lost the sight in that eye.

Every time we go through the brush, we do so at considerable risk. Nature has not given us the protection that such travel needs. The eyes of animals are guarded by hairs which, when touched, cause the eyes to close instantly. We must depend largely upon sight and our reactions simply are not fast enough to give us complete safety.

During September of each year I load my shooting gear in the car and head for Maryland where a friend and I shoot sora rail in the Patuxent marshes. While both hunters and guides on those marshes take every precaution, somebody is always being struck by flying pellets.

There are high reeds in the marsh which cut down visibility and it is well nigh impossible now and then to duck in the direction of another boat. One day I was shot three separate times. Of course the pellets are small and about spent when they reach you, but they do sting.

I would no more think of going shooting on that marsh without wearing shooting glasses than I would of tackling a wildcat with my bare hands. I value my eyes too much to subject them to any such risks.

Narrow Escape

The last time I shot pheasants in South Dakota I had a narrow escape. Our group was driving a cornfield and I was stationed at the end of the field to pick off such birds as came my way. As the drive approached, I glanced down and to the left to reload my gun and at that very instant a load of number sixes spatted all over my left cheek and cap. As I was bent down, the visor of my cap caught the pellets which otherwise would have struck my face. Again, I wasn't wearing my shooting glasses. Some people learn slowly.

After many years of learning about risks the hard way, I now have a fixed rule. Never again so help me, will I venture into the hunting fields, covers or marshes without having my eyes protected by shooting glasses.

Believe me, a man should have his eyes protected not only while hunting but also at the traps, the skeet fields and the rifle ranges. My friend, the gun expert, goes even further. He contends that nobody in his right mind should shoot a gun—and that goes for all guns; shotguns, rifles and hand guns—unless he is wearing glasses.

There is no need to go in for expensive glasses. The new polaroid eye shields are ideal for the purpose and they are not expensive, costing only a few dollars for the best. They not only take the ordinary glasses and give protection, not only from the front, but from the side as well. Moreover, they remove all reflected glare and provide clear, undistorted vision.

Regardless of your choice of eye protection, make it a rule to wear some sort of glasses every time you go anywhere with a gun. If all of the hunters of the nation would adopt this rule there would be far fewer hunting accidents.

Bomber Queen

Sylvia Svelnson, 20-year-old telephone operator, has been chosen Miss Winnipeg Blue Bombers of 1953. She will represent the football team in the Miss Grey Cup competition to be held in connection with the Dominion Football final at Toronto.

SAVES OTHERS

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—A locomotive engineer Thursday night ordered three crew members to jump to safety seconds before his Baltimore and Ohio freight crashed into another train, and carried him to his death. Dead was John Paul Bolin, 43, of Decatur. The three crew members escaped injury.

MINISTER FIRED

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Governor Sir Hugh Foot said today that he has fired Education Minister Lester Simmonds. In a statement he said Prime Minister Norman Manley and Chief Minister Bustamante had recommended the action. The statement gave no reason.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 18, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — The influences of the Moon and Mars tend to make one irritable, impatient. Nothing to be gained—perhaps much lost—if you succumb to these inclinations. Prayer, smiles defeat gloom.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mild influences for work and essential tasks but conditions improve and become more auspicious as the sun sets. Stay near day at church and in prayer; then enjoy some healthy recreation or rest.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Day can be restful and pleasant if you help to make it so. Be cheerful. Mind, thoughts of others' likes and needs, and attend to necessary duties without fuss. Think of God's love.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — This day's lunar vibrations may cause some to have a gloomy outlook, but don't you yield to dark thoughts. Stay on the sunny side, with family, associated in a brighter outlook. Pray at church.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—A quiet planetary day which can be productive of much good if you are your best self—cordial, not unselfish. Don't mind irritations; smile them away. Day fine for necessary duties, healthy fun.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Idea planetary rays for Sunday activities. Church services bring inner contact and contentment which in turn, bring material gain. Don't overdo in anything; do be happy.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Read, heed notations to Taurus. Day favors urgent matters, especially religious services; also social activities, music, healthy recreation. Charity toward others brings many blessings.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — The position of Mars in your sign indicates the need for calmness and a pleasant, truly co-operative disposition to insure a happier time. Day on whole is generous and friendly but avoid extremes. Pray, rest a bit.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter is mildly aspected in the early hours but is going into a very propitious aspect after midnight so that Monday holds great promise much for business affairs. Real value today if you can.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Much depends now upon how much must do—and how quick. Don't make amateurs sary work for yourself, but complete essential tasks serenely and with dispatch. You can have a good day. Pray!

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Mostly up to you whether you have a wholesome, usefully spent Sunday or otherwise. Start right at church; have true respect and love for God and you won't be sorry.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some beneficent rays linger on from yesterday but, in general, the day does not encourage stimulating or exciting interests and activities. If duties permit, enjoy relaxing diversion after church services.

YOU BORN TODAY may have a leaning toward science, architectural traits and talents and seek God's could make good at any worthwhile vocation or trade to which you give full time. You are generous and have a pleasant disposition but must guard against becoming too fond of leisure or high-living. Gambling also could be a temptation. The number compared with 1,753,778 in a similar period last year. The number in August, 1953, however was about 6,000,000 and they stayed six days on the average.
This flow was swelled by 200,377 entering from the U.S. by train up to the Niagara frontier, a drop slightly from the 230,877 recorded in that period last year. Another 126,048 came by bus against 141,-148 last year. Cars totalled 1,426,324 against 54,942 last year and 51,129 by plane against 16,685 last year.
To these entries were added about 52,000 who came to Canada on commercial travel, and another 16,000 overseas visitors who entered Canada from the U.S.A.
The Canadian government travel bureau estimates that visitors from the U.S. will spend $375 million by the year's end, equal to the peak spending of 1952 and that non-overseas tourists are expected to spend about 118,000,000.
This is based on the provincial report the tourist picture:

ONTARIO

Officials expect 1953 to be the highest season on record, in terms of revenues. They expect spending to hit $325,000,000 compared with $322,000,000 last year.
More automobiles—1,158,196—entered the province up to Sept. 2 than ever before. August entries of 355,637 also were a record, five percent higher than in August, 1952. The estimated 4,000,000 persons flying visits have shot ahead nearly only a few places where U.S. funds were worth less than Canadian dollars.
The average of 3.5 persons per car stayed an average of six days and spent about $186.
By the year's end, entries by rail are expected to reach 200,000 by bus 300,000, by boat 125,000 and by air 70,000.
More than half the U.S. visitors were sightseers and motor tourists. One-fifth of them headed for Ontario's fishing waters. Almost 375,000 non-resident fishing licences are issued yearly to the province.

QUEBEC

Tourist traffic is estimated at 4,657,500 for the year compared with 4,500,000 in 1952. Average spending is estimated at $84 last year. Total spending is expected to total $138,355,000 compared with $99,330,111 last year.
Quebec, City's old-world atmosphere appears to have been the main attraction. The city estimates it gained to 189,114 tourists compared with 182,885 last year. Average spending there is estimated at $27.17 against $26.25 last year. Total spending by visitors is estimated at $31,007,994 compared with $29,330,111 last year.
Almost one-fifth of Quebec, City's visitors came from other provinces while the remaining visitors were from the U.S.

NEW BRUNSWICK

The $15,000,000 value of last year's tourist industry is expected to be topped this year, established by a record in the first seven months of the year, the province reports 82,096 U.S. cars entered the province, five-per-cent higher than last year.
These figures do not include the motor vehicle entries by train, bus, boat and plane for which figures are not compiled. During the first two August figures, usually the highest of the year.
Visitors to Fundy National Park and the province's lakes, rivers and seashore spent an estimated $8 each.

NOVA SCOTIA

A moderate increase is expected this year over the $15,000,000 spent in Nova Scotia between June and September. The value to the industry is estimated at $480,000,000 when resident tourist spending between $7 and $8 a day.
Visitors are almost evenly divided between Canadians from other provinces and Americans. They headed for the province's lakes, hunting lodges and fishing camps inland and on the coast. Cape Breton Island and the Annapolis Valley particularly Cape Breton National Park are on the Cabot Trail.

P.E.I. AND NEWFOUNDLAND

P.E.I. expects a seven-per-cent increase in the 8,000 tourists who visited the island last year.
The visitors were expected to spend about $8,000,000, in increase of about $300,000 over last year. Warm sea bathing, fishing and the countryside attracted the visitors.
Newfoundland officials compile tourist figures but there are indications that the number of fishermen and hunters visiting the province is increasing. Officials say better highways have resulted in the number of hotels are a necessity before the province can handle it big tourist trade.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Up to the end of August, 618,000 tourists entered the province, a five-per-cent increase over entries for the full year 1952. Increase in automobile rose to 306,000 from 195,000.
The value of the industry is estimated in the first eight months of the year to be $300,000,000 with a five-per-cent higher than the $63,-000,000 for 1952. Hotel occupancies were recorded despite poor weather in June.

ALBERTA

In the first seven months of the year, 38,581 automobiles entered the province from the United States almost one-per-cent higher than for a similar period last year.
The number of visitors entering national parks totalled 878,365 in the seven-month period, a 13-per-cent increase. In June, July and August 1952, entries totalled 1,027,766.
Banff reported entries of 272,041. Waterton 111,984 and Jasper 67,000. Elk Island Park, 30 miles east of Edmonton, is expected to be visited as many entries as last year at 136,581.

SASKATCHEWAN

In the first seven months of the year, automobile entries from the U.S. rose to 281,911 from 276,000 a similar period last year. In the first six months, train entries from the U.S. totalled 2,612 down 8.5% and bus and plane visitors also increased.
Most of the visitors, including unrecorded entries, were Canadians other provinces, fished, vacationed in national and provincial parks or visited relatives.
Reports for Manitoba have not yet been completed.

Tourist Operators Report 'Terrific' Year Especially In Quebec and Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More visitors than ever before flocked into Canada this year, exchanging their money at the rate of a billion dollars for a holiday at the variety of scenery and welcome.

Tourist operators report a "terrific" year, particularly in Quebec and Ontario where records for the volume of tourist traffic, and revenue are expected to be established before the year's end.

The industry was "spotty" in the Maritimes but New Brunswick's parks, lakes, forest and seashore attracted record numbers with more money to spend than in previous years.

In the west figures are incomplete but British Columbia reported entries in greater numbers and spending ahead of last year.

The flow was swelled by 200,377 entering from the U.S. by train up to the Niagara frontier, a drop slightly from the 230,877 recorded in that period last year. ARMY OFFICER HELD AS GIRL'S SLAYER

French Offensive Is Drawing Near Vietminh Base

Red Resistance Is Growing As French Near Big Centre

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command announced tonight that French and Viet Namese forces pushing into the area south of the vital Red river delta had wrecked a Vietminh war depot north of Thanh Hoc, destroying tons of war equipment.

Destruction of the depots is a primary aim of the latest French drive, launched last Thursday. The delta is the key to Vietminh power for an offensive in the Delta area.

Troops moving on from the north and south pressed closer to Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi and one of the Communist-ed Vietminh's biggest administrative centres for war operations in central Viet Nam.

French forces pushing south from Phu Ly reported they were within 12 miles of Thanh Hoa. Those from the north were within 25 miles of their objective.

Resistance Grows

Vietminh resistance increased all the French neared Thanh Hoa. Latest reports said the Vietminh have moved the 320th Division into the fighting. The French command said 173 Vietminh were killed. In two unsuccessful rebel counter-attacks, French losses were 25 dead.

French fighter bombers today blew 80 sorties against Vietminh communication lines.

Reds Attack

Complicating the situation is the presence of Vietminh troops within the delta itself. This was demonstrated in a strong attack last night against a French defence post only eight miles south of Hanoi. The attack was broken up by mobile artillery.

Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in northern Indo-China, has said his chief aim is to track down and destroy Vietminh Divisions in the area and to wreck the supply depots. Capture of Thanh Hoa is considered only a secondary aim.

Yugoslavs Find Latest Big Three Proposal Puzzling

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavs were puzzled today over the latest Big Three pronouncement on the explosive Trieste dispute, but their leaders stood fast in their threat to march in if Italian troops move into zone A.

There still was no official comment on the West's invitation to Yugoslavia and Italy to meet with the United States, Britain and France to discuss the burning Trieste question.

Yugoslavia's chief United Nations delegate, Leo Mates said Sunday in Washington he believed his government might be inclined to accept. But President Tito and other speakers already have declared they feel such a meeting would be of no use if Britain and the United States held to advance to their decision to pull out of zone A of Trieste and turn it over to Italian administration.

Belgrade Puzzled

The communique issued by British's Foreign Secretary Eden, U.S. State Secretary Dulles and French Foreign Minister Bidault at the end of their four-day conference in London Sunday plunged Belgrade into puzzled, anxious suspense.

But the angry statements that some said expected to follow any unfavorable decision by the Big Three did not take place.

Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella has threatened his government will resign if the West backs down on its latest decision.

The tough Yugoslav leader was quoted as saying, however:

"I wish to say firmly our troops will not fight against Anglo-American troops."

The Belgrade radio broadcast of this statement did not clarify what Tito planned to do if Pella marches his forces into Trieste before the two Western powers pull their 7,600 occupying troops out.

Allies To Leave

The three Western foreign ministers in London indicated there had been no change of heart about the original decision to pull the Anglo-American forces out and let Italy take over. Italy's 11 divisions in the port city continued to watch at top speed for an early withdrawal.

Tito called the Big Three diplomatic envoys in Belgrade for an unusual Sunday conference to discuss the latest Trieste developments.

The first contingent of British dependents left by train Sunday. Families of American soldiers left by ship in a stream which will be getting ready to depart as soon as possible.

Further signs of the growing tension over the issue came in Italy's report that it had ordered three crack divisions north of Trieste on the Yugoslav border on a state of emergency to "counterbalance" recent Yugoslav reinforcements in the area.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: This morning's weather maps emerged that the fine warm weather in Ontario may last at least until Tuesday night.

There is a small chance that thundershowers occurring this morning west of Lake Michigan may drift into southern Ontario tonight and early Tuesday. They would be quite isolated in any event and shiny would clear early in the day. It appears quite unlikely that this would bring any big change in temperature.

TWO ARE KILLED WHEN AIRLINER CRASHES, BURNS

Praise Heroic Steward As 20 Escape Death

NEW YORK (AP)—An Eastern Airlines Constellation with 27 persons aboard crashed in flames after taking off from fog-shrouded Idlewild airport early today.

The 25 passengers aboard the four-engined aircraft were killed and at least 12 others suffered burns or other injuries, including two of the five crewmen.

A steward who plunged through flames to open a fuselage door after the passengers were trapped inside the plane was credited with keeping the toll from going higher.

The crash, first to cause fatalities since the giant Atlantic liner disappeared in 1948, touched off an investigation by Queens county authorities.

Fog Delayed Flight

Survivors said the flight originally was scheduled to take off for San Juan, Puerto Rico, at 11:45 p.m. (EST) but was delayed by fog for more than an hour. The plane carried about 30 feet above the runway when it shuddered and plunged through a grassy patch and struck one-half mile from Jamaica bay.

"It did not hit the ground very hard," said Reinaldo Betancourt, 36, one of the survivors. "But then one of the motors on the right burst into flames."

Fire began shooting upward and the doorway was just a mass of flames," said Leo Gore, 33, another of the passengers who was trapped inside the fuselage.

"The heat was terrific, but the steward just leaped through the flames and opened that door.

"If it hadn't been for him, nobody would have had the nerve to jump out."

The steward was listed as Al Foley, with no home address given. He was taken to hospital with burns on the hands and face.

Pilot E. C. Foxworth of Summit, N.J., said he and co-pilot E. M. Reed, Great Neck, N.Y., "suddenly found ourselves on the ground."

"We walked back through the ship, saw no passengers and then walked over to the cockpit and went out the flight door," said Foxworth. Minutes later, he said, the right engine blew up.

Question Policemen in Hunt For Missing Ransom Money

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An investigation of alleged discrepancies in police reports on the arrest of Bobby Greenlease kidnaper and recovery of half the ransom money was under way today on orders of the St. Louis board of police commissioners.

The board ordered all reports checked and "all persons connected with the arrest" questioned again following published reports that the FBI had found a number of discrepancies in the police account of the case.

Agents of the FBI, still seeking $300,000 in missing ransom money, refused to comment on this report and on reports that they questioned the two police officers who arrested Carl Austin Hall, confessed kidnap-slayer, and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady here Oct. 6.

Hall was arraigned by Lieut. Louis Shoulders and patrolman Elmer Dolan at a midtown apartment hotel.

Identity Probe

J. A. Lucas, board president, said Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell was asked to "intensify and broaden the investigation already in the case" following a special meeting of the commissioners.

O'Connell said, meanwhile would include police questioning of Shoulders and Dolan. The police commissioners said "we have no reason to believe" anything untrue connected with the case have not given us all the information they have."

The Post-Dispatch has reported it learned FBI agents had found a number of discrepancies in the police account of Hall's arrest and recovery of about $293,000 in ransom money from him.

The newspaper said police records showed Hall was brought to a district police station following his arrest with two suitcases filled with money, but that the FBI had determined no suitcases were brought with Hall to the station. The newspaper said "more than an hour elapsed" after Hall was booked before suitcases were brought in.

However, Shoulders said "the bags with the money were delivered to the station at the same time as the prisoner."

Detective Unwerried

Shoulders said that after Hall was booked he (Shoulders) took the two suitcases to a small room at the station and locked the door.

"I can prove," he said, "that the money I found in Hall's apartment was the same money I turned over to the FBI. Where that money is will come out at the right time and when it does, I know I will be in the clear. I'm not worried."

The Globe-Democrat said Sunday night that Hall FBI agents he did not know the two suitcases found in Hall's apartment contained the ransom money until about two hours after they had been turned over. It also reported Dolan told the FBI that shoulders left the apartment in the first instance car shortly after Hall was brought to the station.

Shoulders, declining to affirm or deny the report he left the station, said:

"I can account for every move I made and the handling of the money whenever I'm called upon to do so and will be only to the proper authorities—the police board or the chief—and it will not be the newspapers or the FBI."

Hall has said he can not remember what happened to the missing ransom money—half of the record $600,000 paid by Robert Greenlease, Sr.

THREE-PARLEYS ARE PROPOSED BY BIG THREE

Compromise Proposal On Korea Is Rumored

LONDON (AP)—The Big Three foreign ministers have invited Russia to meet with them next month to discuss Germany, Austria and European security, Winding up a three-day conference Sunday night they also took dramatic steps to deal with all other major tensions threatening the world.

The three—Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden, U.S. State Secretary Dulles and French Foreign Minister Bidault—also invited Italy and Yugoslavia to a five-nation meeting on the Balkan powder keg issue in Trieste.

During these intensive meetings they also discussed Korea, the possibility of a later meeting of the Western chiefs of state with Soviet Premier Malenkov, the turbulent Middle East questions with emphasis on the latest Israeli-Jordan border flare-up and France's sovereignty war against the Reds in Indo-China.

New Korean Plan

The three were reported also to have agreed secretly on a new Korean peace conference plan before including the present deadlock over its make-up.

Identified as the political confirmation of this report by a diplomat is informant that the three had agreed on a compromise proposal calling for a seven-nation roundtable peace conference including Britain, the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Red China, and North and South Korea. The informant indicated this was aimed at countering Communist demands for the inclusion of a number of neutral nations.

There also was an unconfirmed report that Prime Minister Churchill had intervened out Dulles and Bidault on how the American and French governments would feel if he should seek a meeting alone with Soviet Premier Malenkov.

Dulles Is Happy

At the end of the meetings, Dulles took a plane Sunday night for the United States and Bidault flew back to Paris. Before leaving Dulles said he will be happy "to talk about the conference as a whole."

Bidault did not sound so enthusiastic, but said he thought the meetings had been a success and expressed the view should hold similar meetings "three or four times a year."

Western notes were handed to Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Zarubin and French envoys to Moscow proposing a Big Four foreign ministers conference in Berlin, Nov. 25, Switzerland. The conference would be the first deadlock over unifying Germany.

Today's conference lasted 2½ hours.

During their talks, the three also had called for an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council to discuss the threat to Middle East peace posed by the attack by Israeli troops Oct. 14 on the Jordan border village of Qibya in which Arab claims 66 persons were killed.

The conference lasted 2½ hours.

Quebec Brothers Identify Sister's Knife-Torn Body

Officer Arrested at London And Charged With Murder

CORNWALL (CP)—An army officer's chest of medical records led to the identification of murder victim Anne Carrier.

Police said today that Lieut. Col. J. Gordon Ross of Quebec City started the investigation into the reserve army sergeant's disappearance when she missed a parade drill last Wednesday. The 23-year-old Brienville, Que., girl was found stabbed to death the next morning at Iroquois, near here.

Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan of Cornwall said Col. Ross gave the tip that led to Miss Carrier's identification.

He said the officer called the girl's family when she didn't answer the roll call. Two days later he read a description of the murder victim, noticed a similarity to Miss Carrier and checked her army records.

The medical record showed the girl had a decayed tooth and a record of an operation. This tallied with the Cornwall description. Army and police then made a positive identification.

Col. Ross phoned the girl's three brothers and drove them nearly 200 miles to Cornwall where they identified her.

The body was scheduled to be taken today to the Carrier home at Blenville, a small village on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river opposite Quebec City.

The Carrier brothers—Raoul, Eugene and George—saw a newspaper photograph of the dead girl and decided she was their sister, missing since Wednesday night when she set out for the regular drill at the Quebec City reserve unit of the Canadian Women's Army Corps in which she was a sergeant.

They viewed the body and told police it was that of their sister, one of a family of 16 children.

Miss Carrier's last interview was quoted in Quebec as saying the motive for the killing was jealousy.

Rev. J. Lessard, the girl's parish priest, described her as a girl "full of life and a good reputation. He said he could suggest no reason for the slaying.

The daughter of Mrs. Arthur Carrier, a widow, lived in a chocolate brown two-storey house. The home's shades were pulled down tight and brothers and sisters of the dead girl refused to see reporters or photographers except for press graphs.

She Was Not in Uniform

One army official said the girl was not in uniform when she left her home.

Earlier a Brockville woman said she was able to identify the slain girl as her police said subsequently it was a case of mistaken identity. Mrs. Gordon Hammond, wife of a Brockville police said Saturday that the woman, whom she knew only as anonymous, told him she knew the girl from a photograph. But the woman was unable to identify the dead girl when she was brought in look at the body.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 24-year-old army officer, father of two children, was jailed today on a charge of murdering a girl and dumping her body in a ditch near Iroquois last Thursday.

The suspect, 2nd Lieut. Peter Ernest Robin Balcombe of London, was picked up at his wife's parental home a few miles northwest of here late Sunday by provincial police, Ilis car was seized.

Balcombe, a slim man with crew-cut black hair, was formally charged with the slaying this morning. He was wearing a white T-shirt and army trousers when taken to jail.

The slain girl, Marie Anne Carrier, a nearly-six-foot member of the Canadian Army Women's Auxiliary Corps, was found nude and stabbed five times in a ditch near Iroquois, about 20 miles east of Brockville.

Stabbed Five Times

She had been stabbed once through the left eye, twice in the throat and twice in the stomach. Police said any one of the wounds would have caused death. The murder weapon has not yet been found but police believe the killer used a partial knife.

Balcombe was held at provincial police headquarters here until the arrival early today of Inspector Thomas R. Wright of the OPP criminal investigation branch from Cornwall.

He was then taken to city police headquarters and Insp. Wright announced the charge had been laid. Identified by Wife Identity of the girl was a mystery until today when she was identified by three of her brothers at a funeral home in Morrisburg. Miss Carrier left her home to join the army Wednesday.

Police said Balcombe, in the army since 1951, had been transferred to Valcartier from Wainfleet, Ont.

Police did not say how long they had been seeking Balcombe. He was arrested in suburban Komoka a few hours after the girl was identified.

Asked when Balcombe would be taken to Cornwall, Insp. Wright said "very soon."

Insp. Wright was accompanied by District Inspector John Reevely of Cornwall. Inspector Lloyd Macleod of the criminal investigation branch arrived at provincial police headquarters Sunday.

Polish and Czech Delegates Quit Repatriation Hearing

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Beaten in their demand that Indian troops force defiant Korean war prisoners to listen to Red persuasion teams, the two Communist delegates to the repatriation commission today stormed out of a Korean repatriation commission meeting early.

The Polish and Czech walkout—ordered by a Red bloc source—threatened a collapse in the truce-ridden interviewing of 23,000 anti-Communist prisoners who refuse to return to their homelands.

The commission also declined to be warned, said the Swedish, Swiss and Indian members of the commission were sharply sided on the critical issue.

The sources gave no indication whether the walkout would be permanent, but it was certain that the sudden move stalled all activity of the commission at least temporarily.

Call Off Talks

A commission spokesman said there were no plans for a session on Tuesday. The Reds had refused to interview Chinese instead of the North Korean troops they had chosen.

Today's explanations were called off for the same reason.

The North Koreans have stubbornly refused to meet with anti-Communist prisoners with Red explanation teams whose job it is to persuade the 14,000 Reds in the repatriation teams whose job it is to persuade the anti-Red POWs to return to their homelands.

The commission called a hurried meeting to discuss the touchy problem.

Then, after 1½ hours of debate, the Poles and Czechs walked out, the sources said.

The Red bloc have taken bitter propaganda blows in the two days they have interviewed the anti-Red POWs. Only 19 of 521 Chinese interviewed asked for repatriation, a total of about two per cent.

So far no North Korean has faced a Red explanation team.

Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett, one Communist source said, said one Red complaint was that Allied observers held up explanations by protesting alleged violations during the interviews, instead of waiting until they were over.

Bryan said the Red charge amounted to a statement of lack of faith in the repatriation commission.

Reds Accept Plan for Meeting To Arrange Parley

TOKYO (AP)—The Communists agreed today to a United Nations proposal for a meeting at Panmunjon next Monday to make plans for the Korean peace conference, but they insisted on changes in the agenda.

Under the plan, Red China rather than Nationalist China would be included among the Big Five. The others are Britain, the United States, France and Russia.

The earlier Allied proposals called for only the belligerents with South Korea and the Communist side ill invited by the Reds.

Tentering with the explanations and the command in turn charged the Communists attempted to coerce a POW into accepting repatriation.

Brig.-Gen. A. L. Hamblen, chief of the UN truce delegation, protested to the commission over the three-hour interview with a reluctant Red POW by Red-explainers.

Maj.-Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, senior UN member of the joint military armistice commission, said one Red complaint was that Allied observers held up explanations by protesting alleged violations during the interviews, instead of waiting until they were over.

Bryan said the Red charge amounted to a statement of lack of faith in the repatriation commission.

Girl Defies Divisional Court Bench, Comes to School Wearing Slacks

WARRINGTON, England (AP)—Little Eva Spiers defied the Queen's Bench Divisional Court today and went to school—wearing slacks.

She was refused admittance to her fourteenth school yesterday until she told her to go home and put on a dress before coming back. Today she made a defiant performance of the now famous "slacks case" that has split Richard Fairclough's girls' secondary modern school, twelve miles from Liverpool, city council in a tizzy for nearly a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spiers, 14-year-old Eva's parents, are determined that their girl is going to school wearing slacks to keep her warm. School authorities are just as determined that Eva will wear a dress like other teen-age girls to uphold school discipline.

Last March, the school got the city council to back up its ban on slacks. A court fined the Spiers 10 shillings for keeping Eva at home.

The Spiers appealed the ruling and the fine and a court quashed the whole thing.

But Eva's slack-happy days were numbered. The city council went to the Queen's Bench Divisional Court and won an appeal against the quashing.

Undaunted, Eva went off to school today accompanied by her mother. They got no further than the principal's office.

Emerging after a lively 15-minute session, Eva's parents announced she would continue to take Eva to school every morning—in slacks.

"I am not going to risk Eva catching rheumatic fever again," the mother said. "She has got to be kept warm."

And if the school bars their doors to Eva?

"I'll teach her at home myself," says Mrs. Spiers.

Car Is Stolen But Recovered At Napanee

The fact that Harry O'Neill, Thurlow township, is a light sleeper prevented a car thief from getting too far with his car early this morning.

Mr. O'Neill was disturbed by a noise in his driveway during the early hours of the morning and glancing out his bedroom window was surprised to see his auto being driven away. He notified provincial police with result that the car was spotted near Napanee and was abandoned after a brief police chase.

Harry James Dyer, 19, of the R.C.S.C., Kingston, was later arrested and arraigned in Belleville to face charges, while police are still looking for another man believed to have been an accomplice of the car.

Provincial Constable Herb Bolster of Napanee spotted the stolen car at a filling station in Napanee and after a brief chase the car was run onto a Napanee resident's lawn and the occupants disappeared. A short time later Constable Bolster apprehended Dyer.

950 Contributors Give $9,070.49 In Chest Drive

Officials of the local Chest drive, today expressed confidence that the goal of $12,000 would be reached. Returns to date total $9,070.49. This amount represents donations from slightly over 950 contributors.

Although the campaign was a bit slow in starting and was interrupted by the Thanksgiving week-end, Chest officers are optimistic about the results so far, since only 70 canvassers have completely finished their work. It is believed that there are about 250 more kits to be completed before the city has been covered.

A breakdown of the figures indicates that the amount received for each division to date is as follows: House to house, $2.05 per person; Special Events and Clubs-Town Corporations $50.80 per unit; Business Division $14.55 per unit; Investment; Industrial division $241.66 per company; Professional division $8.84 per contributor.

Mr. Lloyd Skeaff, executive secretary of the Chest pointed out that when plans were made last June, the Chest executive committee wasn't aware of the dates of the Templeton Mission and the Thanksgiving holiday. Both of these were factors affecting the early part of the campaign.

Warm Weather, Cloudless Skies Greet Motorists

Warm weather, cloudless blue skies, a fabulous autumn sunshine over the week-end brought hundreds of Belleville and district motorists out for a Sunday drive.

The week-long Indian summer weather was climaxed on Saturday and Sunday by almost perfect conditions.

The countryside, turned into a technicolor extravaganza by the changing colors of the leaves, has never been more beautiful than over the week-end just past.

In Prince Edward County hundreds of motorists took the drive along the Picton Reach from Glenora to Lake of the Mountain.

In the northern part of Hastings County roads were busy as many drivers admired the autumn scenery.

Despite the heavy traffic local and provincial police spent a quiet week-end with no major accidents being reported.

FORTHCOMING MEETING IN WARKWORTH HALL TO FORM A COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Plans are currently being formulated for the formation of a county historical society, as was intimated earlier in these columns. In order to develop such a project, interested newspapers are providing advance notice such as this free of charge, since there are as yet no officers or funds. A meeting is to be held in Warkworth Town Hall a week from Friday, June eighteenth, at eight-thirty. And all who are interested in promoting a county-wide historical society are invited to be present.

Anyone who has ideas for the formation of a county historical society, those who are interested in seeing the histories of our townships, villages and towns preserved and those who would like to see preservation of relics with the goal of establishing a museum, will find this forthcoming organization meeting deserving of attention.

In order to avoid becoming too preoccupied with the present it is wise to develop interests other than those of the day to day routine and how better can this be accomplished than through the work of a historical society, which seeks to preserve the past for posterity.

WE ALL OWE THE FIREMEN A VOTE OF THANKS FOR THEIR PROMPT AND EFFICIENT SERVICES

Brighton Fire Chief Bob Keane is justly proud of the letter he received from Mr. J. M. Wilson of Toronto and Presqu'ile Point, whose beautiful summer home at the Point was menaced by fire recently.

The Chief,
The Brighton Fire Brigade,
Brighton, Ont.

Dear Sir:

This is just a note to express my thanks for the ready response you gave to my call for help last week when fire broke out in the chimney at "Stonehedge".

To hear your fire truck coming so quickly in the middle of the night was most incredible and let me take this opportunity of congratulating you on the remarkable efficiency of your Brigade.

Yours sincerely,
J. M. Wilson.

Everyone who lives in the vicinity of Brighton village, and is served by the local fire brigade, is equally as fortunate as Mr. Wilson, for the firemen give prompt, efficient service for all calls by all hours and have an excellent record of effectively checking minor fires, thus preventing many major conflagrations, with their resultant financial and other loss.

In recent years the firemen here have been paid for their services, it is true, thus somewhat altering the volunteer status of the past, when those who were able felt obliged to respond to fire calls lest they's require reciprocal services. But while fire protection now costs taxpayers here a sizable sum, it is a most worth while expenditure, for it has resulted in a dependable, better trained, more efficient group of men to handle such critical conditions.

When a call for help comes from outside the corporation limits, the municipality in which the fire occurs is called upon to reimburse the local council to the extent of the expense incurred. But while it is a real saving not to call the fire brigade at all, it is much less expensive to summon the firemen when needed and keep the fire loss low than to lose some tax revenue producing structure entirely.

Indeed, we all owe a vote of thanks to our firemen, who come on the run, night or day, at the sound of the siren.

CONGRATULATING TWICE WEEKLY CENTENARY DAILY NEWSPAPER PRAISES ALL WEEKLY PAPERS

Commenting on the recent centenary of The Picton Times, a twice weekly publication, the daily Belleville Ontario Intelligencer paid the following fine tribute to weekly newspapers in general. The Ensign appreciates the Intelligencer's kind comments on weekly newspapers and endorses its congratulations to the Times on its century of service.

The Picton Times, well-known weekly newspaper of Prince Edward county, celebrated its 100th birthday on Sunday, May 30.

It was on May 30, 1858, that Dr. George Philipe and Robert Boyle laid the foundation of what has become a landmark in county newspapердom over a century of publication.

Publisher Bill McLean, member of the third generation to operate the Times, celebrated the occasion with a special edition, which in itself is a fine tribute to the efficiency of its staff and to the proud history of the newspaper.

The weekly newspaper, the voice of the people who "live outside the cities", has a real-down-to-earth quality that makes it a vital part of the community. It comes much closer to the good folk of the smaller centres than does its big brother, the daily. It records community events, news, human interest articles and those items that lie on the surface yet are crowded out of the city dailies.

Its editor usually is a man about town. He is called by his first name by everybody and calls everybody by his first name. Oftimes his advice is sought — and freely given. He bblongs to nearly every organization and association in his community, and is as much part and parcel of its structure as are the doctor and the lawyer and minister.

The stories of the importance of the weekly newspaper and its effect on the community are legion. Woven into the pattern of these stories is the golden thread of human interest, friendliness,

One of Brighton's senior business men expressed the opinion to us the other day that the public is becoming increasingly demanding of free services in exchange for its patronage. Example is being sent by the local Agricultural office to the Department of Lands and Forests, who may have an interest in this phenomenon.

A local boy discovered a fox pup not far from where he lives and took it home for a pet, making a secure pen and wire enclosure for it. Nevertheless the small animal was gone one morning and the family is convinced the mother fox discovered its whereabouts and released it, since there would have to have been caped unaided. Perhaps it is just as well, for many believe foxes never make good pets.

Some places had a great deal more rain last week-end than around here. It simply poured all day Saturday where we were, in Simcoe and Grey Counties. But then there are those who believe that rain when we go anywhere. Unofficial rainmaker, We must be. Should capitalize on the idea and agree to travel to dry areas for certain sums. If we don't watch out, we'll end up spending our holidays alone, since people seem to prefer rain at any other time.

The weather so far, which is not yet very far, this week has been gorgeous, though. A preview of summer, since the official first day isn't scheduled for more than a week yet.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

27 May, 1954.

Dear Editor,

I would like to say a few words on behalf of Blackie, a farmer's dog. I called him Blackie, although I never had the pleasure of shaking his paw for I passed him every day whilst on my way to work, by train. He was always in the same place, near the house, so I got used to looking for him.

He was old, a sort of dull black, good sized, and what is known as a mongrel. I don't know why, perhaps because he was not pure bred, but there are millions of happy people in this world who do not claim pure blood. Like Blackie, they work hard, are pleasant to get along with, and always to be relied on in emergencies.

Blackie had not the power of speech, but of understanding. He was full of kindness and affectionate, but firm and loyal in the discharge of his duties. In fair weather or foul he was always there. He was not just a "fair-weather" sailor.

It gave me much pleasure to see him every day from afar, and I vowed I would make a special trip some day just to meet him, as I have also promised to meet many old friends. Now it is too late. Blackie has gone and I will always regret my failure. Some day, perhaps, I will awake to the fact that he waits for me no more.

One day, as I rode by, Blackie was not there. The following day I saw a mound of fresh earth, right on the spot he used to lie in the sun. A few days later I saw a small wooden monument. His owner, like myself, must certainly have missed him. There still has been no dog there to replace Blackie — if that was his name.

I don't know whether one is supposed to pray for animals, but I said a prayer for Blackie, and all he stood for — kindness and loyalty. I hope that I will be forgiven, if, in my ignorance, I have done wrong.

closeness with the people, refreshing lines of thought and expression that makes the newspaper a sturdy part of the Canadian way of life.

With a fine record of one hundred years of efficient, faithful service to its public, The Picton Times marks with pride a century of achievement, and proudly looks forward to the progress of the future.

Our sincere congratulations.

BRIGHTON BRIEFS

Hilda M. Deenes

This year of 1954 in China is called "The Year of the Horse". I do not know why but it was amusing to hear a witty fellow trying to qualify it by saying it might well be the year of the horse in every country for most people claim they have to work like a horse to make ends meet. Another wit chimed in with "The year of the kicking mule might be more appropriate because," he said, "people who supposedly work like horses are always kicking like a mule".

hmd

A fellow talking and kicking about paying taxes amused his listeners by saying "The eternal revenue gets me down". Some thought he meant "internal" but it was taxes which had to be paid nevertheless.

hmd

At a recent Christening of a small girl a very old but beautifully embroidered robe was worn by the wee mite. It was ninety-nine years old but in excellent condition still. For years it had been used by one after another of the family.

hmd

When a group was discussing the importance of having tact in the business world three short sentences were considered to be the most important in keeping things running smoothly and well and to avoid friction. They were: What is your opinion?" "I'm proud of your work" and "If you don't mind". An order loses a lot of abruptness if given in a gentle manner like "I'd like you to and contact so and so" instead of "Go and contact so and so". However, employers know their workmen best and should know best how to handle them.

hmd

When anyone finds a four-leafed clover it is considered fortunate but I wonder what special fortune comes to the finder of a lovely trillium with six petals instead of the usual three.

hmd

Speaking of flowers, if you don't already know, tulips will last very much longer if a couple of copper cents are placed at the bottom of the vase of water. It seems tulips need copper and the pennies supply this need.

hmd

It is also said that folk need minerals as well and minute portions of them are found in the human body. The wit claims some folk even have a good percentage of brass in them, too. Well, could be.

hmd

A Brighton woman says she knows the quickest way to double her money — just fold it.

hmd

Still there is talk now and then about water diviners, people who are able, with a fork-shaped piece of hazel or willow wood to find where water is located underground. Professional well diggers claim this is merely superstition, yet it has worked for some people, but not for everyone.

hmd

In spite of the cool days of late May and early June, vegetables are making good headway in most gardens. Onions, hard boiled eggs and chopped green onions mixed with cottage cheese moistened with mayonnaise is a fine spring salad. Radishes are another tasty tip for and added to cold potato salad.

hmd

And what is a picnic without at least one large bowl of delicious potato salad and a chocolate cake, plus the other good food which seems to get packed in the lunch baskets. I often wonder why it is people eat far more out of doors on a picnic than they would dream of doing at home. It is said the oxygen in the open air causes quick digestion. Well, something causes it.

hmd

In some township homes the wild life is getting a bit out of hand. One lady says when she takes her basket of freshly washed clothes out across the yard to hang them up she sees chipmunks, cotton-tail rabbits and sometimes a fox darting hither and yon, often almost underfoot. Quite full, and sometimes two birds fight around happily, calling to each other from tree to tree.

hmd

Don't throw away old tooth brushes if you have a couple hanging around — and what home hasn't — for they are handy for several things. One way to use them is to scrub those summer mesh shoes. The bristles, dear to left of them, will clean all the tiny holes in the mesh and leave your shoes, especially white ones,

NATURE RAMBLES

Orval Kelly

Quite a number of roadside snack bars and service stations seem to find it profitable to operate a wildlife menagerie as an attraction to customers. Occupants of the menagerie's may range from monkeys to bears, but they, all draw crowds, particularly of children. Some of these small animal exhibits are well maintained, the occupants being confined in comfortable, clean and roomy enclosures. Others again are a disgrace to the owners who might well be cited for cruelty to animals.

As I understand the law, a permit is required from the Department of Lands and Forests to keep game or wild animals in confinement. If such is the case, I cannot understand why the department does not exercise some control in the matter and stipulate that such animals must be kept in suitable quarters which are kept clean. A couple of years ago I stopped at a service station near Bancroft Lake which maintained a small zoo. Several bear cubs were confined in the body of a sedan car, of all things. Raccoons and other small animals and birds were cooped up in small, dirty, dilapidated cages. A number of deer ago I visited another business place where a deer is held captive by a collar around its neck to which is attached a long rope.

The question might well be asked why the law allows wild animals to be held captive by individuals for private gain. There are certain animals such as domestic rabbits and fowl which thrive in captivity, but bear, deer, foxes, raccoons, etc., have a right to their freedom. I have also seen eagles, hawks and owls forced to eke out a miserable existence in chicken coops for the edification of curious humans. What right has man to deny these creatures the freedom which the Great Creator ordained for them?

Wild life has increased locally to such an extent that there are plenty of opportunities to see them in their natural habitat, where they are much more attractive and interesting than in captivity. Deer, foxes, raccoons and other small animals abound in Presqu'ile Provincial Park and are frequently seen while motoring throughout the county. The city of Peterborough maintains a small wild life exhibit at reservoir park where deer and other wild life live in an environment approximating as nearly as possible natural conditions. In the larger provincial parks, such as Algonquin and Rondeau, there are regularly conducted tours for tourists during the vacation months, under the guidance of qualified naturalists, which afford ample opportunity to meet wild life of all kinds in its natural environment. A little girl in her enthusiasm over "Deer" please make the bad people good . . . and the good people nice!" To which I would add "Be wild animals, by granting them the privilege of living in peace in the wide open spaces".

MODERN FABLES

Once upon a time two barrels were discussing their respective merits.

"Listen, slow, heavy barrel," jeered the empty one, "you are so quiet no one ever noticed you."

"I know that I am heavy to move," growled the full barrel, "but once placed, I stay put."

"I'm so light that anyone can handle me," laughed the empty one, "I am so popular, everyone likes bouncing me around."

"That's enough," intimated the foreman who happened to hear the discussion, "and as you like bouncing around so well, I'll oblige you."

Picking up the unfortunate barrel, he bounced it downstairs to the boiler room.

"You have done enough bouncing and shouting," he remarked, "now you can be of service. You can help to make the fire."

The full barrel smiled softly to itself, for well it knew that as long as it would be of service, it was safe.

Moral: It pays to be useful.

WALKING COMPANION

Older people often find the use of a walking cane a great help out-of-doors, especially when the streets are slippery. The stick should have a rubber ferule and be stout enough to allow its owner to lean upon it with confidence. Outdoor exercise is necessary to the senior citizen, providing fresh air and a change of scenery. The stick will help to avoid dangerous falls.

An elderly couple having a good visit one day recalled how there used to be three taverns in even small villages years ago and the worry then was how many gallons could a person consume, not drive with as today. Now when one speaks of gallons it is presumed to mean gasoline but years ago whiskey was, so I am told, sold by the gallon.

The humble grosbeak bird is said to be quite an asset to the farmer, especially if he grows a lot of potatoes, because these birds eat potato bugs as a daily diet, so they should be a blessing, for all potato growers know the extra work involved in spraying the leaves every so often.

There is a man by the name of Clayton Selkirk — who now lives up Peterborough way — who can quite easily write backwards as well as forward. He has been able to do this for years and not long ago he — along with lots of others — watched an artist on television do this same feat but he got three thousand dollars for the one appearance. It probably gave Mr. Selkirk a few ideas on how to add to his income.

An old postcard came to light recently from among old papers. On it is a picture of a bedroom with floor poster bed and an immense wardrobe. The card reads

Brighton, Ont., March 1st, 1912.

Dear Madam:

"We are pleased to inform you that our new Wall Papers for 1912 are now in. Come in and examine them. Purchasing in town is cheaper and more convenient than sending out of town and be subject to annoying delays or shortages. We take back any unused rolls." Yours truly,

F. E. Marshall,
Brighton.

I expect lots of folk will remember this store in Brighton.

Heart disease is still Canada's No. 1 killer. Sometimes the condition may be of long standing, well known to the patient and his doctor. But in many cases, the patient may die suddenly and unexpectedly, his ailment not having been suspected by himself or his family. A medical check-up would reveal to the doctor definite signs of a heart ailment, which can frequently be arrested or controlled by proper diagnosis and treatment. It pays to have periodic check-ups, especially after the age of forty.

Ontario's Airlanes

Today . . . tonight, airplanes wing their way along the airlanes of Ontario, guided surely on their course by beams of electrical waves. A dependable supply of low-cost electric power has been a major factor in making air transportation in Ontario, safe and economically sound. Electricity supplied by Ontario Hydro powers all major installations in the Province's airports.

It operates the transmitters that bring last-minute weather reports, the radar and direction finding equipment that enables the crew to "see in the dark", and the modern, airport signal and guide lighting that has helped to reduce hazards to a minimum. It is another example of . . .

NORMAN SIMPSON NAMED CAN CROP REPRESENTATIVE FOR EASTERN ONTARIO

The announcement of Mr. Simpson's appointment states that the local board has decided to employ field representatives on a total basis this year to assist canning crop growers in the production and marketing of their crops.

As field representative of the local board, Mr. Simpson will be working in close co-operation with local canning associations, individual growers and processors, from June 15 to the end of the tomato canning season, October 5.

His territory will include the seven main counties east of Toronto which produce canning crops: Ontario, Durham, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox-Addington and Victoria.

Mr. Simpson brings to his new duties a first-hand knowledge of growers' problems acquired during the last thirty years as a grower of corn, peas and tomatoes, the three major canning crops.

One of the original organizers of the vegetable growers' association when the provincial marketing board was being set up, Mr. Simpson also played an active part in signing up members of the Ontario Can Crop Co-operative when the Co-Op received its charter three years ago. He served as president of Northumberland County Can Crop Association for three years, from 1950-1952, and is presently a member of the Cramahe Township Council.

Mr. Simpson attended the Ontario Fieldmen's Conference at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, June 2-4.

HOME FIGHTS

In the home where there is constant nagging and bickering, a child may easily be affected by the atmosphere, so that he develops a feeling of insecurity and nervousness. A child so affected may easily carry the effects into his adult life. Even the nicest families have arguments but these should not take place when the youngsters are present.

IN MEMORIAM

Sweetest rest that follows pain;
He who loved him sadly miss him,
But trust in God to meet again.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Last week was a busy time for the Brighton Scout Troop. On Monday their regular meeting was held and on Wednesday evening, June second, the boys journeyed to Presqu'ile Point for investiture ceremonies, six boys being invested. A number of mothers attended and found the ceremony very impressive.

Saturday morning sixteen Scouts, accompanied by their Scout Master, went to Batawa for an over night camp to complete the campcree. After setting up tents and cooking their dinner, they competed with twenty-one other patrols. Following the evening meal they had a council fire and skits were put on by the different patrols and a sing song held. Sunday morning the events continued and at four o'clock they broke camp and by five were ready for the trip home, tired but happy, the local boys having won an A crest.

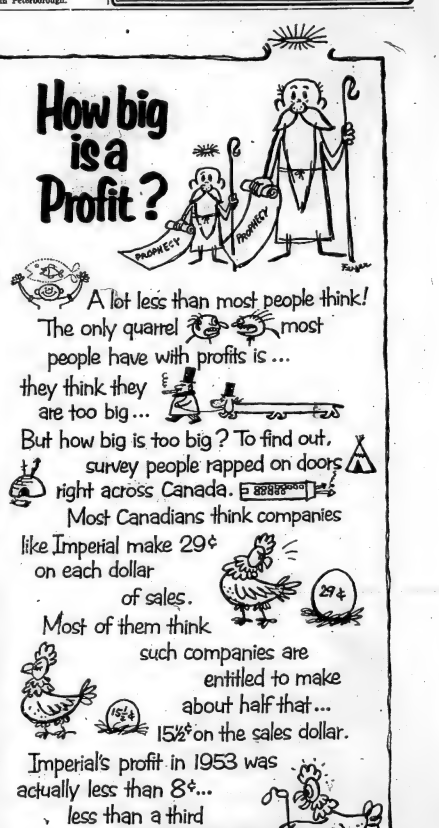
STAR FEATURE — THE LUNCHBOX



The lunchbox carried to work or school each day can be a very tasty and inviting meal if a little extra care is taken with it. It should never be just a snack — it must take the place of a regular meal and is just as important. Proteins, minerals and vitamins must be considered so that the meal is well balanced. Meat, eggs, cheese or fish for proteins and other nutrients; wholegrain bread and vegetables, such as carrot strips, as well as fruit and plenty of milk, will help to make the lunchbox meal a really nutritious one.

Values of imports into Canada during 1951 totalled $4,195 million as against $908 million 15 years earlier.

The work of the Northumberland-Durham Tuberculosis Association does not end with the X-ray survey and mass chest x-ray campaigns. Unhappy as they are to find a positive test among the thousands of people x-rayed under their guidance the Association members do not forget the patient. Every person receiving treatment in a sanatorium or at home because of the dread disease or who may be in the process of completing a cure at home receives packages from the Association. Some of the packages sent out are shown here on the dining room table at the home of Mrs. O. L. Wheler, Cobourg, Ontario. Mrs. Wheler is the Welfare chairman of the Association. Standing by the table are Mrs. Margery Pewtress, executive secretary of the association and Mrs. Thomas Hawkins, chairman of the mass chest x-ray survey. Every month Mrs. Wheler writes each patient on the association list and in turn they write her. The parcels contain many useful things for the TB patient and are not sent haphazard. A list is submitted to the patient via mail and he or she checks off the things needed. Included in the list are nightgowns, pyjamas, socks, stockings, underwear, brassieres, cigarettes, candy, pocket books, tooth paste, shaving cream face powder, hand cream and other things necessary to everyday life even in a hospital. Included in the parcels are newspapers and each month new slides are sent to the patients. All of these services given by the TB Association are paid for by the sale of Christmas seals.

Parkinson of London, at Adelaide Street Baptist Church in London on Saturday, May 29, 1954. The doubling ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. C. Gideons of Ontario, Quebec Hold Rally at Masonic Temple

On Saturday evening approximately 200 Gideons, their wives and friends met in the spacious assembly room of the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, for the Ontario and Quebec International rally and enjoyed a sumptuous turkey dinner with all the trimmings, at tables which were most tastefully appointed.

Following a sing-song of old familiar hymns, led by Mr. Roy Langford, of Newmarket, with Mrs. Gordon Groves at the piano, Mr. W. J. Caddell, Dominion Treasurer, the speaker of the evening, was introduced by the master of ceremonies, Mr. Roy C. Spaetzel, Dominion president.

Mr. Caddell prefaced his address by remarking how greatly he appreciated the opportunity of attending this fellowship gathering, and of being one with them in the work the Gideons were engaged in these days of great change and strange things, and of the task directed to all Gideons in the promulgation of the Gospel of Christ.

Nemesis of People

"Like Abraham of old, we are a nomadic people, we have no continuing city; we are living in the days of great change; our educational methods change, we used to have blackboards, today we have greenboards. In olden day the three R's were most important. Today the Gideons have the three R's. The Gideon ministry is not to please, but to help; not a fraternal organization; it is not an association of nominal church-goers, or professional men, but all members are born again men, sincere Christians. The Gideons are not merely a Bible distributing agency, if it were, a lot of funds could be directed into that channel. Its main purpose is to win others to Christ and to distribute the Word of God.

Unlimited Opportunities

There are unlimited opportunities; that of indoctrinating the youth of the land with over 668,000 children in the public schools of Ontario, and over 2,070,000 in Canada and the strategic placement of the Scriptures. Russia today has one weapon we have not exploited, the pressure nine, a deadly weapon designed by the Germans, and so made to explode months hence. Just as the placing of the word of God in strategic positions, as motels, hotels, which in Canada has 60 per cent occupancy, and 70 per cent in the United States is a pressure nine.

Another strategic opportunity is that of making Canada a more God-conscious nation; and of witnessing for Christ each day."

Urgency of Need

Mr. Caddell also spoke of the urgency of the need for men and women to accept Jesus Christ as the Captain of their souls because of the unsettled conditions of the world, and the general international unrest which prevailing, citing Indo-China, Korea, Egypt, Iran, Germany, British Guiana and Africa, and Lagos. Hydrogen bombs are now coming off assembly lines and people are drowning their troubles in aspirin tablets.

Another urgency to get the gospel out, is the imminence of Christ's return; years fly past, with more and more stress and strain. There is not one line of prophecy unfulfilled before Jesus returns. Brevity of life is another urgent need.

Not Legislation

"It is not legislation; not organizing; not pep meetings, nor more machinery, that is needed, but more power to turn the machinery we have. The motivation that enables is found in Act 1:8, 'But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you. . .' The Holy Spirit must be not only resident, but president of the soul, when this is so, there is the power for 100 per cent obedience, which gives power to live, to speak, and to give. The Macedonians first gave themselves. Are we willing to give ourselves?" was the searching question to a searching address.

Brief speeches were also given by Mrs. C. Hill, president of Dominion Auxiliary, and Messrs. A. Hannah, president of Belleville Camp; F. Beeby, school board representative; Rev. S. A. Spearman, C. Hyde, representing His Worship, Mayor McLean Haig, and R. Speaitzell, Dominion president. William Watson, chaplain, brought a brief message from Acts 4:23-33.

Vocal Numbers

A delightful vocal number was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. C. Green, "What a Savior is Mine" and a solo, by Mr. Green, "O What a Wonderful Savior," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. Groves.

Those at the head table included: Mrs. C. Hill, president of Dominion Auxiliary to the Gideons; Mr. C. Roberts, W. A. Watson, Dominion Chaplain;

BELLEVILLE THE BEAUTIFUL

Belleville is known as, "The Friendly City." No one disputes it. But Belleville could also claim undisputed possession of the title, "Beautiful City."

Visitors civic partisan's elsewhere may refuse to accept such a statement, but we will excuse their lack of sound judgment on the basis of their personal bias.

Belleville's expansive residential streets, well-kept lawns and large, and for the most part well-kept homes create a pleasant suburban scene that few cities anywhere can match. The hundreds of tall, beautiful trees throughout the city form a background of never-ending delight for city dwellers. In winter the trees look like illustrations from a children's fairy tale in a tracery of frost or laden with new-fallen snow. The delicate green of new leaves heralds another spring and in summer the hot rays of the sun are tempered by their fire by an overhang of foliage on almost every street.

But it is in autumn, when first frost turns the leaves into a technicolor brilliance that Belleville becomes the reigning beauty in Ontario. The soft, silent, quiet days of Indian summer, with their adornments of color and their mantle of thin blue smoke are the loveliest days of the year.

However, Belleville's trees, like all beautiful things, grow old and lose their beauty of form and their splendid foliage. Unless we take this city have become old and it is necessary that they be cut down. Great gaps are appearing in what used to be solid ranks of trees along the city's streets. Replacements have been made in only a few cases.

It is to be hoped that at each large tree in the city is cut down, a small one will be put in its place so that our mantle of trees will be maintained intact and not allowed to become tattered by the ravages of time.

Without the presence of trees lining the streets the city of present Belleville would become just another collection of rather pretty houses dependent for their charm on the lines of their construction and the color of their bricks or clapboard. With the trees, Belleville is a city of rare beauty.

MAKE SURE YOU CAN VOTE

Compilation of the list of Belleville citizens eligible to vote in the municipal election has been completed and a copy of this list has been posted at the City Clerk's office in the City Hall. It can there be inspected by interested citizens.

New-comers to Belleville, persons who have purchased property or those who have changed their places of residence in the city during the past year should make it a point to check this list. Even long-time residents could do worse than examine the list, for no matter how careful city officials may be errors sometimes occur. October 31 is the last day for making complaints as to errors or omissions in the list.

All such inspections of the list will, of course, be so much wasted effort unless you intend to vote on election day. But surely no city resident needs to be reminded that it is not merely his privilege but also his duty to join this fellow-citizens at the polls and endeavor to select the men and women best qualified to direct the affairs of the city during 1954.

CHEESE IT!

The St. Catharines Standard, in what it no doubt intended to be a helpful mood, observes that "two cheese sandwiches a week by every Canadian would lift the Canadian cheese industry out of the doldrums."

Quite right, St. Catharines Standard had better stick to his peaches.

What is wrong with the cheese industry is the cheese sandwich. Anyone who considers a cheese sandwich as a satisfactory method of eating cheese is not qualified to speak on the subject. The fact that Canada produces 165 pounds of cheese per person annually, while Norwegians eat 18.7 pounds, does not prove that the Norwegians eat more cheese sandwiches, but is probably an indication that the Norwegians have never heard of the cheese sandwich demanding that two slices of bread accompany every slice of cheese.

Consider the history of the sandwich. It was invented by an English lord of that name who found that eating was interfering with his gambling. If he had been content to eat cheese alone he would have been spared the trouble of inventing the sandwich. The hearty way to eat cheese, as any Englishman knows, it to set out half a loaf of bread, as big a slab of cheddar as the hand can hold, a bottle of bitter and a knife. Then to carve slices off the cheese with the knife in one hand, while reserving for the other hand the task of alternately pulling hunks of bread from the loaf and stuffing it into the mouth for a long pull. This procedure is just as simple as eating a sandwich . . . and a lot more enjoyable.

No, the sandwich was not invented for cheese . . . and cheese most certainly was not invented for the sandwich. Of course there are some minor variations of the product which require spreading, rather than cutting. Some of these varieties are even worthy of a cheese-man's occasional attention. Broadly speaking, they are the products of foreign ethnic and adaptations of native products, like "Wisconsin Dimlsn Blue." For such, sandwiches are permissible. But most Canadian cheese is cheddar . . . or would have been had it been allowed to grow up before being forced to don the same fantastic outfit and go out into the cruel world looking for employment in a sandwich. Real cheddar, once it has reached the age of discretion, will not have anything to do with a sandwich. It refuses to spread itself thin between two layers of bread, but instead insists that it be paid the honors due its prime old age and that it be allowed to go to its doom unencumbered. Cheese sandwiches, indeed! Cheese it!

IMPORTANCE

Whatever man is hired to do,
I important is the task.
To do unnecessary work employers none would ask.
Important is the boy engaged to keep the office trim.
If needless were the work he does there'd be no place for him.

Whenever any man or boy for carelessness is fired,
To do what he was paid to do another one is hired.

Though trivial the task may seem, 'tis needed day by day.
If unimportant were the work the post would vacant stay.

There is no unimportant man or unimportant boy.
Some need depends upon them both or none would them employ.
All happiness and peace of mind and joy, I say, depend
Are products of the humblest tasks that others find to do.

The Rev. Arthur Strother has been appointed to the incumbency of Ameliasburgh Parish, Prince Edward County, by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. He will assume charge of the parish on November 1st.

Blue-coated fire laddies played hosts to a very large number of people from the city and district at Assumption annual suchre and dance which was held in the armories on Tuesday evening. Scores of prizes, which were donated by the business men, were captured by the holders of the lucky tickets. Refreshments of a most excellent nature were furnished by the Commodore orchestra.

Workmen are preparing concrete foundations at the west entrances to the local armouries upon which the heavy guns which grace the armouries lawn will be placed. Formerly the wheels of the captured trophies had developed deep ruts in the soft ground.

Eggs are selling at 30 cents per dozen and butter is bringing 25 cents per pound.

Messrs. B. C. Donnan, acting crown attorney, and Chas. A. Payne, barrister are attending court in Bancroft.

Mr. Vernon Cook, who left here with his travelling garage three weeks ago, has reached Prince Albert.

We understand now you know that we almost had a union railway station in Belleville and that the C.P.R. would build in the north end of Church...St. with the top of the hill where at that time Brown's foundry was in operation. The Grand Junction Railway Company, which was controlled mostly by Belleville men was proposed to run from Belleville to Peterborough. Later the company amalgamated with the Belleville and North Hastings Railways which ran from North Hastings Junction, near Stirling, to Madoc, and the road was called the Grand Junction Railway. This company and five other railways were amalgamated on March 10, 1882, into the Midland Railway and this railway was later absorbed by the Grand Trunk Railway. Some years prior to the Grand Trunk Railway absorbing the Grand Junction Railway the story about the proposed station appeared in the Belleville city office of October 18, 1873, and reads as follows: "Yesterday afternoon Messrs. Potter and Brydges, president and managing director, respectively, of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, arrived here by special train from the west. The object of their visit was to confer with the directors of the Grand Junction Railway respecting the construction of a station station at some convenient point in town. They were met by Mr. Ketcheson, president; Mayor Thomas Holden and Mr. James Brown, M.P. The visitors were shown the line of the Grand Junction Railway in the town limits and they were much pleased. The Grand Trunk officials expressed themselves as being in favor of union station and it is said that the vicinity of Brown's foundry was considered to be an ideal location. However, nothing definite was done."

Note: The Grand Junction Railway had a track into the centre of the town along Pinnacle St. and the station was below the present market; the dock on the bay was called the Grand Junction dock and was so called for many years after the railway ceased to exist. Brown's foundry is now (1953) occupied by the Connolly Co., the Garage Supply Company and several other business concerns.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEEP DOWN IN THE SOUL

During the First World War, a lieutenant of Woodrow Wilson was a driver in the Red Cross Ambulance Corps. One night when he was on duty, this southern boy began to be filled with fear lest, in the get-closer to the front-line trenches and the danger increased, he would lose his nerve and fail in his duty. Then he remembered the words of an unborn widow he had read in the Princeton University chapel: "Thou, Lord, art my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

These words and the memory behind them brought him to his senses, and his fears departed.

When a prominent minister who had served southern churches mentioned this incident in a sermon one day, two people came to him at the close of the service and made astonishing statements. One said, "I am that boy's mother." The other said, "I was the choir master at Princeton who heard the young man and others in the singing of old hymns."

We know how deeply some of the seemingly insignificant events of life will penetrate into our memories. From chapel channel to front-line trenches was a long distance, but the echoes of what had been sung came up to strengthen a young man in hour of danger.

We never know how far our influence goes or how deeply the influence of life's circumstances here into our lives and make a difference.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If we sat back and thought for a minute, the problem of communists among university and college teachers and other intellectuals would not alarm us, but would attend to perhaps the most damning criticism of communism we could find. Because so far, no really intelligent or widely-informed man among the university, college and intellectual classes, in either the United States, Britain or elsewhere has been attracted to communism. It is invariably some partly-informed character who is attracted, particularly in the sciences. In other words, a half-educated or quarter-educated man in the intellectual professions who embraces communism. Because a specialist in some subject, a scholar often has to ignore or to imperfectly learn many other subjects which would not merely have broadened his mind, but would have enlightened him. Specialists have had to learn more and more about less and less. World it is the fashion to put the prize on somebody's part to compile a list of the university and college personnel who have been proved or even suspected of communistic leanings, each name a definition of his or her scholarship? Few historians would be among them, few philosophers, few with degrees covering a wide and normal range of study in the humanities would be listed. Karl Marx and Engels wrote their manifesto more than a century ago, and the century that has passed since has been filled with changes more than any century recorded before. Every circumstance with which they were familiar a hundred years ago has altered in some degree, every fact, every aspect of science, every philosophy has undergone profound changes due to a thousand influences, no doubt one of them, in its time, communism. But it would be as absurd to revive John Wesley's Methodism of its time, or any of the reasoned conservatism of the Reform Bill of 1832, or the pro-slavery attitude of the Southern States in 1850, as to apply that to a political policy which has stood still a hundred years. It is depressing to see, not from the universities come, thoughts upon thousands who are well enough informed of what has been going on in the world to know this, but from universities that have specialists. And among them are those related to a few who are so highly special that they belong, outside their own narrow subject, back in the Dark Ages.

Family Doctor Gets New Deal

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

When the home and buggy and buttoned shoes went out of vogue they took with them the faithful family doctor who knew his patients—or did not disappear, and continued in his place a new type of specialist—one of the medical profession, he did slip out of style. Specialization became the keen edge of the day, one, too, and has resulted in a higher standard of efficiency in medical science than might otherwise have been the case. But the family doctor, the friend of families and the medical profession itself are due for a revival, a new spotlight on the old-fashioned country-type doctor.

Such a revival has been laid for a Canadian College of General Practitioners now active in British Columbia the first Academy of General Practice has been inaugurated.

All this may not mean a great deal to the people in the country communities who have had the family doctor service for years, sometimes even generations. They will still go to the doctor's office in the city, or call out of his bed in the early hours of the morning to deliver their babies, sew up their cuts and set their bones, and ease the pain for their last hours. But to the city general practitioner himself, the Academy of General Practitioners will mean that all of his years of service and hard work are at last to be recognized, that at last the standards of his work among people will be made acknowledged and that he will share some of the prestige that has gone over to the new sensation of medicine, the specialist.

What Size Farm Yields Most?

(Windsor Star)

In the United Kingdom, where it is essential to have the utmost efficiency in agriculture, experts believe small farms are profitable. They advocate groupings of farms of from 100 to 200 or at least 400 acres so they can be worked better and more easily.

This suggestion has started an argument in the United Kingdom. Opposition is the object, say the opponents, is to cut down the total production of food. But the average yield per acre is less than half that in England. And in Denmark and Holland where the average farm is 30 acres, production per acre is higher than in Britain.

It isn't wise to be dogmatic. The type of soil, and what it is most suitable for, is a factor. So is climate. The climate is another. The amount of food produced from an acre in Essex or Kent countries in southwestern Ontario, principal-grained areas in southern Saskatchewan. But could any farmer have a decent living from 50 acres in many parts of Canada?

Small farms, when well worked, usually do have a high productive value. An intensive agriculture must be practiced to make them economic. And crops must be grown which yield a large volume in a small space.

But if we in Canada were to imitate much that we see as done in England, Denmark or Holland, the total volume of our foodstuffs would surpass all present comprehension.

'Characters' In Short Supply

(Edmonton Journal)

The president of the University of Toronto, Doctor Sidney Smith, said the other day that there are not enough characters in the world. Looking at this statement by Doctor Smith's opinion: either he is underestimating the capacity of the people to be quaint, bizarre or just plain crazy; or he hasn't spent enough time lately about the streets and looking into the darker corners.

However, Doctor Smith, who usually has something worthwhile to say, qualified his opening remark by becoming philosophical. He said, he said, praising eccentricity for its own sake, "would be meaningless and easily support some more characters". He was having last laugh at a bit—perhaps for dessert, for the capacity to avoid going with the flock. Doctor Smith emphasized the critical spirit that can stand up against the tide, according to principles and painful inanities that assail us."

What could be more necessary than that, he has been remarked.

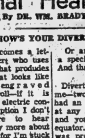
Every day we are subjected through pictures, print and propaganda to pursue the same goals, admire the same people, enjoy the same things, and think the same clothes and think the same thoughts. There are hundreds of groups and societies — political, social, professional, industrial and commercial—which tend to submerge the individual in the tide of conventional mediocrity.

There is little doubt about the truth of the dreary picture; and the desire to conform is fostered even earlier, in education which is supposedly designed to society, instead of the adjustment of society. All this, moreover, in a democracy founded on a tradition

Tommy Atkins' Ersatz Tea

(Hamilton Spectator)

The British people, serving soldier, in the camp theatre, was glad to come to the Russians. "You can take your love," he remarked, "but give me a nice hot cuppa!" Russian tea is not to the British taste. It is used to deceive. British Army authorities are considering a tea which will substituted the false for the real.



of individual worth, integrity and dissent!

Our only hope seems to lie in the appearance of more "characters", in response to Dr. Smith's plea. We hope, of course, that they'll be intelligent "characters" who agree with us on most things, just as we agree with Dr. Smith—this time.

AND HOW'S YOUR DIVERTICULUM?

Dr. Brady

"noiseless" and I intend to pound the perversity out of 'em if I have to use a sledge hammer to do it. I should think the man would be ashamed of himself sitting there on his sacro-iliac synchondrosis clamping his 15-cent cigar and admiring his highly polished $25 oxfords and tan nylons while his secretary learns shorthand in a scintillating thoughts which

How can any one think in such attitude and circumstances? Maybe he doesn't think. Why should he? All he need do is remain quite subject to his secretary and she does the rest. Her letter perfect, she also makes extra money writing for the magazines:

Dear Dr. Brady:

If you can spare the time from the bowling alley and impertinence could happen once around here and your mind from your sex problems (or hydrophobia), why not write a couple of articles for me (I'm a sauceress!) Philippics (now, see here!) on diverticulitis. (What's the interrogation point on the machine?)

This medical offer you a beautiful chance to show off your Latin scholarship; besides, no one else is covering this province of the body's waterfront anyway. Is spite of the long line of letters waiting on the left.

Also, all you lazy swabones" prescribe a bland diet for this condition. (On which one can uncover a veritable cornucopia. This seems silly to a layman because most foods ought to be so bland they yield no irritant to the diverticulous part of the colon that your letter pap seems hardly necessary.

Or an T's stupid oaf to seek a special diet for diverticulum? And thanks, (Signed) .....

Diverticulum? That ' reminds me of two or three years ago I had an occasional bellyache — or at any rate vague distress higher and above and below the equator. While the uneasiness was present (maybe 20 minutes more or less) I considered summarous interesting possibilities. When it subsided I got back in the game and forgot all about appendicitis, sarcoma and such things. Finally I had one at home, lasting half an hour or more, and before I could say fiddle-faddle Micky the hired girl had made an appointment with a real doctor. So I had to submit to a thorough examination, including enough X-ray pictures to illustrate a serial ghost story.

I am a real doctor because I had known him for years and I considered him the ne plus ultra of his profession. He need say only that one X-ray finding was a diverticulum. The doctor prescribed antispasmodic medicine to prevent or relieve undue or cramp and some slight dietary rules—I forget now just what.

Dear Dr. Brady: The examination revealed nothing else than the diverticulum. I quit worrying about it and had no less than a dozen next week or two and then it was.

I don't know what a diverticu- is, maybe what you don't know won't hurt you. But if you must know, it is a bit of a pouch, offshoot or sac opening out from the alimentary canal, usually the colon. Sometimes partly digested food in the pouch will stay there indefinitely and the annoying little colic one else is covering this province of the body's waterfront anyway, is spite of the long line of letters waiting on the left.

Also, all you lazy swabones" prescribe a bland diet for this condition. (On which one can uncover a veritable cornucopia. This seems silly to a layman because most foods ought to be so bland they yield no irritant to the diverticulous part of the colon that your letter pap seems hardly necessary.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOW A LIBRARY STARTED

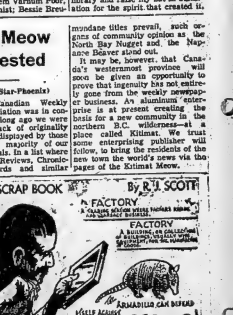
At luncheon recently a friend told an interesting story of the creation of a library in the small town of New City, New York. A group of women, mostly young, were talking with shame upon their poor little schoolhouse library of a few hundred books, so decided to do something about it.

The committee with Murray Thompson as chairman was appointed. Two thousand dollars was raised as a starter. Then someone thought of a way to let the children of the village get interested? Let each one buy a cement block (25 cents) and each have his or her initials on the one he bought. The labor unions of the town donated their services on Saturdays. Others donated doors, washrooms, and other essentials. All this created interest and soon New City was thinking of the thing of pride in the entire community.

Many famous folks contributed to the success of this finished-for library, among them Varnum Poor, painter and ceramist; Bessie Breuer, author, and Mrs. Thompson herself, the novelist; Milt Caniff, cartoonist and many others.

When I last heard of this library, it was a great hope and dream, was for books, and more books. I don't see how anyone could help but contribute some of his time, intelligence and enterprise worked wonders in this small town of New City, and I'll wager that finished institution made the town look newer than ever before.

In many a city a fall seems more a matter of fact, a library should be the first building erected in a town, after the church and school. Each has wide influence and has more to do with the moulding of the mind of the people in a community than anything else.



Go into any library and note the earnest look upon each student there. There is the expression of hope and ambition that is worthwhile. It's never a waste of time, this town of New City, I will go to that small library and raise my hat to the folks that made that created it.

Kitimat Meow Is Suggested

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

While the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association was in convention here last week, a plea was struck by the lack of originality and imagination displayed by those who named the majority of our small town journals. In a list where we find Times, Reviews, Chronicles, Suns, Records and similar mundane titles prevail, such orgies of community opinion as the North Bay Nugget and the Napanee Beaver-Express.

It may be, however, that Canada's westernmost community has once to be given an opportunity to prove that ingenuity has not entirely gone from the weekly newspaper business. An aluminum centre-to-be present prepares the basis for a new community in the northern B.C. hinterland to take place called Kitimat. We trust some enterprising publisher will promptly bring the appropriate name to town the world's news via the pages of the Kitimat Mews.

Memorable Centennial Service Held at St. Paul's, Stirling

By Mrs. Percy MacMullen

RAWDON—On Sunday morning St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, had an overflow capacity of worshippers for its 100 years of Christian service, when they celebrated their centennial anniversary.

The large audience stood at attention while His Honor Lieut. O. Breithaupt, lieut. governor of the provinces of Ontario, and Mrs. Breithaupt, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Lt. Col. R. H. Widdifield, slad the guest speaker, the Rev. Alfred Poulter, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and Mrs. Poulter, were seated at the front of the edifice, after which the color party, representing the local Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, placed the flags at the altar. The color party was composed of Mrs. Ed Warren, Miss Laura Jeffery and Mrs. Joe Irish. Tommie Wells, and Ronnie Woodcock.

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's, conducted the service and referred to the United Empire Loyalists, who settled in this district, and today many of the third generation were attending this historic service.

Bronze and yellow "Mums" were attractively arranged for the service.

Greetings Tendered

Dr. William Cornett expressed greetings to Her Majesty's representative, and to the president of Bay of Quinte Conference.

Visitors were in attendance from all church communities in the surrounding area and from many cities and towns in Ontario.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., presided at the organ and chose as a prelude, "Now That We All Own God."

The Royal Junior Choir were seated in the gallery and they sang "Come Loyal Hearts". Mrs. Wells, Warren, G. M. Contributed a vocal solo "Just For Today." The full service choir rendered "Festival Te Deum" by Dudley Buck. Mrs. Baker delighted with "Toccata Faulkes" and "Alla Marcia."

The offering was gathered in the historic collection boxes used 125 years ago, two of them on loan from Switzerville United Church, by Messrs. Cecil Mackin, George Carlisle, John Good, Walter Elliott, William Cornett, Fred Bateman, Alfred Wells, Ed Warren, and Grant Richardson.

"Praise the Lord", was used as the processional hymn and the choir chanted, "The Lord's Prayer."

The national anthem was sung preceding the Bible lesson read by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, from Genesis 43:1-23, "The Story of Joseph and His Brothers."

It was announced that Mrs. Walter Barker had made a gift of $200 to the endowment fund of the church in memory of her husband and daughter.

Drama Of Reconciliation

Rev. Alfred Poulter based his message on "The Drama of Reconciliation." He opened with a vivid picture of the story of Joseph, beginning when his brothers sold him, on down to the days of famine, and then visits to the city to purchase corn and later Joseph's request that they bring their youngest brother, Benjamin to Egypt.

In a concise message, Mr. Poulter likened Canada to the Egypt of that day. He said, our resources are bulging with food and we as a people must be willing to share the abundance God has given to us with others less fortunate than ourselves."

He quoted excerpts from General Council, when that group advocated relief for the undernourished people of other lands. The speaker said: "We would never have a reconciled world until there is some special responsibility by those in authority in sharing food and gifts from those who have to those who have not. No nation and no individual can be sure of security, when other nations are in poverty."

Many leaders throughout Canada and the United States firmly believe that the responsibility of the Christian Church is to provide adult education for all the insecure persons in our land and help them to live from day to day as good citizens rather than go along as derelicts.

Show More Concern

Good Christians everywhere must be more concerned about their fellowmen. More and more church officials are realizing that the basic truth goes back to the words of Joseph in Egypt—"Ye shall not see my face unless you bring your brother with you."

This memorable service closed with John A. Symond's hymn of prophecy, "These Things Shall Be".

Over 90 people from various walks of life remained in the church edifice and were presented to the visiting pastor by Rev. A. E. Baker, with Mr. George Carlisle, as guard of honor.

Theatres Will Stage Show For Variety Village

On Sunday evening, November 1st, Belleville and district theatre managers are sponsoring a stage and screen show at the McCarthy Theatre to raise funds for Variety Village at Toronto.

Messrs. George Forhan, Tommy Mascaro and Willard Fawcett of the Belle, Capitol and McCarthy theatres are joining forces with their district colleagues in bringing an outstanding program of entertainment here.

Outstanding vaudeville acts from the Ontario first show will be on hand as will a highly rated motion picture. Arrangements are under way to have a well-known motion picture personality brought here as master of ceremonies.

Variety Village is a school for handicapped youngsters on 12 acres of land on the eastern outskirts of Toronto. There are twenty-four boys there at all times. There are courses in general shop work, watchmaking, commercial, business and many others.

The Variety Club is a service club with membership drawn from all parts of the world. Variety Village was built, equipped and is run by the club. There are shops, dormitories, recreation halls all run by a staff of ten.

The Village is far from being all work. There is gardening and photography among dozens of hobbies which the boys get instruction in. There are museums and industrial tours, swimming at the Amos Association, pool and all the boys go to church on Sunday and take a part in local church affairs.

Two Films Weekly

The sponsoring club makes sure that the school has two films a week and the students run the projection machine themselves. The Village is doing a fine job turning out useful citizens.

Ron Shaw, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shaw, of Ferris, Ont., is a typical case at Variety Village. Polio struck Ron when he was only eight years of age and he was never able to attend regular school again. He shares a dormitory with three other boys. With the help of home teaching, he was able to finish his public school education but he would have missed becoming self-supporting without the help of the Variety Club. The club brought him to the school the year after it opened and he has been there since with the exception of a six months period when he underwent a serious operation on his spine. He now has the equivalent of a Grade XI education.

"We are proud of Ron" said Principal J. Arthur Robertson, and of the other boys of the school. They come from all parts of the province to Variety Village. As soon as one leave to take a job, another arrives to take his place. We have placed all but a couple of our certificated students in jobs."

Elderly Woman Makes Donation To Chest Drive

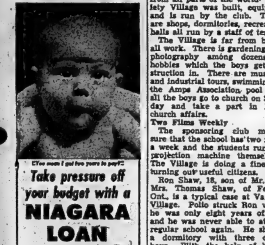
Saturday an elderly woman paid a visit to the Community Chest Headquarters to make her contribution to this year's campaign. Is that news? No, but her story is.

When the Chest canvasser called at the house where she lives, he did not visit her because he wasn't aware that she lived in the apartment upstairs. Because she has always believed that it is part of her obligation to the society in which she lives, this elderly woman made a special trip downtown to give for the benefit of others less fortunate.

Another heart - warming story concerns a local family. Every member of the family has been confined to bed. The father had lost his job. The family income was practically exhausted but when the Chest canvasser called the father said. "We can't give much but we want to contribute something because we know what a helping hand can mean when a person is in dire "straits".

Compulsory Training Said Not Necessary

WINNIPEG (CP)—Brig. D. R. Agnew said during the week-end that "compulsory military training for Canada's youth is not necessary."



The commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston, was in Winnipeg for Saturday's exhibition football game in which RMC lost 13-6 to Western Wildcats, a Manitoba junior club.

Brig. Agnew said the only good soldier is a first-rate soldier, and these "do not come from the ranks of those who are forced into uniform. A modern army has no place for a superfluous second-rate man.

"However, the safeguard of the nation is the responsibility of all citizens. If the youth of today are properly taught their duties and responsibilities, the occasion of conscription need not arise."

Weddings

GARVIN—BUTLER

Bronze chrysanthemums and yellow poms backed by deep, green ferns adorned the altar of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, October 3rd, at 12:00 a.m., for the marriage of Rita Anne Butler, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. Clarence Albert Butler, Stratford, Ontario, and the late Mrs. Butler, to Stephen James Garvin, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen James Garvin. The Reverend J. J. Kennedy officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Dorothy Butler provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Furham, who sang before the ceremony, "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," during the offertory, and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of white slipper satin, nylon net and chantilly lace, featuring a strapless, molded bodice buttoned down the back with fetching buttons, and accented by a lace rectangle styled with wing collar and long pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a tiara of encrusted seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink, red roses, and Adiantum fern, tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Gordon Barry, of Kitchener, Ontario, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was attractively attired in a strapless, ballerina length gown of rosewood shade in iridescent taffeta, featuring a tiny matching bolero with cap sleeves. Miss Margaret Butler, of Stratford, and Miss Joan Garvin, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids, were gowned in taffeta of similar styles, the former in chartreuse and the latter in beige. All attendants wore headdresses and gloves matching their gowns in blending tones of rose, and carried bouquets of bronze 'mums and yellow poms.

Mr. John Garvin, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; while Mr. John Butler, of Waterloo, Ontario, brother of the bride, and Mr. Roy Garvin, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The wedding reception was held at Club Cedars, Cannifton Road, where the bridegroom's mother received gowned in a navy suit with white trim, and wearing a corsage of rose, carnations in shades of pink.

For the wedding trip to Watertown N.S., Montreal and Ottawa, the bride donned a navy suit with deep purple accessories, and corsage of pink Delight roses. Mr. and Mrs. Garvin will reside in Belleville, upon their return.

Guests were present from Stirling, Sydenham, Toronto, Stratford, Kitchener, Waterloo, Brantford, Terrace Bay, Cobourg, and Kingston.

VOTE ON TTC CONTRACT

TORONTO (CP) — Some 4,500 Toronto Transportation Commission employees will vote during the next week on a proposed contract with the commission. The executive of the Street Railway Union (AFL) recommended acceptance of the contract, which would provide three four-cent increases at intervals dating from Oct. 1 to bring the operators' wages to $1.83 from $1.51 an hour.

GUIANA PROTEST

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Undergraduates of the University College of the West Indies at a political forum Friday night passed a resolution protesting the "unconstitutional action of Britain" in British Guiana.

'Human Geography' Interesting Address at University W.C.

The University Women's Club of Belleville and district met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. C. Locke, 50 East Bridge Street, with a good attendance of members, former and new.

A short business meeting was conducted by the president Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon.

"Outstanding Import is the visit next month of Dr. Martha Law, president of the Canadian Federation of University Women's Clubs. Dr. Law will speak on the aims of that body, and on the work of the International Federation of U.W.C. For her visit on the third Thursday of the month, a dinner meeting is planned.

With the season just beginning, new members from Belleville and district are most welcome. Those interested should contact the membership committee, Miss Milda Dandeneau or Miss Mary Doyle.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. A. E. May, the program convener, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Ralph Middleton, principal of Scottish descent, a graduate of Liverpool and Oxford Universities, Rev. R. W. T. Middleton moved to Canada six years ago at the request of three of his children, who had been something of this country during navy duty in war years. During his period in Canada, Mr. Middleton has been honored with the position of commissioner of the United Church.

Mrs. Middleton was also a well-known guest. It is of interest to note that an older brother of hers Professor Anderson, taught Latin at Queens University some years ago.

Speaking with a delightful sense of humor, Mr. Middleton gave full justice to his topic, "Human Geography," the study of man and his world. He urged deeper thought by all to discover ways and means for the two billion humans of this world to live together with general satisfaction. The difficulties that block the way to this paradise, he says, are many; differences in language, religion, race, culture, and in access to the food supplies in the vast areas of this world. A thoughtful study of geography, he thinks, can be helpful to the realization of the underlying causes of trouble in certain parts of the world, such as Russia, Africa, Suez, and many others, and thus to the development of cures for the troubles.

Background of Other Peoples

Mr. Middleton fears that geography is still a Cinderella subject, despite the enforced study of it caused by two World Wars. He rather agrees with Will Rogers, who wise-cracked that his fellow Americans were not at all concerned with the League of Nations, but only with where they could park their automobiles! Knowledge of man and his habitat, an appreciation of the setting and background of other peoples, he is certain, can bring more tolerance into the world. No people in the world is now really remote; lives all over the world are variously affected. For example, because women here suddenly began to wear short hair, seventeen makers of hair nets in a remote city of China were put clean out of business.

After discussing the amazing effects on people of the stars, and of the 23 and a half degree tilt of the world's axis, Mr. Middleton went on to observe the effect of the mountain ranges, the Rockies, the Andes, the Himalayas, which fix the flow of their rivers roughly at right angles so that the rivers of the world usually flow East and West. Most rivers flowing North and south have little economic and cultural, and therefore, little political significance.

Physical Geography

These facts of physical geography are helpful to the people concerned because peoples are brought together by rivers for trade and the exchange of cultures, customs and skills.

China, with her three parallel river systems running eastward, he predicts, will prosper in years to come. China has almost everything needed for economic, industrial and political greatness, and an adequate agriculture looming ahead as her age-old mental and traditional fetters disappear.

Russia, he says, is disturbed, not only by her lack of east-west rivers to unite her, but also by the tyrannous impact of the cold currents of the oceans. Her transcontinental railway, for instance, begins where there is a warm current, but because of the cold Arctic currents ends 20 degrees of latitude south at Vladivostok, frozen nine months of the year. The Russian can work only half the year and the rest of the time must lie on the top of his oven. Nevertheless, the Russian has an intense love for his bit of soil and for four centuries has been seeking an outlet to the oceans of the world.

Lacks East-West Rivers

The United States, too, lacks rivers flowing east and west to unite its strips of peoples of diversified interests. Thus arises difficulties in the way of any president to pursue a steady set policy over the whole country.

In North America, the great east-west waterway, the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence, is the unifying force which will draw its peoples forward to greatness. Chicago, he predicts, will one day out-New York New York.

Mrs. A. E. May thanked the speaker, and a pleasant conversational period followed.

Mrs. J. Haig and her committee served refreshments.

Mrs. Pandit Only Woman Who Ever Told Vishinsky To Shut up and Made it Stick

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Anan Pandit is the only woman who ever told Andrei Vishinsky publicly to shut up—and made it stick.

Mrs. Pandit, 56, never must be getting accustomed to this "only woman" stuff. In a comparatively few years she has been the only woman to serve a country as ambassador to both Moscow and Washington; the only woman to head a United Nations delegation; the only woman to be elected president of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Altogether, 53-year-old Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, the handsome sister of India's Prime Minister Nehru and mother of three married daughters, is one of the world's most distinguished—and controversial—personalities.

"I would like to be considered quite impartial," she says of her UN presidency. "What my country stands for can mean nothing to me during these coming months."

Vishinsky Twice Downed

In two difficult encounters within a month of her presidency, Mrs. Pandit came off winner. She firmly extinguished Soviet - sponsored efforts to exclude Chinese Nationalists from the General Assembly. Later the irascible Vishinsky pulled out of parliamentary line and was warming up for an oration when Mrs. Pandit threw the rule book at him. When he paid no heed, she calmly flipped an electric switch on the presidium desk which cut him off. Everybody except his Russian-speaking colleagues.

Of her high position, she says: "It'd rather my election be considered as an honor to my country than an honor to women. Of course I am very proud that I am a woman. But in this country there is so much emphasis on women as women. It is important that a woman detach herself from the feminine aspect if she wants to be effective.

Seek Two Extremes

"I was terribly impressed when I came to America to see that women could be glamorous as well as hold fine jobs. I think our countries—that an unwashed face and uncombed hair didn't matter—came when we were fighting and going to prison.

"In other words, I think that here you are overdoing it. And that we in India are underplaying it. I should be something in the middle."

Madame Pandit is a high caste Hindu born to riches and luxury who as a fiery rebel chose prison and physical hardship.

Her father, Motilal Nehru, was a Brahman lawyer, so rich and so westernized his fine lawn shirts were sent to Paris to be laundered. Mrs. Pandit—born Swarup Kumari —was his second child. Her brother Jawaharlal, Gandhi's prime disciple, is 10 years her senior. When Swarup was five, the family went to England where a governess was employed and taken back to the Nehru's beautiful home in the United provinces.

Gandhi Altered Life

The pattern of the Nehrus' aristocratic, luxurious life changed as first her father and brother and then the whole family fell under the spell of Gandhi. She first met him in her home but doesn't remember the circumstances. The second time, when she was 17, she remembers.

"Bapu—Little Father, as all India called him—came to my home town to start his non-violent movement," she recalls. "He spoke at a big mass meeting and I went, although my mother was averse to it."

Gandhi appealed for contributions.

"I suddenly found myself struggling with my bracelets," she said. "I couldn't get them off my right arm, but I flipped them from my left. And then I tried to hide my left arm so my mother wouldn't know."

She smiled.

"And soon my mother was going to give her bangles and dedicate her whole life to that same little naked man."

Husband Died In 1944

Gandhi was a guest at the wedding party celebrating her marriage in 1921 to Ranjit Pandit, a young lawyer who spent years in prison for his Nationalist activities. Ranjit died in 1944.

Prison became almost a second home to the family. Mrs. Pandit was first arrested in 1932 with a younger sister. She was sentenced to a year and fined what she refused to pay, choosing to stop taking part in meetings and processions for a month. In all, she served well over two years.

Her intimates call her "Wan," her brother's name for her, which means "little sister."

Those who know her suspect she is a slight, hard-headed actress, forever playing a role. Even her friends concede she is extremely ambitious—a woman who immediately sets new goals upon achieving an old one.

Except that she is tremendously busy, Mrs. Pandit does not give the impression of a driving woman. She has remarkable poise, turns up lightly firm, rounded and bridled on the subject at hand, argues well and, although slightly feminine, is generally gracious.

Prefers Shoes Off

She is intensely feminine. Her short grey hair is always well-done, her hands manicured. She invariably wears a sari, and has a large collection of beautiful garments of rich, deep colors.

Those who know her differently, wears little jewelry—and her only vanities are her tiny, well-formed feet and ankles. She kicks off her shoes when entering a private home, and a source of considerable quiet amusement among friends is to watch Mrs. Pandit, president of the UN Assembly, talking with concentration and wiggling her stockingless toes.

You can lighten dingy looking rubber overshoes by washing them with water containing a few drops of ammonia, then give them a thin coat of liquid shoe dressing.

BUS, LOCOMOTIVE COLLIDED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —The driver of a crowded trolley bus which was rammed by a railroad engine said Sunday he didn't see the big diesel before the fatal impact. A woman was killed and 47 other passengers were injured when the collision crushed in the right rear door of the bus and swung it around against the engine.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Mother Who Is Jealous Of Her Daughter

Something that seems very strange indeed, but that nevertheless does happen sometimes; is for a mother to be jealous of her own daughter.

This is curious enough when the mother is jealous of her daughter's beauty, say, or her social graces, or the fact that men may pay more attention to her daughter than to herself, something which, oddly enough, seems to occur occasionally even when the mother is happily married.

But even stranger than any of these, and far more pathetic, is the mother who is jealous of her husband's devotion to a daughter.

I must say, however, that the writer of the following letter seems to have some justification for feeling hurt:

"My 16-year-old daughter is first in her father's affections, even coming ahead of me. He takes her out to dinners and to shows, even to parties with him, while leaving me at home. He always says that he knows it's impossible for me to go with him because we have three younger children who must have someone home with them. If I suggest that this 16-year-old could look after the children so that I could go out with him, it always starts a big argument.

"What would you suggest?"

What I would suggest first is that this wife, who says elsewhere in her letter that she is still under 40, should try to see if she can think of any way in which she might have let herself slip, so that she is not quite the same attractive and congenial companion to her husband that she used to be.

Qualities That Attract

For example, let her think back to their courtship and try to figure out what the qualities were in her that attracted the young man who wanted her for a wife. This should not be too hard, because any young man in love repeatedly tells the girl of his heart about the charms that are individually hers and to which have endeared her to him. He tells her how pretty she is, and how much he likes the way she does her hair- he admires the clothes she wears, and her cute little figure; he mentions her sunny disposition and happy ways, her jauntiness and good sportsmanship. In other words, she should try to remember what seemed to be the reasons why her husband enjoyed being with her.

Once her memory has recalled the points on which her husband complimented her when he was courting her, then she can ask herself honestly whether or not she may have let herself go in some of these respects.

Has she grown a bit careless about her appearance, or does she make the same effort to keep looking trim and attractive that she made before she was married? Has that sunny disposition soured a little, so that she has a tendency to nag instead of being gay and cheerful? Has she developed the habit of picking on her husband instead of praising him, as no doubt she praised him while they were still young people in love? When he comes home at night, does she complain about the work she has had to do all day, never discussing anything really interesting or ever giving him a chance to tell her about what happened in his own day?

All these are things about which she can do a lot, and none of them cost money except, perhaps, improving her appearance, which she may feel would be helped by by new clothes and regular visits to the beauty shop. But even here, though she may not have the money for everything she would like, there's nothing to prevent her from keeping herself well groomed and good to look at with a becoming hair-do and a few dime store cosmetics. And surely she could somehow manage the money for at least one visit to the beauty shop each month where they would teach her how to keep her locks in order between visits, and one smart new dress.

But more important than anything else in making a man want the companionship of his wife is for her to be invariably cheerful and happy, and for her to make him feel that she is proud of him. The letter quoted gives me the impression that this particular wife has a regrettable attitude toward her husband and tries to make him feel that it's his duty and obligation to take her out. Such an approach is never going to get her anywhere. If she will take the trouble to check on all the points I have mentioned and brush up on them, including the qualities that make a person a good sport and fine companion, her husband may very well come to feel it is a pleasure rather than a duty to take her out with him.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Thought For Today

A very fine birth announcement card has recently been published . . . printed on the first page these inspiring words: . . .

Behold
Children are A Gift Of God
—Psalm 128

An Inspiring Spiritual Occasion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a very special problem about having our two babies (one sixteen months old and the other one month old) christened, and I now have a very special wish to have them christened. I hate to admit it, Mrs. Beeckman, but I've just not been a church-goer so I know absolutely nothing about christenings in my church.

1. Do you approve of my idea to have them both christened at the same time? If so, would it be proper for me just to telephone to the minister of the church in which I want the babies christened, and ask him if I may come to see him about the plans for the christening? I don't want to make a big blunder.

2. Who pays the minister? And how much would you suggest if we have the double christening?

3. Should we have different godparents for each child?

L.

1. My most sincere congratulations to you for your perfect plan. This plan is exactly what you should follow. These soul-inspiring christenings will give you deep spiritual comfort and reassurance. I have these two precious babies of yours christened at the same time . . . a beautiful inspiration.

And yes, telephone to the minister, explain your plan, and ask him when you may come to talk it over with him. I have a feeling that he may suggest coming to see you, sending how difficult it might be for you to find the time to come to see him.

Have no fear whatever of making a blunder . . . the minister will gently explain step-by-step of the ceremony (which is very simple) and will understandingly answer all

Sugarless Grape Jam

By Mary Moore

We will not go into the little subject of grape-stained fingers and aprons but we will say that for breakfast we had grape jam without sugar on our toast and it was good.

My problem when working on this particular sugarless jam was the toughness of the grape skins. Even when the jam was boiled for 40 minutes the skins were a little too tough for pleasurable eating. So on the next test I ground the raw grape skins. This was hard to do for they clogged the grinding knives. So on the next test I chopped them with a very sharp knife on the chopping board. That worked. So now I'm ready to give my friends with diabetes my recipe for:

Sugarless Grape Jam

Wash Concord grapes. Pull them off the stems and measure 6 1-3 measuring cups. Slip off the skins (this is the longest job.) Cook the grape pulp (not the skins) over very low heat (do not add any water) until it is tender enough and liquid enough for the seeds to float. This takes about 15 minutes, but you must watch it and stir it for it for it will stick and burn. The heat must be low.

Push this pulp through the sieve to remove the seeds. Discard the seeds. Chop the grape skins (there will be about 3 cups of them) with chopping knife and sharp knife on chopping board and add them to the strained pulp. Cook this very gently covered for 40 minutes, stirring frequently. Now add 18 sucaryl tablets and the grated rind of 1-2 lemon. Gently boil for 15 minutes. Now add 1 tablespoon certo crystals and cook, stirring, for 5 minutes. Pour into sterile jelly glasses (3 6-oz. jars) and seal with hot new parafiin, adding a second coating when cold. Do not take a chance on storing this anywhere but in the refrigerator.

I am making extra copies of this recipe and will mail it to any readers who write to me for it and enclose a stamped envelope.

Question:

Will you please send me a good recipe for cake doughnuts —also for pear honey if you have it or any other good pear recipes.

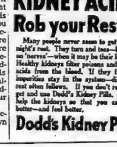
Answer:

Cake Doughnuts



Sift all-purpose flour and measure 3 1-3 cups. Sift this with 2 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon. Beat 2 whole eggs very well- then add to them 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons soft shortening and beat until smooth and light, then add 3-4 cup thick buttermilk or sour milk. Stir the sifted dry ingredients in. Chill for at least two hours. Now heat fat to 390 deg. Fahr. (a cube of bread browns in 40 seconds in fat that is this hot.) Depth of fat should be at least three inches. Turn part of the doughnuts dough out on lightly floured board, roll to 1-3-inch thickness and cut out with floured doughnut cutter. Carry cut out doughnuts over to fat kettle and transfer to fat on wide spatula or egg lifter. Only fry as many as may be easily turned over. When they rise to surface and show golden color on bottom turn. This requires about 3 minutes to completely brown both sides. Lift out on long fork without puncturing crust, drain a little, and place them on absorbent paper, but keep them warm, while you roll out and fry remainder of dough. Dough that is not being rolled should be kept in refrigerator until you are ready to roll it. To sugar the doughnuts, just before serving shake doughnuts one at a time in a paper bag with a little confectioners' or granulated sugar in it.

Pear Honey

Pare and core 8 lbs. pears (preferably Kieffers) and put them through the grinder. Add 2 cups crushed canned pineapple and 8 lbs. sugar and cook until boil stirring frequently, and during last few minutes constantly, for 20 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

HISTORIC STREAM

Ireland's principal river, the Shannon, flows 240 miles to the Atlantic ocean.

After dresses, slips or nightgowns are washed, the last way to hang them is on wooden or plastic clothes hangers. Be sure to attach the hangers firmly to the clothesline if the garments are hung outdoors.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. olice Mount uard at Home f Dead Girl

KENVILLE, Que. (CP) — Provincial police mounted guard Sunday night at the home of Sgt. Lorne Carrier, 32, whose nude body was found four years ago in a ditch at Iroquois.

Brothers of the young woman called on police to keep newspaper and photographers away from their home in this shipbuilding town on the south shore of the Lawrence river, opposite Quebec City.

Sgt. Carrier, a pretty, nearly blond tall member of the Canadian Army's Women's Auxiliary Corps, left her home Oct. 14 to attend an evening in Quebec. She is of a family of 14 children, was graduated from the Bisson convent and later worked in credit union office at nearby Valleyfield before entering the army four years ago.

Neighbors say the young woman's father died two years ago. She was very reserved and a quiet girl.

wenty Killed uring Week-End n East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The death of a pilot in the flaming crash of a Vampire jet fighter near Montreal was one of close to a score of week-end fatalities in Eastern Canada.

Ontario listed nine violent deaths, Quebec seven, and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick two apiece, a Canadian Press compilation today showed.

All those in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were on the highways. Ontario had seven traffic deaths and Quebec one.

Killed in the jet crash was F/O. Jean Trudeau, 22, of Napierville, Que., whose RCAF plane overshot Uplands airport during an attempted landing.

Two Dead, Seven Hurt

Two persons were killed Sunday when a car and truck collided six miles east of Renfrew, 50 miles west of Ottawa. Seven others were injured.

Killed were Rose Smagliacki, 18, of Wilno, Ont., and Donald MacMartin, 4, of Renfrew.

Killed in Fast

In Toronto, Mrs. Florence Joplin, about 46, died when her car hurtled 40 feet after it crashed into a trafic at a level crossing. Lloyd Stewart, 24, suffered fatal injuries when his car plunged down a 50-foot embankment near Cobalt.

Charles W. Ellis, 70-year-old Oxford dentist, was killed when his car ran into Norwich's western city limits. AC. Joseph Michael Parisi, 19 was fatally injured when he crashed a turn near Goderich.

An elderly man killed by a Toronto street car was not identified early today.

Farmer Ernest Wright, 45, was found dead from a bullet wound on a farm 18 miles south of Dundalk.

A 41-year-old Thomas Jackson was fatally injured by his shotgun while duck hunting near Chatham.

Federal Government's Right To Control Highway Traffic Across Borders To Be Decided

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian-transportation interests will be watching closely the outcome of a case coming before the Privy Council in London early next month.

It could have a heavy impact on the country's mushrooming highway transport business, particularly the $50,000,000-a-year haulage across provincial boundaries.

The case itself is a relatively minor one in terms of dollars. But on its outcome hinges the issue of whether the federal government will move in on the regulation of trans-border highways operations.

The Privy Council case is an appeal from a Supreme Court of Canada decision holding that interprovincial or international highway traffic comes under federal jurisdiction. This decision was given about two years ago.

The Supreme Court ruling was in a dispute between a New Brunswick motor carrier board and Mackenzie Coach Lines of Lewiston, Me., which challenged the right of the province to regulate its operations in New Brunswick on a run between Maine and Cape Breton, N. S.

Near Fight Seen

It is one of the last major cases from Canada to go before the judicial committee of the Privy Council. Canada's Supreme Court now has the final say in court matters for this country, but cases begun before 1949—such as the highway one—may go to Britain.

The federal government and some provincial governments plan a stiff fight before the Privy Council in the sessions opening Nov. 2.

The federal government, which has always contended that it has control over trans-border traffic but has never applied it, could use a favorable Privy Council decision to bring in actual regulation. This would afford a measure of protection for the railways, which have been hit hard in the last few years by long-distance freight hauling.

The provinces, whose right to control road business within their borders is not under challenge, argue that the central government should not get in on highway business, even that crossing borders.

Directly fighting the federal government before the Privy Council are the governments of Ontario, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. The two big railways are aligned on the federal side.

May Request Board

If the Privy Council decision, expected by about January, favors federal jurisdiction, expectations here are that the cabinet will draft legislation to nail down federal control of cross-border traffic. The control would be exercised through the board of transport commissioners, which might be expanded.

This extension of control was recommended by the royal commission on transportation in 1951. The federal government is known to be favorable to it. However, officials say there is little likelihood of legislation on it at the coming session of Parliament in view of the time needed for drafting a bill.

G. M. Parks of Toronto, president of the Canadian Automotive Transportation Association, indicates federal control of trans-border business would not be opposed by the truckers.

Normetal Mine Workers Strike For Higher Pay

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — About 315 workers at Normetal mines, a copper-zinc producer 75 miles north of here, went on strike early today for higher wages and union security.

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said if it is also joined by the company 30 men until Sunday midnight to shut the mine. The walkout brings to three the number of mines on strike in this area. Some 2,500 miners are idle at Noranda mines and its subsidiaries, Quemont and Normetal.

Union officials said today's strike at a fourth mine in the area, Waite Amulet, also a Noranda subsidiary, will be legal after Monday midnight. The 400 employees voted for a strike earlier this week and union and company have scheduled a last-minute meeting Monday to try to avert it.

Workers at the four mines seek a 25-cent-an-hour increase over the present $1.05, dues checkoff, a pension plan and cut in the work week to 44 from 48 hours.

Skyray Sets World Record For Closed Course

MUROC, Calif. (AP)—The Douglas Aircraft Company announced Saturday the fleet navy jet plane F-4D Skyray was flown at an average speed of 728.110 miles an hour Friday to set a world speed record for a closed course.

The company said Bob Rahn, 32-year-old Douglas test pilot, flew the delta-wing jet interceptor at an altitude of about 200 feet around the 100-kilometre course to better the British mark of 709.2 miles an hour.

Neville Duke, flying a British Hawker Hunter jet fighter, had established the previous record at Dunsfold, Surrey, England, on Sept. 19.

SHIP SINKS

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — The Brazilian ship Santa Madelena burned and sank 25 miles off the north coast of Brazil Friday, press reports reaching here said. The crew of 32 and seven passengers were rescued by the Brazilian ship Santos Failes shortly after the Santa Madalena radioed for help.

Haymes Will Live on 50 P.C. Of His Income

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Dick Haymes' lawyer said Friday night the government has agreed to accept half of the crooner's gross earnings until his overdue income tax of about $50,000 is paid in full.

"Mr. Haymes will have to live on the remaining 50 per cent of his income," counsel David Marcus said, "and must pay up other debts including alimony on that amount, but he is very grateful for the opportunity to continue working."

Haymes, recently married to actress Rita Hayworth at Las Vegas, Nev., now is singing at the Shamrock Hotel in Houston, Tex. The internal revenue bureau placed a tax lien on his salary there Wednesday.

On another front, the crooner was less fortunate.

Federal Judge Ernest A. Tolin dismissed his petition which sought to restrain the U.S. immigration service from proceeding with deportation hearings against him. The singer, a native of Argentina and not a U.S. citizen, had asked the court to rule that he was not subject to deportation.

U.S. Ship Makes Routine Visit to Trieste

ENCORE FOR CUPID

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Cupid has staged a repeat performance in the road company of South Pacific playing here. Jeanne Bal, Nellie Forbush in the company, and Ross Bowman, stage manager, obtained a marriage license Thursday. The wedding is expected Sunday. Their predecessors in the company, Janet Blair and Nick Mayo, were married last October while the musical was in San Francisco.

One of the three U.S. warships making a "routine" visit to turbulent Trieste is the destroyer Braine, shown here at pier in the Free Territory. Arrival of the vessels coincided with the demonstrations staged by Belgrade mobs after the Anglo-American decision to withdraw troops in Zone A and turn it back to Italy. Meanwhile, Marshal Tito has asked for a conference on the issue.—Central Press Canadian.

Russia's Peace Offensive Changing Cold Into Quiet War

Editor's Note: Nowhere in western Europe is there less concern about a possible Soviet military attack than in Italy. They reverage Italian dose not regard a Communist as a sinister foreign agent bent on destruction. He is merely likely to see him as a probable member of the government as the successor of the plain people, as pallied to fellow farmers, town officials and men in the street to feed and clothe.

BY RELMAN MORIN

ALBANO, Italy (AP)—Russia's peace offensive, like a magic wand over western Europe, is changing the cold war into a quiet war.

The latter, some looks infinitely more dangerous.

It has brought a tendency to relax in building NATO defences. It has contributed to the political tensions among the Western Allies.

But the greatest effect is apparent when you talk to the man on the street.

In Germany, he is wary but not worried about a Soviet military onslaught. There is even less concern in France. And in Italy it seems to have vanished entirely.

Agrined The Trend

More than 8,000,000 Italians voted Communist in the national elections last June. The Reds got about 35 per cent of the total vote, a gain of three per cent since 1948.

Elsewhere in Europe, Communist political strength seems on the downgrade. But in Italy, it gained. Why?

The standard theory is that communism flourishes best in poverty and misery. To a degree, that is true. But in Italy, the standard of living has been rising steadily since the war. The people have worked hard and the government has effectively curbed inflation.

Then why the Communist gain?

Loretto Sallustri is a farmer. He owns four scattered plots of land, the equivalent of about five acres, outside the town of Albano in central Italy.

The Communists captured the municipal government in Albano about a year before the national elections. One of the first things they did was to reduce city taxes on the many small farmers like Loretto Sallustri.

Sure Vote-Getter

At the same time they raised taxes on larger landowners. The net result could only be a gain in potential votes. The bigger owners would not vote Communist anyway.

"I wouldn't want a completely Communist government," Signor Sallustri says. "But I want one with more Socialist policies than we have had."

Has his personal condition improved since the war? He says it has.

"I have been working on this land for more than 40 years. In those days, things were much worse. Now, at least, we have meat on Sunday and sometimes during the week."

Official figures show that one out of every 13 Italian families never eats meat.

Loretto Sallustri makes another point—

"The farmer is on the lowest social level in Italy. Why should that be? We produce the food and wine. Why are we not as good as anybody else? The Communists evidently do not think that way about us. The first thing they did was lower the taxes on wine and grapes."

Son Disagrees

Sallustri's son, Pierino, who is 25, does not agree with his father on many of these points.

Pierino says he voted against the Communists, but he agrees with his father that "they are better administrators." They have that reputation in the bigger cities, like Bologna, he says.

He is of military age, so has some protounced feelings on war and foreign policy. If Italy were attacked, he says he would fight, but only for defence, "and without enthusiasm." He does not believe there will be a war with Russia.

To Continue Controls

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Saturday provincial rent controls must continue although small property owners are being pushed "into an abyss" by an "absolutely unjust" burden of taxation.

Addressing 500 delegates of the Quebec League of Property-owners at the close of their annual convention, Mr. Duplessis said the root of the trouble is that the federal government collects 7 per cent of national tax revenues.

Red Wings Take Over National Hockey Lead With Brace Of Wins

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carvin, Sports Editor

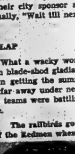
Bryson Reid's Ragenie juniors baseball team bowed out of the picture over the weekend going down twice, before the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines by scores of 5-7 and 9-7. The Combines won the championship of the Belleville District Baseball League with the two victories.

The Ragenie made a gallant effort to pull the second game out of the fire after being down seven runs at one time. They rallied strongly in the latter innings but could not quite overcome the big margin. However they went down fighting and were far from being disgraced.

Bryson Reid and Coach "Red" Carnes deserve a lot of credit for the fine showing made this season. They whipped together a bunch of youngsters early in the year, and nobody gave them much of a chance. But they pounded away and practiced away and eventually came up with the Eastern Ontario championship after disposing of Peterboro coach and Cardinal. They proved a real considered young team and with a few more of the breaks might have won the Ontario Junior "A" title.



However by their performance they were a distinct credit to their city sponsor and themselves and as the Dodgers say annually, "Wait till next year."

OVERLAP

What a wacky world. In Memorial Arena yesterday afternoon blade-shod gladiators of the ice laces were ripping up and down getting the summer-kinks out of hockey legs while not too far away under near-summer weather conditions two baseball teams were battling it out for the city and district league title.

The ralfbirds cut their first glimpse of the 1953 edition of the Redmen when strange faces mingled with the greater part of the squad that finished out last year's second in a two-hour workout session. Practically all the last year's team was present with the exception of Keith MacDonald and Jackie Wardhaugh who were replaced with Don Barclay from the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines.

COACH "RED" DORAN
and Edwin are forwards. They are tricky and fast and seemed to click real good together. They played formerly with the Inkerman Rockets then switched to Clinton, N.Y., thence to Pembroke and overseen with the Harringay Racers. Gerry Desjardins teamed up with them in a wing capacity and flitted in nicely with the fast-skating duo.

Don Barclay wore the goalie pads in one net and showed his old time form. At the other end Ken Doran and Ken Watson who played with Kenora Thistles and his work caught the eye of the boards-officials.

Other newcomers who are trying out for spots include the Dumean twins, as alike as a couple of peas in a pod but who apparently knew a lot of the hockey answers. The pair Elwyn and Edwin are forwards. They are tricky and fast and seemed to click real good together. They played formerly with the Inkerman Rockets then switched to Clinton, N.Y., thence to Pembroke and overseen with the Harringay Racers. Gerry Desjardins teamed up with them in a wing capacity and flitted in nicely with the fast-skating duo.

Coach "Red" Doran again teamed with Peter Jones and Sammy Mulholland and this trio made a lot of them all up and take shots. Vern Gosfield was used on the defence along with Jed Semark. Bob Taylor gave evidence of why he was one of the better defencemen in the league when he last played here. He teamed with Jake Wade formerly of Peterborough, and this pair looked like the answer to a Belleville coach's prayer.

Ted DeGray is back again as is George Graham, Doug Hull was whizzing up and down the ice with the old dash and fire, as was "Webber" Dey, and Duke Doran.

The Redmen will get in practices all this week as they open the senior "B" schedule against the Orillia Terriers at Orillia on Saturday night. Their first home appearance is seen being made to the champion Goodreaves of Kingston on Friday, October 30. They will be entertained by the revamped Peterborough Petes in Peterborough Monday, November 9. Incidentally the Petes open the season as the guests of the Oshawa Truckers in Oshawa next Friday night.

Trim Canadiens, Black Hawks To Grab Single Point Lead; Leafs Gain Third Position

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Terry Sawchuk, the chunky Detroit all-star goalie, apparently has taken up-after a brief injury-right where he left off last season when he won the Vezina Trophy for the second year in succession.

The 24-year-old Winnipegger returned to the Detroit nets Sunday night after missing three games due to a slashed knee and shut out Montreal Canadiens 4-0, making 25 saves.

The victory, the second in a row for the Red Wings after a one-week-end, moved them past Montreal into first place in the National Hockey League.

Habs Point Behind

In all, six games were played during the full week-end schedule. The Canadiens whipped Boston Bruins 5-2 Saturday night to stay one point behind the Red Wings in the second place. Third-Place Toronto Maple Leafs gained ground on the top two by defeating New York Rangers Saturday night and a 2-1 victory over the Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday night.

Detroit leads with nine points, Montreal has eight and Toronto seven. The Bruins took over fourth place by trimming the Red Wings 3-1 in Boston Sunday night.

The Black Hawks, last, dropped their fourth and fifth games and have only a tie to their credit. Their lone win was against the Rangers, 2-1 defeat by the Red Wings Saturday night.

At home, the Red Wings scored in every period before a sell-out crowd of 13,186 to whip the Canadiens. Marty Pavelich put the Wings in front in the first period and that was all the lead needed by Sawchuk, who allowed only an assist on a 1.30 goals a game last season in the 63 regular ones he played. But Red Kelly and Gordie Howe clicked for the Wings in the second period and Leo Lamoureux added insult to injury with a 15-footer in the final session.

Kick Over Goal

Dave Gatherum, 21-year-old Bruin goalie, called for Sawchuk while he was injured, kicked out 33 shots against the Black Hawks and had his second shutout in a row going until the last four seconds when Pete Conacher sneaked in a shot after a scramble. This frustrated Jack Gelineau to such an extent that they kicked over the goal post, flinging it against the backboards.

Johnny Wilson in the first period and Reibel early in the middle session were the Detroit scorers.

In Toronto Saturday, a packed crowd of 14,437, walloped the Bruins at home in a hard-fought game in which Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored his fifth goal in five games.

Bert Olmstead, Eddie Mazur, Calum Mackay and Bernie Geoffrion scored the other Montreal goals and veteran Milt Schmidt and Dave Creighton counted for Boston.

Fleming Mackell, the Bruins star centre, suffered a pulled shoulder muscle and may miss a couple of games.

Came From Behind

The Leafs had to come from behind to down the tie in Toronto against the Rangers. George Armstrong got the equalizer at 14:38 of the third period after Nick Mickoski scored for the Rangers early in the second period.

Against the Black Hawks, Eric Nesterenko and Sid Smith both converted passes for the Leafs' victory. Jimmy Peters scored the Chicago goal.

The Bruins took advantageo f Ranger penalties Sunday. Two Rangers were in the penalty box when Real Chevrefils got the winning goal in the second period.

Defencemen Bob Armstrong and Joe Klukay scored the other Boston goals. Paul Rooty and Leo Reise tallied for the Rangers.

Bar Stop Watches From Meets Says Briton

LONDON (AP) — Roger Bannister, Britain's great miler, wondered out loud today whether it would not be better to have all stop watches handed in for safe keeping at track and field meets.

Bannister insisted the athletic world has become more concerned with records than with the sport itself. He also thinks the London Federation of Boys' Clubs there are dangers in idolizing the sportsman and in specialization.

The Briton, who ran a 4:02 in a mechanically-paced assault on the four-minute mile last summer, also said too many are becoming watchers instead of players.

Stamps Defeat Quakers 8-2

By the Canadian Press

Calgary Stampeders took over first place in the Western Canada League Saturday night with an 8-2 victory over Saskatoon Quakers. Veteran Pat Lundy notched three goals and Fred Horcul tallied a pair for Calgary. Ray Barry, Steve Black and Frank Ashworth added single. Eddie Robinson and Alex Kaleta snipped the Saskatoon goals.

Seattle Bombers snapped out of an early slump with two hard-end victories. They whipped Victoria Cougars 7-2 Saturday night, paced by Flori Gorgan with two goals. Guyle Fielder, Dave Wall, Bruce Kanasky, Boston Bradley and Wayne Bruwn tallied the others. Reg Abbott and Sam Ratte connected for Victoria.

The Bombers blasted Edmonton Flyers 8-3 Sunday, Wayne Brown and Mark Marquess fired two goals apiece for Seattle. Guyle Fielder, Goegan and Ted Oliver notched the others. Steve Hrynkiw, Rany Hannigan and Bud Pulle were the Edmonton marksmen.

New Westminster Royals and Edmonton tied 4-4 Saturday night. Bobbie Love fired two goals and Don Slater and Lloyd Durham one apiece for the Royals. Jack MacDonald, Bill Folk, Ching Johnson and Bob Sellaniat counted for Edmonton.

Baltimore Buys Way Out Of International

MONTREAL (CP) — Baltimore bought its way out of the International Baseball League this week-end for close on $50,000.

At a four-hour meeting of the league directors Sunday, the four directors-representatives of the Baltimore club were called in to hear the price they would have to pay the league to relinquish the Baltimore territory, thus permitting the Orioles to go ahead with their plans to join the American League.

It officials said after the closed meeting Baltimore agreed to pay $48,768.61 — or a sum equal to a seven-cents-a-head levy based on three times their 1953 attendance figure. Attendance at the Baltimore park, including playoffs, totalled 322,141 in 1953.

The price was near that paid by Milwaukee Brewers last year when opting out of the American Association. It cost Milwaukee $50,000 before they could bring the club of the National League in.

Heading the Baltimore delegation was Arthur J. Perrasso and Clyde Morris and vice-president Bill Du Shift.

League directors had been expected to discuss possible additions to the league and a proposed interlocking schedule with the American Association.

But a league spokesman said the meeting's only "purpose" was to fix the compensation to be paid by Baltimore. The other two questions probably will be taken up at the IL annual general meeting in Montreal Nov. 15.

Minor Baseball Leagues Will Suggest Change

DALLAS (AP)—Texas League club owner Dick Butler said here he thinks great progress has been made toward getting changes in the baseball rule that "give the minor leagues a chance to survive."

Burnett, owner of the Dallas club, called a meeting attended by owners headed by presidents and representatives of 23 minor leagues to discuss alterations of six major league clubs.

The minor leagues approved a suggestion that would give them a greater voice in the framing of baseball rules, bring about an unrestricted draft, pay the players part of the cash purchase or draft price, allow them to waive the draft, raise the price of the draft for the top minors (class A down to D), return restrictions to radio broadcasts and telecasts of major league games in minor league territory and create a reciprocal minor league agreement.

These amendments are to be submitted to the national baseball convention in Atlanta Nov. 30 to Dec. 3, and Burnett said he was confident of their being accepted by the major leagues.

Turpin, Olson Clash Wed. in Fight More Puzzling Than a 'Whodunit'

By Murray Rose

NEW YORK (AP) — England's Randy Turpin and San Francisco's Carl (Bobo) Olson meet for the middleweight championship Wednesday night in an international bout that has more puzzling angles than a dime detective story.

Here's Turpin, one-time conqueror of the great Ray Robinson and a former champion rated a 2-to-1 underdog against the man who was kayoed and beaten by Robinson.

Sure, Turpin was stopped by Sugar Ray in 10 rounds in their second fight but the strong invader seemed on his way to victory when referee Harry Goldstein halted the bout with eight seconds left in the round.

The feeling, of course, is that the 25-year-old British Negro has slipped since his hectic two frays with Robinson and that Olson has come along at a rapid rate.

But more than that is the strange training procedure of the moody, one-time country fair fighter. He has boxed only 26 rounds since he arrived in America a month ago.

Randy, himself, said that he will be in top shape and that too much boxing would make him stale. But Jack Solomons, the British promoter who always has had the big say in Turpin's career, has gone on record as saying he "doesn't approve" of Randy's training methods.

"He hasn't boxed enough," said Solomons. "If it goes 15 rounds, Olson will win."

It could be that the Britons are playing possum. It could be, too, that Randy has been doing some fighting in secret.

Olson, meanwhile, has been training in his usual fashion. He's been boxing regularly and hustling about in the gym. He figures to be in great shape, ready to go a full three minutes every round as he generally does.

Figured to be a sellout because New York will be blacked out of a Madison square garden fight show for the first time, the bout may draw no more than 18,000 at prices ranging from $3 to $30.

Mustangs Trim Redmen 25-8

(By The Canadian Press)

University of Western Ontario Mustangs today are the only unbeaten team in senior football in the Country, and they are heading for their seventh intercollegiate title since 1946.

The Mustangs kept their first place position intact Saturday with an easy 25-8 victory over McGill Redmen at Montreal while the other undefeated University of Toronto Blues stayed in line with a 24-0 shutout over McMaster Marauders at Toronto.

After a scoreless first quarter, Mustangs scored a converted touchdown and a single and the Redmen replied with a converted major to make it a game. But two more converted majors before the quarter ended sewed it up for the Londoners.

They added a single and touchdown against a McGill safety touch in the third quarter and finished the final 15 minutes without either club scoring a point.

Four Touchdowns

Mustang majors were scored by Murray Henderson, Garnet Shaw, Jack Wyatt and Orest Tokarsky. Glen Pyrzas kicked three converts, and Jocko Thompson punted two singles.

George Klein went over for a McGill touchdown, converted by Fred Wilmot and Bob Emery broke through to bring Thompson down behind the Western line for a safety touch late in the third quarter.

Despite their inability to launch an offensive of more than 20 yards, Varsity had little trouble defeating McMaster whose loose play paved the way for most of the Blues' scoring. Halfback Steve Oneschuk picked up 11 points on a touchdown, 15-yard field goal, two converts and a single.

Bill McFarlane and Bob Pinkney added majors and Varsity's other points came on a single by Al Haig and a safety touch.

Alouettes Trim Argos 39-11 To Climb Into Lead With Hamilton Tiger-Cats

Larks Join Edmonton Eskys As Hottest Teams in Country; Bombers Beaten as Cats Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Apparently Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos forgot to read the experts' scripts before Canada's professional football season opened last August. Both were written off as potential Grey Cup contenders.

They may make the experts look goofish the long haul before the East-West final at Toronto Nov. 28, but right now they're the hottest big-league clubs in the business. They proved it during the week-end.

The Als did it with a decisive 39-11 victory over Toronto Argonauts, defending Grey Cup champions, at Montreal on Sunday and Eskimos, who've never missed a Western Conference final playoff berth, de-fused Winnipeg Blue Bombers 32-9 at Edmonton Saturday night. The in-and-out Hamilton Tiger-Cats were the victim — a 33-24 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday to keep in step with the Als.

Edmonton - Montreal triumphs probably won't cause hometown supporters to put immediate bids in for Grey Cup tickets but they proved a couple of points: They are the most consistent winners in the league this season and both dote on home grounds.

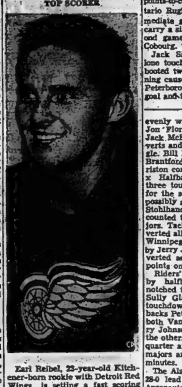
Undefeated at Home

Neither has dropped a game this season before home-town fans —the only big leaguers to hold such a record—and both are on a victory rampage. The league club who meet Saskatchewan Roughriders at Edmonton tonight have taken four straight and the Als claim a three-game victory skein.

The Big Four, with the possibility of a four-way first-place tie, now has the Als and Tiger-Cats tied at the top with 13 points each four up on Winnipeg and Ottawa. Four games remain before the schedule closes out and Montreal fans might like to bet that the Als play two of theirs at home, against Ottawa Sunday and against Tiger-Cats Nov. 8.

Calgary Stampeders, headed for a sideline spot in the Western Conference playoffs after a double header loss to Edmonton last week, saw their last mathematical chance go when they lost 24-18 to Roughriders at Calgary Saturday. Now the western two-game total-point semi-finals will be between the Bombers and Roughriders.

OHFU Race Tightens



The Ontario Rugby Football Union race tightened with only two points separating three teams. The league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen split a double header with Toronto Balmy Beach winning 30-13 at home Saturday and losing 31-9 at Toronto Sunday.

Sarnia Imperials, tied with Beaches two points behind the Dutchmen, didn't surprise anyone with a 34-6 decision over Brantford Redskins at Sarnia Saturday. It was the Redskins' ninth loss in as many starts.

In each Big Four and Western Conference game, the losers came up with desperate fourth-quarter victory bids that at least kept the fans from leaving the parks. The most courageous was put up by Ottawa who started to roll late in the third quarter after Tiger-Cats piled up all their points.

Tiger-Cats, whipped 30-12 by Argonauts Thanksgiving Day, made four first-half pass interceptions that set them up for 24 points. One of these accounted directly for a Hamilton touchdown and the other three put the Cats within easy striking distance.

Riders, defeated twice by Montreal in their Thanksgiving week-end doubleheader, hit the scoreboard for a major late in the third

Earl Reibel, 23-year-old Kitchener-born rookie with Detroit Red Wings, is setting a fast scoring pace in the National Hockey League. He had two goals and six assists in the first four games to take the league leadership in the firing division. He played with Edmonton Flyers in Western League in the 1952-53 season, winning the scoring champion ship.

Import John Mancos notched 12 points Saturday for Kitchener against Balmy Beach while Jack Rogers shared honors by making two pass interceptions. Mancos went over for a pair of touchdowns and kicked two singles. Floyd Cooper registered the other Kitchener major and Ron Tracey picked up three converts. Dick Gregory scored all Beaches points on two touchdowns, two converts and a single.

Gregory and Harv. Singleton each counted two touchdowns for Balmy Beach Sunday and Gregory made good four converts. Sam Laverty scored the other Beach touchdown and George Ellis kicked two singles. Gerry Tutile went over for a Kitchener major which Tracey converted. A single point and a safety completed the scoring for the Dutchmen.

Bobby Lee and Corky Duchesne split four Sarnia touchdowns evenly with Eric McKeever and Jon Fluevog scoring one each. Jack McKelvie kicked three converts and Jim Berry booted a single. Bill Brady went for the lone Brantford touchdown. Larry Hazleton converted.

Halback Rollie Miles scored three touchdowns for Edmonton for the second time this season, possibly a record. End Tom Stohlbandske and half Don Simonscounted the other Edmonton majors. Twelve-man Super converted all five Eskimo touchdowns. Winnipeg's major was chalked up by Jerry James, Bud Korchak converted and added three more points on a field goal.

Riders' four majors were scored by halfbacks Bill Todd, who notched two, Karl Hillinger and Sully Glaser. Two of Calgary's touchdowns were counted by halfbacks Pete Thodos and Pete Muir, both Vancouver-born, third by Jerry Johnson, import half, went for the other.

quarter and added three converted majors and a single in the last 15 minutes.

The Als piled up a third-quarter 19-0 lead and then eased up as Argonauts scored all their points in the final quarter. It was the first Montreal home game not televised and a crowd of 19,603, largest of the season, turned out.

The split-T formation Eskimos used 183 going into the fourth quarter, allowed Bombers a converted touchdown and added two converted majors and a single to make victory complete.

Calgary Stampeders, behind 24-6 with 15 minutes left, rallied for two converted touchdowns.

Winnipeg Bombers had been held over for two Hamilton touchdowns against Ottawa. Jerry Austin, Keral Bailey and Tip Logan scored the others and Logan made every convert good. A safety touch and single completed the Ti-Cat scoring. For Ottawa, Avatic Stone, Bernie Flowers, Bob Cunningham and Matt Anthony went for majors. Gene Roberts converted three of them.

John O'Quinn connected for two Montreal touchdowns against Argos. Joey Fai, Alex Webster also caught Sam Etcheverry passes for majors and Chuck Hunsinger and Jackie Parker registered the Als' touchdown parade. Poole booted a field goal and five converts. Joe Scudero and Al Bruno went for the Argonaut touchdowns with Bob Shaw converting one.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Cobourg Galloping Ghosts upset Peterborough Orfuns 11-5 here Saturday in the first game of their points-to-count series for the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate group finals. The Ghosts carry a 6-point lead into the second game next Saturday at Cobourg.

Jack Sillers scored Cobourg's lone touchdown while Art Jones booted two field goals in the winning cause. Bill Huntley tallied all Peterborough's points on a field goal and two singles.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — There have been some fight trailing camps that were museum pieces, including one we recall in which Lou Nova delved into the mysteries of yogi and made pals with a live bear, but the one which has been going on here for a number of weeks seems to rank right up with the zaniest of the lot.

Those who have gone through it say they will never forget Randy Turpin as long as they live. The strange character who fights Bobo Olson for the world middleweight title Wednesday night at the Catskiden has distributed scars which will endure—and none of them on the sparring partners.

By great good luck, it seems, most of our guys have been very busy with such things as the world series and the opening of the football season, and so have been spared. The principal sufferers were a group of British reporters who were here on orders from their respectively papers, and Col. Bob Brumby, a gentleman from Georgia who was being highly paid by the promoting IBC to drum up interest in the impending brawl.

Moody Master

About the first thing Turpin did was to Brumby to tell him he wanted no part of him. The second was to do everything but sic dogs on the journalistic countrymen. The moody mauler wanted to be left severely alone. The result has been an unparalleled blasting in the British press and a detectable coldness in Brumby's dignified bow.

"That mail was rude to me," the distinguished Balthinoper says now, "and I didn't like it. I don't know what's wrong with the guy unless that fighters are like that sensitive. It's been a hell of a camp."

Because he wished to talk to nobody and worked out mainly in seclusion at the camp's private gymnasium which is Rocky Marciano's favorite training base, my report on how many rounds Turpin has boxed since arriving here has to be hearsay. Some say he has but is surprisingly low considering the price at stake.

Murray Goodman, the head IBC publicist, claims the distinction of having been the first person outside Turpin's entourage to see him box, and that was less than a week ago.

"I don't know whether he's conceited or sensitive or just plain ornery," Goodman says, "but I do know that he's rough and in good shape. From what I saw I really think he's improved 100 percent over his second fight with Ray Robinson two years ago.

Killer Instinct

I believe, too, that he has the killer instinct that Olson lacks. He had his brother Jackie boxing with him, a little guy no bigger than a featherweight, and he beat him up badly. He banged ball out of the ring and then bounded off the floor like a rubber ball—his own brother.

"You know, these British fellows are pretty crafty. Before he even came over Turpin had been hiding out in some old castle up in Wales or somewhere and I'm told he worked 38 rounds there. If I ever saw a fighter who's ready, he is."

The British reporters, meanwhile are divided between loyalty to the Empire and their personal antipathy for the churlish fellow who one of them designated "Britain's ambassador of bad manners."

They would like to win the crown and see Randy get his head knocked out, too. Brumby has no such problem.

MINOR SOCCER—Standing hed On Sunday a Bloomfield team of juveniles from Belleville and Batawa journeyed to Toronto for an exhibition game with a like star team from Toronto and Hamilton. The local team who probably had an average age disadvantage of about three years were on the short side of a 7-1 score. However they gave a very good account of themselves. The score was 1-0 for the Toronto-Hamilton team until about half way through the second period. After that the extra size of the homesters took over and the Belleville-Batawa team began to tire. Bloomfield-Wellington Combines Edge Regent Jrs. Twice for League Title

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

In a baseball series that saw everything happen, even with a bit of good ball tossed in, the Bloomfield, Wellington Combines out-slugged the Reid's Regent Juniors for a 8-7 victory on Saturday and came back to Bellesville on Sunday afternoon to take the Belleville and district league title with a 9-7 win.

On Saturday afternoon the two teams hooked up in a batter's battle that saw first one team ahead and then the other. Billy Strachan and Bob Bunton were on the firing lines and both were well hit - although Bunton went 11 down via the strikeout route.

The Combines took a 3-0 lead in the first frame and were out front 8-1 after three innings but then the Regents came to life for five runs in the next two with a single reply from the Combines. The Juniors pulled out front in the eighth by one run but it did not last long in a game such as this where errors, extra base hits by the pack, passed balls and a very lackadaisical display of base running by the Juniors, not to mention the frequent outbursts of dissatisfaction by Coach Carson went them and they, Discovery smashed out four of the victors 17 base hits while Wardaugh, Duetta and Mowat had three each. Carr and, Gilmour touched the ball for a double and a single for the losers as Jones, had a brace of singles.

Umpire Cork put Stephens out of the game for arguing as Coach Carson went them and they, but Carson did not head, Cork's word and stayed in to coach. Nothing was done much to the surprise of the crowd and Carson never let the argument die.

Second Game

The game on Sunday started out much the same as the first with 4-1 lead for the winners. Carr started for the Reid lads and gave way to Carson in the sixth with a 7-1 score. Drummand went in the seventh and finished the fixture.

The Regents came up with four in the eighth and two more in the ninth but it was not enough to pull out a victory.

Mowat did well on the mound for 7 2-3 innings as he gave up 9 hits for 9 runs and fanned 5 but they got to him in the eighth and Greer came in. Bunton completed the Play. Discovery smashed out four of the victors 17 base hits while Wardaugh, Duetta and Mowat had three each. Carr and, Gilmour touched the ball for a double and a single for the losers as Jones, had a brace of singles.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribitzer

The mistakes you make in a bridge game can be costly. This is not always the case, however. A slip of the tongue or even one of those deliberate wrong bids may be a lift instead of a bump. Here was the tournament deal you see here:

♥10 9 4
♦9 8 6 5 4 2

WEST
♠Q 10
♥7 6 5
♦K 10 7
♣J 10 9 7 3

EAST
♠K J 7 6
♦Q J 3
♣8 6 5 4

SOUTH
♥A K Q J 3
♦A

At one table the bidding went like this:

South	North
2 H	2 NT
3 H	4 H
5 NT	6 H
7 H	Pass

An opening bid of two in a suit signals that the bidding must go at least a game in something. Nine tricks are promised by a player who starts such a bid; nine tricks or more, that is.

Not all these tricks will be big cards like aces and kings. Some could be shorts in suits; that is, ruffing tricks. In south were some real beauties here, as you can see.

Two no-trump in response is the signal for denying a trick that is sure. Ordinarily, this discourages a slam. But south was not at all worried about sure tricks. He had enough for both.

Five no-trump is a convention signal that asks partner to tell how many kings he holds. With no kings the reply signal is a bid of six clubs. Which is what north should have said.

North, it seems was daydreaming and replied six hearts. This is the signal for showing two kings. It was a mistake, of course: a mistake could have caused a disaster.

South had no way of knowing it was a mistake, and went to seven hearts believing partner had two kings. The opening lead from west was the club jack and south made a grand slam. Funny things happen.

FEW CATTLE BUYERS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Buyers were few and bidding was slow at Thursday's "golden opportunity sale" of Holsteins at Queen's Park here, but all 37 head of cattle were sold at an average of $361 each. The 37 holsteins brought a total of $11,135. Top price of $540 was paid for a five-year-old milking female.

GREAT POET

Geoffrey Chaucer, who died in 1400, was the first man to assume the title of poet laureate of England.

VALUABLE COMPONENT

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 20, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Encouraging rays for improvements, needed production, home and regular business interests; good for students, teachers, those holding conferences on big-scale propositions.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — There may be periods when restraint could avoid irritation, business arguments, family troubles. Watch mental reaction to acts and words. You may wish you had, if you don't. Be amendable.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — All honest, sincere efforts can bring some reward this day. Aspects highly favor job worker and thinker. Attend to essential tasks (large or small) and you can look for just returns.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — One of this week's best days for you who are experimenting, inventing, trying new and modern methods. Be firm but diplomatic; look well before acting. Stars stress alertness.

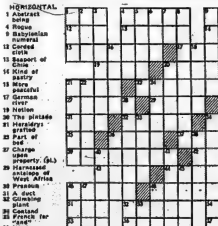
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Recognize your obligations; remember, a job worth doing is worth doing well. No evidence of attention this promising day. Speed along at reasonable pace and earn due rewards.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Don't worry; don't let a minor reverse or hurt develop into a major problem or quarrel by nagging or insisting that your own brand of justice be meted out. You are naturally peace-loving; live up to that trait.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra) — Personal and business interests move forward gainfully. It will be up to you, however, and the momentum you put behind your efforts. So do well, like a true Libran, and win.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your natural talents, coupled with favorable astrological rays, should form a team hard to stop now. However, there is need for caution in written matters, contracts. Be alert.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Your help may be needed in business matters, in molding social affairs. Be willing, generous in attitude. What you do well now will stand by you later; bring benefits unexpectedly.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Show special interest in things that may not have much value to you but do to others. Give family affairs your attention, too.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — An excellent day for the keen thinker. You handling personnel, machinery, important negotiations will have to be on the job, taking each move into consideration beforehand.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — The housewives, homemakers, nurses and domestics among you are now favored; also office workers and farmers. Research, problem-solving will play big part in gains today.

YOU BORN TODAY are naturally genial, gracious, noble. Usually adept at learning, you have intimate knowledge of what is right and wrong, and have regard for those around you, especially loved ones and associates. Keep these ideals high; don't permit others to sway you from your principles. You have the ability to reach the heights in business, a profession, or a trade. Be consistent in effort but not too adventurous (you are naturally a pioneer). Personal life can be very happy. Birthdate: Sir Christopher Wren, scientist, architect.

MADOC—A most pleasant time was spent on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nickle, of Malone, when over 75 neighbors and friends gathered to spend the evening with Mrs. J. A. Nickle, a former resident of the neighborhood.

Messrs. George Fox, Keith McCann, and Reg. Peate presented Mrs. Nickle with a purse of money and Mrs. Garnet McCann representing Zion W.A. also presented Mrs. Nickle with a cup and saucer.

Although taken by surprise Mrs. Nickle graciously thanked her old friends for their kind wishes and gifts which would always be a reminder of many happy days spent with them. The ladies served refreshments. Mrs. Nickle has taken up residence in Madoc in the Brett apartments.

Aluminum May Have Been Factor In Ousting Govt.

By BEN F. MEYER

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Was aluminum a factor in Britain's recent action ousting the colonial government here, which London charged was trying to set up a Communist state?

A great many think the answer is "yes." Furthermore, they insist President Eisenhower probably supported—if he did not actually urge—the action. In any case, Washington uttered no criticism.

Two aluminum companies operate in British Guiana, and the industry is of the utmost importance to its economy.

Canadian Company

One is the Aluminum Company of Canada, which operates what it terms the greatest bauxite treatment plant in the world. It is located 65 miles from Georgetown, on the Demara river. The other is Reynolds Metals of the United States, which says it is not shipping regularly, but rather is engaged in getting its plant in shape for future operations.

Both mine bauxite, which produces aluminum. The Canadian firm is a really big operation, employ, but if London's fears Bauxite now is in abundant were correct it would obviously disturb Washington to think of British Guiana production falling into Communist hands.

In addition, the Canadian firm produces at its Mackenzie plant 350,000 tons annually of special bauxite used in the abrasive and refractory industries, and it is strategic.

The Aluminum Company of Canada has 2,500 employees, Reynolds nearly 500. The town of Mackenzie, of 10,000 population, was begun in 1917. It was completely built by Aluminum, which operates here as the Demara Bauxite Company.

Whether a threat to boycott the Churchill government's action, bauxite is extremely important to British Guiana's economy. It provides 85 per cent of the colony's shipping and nearly all its dollars.

Sharp Re Effects

Although the ousted leftist ministers controlled some unions and called a general strike, neither company reports any effects.

Meanwhile, the sugar industry, which employs 20,000, has only one of its 14 mills operating normally. The bauxite plants offer some of the best jobs in the entire colony, where unemployment, low wages and wretched living conditions are common.

When the crisis occurred, one warship sped immediately to Mackenzie. As the frigate Bigbury Bay docked it was unaware whether to expect cheers or dynamite, which has been disappointing from the bauxite mines recently.

The ship was announced as a "special visit" and it turned out to be just that.

TUG CENTRE

Vancouver harbor is the home base of some 250 tugs operating in coastal waters.

Held in Slaying

Lieut. Peter Ernest Robin Balcombe, 24, (right) of London, Ont., has been charged with murdering Marie Anne Carrier and dumping her body in a ditch near Iroquois, Ont. Wearing a white T-shirt and army trousers he is shown being taken into custody by constables Norman Hogarth of the Ontario Provincial Police. (CP Photo).

Accused Slayer on His Way To Face Court at Cornwall

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Peter Balcombe, young army officer accused of murdering 22-year-old Marie Anne Carrier, was hustled into a police cruiser this morning and headed east, presumably to Cornwall to be arraigned on a murder charge.

The 24-year-old second lieutenant, father of two small children, was taken from the London jail at 9:15 a. m. Police put him on the floor in the rear seat of the car so that he could not be photographed.

Police did not say where they were taking Balcombe, arrested in suburban Komoka Sunday night and booked on the murder charge Monday.

Balcombe was arrested at the home of in-laws near London Sunday, four hours after three of the girl's brothers left their home in Iberville, Que., identified her.

Police also seized the automobile, which they have been examining. They said he had driven to London from the Quebec City area, leaving Wednesday and reaching London Friday.

Alert Officer Helped

A reserve army officer's alertness is credited with setting in motion the chain of events which led to identification of the slain girl Sunday and to the arrest of Balcombe four hours later.

Lt.-Col. Gordon J. Ross, Quebec City real estate dealer and commanding officer of the Quebec reserve artillery unit which Miss Carrier was a sergeant, told police the description of the girl in the ditch fitted Miss Carrier, who had been reported missing since Wednesday night.

He drove the girl's brothers to Morrisburg, Ont., to identify some of the body Sunday.

The body was sent home by train to Iberville. The girl's seven brothers were at the railway station, when the body arrived Monday night.

Col. Ross said at a press conference Monday Miss Carrier was the "most consistent" member of his mixed battery and a "very important" member of the precision squad.

Balcombe Dated Girl

Police said the girl went on dates with Balcombe after his transfer from Wainwright, Alta., to the army base at Valcartier near Quebec but apparently did not know until recently that he was married and the father of two children. His 22-year-old wife has been living with her parents near London since the Wainwright transfer.

Balcombe, born in England, went to high school for three years in Montreal. He attended collegiate at Stratford in 1947-48 to complete Grade 13 years of high school.

His father, then a production executive at a Stratford factory, has since returned to England with the young man's mother.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Skies remain clear over most of Ontario and the United States east of the Rocky mountains. Warm sunshine will push the mercury up into the 80s in southwestern Ontario and into the 70s in northern Ontario today and again on Wednesday.

CLUB-SWINGING POLICE BEAT BACK ITALIAN STUDENTS

Demonstrations Break Out All Over Rome

ROME (AP) — Club-swinging police beat back Communist Italian students in front of the Russian embassy today as demonstrations over the disputed free territory of Trieste broke out in various parts of Rome.

The students answered the police clubs with rocks, sticks. Some of the demonstrators were bruised but no serious injuries were reported.

Hundreds paraded elsewhere, elsewhere, carrying Italian flags, angrily marched against Yugoslav President Tito's stand on Trieste and demanding the strategic Adriatic peninsula be returned to Italy.

Some demonstrators marched past the Yugoslav legation near the heart of the city but no violence was reported as mobile riot police, armed with submachine-guns, guarded the building.

First Rome Incident

It was the first demonstration in Rome on the Trieste issue since the United States and Britain announced they had planned to pull out their 7,000 occupation troops from the port of the free territory, including the port city of Trieste, and turn the area over to Italian control.

Placards read: "Tito Equals Russia," "Tito Long Live Stalin," "Long Live the Italian Army." And the students shouted "Down with Tito" and "Long Live Trieste."

The demonstration in front of the Russian embassy apparently was in protest against the Soviet demand that the Security Council meet soon to appoint an international administration for the area under permanent United Nations supervision.

Doubly Denounced

Both Italy and Yugoslavia have denounced the Russian demand but Italians believe such a proposal favors Yugoslavia more than Italy over-all.

Thousands of "teen-agers and university students milled around the Russian embassy.

There were so many police in the area that their jeeps and trucks tied up traffic for blocks. Demonstrations in other parts of the city also stalled the morning rush hour.

Communist party officials encouraged demonstrations in front of the American and British embassies but police kept them at a distance.

Says Beria Free With Five Agents And Red Secrets

BALTIMORE (AP)—The head of an international spy ring with headquarters here said Monday that Lavrenti Beria, former head of Russia's secret police, is ready to release "critically important papers" to the West should anything happen to him.

Col. Ulius L. Amoss, retired army officer who heads the spy ring, reiterated to subscribers to his International Services of Information (ISI) that Beria has escaped Russia.

Amoss said that when Bolshevik "panic" caused Stalin to be "killed," Beria's position became "untenable" and he vanished.

First, however, Amoss said Beria arranged five specially trusted subordinates with critically important papers—including atomic energy plans — sent them out of Russia with instructions to hand them over to Western authorities should anything happen to him.

Amoss, officials here since denounced Beria, Amoss said, and are readying a stooge to stand trial for the former police head.

Beria is dissatisfied with this action, Amoss said, and has threatened to release the first of his five holders of secret papers if it continues. Amoss said the threat was relayed to an ISI agent by one of Beria's henchmen.

Atomic Power For Industry Within 10 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Atomic power will create electricity for industry within 10 years, Dr. David A. Keys, head of Canada's Chalk River atomic energy project, told a convention of the Institute of Power Engineers Monday.

Wayne Was Bane of Life Says Wife Actor's Reply Is She Got Too High

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first wife of John Wayne divorce trial caused more eyes to blink than the smog did.

The wife's estranged wife accused him of drunkenness, wife-beating and some extra curricular love-making with actress Gail Russell.

Wayne angrily denied all and countered with a few charges of his own.

Mrs. Wayne's counsel presented 22 specific instances of cruelty and the Wayne forces countered with 31 against her.

He with Wayne, his wife said Monday, was six years of flats and missiles. She said he kicked her, cursed her, dragged her around by one foot and bashed her on the nose. Always, she said, the real villain was alcohol and Wayne temperament was stuff worn off.

Wayne countered that the only times he laid hands on his wife was purely in self defence against what he described as her violent rages.

He accused her of spending so much time drinking and gambling at Las Vegas, Nev., that she returned home exhausted and with swollen ankles. Wayne said the latter condition resulted from too much standing up at bars and crap tables.

Britain and U.S. to Slow Down Evacuation of Trieste Troops

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain and the United States are reported to have decided to slow down evacuation of their troops from disputed Trieste while they try to resolve Italy's and Yugoslavia's bitter quarrel over the area.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles had an appointment to review this potentially explosive problem with President Eisenhower today in a personal report on the London Big Three foreign ministers' conference.

Diplomatic officials familiar with the Trieste situation said Eisenhower and Dulles both believed it would be best to move slowly in evacuating 7,000 American and British troops now garrisoning zone A.

Help Stop Tito

The idea was that a slowdown would lessen the chance that Marshal Tito will move troops into the Allied zone rather than let Italian forces take over in accordance with the U.S.-British proposal last week.

It would also give British, American and French diplomats time to arrange a conference with Yugoslavia and Italy.

Officials also emphasized any decision to delay the troop evacuation would in no way mean the two powers are backing down ruling it should do so.

Double Russia to Attend

Germany-Austria — Dulles believes there is only a slim chance the Russians would agree to attend a Big Four foreign ministers conference at Lugano, Switzerland, Nov. 9 to discuss peace settlements for Austria and Germany.

Israel-Jordan—Dulles takes an extremely grave view of Israel's alleged violations along its frontiers of United Nations decisions and also of the Israeli determination to make Jerusalem her capital.

Dulles, it was learned, personally informed Israel's ambassador, Abba Eban, that the United States will withhold some $60,000,000 in economic aid until the new Jewish state changes its attitude.

The secretary notified Eban of this move after Israel refused to stop trying to divert waters from the Jordan River to the Israeli frontier, despite a United Nations ruling it should do so.

Fiesta-Bound Plane Crashes In Rugged Mexican Canyon

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)—Rescue parties struggled through rugged Devil's Back canyon today to reach the wreckage through rugged Devil's Back canyon today to reach the wreckage of a government-owned plane that crashed Monday en route to the 17th annual Fiesta de Independencia, ending the Rio Grande's Falcon dam.

Lack of roads defied knowledge of how many persons were aboard the 12-seater plane added to the urgency of the search.

Estimates ranged from the official figure of 14, believed to have been on the two-engine plane to 20 or more. Others on the official passenger list of 14 turned up elsewhere later, but officials feared others may have been aboard without listing their names.

The Civil Air Patrol more than a score assigned to take reporters, officials and entertainers to the dam ceremonies, highlighted by the meeting of President Eisenhower and Mexican President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines.

No Sign of Life

The plane smashed into the side of the canyon, only about 15 miles from Monterrey airport. Search planes reported seeing no sign of life around the wreckage.

Col. Rodolfo Acosta said several of Mexico's top newspaper men, including Carlos Violante, a diplomatic reporter for Mexico City's $3 Universal; Carlos Septien Garcia, editor of University weekly supplent, and two newsreel camera men, were aboard the plane.

Also missing and believed to have been aboard were a group of dancers from the government's Fine Arts Institute. They had been scheduled to give an exhibition of traditional Mexican dances during the Eisenhower-Ruiz Cortines meeting.

Shoot-Up Aboard

Officials at Monterrey airport said "about" 20 persons boarded the plane here. It took off.

The confusion over the number of persons aboard arose from the efforts of the government-owned Alfin passengers, who had arrived here earlier on a special train from Mexico City, to take seats assigned to them in the planes.

Among the Alfin group, many groups of friends had climbed aboard the planes and piled all the seats and forcing others assigned to the craft to board another. Some planes went out fully loaded, others only half full.

At Falcon, 90 miles away, the plane was not missed until officials began checking why some of the dancers failed to appear. The wreckage was not located until almost 10 hours after the take-off.

Police Say Balcombe Proposed Marriage to Miss Carrier

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Balcombe, 24-year-old married army officer charged with murdering Marie Anne Carrier, 22, proposed marriage to her a few months ago, police said here today.

Balcombe, accused of stabbing the 22-year-old sergeant to death and tossing her nude body into a ditch, appeared briefly in jail for months the fact that he was married to a girl in London, Ont., and the father of two children, police said.

They added that when "pressure" forced him to reveal it to Miss Carrier, she refused to marry her after he divorced his wife.

In Quebec City, Lt.-Col. Leon Lambert, deputy-director of the Quebec Provincial Police, said Miss Carrier had refused the proposal but he divorce his wife and marry her.

Col. Lambert said Miss Carrier was trying to "get rid" of Balcombe.

"Miss Carrier had recently found out that Balcombe was married and a father and wanted to give him up but the second Wednesday he had insisted he was going to take divorce proceedings," Col. Lambert said.

The Quebec police official said he is personally directing an investigation into the motives for the crime. Several members of provincial police have been called in to investigate because the couple was seen there Wednesday, he said.

Soon as Trail

Col. Lambert said Miss Carrier left her Iberville, Que., home Wednesday evening telling her parents she was going to the cinema.

"That evening, he continued, Balcombe left Valcartier camp for Montreal, in a car, and returned to leave.

Police found out about the connection with Miss Carrier and Balcombe the next day, through Lt.-Col. Gordon Ross, commanding officer of the reserve unit of which Miss Carrier was a member.

Col. Lambert disclosed he informed Ontario police not to make any arrests in a case involving Carrier's body was properly identified.

Saturday Col. Ross drove from Quebec to Carrier's brothers to Cornwall where identification was made. Balcombe's arrest followed.

Wife Didn't Know

Divorce was never discussed between Balcombe and his 22-year-old wife, Jean, police said in Toronto. She and her two children by Miss Carrier was starching for Balcombe's court appearance.

Police said she thought the apartment was for them after their marriage, but visited a Montreal lawyer for Balcombe's wife and children in Montreal. Balcombe and her parents' home in the London suburb of Komoka was a spot she knew nothing of the affair.

Balcombe, a slim dark-haired man, appeared calm and relaxed in Jean's parents' home Sunday night when charged Monday with the knife-slaying.

Meanwhile, police in the Iroquois district, about 50 miles east of Cornwall, searched today for the victim's clothing. She was nude when found by a farm boy last Thursday. A cheap ring was on her engagement finger.

Marie, a bank clerk nearly six feet tall, was stabbed through the left eye and the stomach and twice in the chest.

MERCY PLANE WITH 3 ABOARD MISSING IN B.C.

On 125-Mile Flight Overdue Since Monday

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four RCAF Canso flying boats and a rescue boat are to comb inland seas in Howe sound today for a lost mercy plane.

They take over at dawn from a fleet of small flatboats that searched dark, rain-swept waters Monday night for a missing single-engined De Havilland Beaver with pilot, nurse and stretcher case aboard.

It had been overdue here since Monday afternoon on a 125-mile flight from Bridge river, B.C.

Boats Alerted

On a theory that the Beaver, a seaplane, may have put down when the ragged Howe sound coast is ride out a storm raging when it vanished, all boats in the area were alerted to be on the lookout.

A fishboat fleet weathering in Horseshoe bay near here put out into the rain and darkness to sweep the 40-mile coastline of Howe sound with searchlights.

Ross Baker, president of Pacific Western Airlines, owner of the plane, said the aircraft was traced along its course over the tracks of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to the southern terminus at Squamish on Howe sound.

Mr. Baker identified the pilot as Bob Bennett, son of New Westminster and the nurse as Lucille Neumayer, Vancouver. B.C. The patient was known only as Mr. Neumayer.

"The weather was none too good," Mr.' Baker said. "We're hoping we'll hear from on Howe sound to ride it out."

No Radio Contact

He said weather conditions made it impossible to make radio contact with the plane, even if it were manned.

It was dispatched from Vancouver earlier Monday to Gun Lake, 30 miles northeast of Ashcroft, up the nurse and her patient. The flight was uneventful. There was no contact here.

Squamish, where the plane was last sighted, was named from a Pacific coast Indian word meaning "big wind."

The area is noted for rain and wind squalls. The terrain are snow-topped mountains and heavy timber. To the south, the sea and a hundred islands.

TV Is Blessing, It Gives Church More Radio Time

KITCHENER (CP)—A Roman Catholic bishop has described TV as a blessing today because "it makes more free time available for radio."

Bishop J. C. Cody of London, Ont., delegate to the third annual national convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada said:

"If it is possible for your organization to get television time now and learn to produce good programs, it will open wide the door for television programs in the future."

He said TV sets should be equipped with locks. The bishop said the sets which could be locked would prevent children from being exposed to many "injurious programs which emanate from the United States."

He praised some programs now being produced in Canada but said Canadians must exercise supreme vigilance to "guarantee the future development of TV in Canada."

Churchill Still Hopes For Meet Of Top Leaders

Evades Answering Rumors He May Fly to See Malenkov

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill revived again today his plan for an informal conference by the top leaders of the big powers.

He said his government has "not given up this thought" first advanced by him last May 11.

Churchill made his statement in the House of Commons which reassembled today after the summer recess.

He expressed the hope that Russia will accept the invitation of the Western powers to attend a Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Lugano, Switzerland, Nov. 9.

No Change in Outlook

The proposal for the Lugano meeting, Churchill said, "involves no changes in our outlook. Our view remains the friendly, honest and personal talks between the leading figures in the countries mainly involved might do good and could not easily do much harm."

Churchill received Opposition Leader Clement Attlee's statement at a Labor party conference that the time was ripe for a meeting, there is a limit to what one government can do in international matters. The 78-year-old prime minister told the House that was wise advice.

Churchill made his first appearance in Parliament since June 25, absence of six months, also expressed the hope the Russians would accept the invitation for the Lugano meeting.

Dodges Questions

Churchill dodged questions about reports he might fly to Moscow for talks with Premier Malenkov.

"I am afraid I shall be opening too wide doors if I attempt to confirm or deny everything that was carried in the papers," he said.

Churchill's remarks made clear he has not abandoned his proposal for high-level talks of world leaders.

He was said to have broached the subject to U.S. State Secretary Dulles during the Big Three foreign ministers meeting here last week. But Dulles was reported to be cold to the idea even though he did not close the door on the proposal.

Churchill, who will be 79 next month, made his first call for talks on the highest level last spring.

Arrangements for a meeting with President Eisenhower at Bermuda's Premier Laniel in Bermuda to prepare for such a meeting with Soviet Premier. Malenkov were postponed after Dulles flew an F-O-L Mutang fighter-bomber to North Korea Monday and deserted to the Communists.

Pope Pius Urges Nations Consider Outlawing War

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope has urged that nations consider outlawing "ABC war"—war of atomic bombs, biology and chemistry.

The Pope put his plea in the form of a question to some 400 delegates from more than a score of nations to at international congress of army medicine. He received them in audience Monday. His speech was released today by the Vatican press office.

"Is it not possible," the Pope asked, "to proscribe and effectively eliminate ABCwar by international accords?"

Science, said the Pope, is "certainly not good, if one has the permissive intent to use it to harm others, or unjustly cause them damage."

Certainly, he said, a forceful spirit and bravery, when duty demands advice.

"But," he added, "to wish to convince from recourse it is the school of grand virtues and a characteristic practice them, can be labelled as a crime and folly."

Death Accident Verdict of Jury

A verdict of accidental death was returned Monday evening by a coroner's jury which sat on the inquest looking into the death of Thomas Edgar Shore, 28, of Odessa, who was instantly killed Oct. 10th when his car crashed into the rear of a Smith Transport on No. 2 highway east of the city.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. G. S. Cronk with Assistant Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan conducting the investigation.

Eagland was killed in the early morning of Oct. 10th as his car slammed into the rear of a tractor trailer unit driven by Thomas Cormack of Montreal. The truck had passed up at the Smith Transport depot and had just turned onto the eastbound lane of the highway when the accident occurred.

Witnesses called at the inquest included Dr. A. C. R. McGonigle who said that England had suffered severe skull, face, chest and abdomen injuries and one of the injuries to the skull and chest would have been sufficient to cause death, he said.

Other witnesses called were Roy Peacock, photographer, Provincial Constable Harry MacKenzie and Thomas Cormack, driver of the Smith transport.

Members of the coroner's jury were Enos Boyd, chairman, James Coughlin, Harold Meagher, John Mitchell and Monte Barlow.

Two Men in Stolen Car Make Good Escape After 85 Mile an Hour Chase

Leading city police in an 85-mile-per-hour chase out of the city and along the 2nd concession of Thurlow township, two men in a stolen car made good their escape early today after their car skidded off the road and into the ditch near the coal chutes. The two men disappeared in the darkness into a nearby woodlot.

Constables DeMille and Reddick spotted the car as it went through a red light on Pinnacle street but when they went to check the driver he sped away up the street, turned east on Station street and raced out of the city along the railway tracks.

Provincial Police joined forces with city officers in searching the vicinity, where the two men disappeared but they had made good their escape in the darkness.

Police were unaware at the time of the chase that the car was stolen but a check at the police station revealed the vehicle had have been stolen Monday evening in Prescott.

Believe Woman Had Been Buried Over a Century

The blade of a bulldozer, moving sod in a gravel pit on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve 15 miles east of here has determined the grave of an Indian woman believed to have been buried for over a century.

The bones were later examined by Dr. C. E. Lee, archeologist at Queen's University who said they were of an Indian woman of between 65 and 70 years of age and had been buried anywhere from 100 to 150 years. Dr. Lee determined the bones were Indian because of a special shape of leg bones.

The century-old grave was uncovered by Special Constable Gordon Brant of the Indian Reserve who was operating a bulldozer in a reservation gravel pit.

At first it was believed the skeleton may have been buried within the last ten years, but about a decade ago there had been extensive operations at the gravel pit. However with the report of Dr. Hay that the bones are over a century old it is believed that earth moving operations ten years ago had buried the grave deeper. When found the bones were covered by about seven feet of earth.

Whether or not the reservation gravel pit is an ancient Indian burial ground has not been determined but only one skeleton was uncovered by the bulldozer blade.

Provincial police at Belleville were notified and Constable A. MacLeod took the bones to Kingston for examination by Queen's University expert Dr. Hay.

Should Abandon United Nations Says Beaverbrook

TORONTO (CP)—Lord Beaverbrook, owner of a chain of British newspapers, said on Monday United Nations should be abandoned.

The Canadian-born member of Prime Minister Churchill's wartime government said in an interview that the foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States should be kept at home and "not allowed to run the domestic affairs of foreigners should be stopped."

He said Italy was armed by the United States and Yugoslavia by Britain and added:

"Now they are ready and they have armed all of us. Next the United States and Great Britain will join together to arm the Germans. When that operation is over we will have something to take your minds off the antiquated seaport of Trieste."

Free Figure Skating Time Given Children

Free skating will again be available for children at Memorial Arena this winter it was decided at a meeting of the Belleville Recreation Commission. Alderman McNevin and Tice made the motion. The commission will reimburse the arena commission to the extent of $100.

Alderman Tice and Mrs. W. Gander also moved that figure skating time and instruction be provided to city residents for a period of ten weeks starting the second week in December. These periods will occur on Sunday afternoons as in the past.

Under general business the Commission moved that a letter of sympathy be sent to Mrs. Harvey Beatti; that only the fire hall rink would be constructed this year and that the matter be left in the amount of $1,572.65 be paid.

It also heard a report on the "Golden Age Club" from Director Lloyd Doran.

To Confiscate Land Owned By Mau Mau Chiefs

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—The fight against terrorism in Hill cave carefree colony entered its second year today with the government announcing new measures to curb activities against the anti-white Mau Mau movement.

Governor Sir Evelyn Baring told the colony's legislative council that all land owned by past and present Mau Mau leaders will be confiscated, and terrorist detainees will be banished from the colony forever.

The governor said the seized land would be used for clinics, schools and agricultural experiments. He said entry of Kikuyu tribesmen — among whom the Great majority of religious anti-white African areas would be controlled by the government.

The government also would push development of agriculture and industry, which he admitted has lagged down the years. The Mau Mau nightmare descended on the colony.

Baring said Kikuyus who went back to preserves would not be allowed to return to European settled areas, and Kikuyu independent schools had been banned. He said will not "in any circumstances" be reopened.

The governor declared "the military campaign (against the Mau Mau) will be pressed to conclusion."

In the view of Gen. Sir George Erskine, British East African commander, this is likely "to go on for a long time yet."

Boards Discuss Need of Land For School Purposes

Consideration of school sites in plans of any subdivision to be developed was urged on the planning and housing committee by members of the public school board Saturday at a meeting of the two bodies held to discuss future needs of land for school purposes.

Special consideration was given to land in Sidney and Thurlow townships where the expected expansion would take place.

Members of the school board pointed out that the meeting was a step in the right direction and urged Alderman Art Kenyon and his committee to give the matter very serious consideration. By taking this forward school sites into consideration land could be purchased by the corporation at a reasonable cost representing a tremendous saving to the municipality.

The board also pointed out that the area surrounding the boundaries of the city should be zoned so that future growth could be realized as to where commercial, industrial and residential development would take place. In this way school areas could be secured before individuals are developed. Any new schools in annexed areas must not be over ¼ mile from existing schools.

Some Confusion In Nature, Weight Of Fish Caught

There seems to be some confusion about the nature and the weight of the eighty-pound sunfish black bass caught by 20-year-old Elvis Marcelle off the rock crusher dock at Point Anne last Wednesday.

Some fishermen claim that the fish was a largemouth black bass, while certain Bellville fishermen claim that the fish is not a bass at all but a "sheepshead" a species of fish that has invaded Bay of Quinte waters in recent years.

The fish when first caught weighed eight pounds twelve ounces on a spring scale by Mrs. Simmons of Point Anne. The weighing was witnessed by Miss Gertrude Simmons, Mrs. Simmons' daughter.

Later, at the request of a newspaper reporter, the fish was weighed at a Point Anne grocery store and on the store's scales, according to Guy Fraser, who was present at the time, the fish weighed four pounds five ounces "including the paper it was wrapped in."

Fred MacDonald, local game warden, was presented with the fish's head on Saturday morning. He states that the fish, in his opinion, was a largemouth black bass, and that he understood the weight to be four pounds five ounces.

The remainder of the fish was eaten by the Marcelle on Friday.

Every day people find out that all investors that sound good are not sound investments.

Tyendinaga Reserve Indians Want Liquor Laws Changed

Indians on the Tyendinaga reserve had two major questions put to them by a select Ontario legislature committee, chaired by the Honorable W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, on Monday in the Band Council House.

The committee, which has been touring the province's Indian reserves since May, is interested in finding out the Indian's feeling concerning drinking and voting. The Indian Act of 1951 has given provincial governments the right to award the aforementioned privileges to the Indians.

Mr. Goodfellow's committee will report at the next meeting of the Legislature. Council member Gerald Brant, pointed out to the committee, that Indians get beer and whiskey when they want it anyway, it is just a matter of making it legal.

Able to Get Liquor

Gordon Brant, constable on the reserve, stated that Indians can now be able to get liquor in the past and any time they need it. He said that although drink is available to them the prices they now have to pay are completely out of proportion to L.C.B.O. rates. Mr. Brant said that bootleg prices are $4 per bottle of beer and $10 for a 40-cent bottle of wine and $7 for a 26-ounce bottle of liquor put out by the L.C.B.O.

In his seven years as constable on the reserve, Brant stated that no man has noted that when these rates are charged the families of the purchasers must go without other things. Mr. Brant said that at one time a hotel served beer to Indians for two years contrary to the Indian Act.

Band Chief Melville Hill observed liquor being sold illegally into the Air Force station on reserve property right under the noses of the Indians. "This also is against the law," Chief Hill said, "as the act provides no liquor can be brought onto the reserve."

Shewed Little Interest

On the question of the vote, the Indians showed little interest. One of the council members told the band if they got a vote, the provincial government might be more interested in helping Indians in the future years. For the most part, the band had little to say regarding this matter. At the present time the only Indians permitted to vote are those who served in the Great Wars.

The committee also visited one of the two schools in the reserve. Individual members visited with the students in one room which housed grades one to eight. The Honorable Mr. Goodfellow spoke briefly to the students telling them it was the purpose of his committee to help Indians.

Before going to the reserve, the committee members had lunch in the Hotel Quinte. They were escorted through the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association following the meal. After leaving the reserve the committee went on to Kingston where they will meet with another group of Indians as the committee winds up its six months' tour.

Other members of the committee included Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., Haistings East; John Pringle, M.P.P., Renfrew South-Addington; Harry Nixon, M.P.P., Brant County; J. P. Johnston, M.P.P., Bruce County; Brian Cathcart, M.P.P., Hamilton West; J. A. Fullerton, M.P.P., Algoma; Mr. Wm. G. Noden, M.P.P., Rainy River.

Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., for Hastings West was host to the committee during its stay in the city. He also attended the meeting on the reserve.

Speaker Stresses Ill Effect Of High Tariff Walls

CHICAGO (CP)—The ill effect of high tariff walls upon the closely-linked economies and mutual prosperity of Canada and United States was stressed here today by W. A. MacDonald, president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

More than 2,000 delegates attending the 66th annual meeting of the American Institute of Accountants, he appealed for a closer study of Canadian and American legal and social characteristics on the basis of the related problems of free trade.

He said peoples of the U. S. and Canada could not afford to be lulled into false tariff doors were opened and closed on both sides of the border under pressure of short-sighted and vocal minorities.

Mr. MacDonald said that while outnumbered 10 to one, Canada's population is growing faster than that of the United States.

Between 1946 and 1958, Canada's population had increased 17.4 per cent compared with 11 per cent in the U. S.

Cities Wage Disparity

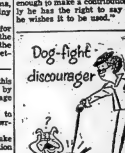
However, in national income per capita, the average American earns nearly $3 for every $2 earned by a Canadian. He said this was a fact often overlooked by labor leaders recommending wage parity with the U. S.

He said Canada was ready to turn the first sod of the St. Lawrence seaway.

"Our plans are complete. Make no mistake about Canada's position on that question."

Despite the fact that there were opponents to the seaway plan, neither country could fail to benefit from the low-cost access to foreign trade.

The hopeful eyes of every civilized country are centred on Canada and the United States", he said. "It is for us to work for peace and as for moral support from the example of a common front."



Community Chest Has 36 Per Cent Of Objective

An announcement from the Community Chest office today reveals that 36% of this year's objective of $38,000 has been realized to date, in a total of 1,729 donations.

A breakdown of the figures indicates that the house-to-house canvass is leading with $3,225 from 1,-208 contributors. The business division has obtained $2,429 from 182 organizations with the special names division showing $2,950 from 43 persons and organizations. The professional division has collected $1,293 from 129 persons and the industrial division has totalled $1,-230 through gifts from seven companies.

Results of this year's Community Chest show that the citizens of Belleville accept the principle of the united fund raising. To date there have been only 22 earmarked contributions. Several years ago the number of such donations was far greater.

The principle of earmarking is that if a contributor wishes his donation to go to a specific agency or agencies in the Chest, he may so signify at the time he makes his donation. He is assured then that his gift will go directly to the agency for which it is intended. However as this year's figures indicate only a small number of persons now continue this practice which is acceptable to both the contributor and the Community Chest. As one Chest official declared "it is a good system if enough to make a contribution sure-ly he has the right to say where he wishes it to be used."

We know one bellicose dog who won't welcome the latest thing in aluminum: an electric dog-proof. Next time Towser rushes into battle, you can nonchalantly produce this two-foot aluminum rod and apply it to the handiest part of the dog's anatomy. The resulting shock is quite harmless, but the yap a foe can produce cures the puppiest of even the toughest tyke.

Speaking of electricity, Canadians are take pride that the largest stranded electrical cable ever made for an overhead transmission line all of 1,000 feet long by Akan's Shawinigan Falls plant to the West Coast, to carry power to our new smelter now a-building at Kitimat, Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. A NEW ZARUBIN?

A new Russian ambassador has been appointed to Canada. He is the first Russian ambassador to Canada since George Zarubin was asked to leave because he violated his diplomatic trust be heading a spy ring that was engaged in passing secret information to the Kremlin.

George] was not recalled in disgrace. He was welcomed home.

His bosses, to punish him for his flagrant misconduct, appointed him Russian ambassador to Great Britain—a step that could be considered a promotion in some circles. Great Britain has had her difficulties in plugging leaks in her security system. In fact the most brilliant atomic physicists in the British Isles was sentenced to prison for passing secret atomic information on to the Russians. Two more young men, engaged in secret work, became permanent fixtures while visiting Europe and certain less cautious elements have hinted that they might have passed information to the Soviets on to Russia. The writer himself themselves as well as their secrets on to Russia. The writer of these notes appeared under similar circumstances this summer and again speculation would tend to incriminate the Kremlin.

However the mission of his diplomatic post in Great Britain was apparently no bar to the success of Georgi Zarubin because he is at present Russian ambassador to the United States. Communist infiltration into all levels of United States government and secret projects is too well known to repeat here.

So it is not necessarily true that Georgi Zarubin succeeded by conspiracy, but it is obvious that he has been intimately associated with it and his career has not suffered.

The only strain created by Zarubin to date has been a diplomatic standoff between Canada and Russia. Russia has apparently forgiven Canadian indignation at Zarubin's being sent to Canada as ambassador and accepted the position that has been open for to these past six years.

Who the man is is not important. Of the succession of diplomats sent out from Russia to maintain a worldwide system of espionage, the names and faces of the links in the chain do not matter greatly. But Canada is an important country with a record in atomic research and jet aviation that is impressive. It is conceivable that some of the information gleaned from work in the past six years is still secret. It would be unthinkable that Russia's growing importance should attract a Russian ambassador whose talent for diplomacy is patterned on the career of the depraved Zarubin. Canada's importance is growing ahead, but in the case of Russian ambassadors Canada's admonition cannot but be tinged with a certain degree of suspicion. It might be a good thing if Canada kept its ear to the ground, but past experience proves that it might be wise.

PROPHETS MAY BE WRONG AGAIN

"Saturday Night" Toronto weekly publication, carries a feature reviewing the contents of an issue two decades ago. Recently one of the items in this review read as follows:

"In the financial section was a questioning headline, 'Depression Nears End?' and beneath it was a big-head telling that 'Recent Developments May Signify Concluding Stages of Business Slump—Faith Maintained in Britain.' We didn't bother to read the article in knowing that what it said was probably quite wrong, but we cite it here as one of the early examples of the 'Just around the corner there's a rainbow in the sky' type of journalism that flourished during the depression like the apple-sellers and the soup kitchens."

Any newspaperman who during the depression years was old enough to have some responsibility for what was printed took a job—will vividly recall these "rainbow around the corner" stories. Sometimes they were written with tongue in cheek; more often, though, they were based on optimistic statements from business leaders, the location of whose tongues the reporter was unable to discover.

However, the important point is that these stories were printed "Saturday Night" points out, faulty predictions of what the future held. In 1931 the depression was certainly not near its end.

Today we are frequently reading stories which predict, though not so positively, the conclusion of another and more important episode in man's history, civilization as we know it.

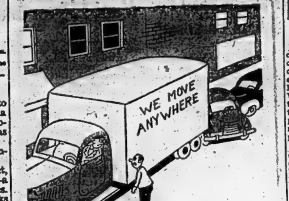
The review in "Saturday Night" calling attention to the lack of accuracy displayed by the "rainbow around the corner" prophets of the depression is in hope that the "doom over the hill" prophets of the fifties may be equally as far from the truth.

MODERN TOTEM POLES

It is somewhat disillusioning to read that among the products of Canada's rapidly expanding factories are totem poles.

The commercial market is getting a vastly superior product than that turned out by the Indians of the Pacific Coast. The factory-made totem pole is made with labor-saving electric saws and wood preservatives, the better to stand the ravages of time. They will thus be able to face the B.C. climate, which is sometimes rather moist. The original totem poles will be confined indoors, where they may be inspected if there are any tourists so foolish as to insist on authenticity and not to recognize the true dignity of totem poles mass-produced by the white man over the primitive efforts of the Indian's craft.

About the only thing the totem pole manufacturers do not seem to have thought of is a reason why anybody should be interested in a hunk of wood mangled by a power saw in an air-conditioned factory in a great city.



But perhaps the Montreal customers know the difference. And maybe there will be some who will maintain that what tourists do not know will not hurt them.

JUST FOLKS

HE REMEMBERED

His ways were friendly. Proud And well he knew what it can was be,	mean
But met with pride, severe and cold.	To think you face despair alone.
Helpful always he tried to be,	He well remembered down the years
To rich or poor or young or old.	How often he had been afraid,
Life had not always been serene.	The bitterness of doubts and fears,
He had the lash of hardship known.	And all in need he tried to aid.

The Belleville Collegiate senior football team defeated the Peterborough Collegiate senior team in that city on Saturday, the score being 7 to 6. The local team completely outplayed their rivals in every respect, never being headed. The back field led by Capt. Jimmie Follwell excelled themselves both defensively and offensively and the B.C.I. line of scrimmage played errorless football, tackling and completing end runs in grand style all during the contest. The game saw the return of Mason (Tarzan) Rigby to the Belleville line up and the stellar middle winger of last year. Weaver proved the best alternate and Ross Hall, Stokie, one of the features of the game was the deadly tackling of the B.C.I. backfield. It repeatedly the united efforts of Jopling and Rigby which laid the Peterborough team was minus the services of Ross Hall, Stokie, Westbye, who owing to illness witnessed the game from the side lines. Misses Marsh, Glover and Beatty proved to be the lucky players used by coach "Red" Logan. The following composed the Belleville Collegiate team: Cook, Follwell, Reynolds, Hilton, Ostrom, Cole, Kelford, McGinnes, Mason, Bird, Beatty, Temple and McFarlane. Substitutes—Johnson, Saunders, Weaver, McClain and Andrews. Referee, Richardson, of Peterborough; linesman, Hutchison of Belleville; head linesman, Hickey of Peterborough.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

In a small country town through which I pass regularly and always stop, the hardware dealer is a character. He doesn't pay a cent. A year ago, his story was complicated enough. Now, after twenty more years, the old store was something out of Dickens: wood-cut, an etching. Dark, cluttered, jammed so with goods that its ceiling had to be used on which to suspend a mass of merchandise that couldn't find space on the floor and walls. It was a fifth wall.

Out back, through a wide door, was a large shed, the length of the property, dim and dark, too, but crammed with barrels and crates and heaps of the heavy hardware of the trade. It was a delight to pick your way about amid the bins and the incredible muddle. My friend the dealer knew where every last item was, down to a packet of rivets or a can open-ing. But customers, if they tried, merely came upon them, after a long and interesting search.

The new store looks like a small supermarket. It is all windows and display cases. It is bright and almost glassy. Everything is visible, and priced, and in its accordance with the best principles of merchandising. Efficient but by the hardware association, and set forth in their illustrated catalogues. Even the long shed out back has been rebuilt into an efficient modern storage warehouse, with room for everything on its proper shelf or proper bin.

"I don't enjoy it," I confessed to my friend the hardware man.

"Aw, you're just an archaeolo-gist," he replied, "I'm doing thirty per cent more business in this setup than I was in the old. It's exactly the same community, the very same people, practically the same customers."

"How do you explain that?" I asked.

"I have heard of impulse buying for years," said the hardware man. "But now I can see it in operation. In the old set up, you came in and bought what you wanted and nothing else, because you couldn't see anything else to buy. Now, with the beautiful layout, everything is displayed in the same idiom as the advertisements in the papers and magazines. The increase in my business is due to the fact that all my old customers come in and buy what they came for, plus some thing else. Impulse buying."

How are we poor old customers going to control the impulse? Billions are bet that we can't.

The Supreme Season
(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Every season of the Canadian year can find its panegyrists. The May succeeds the winter, the glory of the harsh contrast of winter's colors, the tempestuous coming of the spring—all have their attraction. But to us at least the supreme season of the year is the fall; with its clear skies and sharp-etched outlines, its bracing air and unmistakable smell, its clear-ring-ing sounds and its glory of color, which seems to fill the seasons in a riot of beauty.

French-Americans

(France Actualle)

Anyone who has studied American history knows that the King of France once owned two-thirds of the North American continent (excluding Mexico) from the Rio Grande to the Arctic Ocean. What is perhaps less familiar is the fact that there are today in the United States about 4,000,000 people of French ancestry—the almost identical number as the population of present-day France.

In numbers this group is surpassed in the state of Anglo-Saxon, Italian, or German descent; but its influence and impact on life in the United States has been extensive, as witness the activities of a particularly forceful gentleman by the name of Paul Revere.

There is scarcely any part of the United States that is without a trace of French heritage. The names of Detroit, Duluth, St. Paul, St. Louis, Dubuque attest to the sweeping nature of French exploration, settlement and development. Today, however, the principal centres of French population are found in the following four areas—New England, New York, Louisiana, and California.

The reasons behind the immigration of French people to the United States are much the same as for other Europeans, namely, the search for work. Immigration is not marked by the religious strife which accompanied the flow from most other countries.

For example, in the decade between 1851 and 1860, 45,500 Frenchmen came to Canada, a similar 10-year period 100 years later—from 1951 to 1960—some 50,000 French immigrants was almost the same.

The most numerous French group in the U.S., that of the New England area, is made up of French immigrants direct from France, but it is prosperity. Besides, a community of French-Canadian origin. The earliest settlers in Louisiana. This group, the same people who continued to farm the St. Lawrence valley, early group, but for the most part completely Anglicized, and their French origin is revealed only in their family names.

By far the largest group of French-Canadians in New England is found in the state of Maine. U.S. after the Civil War, and continued to flow in considerably until about 1925. This group, by contrast, has preserved its identity to a great extent chiefly through the institutions of the Roman Catholic Church.

After New England, the largest centre of French influence on the east coast is New York City. The French population in Gotham numbers some 40,000, whose members are mostly well educated up and down the island of Manhattan.

Elsewhere on the east coast one finds considerable settlements of the Huguenots, most of whom came to this country a little after the turn of the century. Moving farther west we find more than 250,000 French-Americans in Michigan, 200,000 in Illinois, and 20 to 40,000 in Wisconsin, Indiana, and Missouri. Even the plains of Nevada, Idaho and Utah have a substantial French population.

California has always been a mecca for Frenchmen. 300,000 Californians claim French origin, 20,000 of them in San Francisco alone. Names like Los Angeles Vignes (which, prophetically, means "Vineyard"), placed in the Los Angeles area, are a constant reminder of the first gold in 1847. The old mining camps of California still bear names in such names as French Town, French Creek, French Mill, and French Corral.

Today in California the French presence is felt in the kitchens of the chefs, who have succeeded in making San Francisco the gastronomic capital of the U.S. Other Californians of French descent are prominent in the fields of commerce and retailing. Particularly well-known are the French laundry and dry cleaning establishments, which originated with groups of French specialists who washed gold particles out of the sand canvases used in placer mining.

To most Americans the area in the United States most closely identified with France is Louisiana and its chief city, New Orleans. The French population in the area was the explorer La Salle, followed by others. Today the French element has been shortened to "cajun". It is estimated that there are about 400,000.

There are even some 50,000 Negroes who speak a kind of French "patois," inherited from their slave ancestors, who served French masters. New Orleans is justly famous for its French descendants, who are responsible for much of the city's charm and historic heritage. Two world renowned universities of the city—Tulane and Loyola—were founded by Frenchmen.

Farmer Giles' Awful Day

(By Sirix

In the London Spectator)

On a bright day, about 13 years ago an aircraft, of a type familiar to the local people, flew low over a new and unfrequented valley in the Chilterns.

As it passed it seemed to drop something; one version says that the object was a bomb, although had been lifted off a rick by one of those miniature whirlwinds which sometimes get in remote places.

The suspected landing of a parachutist was immediately reported, and Canadian troops from Henley Barracks and the Royal Air Force station at Benson, a nearby lane they found an airman who spoke perfectly adequate English, but did not get in touch with an AA unit in Wales) but who gave a false name and address which was quickly proved to be false.

Told to come clean, he did. He said he was a German spy; he had been dropped with a parachute (a detailed and imaginative description of whom was soon being circulated in the Home Guard and Home Guard headquarters throughout the country) with strict orders to report to a certain farmer,—call him Giles—who owned the old cottage in the Oxfordshire.

On this startling intelligence being flashed to the Canadian headquarters at Shorncote, a strong force of Canadians repaired at top speed to the farm of Mr. Giles, surrounded it, and, to the great fortunate farmer, against whom no charge could be framed, arrested for him, had a grudge,—

When the news of this triumph for our counter-espionage system reached HQ. Home Forces, the then C.-in-C., Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, sprang into a car, headed for Oxfordshire and in the course of a personal interrogating farmer Giles in idiomatic German . . .

Unfortunately, the Canadian Army soon ceased to be interested in the matter, particularly by the parable of Dives and Lazarus and the fact that there seemed a chance of heart and during the remaining forty years of his life to serve rabbits to be served.

Just before his thirty-sixth birthday he wrote the following: "My next birthday is the keynote of my life. By this time I expect to see that I have in any way 'taken up lived it.

RELIGION

Religion is the greatest solace bequeathed to mankind. Regardless of creed, race and love of freedom—and be discovered it in the churches that forbid the country from ocean to ocean! No nation ever can long be long endure if it wipes religion from its people —or even tries to do so. Religion is indestructible. It is planted in the human heart at birth. No tyrant or dictator can kill it. For it is encased in a fortress stronger than any ever created by man!

How confident was the faith of David, as expressed in the 23rd Psalm! Here he said: "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Or, as we say, "Amen."

Every day of our lives we need secret guidance, and we get that guidance from God. We pray to God over and over again. We are feeble creatures by ourselves. But with a higher authority controlling our lives, we can say, with David, "My cup runneth over."

Our 'Red' Chamber
("T.D.F.", in Ottawa Citizen)

And another thing about Senate reform that Uncle Louis should keep in mind when he gets around to it: Sooner or later, Washington's Senator McCarthy will find out that it's known as the "Red" Chamber, and let go with a blast about Canada operating a nest of Commies.

Public Health Talks

BODY TEMPERATURE AND MACHINE QUICKERET

My advice to parents, grandparents, uncles, aunts, big brothers, big sisters or other guardians of children is now and long has been:

1. Let 'em play outdoors in the cold in the damp and rain as they like.

2. Let 'em wear or leave off hats, caps, their overshoes, coats, wraps, the heavy underwear, shoes and stockings in such theif own ideas of comfort—that is, if they are sufficiently little idiots.

3. Do not keep in the house pure phenol (carbolic acid), barbiturate or other sleeping tablets, strychnine tablets, arsenic as the wicked chocolate or sugar coated pills, belladonna and strychnine pills or tablets), a pistol or a clinical thermometer.

A good many one-child or, by some miscalculation, two-child parents will raise eyebrows if not Cain about junking the clinical thermometer. We know this little measuring stick how could one tell whether a child is really ill or staging a pretense?

"Our children dress as they please without let or hindrance and without worry on our part," one mother says. "The only time the fever thermometer is used at our house is when we want to tell whether the kids are working up or to see whether one of them needs to be isolated for 24 hours."

That's more than I would do by using a thermometer, but maybe it is one of the tricks in the child specialist racket that I have not learned.

Like the gadgetry which has replaced skill in the medical practice — you wiseacre customers know what I mean—the basal metabolism machine, the electrocardiograph and other equipment that enables the trick specialists to nick you $67.50 for a ten dollar examination — the clinical thermometer and a bottle of aspirin should have a revival of motherly good sense in the American home.

Mind you, now, I do not mean to flout the proper use of these instruments of precision, for instance the measurement of the metabolism rate in the physician's laboratory, or—the recording of temperature by a nurse under a person under the physician's instructions. But deliver us from the neighborhood busybody with her little glass stick and from the trick specialist who gives you an elephant quackery by inquiring about the child's temperature before he advises about treatment.

Traffic Toll Around World

(Edmonton Journal)

World's City Traffic is a review published annually by the Copenhagen police department, which provides interesting comparisons of accidents and traffic conditions in the larger cities of the world. The latest edition, which covers the years down to 1951, has just arrived in Canada. It shows clearly that the automobile is continuing its conquering career around the globe, leaving headaches and heartbreak in its wake.

Apparently the years between 1949 and 1951 saw a steady increase in the number of motor cars in use all over the world. For the cities covered by the report the average number of vehicles per 1,000 inhabitants rose from 137.8 in 1949 to 134.04 in 1951. As was to be expected, New York led all cities in the total number of motor vehicles, with 1,412,720 in 1951. But in the number of vehicles to population it is far surpassed by Detroit, which had the most incredible figure of 532 per 1,000 persons. Los Angeles is next with 367 vehicles per 1,000, while third place is held, surprisingly, by Cairo with 305.

In Europe the highest concentration of automobiles is in Turin, Italy, with 159 per 1,000, while Marseilles is next with 140; oddly enough, supposedly poverty-stricken countries like France and Italy are in this respect far ahead of more prosperous nations like Belgium, Switzerland and Sweden. Incidentally, because of the registration system, the figures for London are not available; but Asia motor cars most: abound at Manila, with its strong American influence, where there are 93 per 1,000.

However there appears to be no close correlation between the number of automobiles and the danger of death in an automobile accident. The highest death rate in the world is not New York or Detroit but Bangkok, Siam, where which had only 188 motor vehicles per 1,000 inhabitants in 1951, but where the run up the appalling score of 22.41 persons per 100,000 killed by motor accidents. Next come Johannesburg, South Africa, with 19.42 and Rio de Janeiro with 17.44. Montreal's 6.36.

It may be of course, that traffic in the work is farther advanced on this continent; and that could be an unfortunate thing.

When it comes to dangerous driving, at any rate, figures suggest that Asia and Africa are in the lead. The highest ratio of fatal accidents to automobiles is found in Bombay, where 562.22 persons were killed in traffic for every 100,000 registered vehicles. Close behind were Cairo with 333.72 and Istanbul with 327.27. The most strictly overcrowded Detroit had only 23.36.

Perhaps the most significant fact that Asiatic drivers, unused to machinery, are the world's worst in the matter of the accelerator, and leave the rest to Allah.

Fortunately, Europe is not yet in the hands of the Danish authorities list, otherwise the drivers of Bombay might have some competition.

'Develop Your Potentialities' Topic at BPW Dinner Meeting

Climaxing Business Women's Week, the Business and Professional Women's club of Belleville and district held a dinner meeting Friday last at the Hotel Quinte with guests from Toronto, Kingston, Renfrew and Watertown, N.Y. President Isabel Wallbridge chaired the meeting.

A motion of a generous donation being made to the Community Aid Society during this important week was whole-heartedly supported.

Miss Evelyn Coulter, who had donated a hand-made cut-work tablecloth and serviettes for a club venture received the warmest thanks from the entire club.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Ethel Armstrong Collins, vice-president of Ontario clubs, who was introduced by Mrs. Ben Doolittle. A graduate from the Toronto Western Hospital, Mrs. Collins has been associated with the Radium Institute of Toronto for many years. She has lived in both the United States and Mexico but still prefers her native Canada. Her topic was "The Spotlight is on You."

Following the humorous opening remarks, Mrs. Collins continued with "St." Augustine said, 'Men go abroad to admire the heights of mountains; the vast waters of the great sea; the motion of the stars, and pass themselves by'. Socrates gave the world a great sermon in two words, 'Know thyself'.

Great Potentialities

"Every human being has something that is unique. To search this out and make its discovery is an event of the utmost importance. It is up to each one to develop this quality, character-istic or whatever it is, and use it. You are much bigger than you think, with potentialities away beyond your imagining. We all use only a mere fraction of our mental capacity, because we are either too indolent or too afraid. Between the big things we can't do and the small things we won't do, the danger is that we will do nothing.

"Some persons go all through life, frustrated and bored, just using up days. The years roll over them and they ruin through the years. . . neither making any impression on the other. Today there is a common saying that 'those who say it can't be done . . . are usually interrupted by someone doing it.'

Believe In Yourself

"To believe in yourself and find your possibilities. Someone said this existence is what we find—life is what we create. It lies in our own hands whether our future holds high peaks of living or is flat and drab. Maybe you do feel rich in dreams and poor in definition, but remember that you are far more capable and far more creative than you think. If you will live right up to the limit of your ability, it is bound to increase, until one day you stand on the top level.

"Seriously, it is only the adventurers, the pioneers of either land or thought, who have contributed anything worthwhile to the world. The complete conservative—and usually political—type gives nothing. He has stayed safe. If you want to try something, any dare or wealth it. If the world laughs at you, laugh right back at it. It is just as funny as you are. The kudos and the rewards go to those who dare to do what they want to do. Roosevelt had the right idea—only living is real fear itself. To make of yourself a useful figure in your community and in the world, any dams or wealth that you might acquire. It's your personality that counts in the end."

Miss Norma Arkles graciously extended the club's thanks to Mrs. Collins.

Miss Helen Solmes favored with two solo readings which were greatly appreciated.

Trenton Club

On Wednesday last at the Queensway, the newly formed Trenton club held its first dinner meeting with guests from Toronto, Cobourg and Belleville.

Mrs. Ben Doolittle, provincial president, welcomed the new club to the Canadian Federation and expressed her thanks to Dorothy Brown and the Belleville club for their help in the formation.

She then introduced Mrs. Maude Bayfay, past provincial president, who was the guest speaker of the evening. C.L.U. executive in the business world, Mrs. Bayfay is beloved by all who know her. She has formed or helped organize some 40 local clubs . . . some in Western Canada and others in Ontario. A native of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, she was a major during the Second World War, and was officer commanding Women's Division, City of Halifax.

Advantages Received

Mrs. Bayfay unfolded to the club the many advantages they had received in becoming part of a provincial, national and international organization with membership in twenty countries numbering some 347,000 women. With the advantages come a responsibility and duty to become a better citizen interested in community affairs, public affairs, all phases of business and professions. She advocated a stronghold of keeping the free world alive and to be constantly 'alert for democracy'.

The speaker received the club's thanks from Mrs. W. Bain.

The executive of the new Trenton club is president, Anne Johnson; vice-president, Rhoda London; recording-secretary, Marion Dickson; treasurer, Cornebell Allison; corresponding secretary, Eva Smith.

Weddings

NICHOLSON—HILES

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting on Friday, October 16, at 1:30 p.m., for a pretty autumn wedding when Joan Patricia Hiles, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hiles, became the bride of William Finley Nicholson, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nicholson of St. Andrews, Scotland. The Reverend Everett Jay officiated.

Choir boys rendered the wedding music, singing "O Perfect Love", accompanied by the church organist, Mr. John Croydon Withers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of nylon tulle over taffeta featuring a Chantilly lace jacket with peplum, and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. Her finger tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a small Juliet cap. She wore a double strand of pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Barbara Snell, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned attractively in yellow taffeta, with matching headdress, and carrying a half-cascade bouquet of yellow and colored roses.

Douglas Ross Tells Carmel Y.A.G. Of Work in Labrador

The October meeting of Carmel Young Adult Group was held at the church under the capable leadership of Iva Horton and Alice and Ruth Allison.

An impressive worship service was given with Alice Allison, Carman Dafoe and Stanley Geen taking part.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Douglas Ross, a theological student at Queen's University. During the past summer months, he was stationed at a mission at Rocky Knob, Labrador.

To-reach this iron-ore mining centre, one must travel by aeroplane hundreds of miles. Douglas showed colored pictures and told of his experiences in a most vivid and interesting manner.

All present greatly enjoyed the address.

It is indeed a pleasure to one and all to welcome Douglas back to the church of his boyhood years, and all extend best wishes for continued success in his life's work.

Sincere thanks were expressed to Douglas for his fine address by Stanley Geen.

Bounteous refreshments were served by the leaders and their assistants.

Holloway Street United Church Celebrates 80th Anniversary

A capacity congregation in the morning and a large congregation in the evening greeted their former minister, Rev. Chas. Perkins, of Woodstock, in the Holloway Street United Church, during services which mark the present minister of the church.

In his morning sermon, titled "When the Church comes alive," Mr. Perkins said, "only a spiritual church can function in the world today and our great need is the spirit, if not the dimension, of the early Church's Pentecost. The disciples went to Jerusalem to receive the spirit, expecting the end of the world, but they found the beginning of the new Christian church and era.

Today's Danger

Our danger today is that we worship at counters, instead of altars, we say prayers instead of praying, we attend church and forget God has come through prayer. Christ-centred fellowship is the only cure for insanity if religion is to come alive.

The minister concluded his inspiring sermon by saying, "the most solemn obligation of the church is to be the world. the body of Christ—His hands, His feet, His mind.

During the morning service, the senior choir sang "Lord of the Universe" as the Lord" and a quartet from he intermediate choir sang, "Guard us, our heavenly Father". The choirs were directed by the minister in music, Mr. Clifford Templer. In the evening the senior choir sang "Peace I leave with you" by Lorel and Mr. Alfred Hughes sang a baritone solo titled, "O Troubled Heart, be Still."

The Man of Galilee Needed

The anniversary preacher took for his evening subject "Do we moderns need the Man of Galilee?" and declared, "there never was an age when the world needed the Man of Galilee and His power more than it does today. We need His power to bring peace into our hearts and lives. We want to be free, but we are slaves to schedules. The world of science is a world of power—but power that it knows how to use. We must, in this age of science, seek out the directive—from God," said the minister. "We must become the moral masters of our fate and moral makers of our power through the mind, a new found source of control."

Victory Dinner

The Sunday School auditorium was filled to capacity on Monday night for the 80th anniversary victory dinner, with Mr. Lyle Twiddy, presiding over the program, which included a vocal solo by Miss Jacqueline Avery, titled "At the parting" and two solos by Mr. Alfred Hughes, titled "The Blind Ploughman" and "I Heard the Piper Playing."

Mr. Leslie Digby moved a vote of thanks to the ladies of the Women's Society for their excellent banquet and Lyle Twiddy duly suggested a letter of thanks be sent to Mr. Aubrey Coe and the Coca Cola Company for supplying complimentary cokes.

Thanks Tendered

Mr. Fred Wilson moved a hearty vote of thanks to the special fund canvassers — to official board — and those who had contributed to the fund and explained the purposes and objectives of the campaign.

Mr. Arnold Campbell, the chairman of the special fund committee announced that nearly $5,000 of the $8,000 objective had been reached in cash and pledges. Mr. Stanley Perkins, of Toronto, Rev. Sidney E. Larman, introduced the anniversary speaker, Rev. Charles Perkins, who gave a brief and interesting address and complimented the church on its excellent progress during recent years.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Young Women Became Dangerously Young For Her Ago

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Twice a week for six months, I went out with the same man, who is 32 while I am 20. Although he tried to get fresh with me on every date we had, I let it pass because I could always handle him.

One night he told me he loved me and, although I wanted very much to believe it, I pretended I didn't and laughed at him. He took me out twice after that, and each time he said again that he loved me. Then I didn't see him for several weeks until yesterday, when I happened to meet him on the street. He told me that the reason he hadn't been around was because he was going out with another girl who was treating him much better than I had and so he was through with me. Although I was very much hurt, I just laughed again, because I didn't want him to know it.

Do you think he meant it when he said he loved me and that he will come back to me, or what do you think?

H.L.

What do you think yourself? Do you really believe that a man could be in love with a girl and act as any such way as this?

Frankly, I can't imagine why you would want him to come back. It would seem to me that he has made it pretty clear that he was after, and if it wasn't perfectly clear to you, then you are dangerously innocent for your years.

I advise you to have nothing to do with the man, and to be more careful in future about those you pick for friends.

Does Religion "Rule Out Fun?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I would like to know why religion has to prevent us from doing any of the things we like to do? I am a teen-age girl, and my mother and brother belong to a church that doesn't approve of dancing or anything else teen-agers like to do.

Because I went riding in a car with some of the other girls, and some boys the other night, I am not allowed to go out at all for a week. Do you think there is anything wrong in riding with a boy or a girl in a car? And how can we young people in our church get to have dances and go on hayrides and do the other things we would like to do? Why do people get ideas just because teen-agers want some fun?

A.G.

Your letter opens up such a very big and complicated question that it would be impossible for me to answer it adequately in a few words.

The best I can do, briefly, is to say that different groups of people interpret religious beliefs in different ways, and try in their lives to abide by those particular interpretations. Certain activities such as dancing, for one, are entirely acceptable to some groups, and not to others, and your parents obviously belong to one of the latter groups.

Perhaps, as you grow older, your parents may be willing to give you more privileges but, if not, then I'm afraid as long as you are young enough to be under their care, and in their home, you will have to accept the ideas they believe are right for you. When you are old enough to act and think for yourself, it will then be right for you to make up your own mind about these things.

In the meantime, I suggest that you talk your problems over with some teacher in your school who is understanding and anxious to help say pupil in difficulties. It is just possible that if she takes an interest, she will be able to persuade your parents, and the parents of your other friends who have the same problem, to be a little less strict.

Honey-Sweet Talk

By Mary Moore

Usually I am so occupied with the topics that I want to discuss with you that I forget the patient people like the writer of this letter:

Dear Mary Moore: I read your recipes every day and I have tried a number of them . . . we have quite a bit of honey and I bake a lot. I have a family of seven, and I would like to know how much honey I can use in place of sugar for cakes, pies and cooking, for a cup of sugar—how much honey should I use.—Mrs. C. D.

Anyone who expects to conduct a column of this type successfully certainly ought to have enough sense to put some honey recipes in it once in a while. I think I'm right when I guess that I haven't given you a honey recipe in over a year.

An interesting thing about honey is that one tablespoon of it provides 70 calories, while 1 tablespoon sugar provides 100 calories but since honey is two and one-half times sweeter than sugar if you use 1-2 tablespoon honey on your cereal in the morning you will have it a little sweeter and consume only half the calories that you would if you used 1 tablespoon sugar.

Also, in using honey we are getting protein value, a good supply of calcium and phosphorus and Vitamin B as well. Pretty good isn't it?

Rule 1: When substituting honey for sugar in your own recipes reduce the liquid by 1-4 cup. Product will be sweeter though.

Rule 2: Add 1-4 teaspoon soda for each cup of honey used.

Rule 3: Add 1-4 teaspoon salt for each cup of honey used.

Rule 4: Honey baking must be done at moderate temperatures or its fine flavor is destroyed.

Rule 5: When boiling honey be sure to use a large dish as it has a tendency to foam and boil over.

I will have to give you recipes for batters using honey, but I can say with assurance that when you use honey to sweeten a pie

1-2 cup is plenty—you have to scrape out honey that clings to sides of cup, of course.

Chocolate Cake

(Using all honey as a sweetener.)

Two cups sifted cake flour, 1-2 teaspoons baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup butter or shortening, 2 eggs, 1 1-4 cups honey, 3 squares melted unsweetened chocolate, 2-3 cup cold water, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together sifted flour, soda and salt three times. Cream butter, add honey and beat very well. Add 1-4 of the flour and blend well. Add eggs one at a time and blend well before proceeding. Add melted chocolate and beat. Add remaining flour alternately with the water and vanilla. Beat well. Bake in two 9-inch layer cake pans, greased and buttered, at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes.

Plain Cake

This is more satisfactory when you use 1-2 honey and 1-2 sugar in the quantities called for in the following recipe.

Honey Dream Bars

One and one-quarter cups flour, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1-3 cup butter, 2 egg whites, 1-2 cup honey, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup each cocoanut and chopped nuts. Combine first three ingredients and make a crumbly mixture. Pat into shallow pan about 8 x 12 inches and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for ten minutes. Beat egg whites stiff, add honey and brown sugar gradually, beat until mixture peaks then fold in remaining ingredients. Spread this over baked crumb mixture and bake about 40 minutes in slow oven of 300 deg. Fahr. When cold cut into bars with sharp knife. This is one of the nicest cut cookies you will ever taste.

I would gladly give Mrs. C. D. other honey recipes and sources to write to for them.

GOOD MANNERS

Planning A Gala Dinner-Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have never given a party in a hotel, and we very much need your help as to how we should go about it. We celebrate our 25th Wedding Anniversary, we are planning to have a dinner-dance for about 100 guests at a hotel, and we are going to have a band set up. What should we order, and how?

S.

You and your husband should make an appointment, as soon as possible before the date, to consult with the maitre d'hotel or the so-called banquet-manager, or whoever is in charge of such parties in the hotel you have chosen. First you must see if the date you wish is available. Then talk over with him the menu-plans that the hotel can offer . . . the price per head for each menu, you like to select the one you wish, with a bow to your dance-budget. Talk with him definitely, too, about your plans for the serving of the drinks . . . for you may find this to be very inexpensive. You probably won't have to ask him any questions, as he'll have all the answers ready. Then be guided according to his advices, your preferences and the alternatives offered.

A Wedding Daughter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents are to have a dinner to celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary, this dinner being given by their seven married sons and daughters. How are my mother and father seated at the table? And who should be seated at the place nearest to them?

Daughter

Your mother and father, "bride and groom" on their Golden Wedding occasion, may be seated side by side (as at the original wedding reception), the "bride" on the right and the "groom." The oldest son might be seated at your mother's right, and the oldest daughter might be seated at your father's left.

Reception To Invitation To Ceremony And Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This is the situation: a man who lives in Canada receives an invitation to a church wedding and to the reception following the ceremony. He is unable to accept the invitation, as the wedding is to take place in a distant city in the United States. We are having a lively discussion here as to just what he should do.

1. Should he send a letter saying that he will be unable to attend?

2. If the invitation were to the ceremony only, how should he write a letter of regret?

3. Should the wedding gift be sent before the wedding? Should it be sent to the bride-to-be so that she can send her thank-you notes before she leaves on the wedding trip?

1. Because the invitation is to the reception also, he must regret, if he receives a form of invitation . . . in the third person . . . he should reply in the third person. Like this:

Mr. Thomas Clark regrets that he is unable to accept the very kind invitation of Treasure your good looks. Give yourself fastidious attention and you will be rewarded. For instance, if your locks happen to be normal, sat, do not fancy that they will always stay that way. They are subject to change and like every cell of your body, dependent upon general health. The average girl gives plenty of thought to the arrangement of her glorious crown but doesn't always realise that the shafts themselves require constant care. If they receive it, they will be bright and shining: If they do not, they may take on a dull look. One cannot begin too early to conserve the beauty assets with which one was born.

PICTON

School Zone Markers Being Placed in Streets

PICTON—School Zones Slowly. These are the words which appear on a number of markers placed in the centre of the streets, where children go to attend school. School zone in Picton means five different sections as far as the public school classes are concerned. Due to the growth in the number of school-ary classes are being held in halls as well. That this shortage of accommodation will soon be relieved is seen in the rapid progress being made on the erection of a new public school. This is located on the site of the Collegiate which was destroyed by fire.

Good progress is also being made on the new Collegiate for which a new site was chosen. These pupils now attend classes in the armouries.

May Can Peppers

Canning of peppers on a commercial scale may follow an experiment by Tommy Kostoff here. This year, he imported seed, and grew 2,500 plants. From these he picked 36 bushels of peppers. Some of these will be canned. Others have been sent to Toronto to add zest to the basket. They are very popular with new Canadians who come from the Balkan states. So successful has been the venture, that Mr. Kostoff plans to grow six acres of them next year.

Will Hold Parade

Another big Santa Claus parade in Picton is planned the middle of December. Sam Gentile is chairman and an appeal to merchants and organizations in Picton floats is already being made. The Picton Santa parade is the largest in this part of Ontario, and is purely local effort. It is sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce.

Closing Hours Discussed

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this week, the matter of store closing hours was discussed. This is in relation to Belleville stores being open Friday nights but closing at six o'clock Saturday nights, while in Picton, stores are open until ten o'clock Saturday nights but not open Friday nights.

Some directors felt that Picton is definitely a Saturday night town, and it is truly a sight to behold as thousands from all over the district pack the streets. Whether merchants benefit or not is debatable. Slight visit to the county town is one where people meet friends and visiting is in order. The Chamber decided that it would get the feeling of merchants on the matter of store closing by circulating a questionnaire, and any further discussion will depend upon the results of this questionnaire.

Orchard Recovered

Picton people learned of an unusual, but profitable occupation recently. Marshal Sharpe of Trenton came to town, his domestic pigs and fine and dived into the hay and recovered an orchard cover which had been lost six weeks. Mrs. Sharpe operated the air compressor. Mr. Sharpe makes a business of recovering motors lost in district waters, and finds many demands for his services.

Foxes Numerous

Foxes have become very numerous in the county, and at its last meeting, county council decided to offer a bounty of $3 for each green fox pelt. They must be shot in the county by a county resident. Skunks, the four-legged kind, are becoming numerous, and since there is little demand for their pelts, the bounty, they multiply rapidly. One night this week, a motorist was forced to stop his car on the highway while a mother skunk and four little ones crossed the road in single file.

Wife Says She Never Heard Of Miss Carrier

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Jean Balcombe, wife of a 36-year-old army officer charged with murdering Marie Anne Carrier, fought back tears today and said: "It was a shock, none of us knew anything about it."

The pretty mother of two small children sat with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gray in the spotless living room of the Gray farm home near here and said that she never heard of Miss Carrier, found brutally stabbed to death in a ditch near Iroquois, Ont.

Her husband, 2nd Lieut. Peter Ernest Robin Balcombe, was arrested at the farm home as the family was about to sit down to dinner Sunday night. He was formally charged with the killing today.

Mrs. Balcombe said her husband had a three-week furlough after being posted from Wainwright, Alta., to Valcartier, Que. She and the children had lived with Balcombe at Wainwright and moved to her parents' home, until a house was found in Valcartier.

"He went up to Valcartier last week to arrange accommodation for us," Mrs. Balcombe said. "He got back here early Friday."

Mrs. Balcombe's father, said: "We don't want to get mixed up in this business."

Missed Early Reports

He asked for a Friday newspaper so that he could look at an earlier account of the slaying.

"We just didn't pay any attention to it then," he said.

Mrs. Balcombe was in training to be a nurse and Balcombe was taking his first year of a pre-medical course at University of Western Ontario when they first met in 1948.

They were married at St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral in London in May of that year and both left the university. Balcombe joined the Royal Canadian Regiment in London in May 1951 and went to Petawawa military camp.

"Since he has been moved around so much," the 23-year-old wife said.

Close to tears and biting her lip during most of the conversation, Mrs. Balcombe said she wasn't sure where her husband's parents were.

He was born in London, Reg., and came to Canada with his family in 1939, she believed. Balcombe's parents lived for a time in Montreal but had recently returned to England, she believed.

Brothers of Murdered CWAC Sergeant Say Jealously Was Motive for Slaying

At this spot, in front of the Hutt family's farm near Morrisburg, Ont., the body of CWAC Sergeant Marie Anne Carrier was found, brutally stabbed and nude. Brothers of the victim, who lived in Stenville, Que., identified the body as that of their sister whom they last saw running to catch a bus on her way to work in a bank. Police believe she had been murdered a few hours before her body was found and that she had been dragged from a car and placed in the ditch outside the Hutt farm.

When the body was found, police had only this ring for identification. It was the only article left on her body when discovered near Morrisburg, Ont.

'The Ideal Neighborhood' Evening Message at St. Paul's

By Mrs. Percy MacMillan

The Rev. Alfred Poulter president Bay of Quinte Conference, chose as his evening message at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, for their Centennial Service, the theme "The Ideal Neighborhood."

Mr. W. E. Tummon, president Lay Association of the Bay of Quinte Conference read the lesson found in Luke 10.

Rev. A. E. Baker presided throughout and warmly welcomed the guests and voiced thanks to various people.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T. rendered, "Prayer by Collaerts; Harper's "Meditation", and "Festival March."

A mixed quartet, Mrs. William Wilkins, Mrs. Harry Brown, Messrs Douglas Prest and Thomas Walls sang, "Hear to the Heart of God."

The Senior Choir interpreted Sydenham's anthem, "Great is the Lord."

The opening processional "God Reveals His Presence" was followed by words of welcome by Mr. George Carlisle.

Community Worth

Mr. Poulter prefixed his address with emphasis on the historic passage of Isaiah where the children of Israel were in exile, and everyone helped his neighbor, and everyone said to his brother, "Be of Good Cheer." People learned the hard way the true worth of a community spirit, and how to solve their various problems of living together in order to achieve an ideal neighborhood.

The speaker gave graphic illustrations of the wedding of the United States and the prairie provinces in times of dire necessity. Civilization develops only when all in the community work together for the common good and welfare of all. Good neighbors always praise the good qualities of others and are anxious to help the less fortunate.

The speaker gave several illustrations to prove that more devoted lives are needed and that individuals shall sacrifice in order to assist in the common good of all.

In closing, Mr. Poulter stressed the importance of regular Sunday Worship at church in order to stimulate Christian living.

Mr. Harold Hagerman, recording steward, voiced thanks to the guest speaker for his forceful address.

The service closed with a quiet hymn of Blessing, and the large audience dispersed with a feeling of gladness that they had been privileged to share in this historic service.

Thankoffering $2,300

The Thankoffering at the two services amounted to almost $2,200 with an extra gift of $300 for the Endowment Fund and a gift of $100 from His Honor, Lieut. Gov. Breithaupt for the centennial committee.

The official board had asked for $2,500 in order that new doors might be installed and no doubt there will be other thankoffering envelopes received this month. The weather was ideal and the services most successful.

On Sunday, October 25th, St. Paul's Centennial Services continue with "Educational Sunday, Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, B.A., principal of Albert College, Mrs. MacKenzie, and their family, the faculty of Albert College, and its student body, will be both an inspiration and a challenge. The college choir, under the leadership of Mr. J. H. MacKay, will render an anthem by Harriet Beecher Stowe. All these guests will be billeted out in the various homes for the noon meal.

That same evening, Rev. Gordon Whitehorn, B.A., B.D., officials, choirs, members and friends of Seymour circuit, which comprises Stephens Tabernacle, and Zion, will pay their official visit to St. Paul's, Stirling.

In pioneer days the Seymour circuit was travelled by the ministers of Stirling circuit and St. Stephen's Church records are still to be found in various of the historic documents. A Fellowship Hour will be held at the close of this service.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Dopey Shorty Judge were taking a walk, not going anywheres special, and we were walking through the square, and Shorty said, G, look, a real artist.

Meaning some guy with a little mustash and a French berry hat painting a picture on an easel, taking terna looking at the scenery and making paint marks with his brush to prove what he saw, and I said, Oh boy, he's painting the trees and things just like they are.

And we stood in back of him and started to watch him, Shorty saying, If he had come about a month sooner he'd of had a lot more leeves to paint.

I guess probably he didn't want to work that hard, I said, and Shorty said, Then why didn't he wait till the middle of winter and all the leeves would of been gone, and he would of had a cinch.

Maybe he has the practice too bad, I said, and Shorty said, Anyways, he's leaving some out, there's more leeves than he's putting in.

Maybe he's saving his green paint, I said, and Shorty said, Yeah, I bet green is the most expensive color.

Anyways, nobody can prove he left some out, because nobody was here except us, and he'll probably never see us again, I said, and Shorty said, Oh boy, 3 birds just landed on the same branch. They look as if they're waiting to get painted. Why dont he quick put them in?

He must be afraid they'll fly away before he gets them all the ways in, I said, and just then the man turned around and looked at us and then went away carrying his picture in one hand, and his easel in the other, and Shorty said, G, maybe there was too much talking for him.

Which maybe there was.

WAYNE

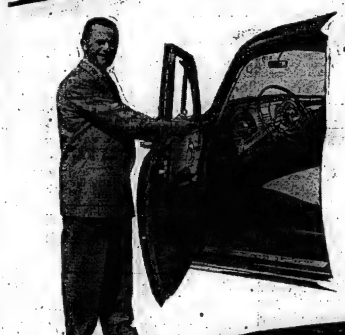
Mrs. Wayne said her husband once came home from a studio party and told her he had spent the night with Miss Russell at her home. This, she added, was after he had entered the house by kicking the door down.

Wayne replied:

"Why did she have to drag that poor kid's name into this? I never had anything to do with Miss Russell except to make a couple of movies with her. True, we had a party at the end of a picture. Every studio and company does. Everybody was there from technician to star. I came home at 2 a. m. and broke in the front door, not because I was drunk but because I had no key and my wife refused to open the door.

"I'm no saint but this is ridiculous."



Wayne said his wife had a nasty habit in Mexico of frequenting bars with other men, then picking up the tabs with the actor's money. He also charged her with entertaining a male friend for a week at their Encino home while Wayne was in Honolulu making a movie.

Lawyer Jerry Orsenthal, counsel for Mrs. Wayne, 14 years younger than the 45-year-old star, declared of his client:

"This murdered girl learned the horror of the bottle under the guidance, tutelage and even under the roof of Mr. Wayne."

West Germany Making Big Drive for Canadian Market; Seeking Sites for Industries

OTTAWA (CP)—West Germany is making a big play for the Canadian market in a double-pronged drive to increase exports to Canada and boost investments in Canadian industry.

Trade officials report dozens of inquiries from German business men seeking to establish new industries in Canada. Some have already set up shot in many of the provinces.

They have established machinery, cement, shoe tanning and optical industries in Newfoundland; a foundry, textile, watch and toy companies in Quebec; a cosmera plant in Ontario; and a pipe mill in British Columbia.

This German investment has taken place in the last three years, officials said. They predicted there will be more to come.

Canada is Target

The republic's interest in Canada has caught the eye of the overseas press. The Manchester Guardian, in a dispatch from Bonn last Saturday, said Canada is Germany's biggest target in a trade drive now in progress.

It said projected German industrial enterprises in Canada involve about 300, half of which would be in Ontario. Officials here doubted there would be anywhere near that number.

The Guardian said Canadian provincial governments are thinking of appointing agents in Germany, but so far there is no report here that any are planning to do so immediately.

But that takes nothing away from the strength of Canadian-German trade. Since the German economy sprang back on its feet after the Second World War, trade with Canada has been growing steadily.

The republic, cut off by the Iron Curtain from East Germany's rich agricultural lands, has been buying a lot of food and other raw materials from Canada.

Canada, undergoing a booming industrial expansion, requires precision tools and other machinery which West Germany produces. But those products are also made in Britain, which gets a lot of her dollars from Canadian trade.

Challenge U.K.

"The challenge to Britain is bold and open," said the Guardian. The competition is "perfectly fair, but that does not make it less dangerous."

West Germany now is Canada's fifth best customer—up from 23rd in 1950. Canada now is Germany's 10th best customer, up from 22nd in 1950.

Canada's exports to the republic rose last year to $34,863,000—exceeded about six times from $13,214,000 in 1950. Imports last year were $32,622,000—about 13 times larger than the $2,728,000 in 1948.

Ex-President Of Carpenters' Union Is Dead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — William L. Hutcheson, 78, general president of the AFL carpenters union for 36 years and a towering figure in the American labor movement, died in Methodist Hospital here today of a heart ailment.

The veteran labor leader was brought to the hospital Oct. 12 for a stomach examination and suffered a heart attack Oct. 15 before the tests were completed.

Hutcheson, one of the few Republicans among top union officials, stepped down from the active presidency of the 822,000-member union Jan. 1, 1952, and was succeeded by his son, Maurice A. Hutcheson.

IKE PORTRAYED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the first time, Columbia Pictures says, President Eisenhower has consented his portrayal in a movie. The chief executive will be played by an actor in The Low-Line, based on Bringing Up The Brass, autobiography of Col. Point's athletic instructor, Sgt. Marty Maher. The studio said the president authorized an actor to portray him as a cadet at the military. The film will star Tyrone Power.

Tighten Security Around Plant In British Guiana

By JULIAN BAYES

MACKENZIE, British Guiana (Reuters)—Police Monday tightened security in this "Little Canada" set in semi-jungle 62 miles from Georgetown, where more bauxite—aluminum ore—is mined than in any other place in the world.

There has been no strike at the $40,000,000 Aluminum Company of Canada plant, nor has there been any attempted violence since Britain suspended the colony's constitution and removed the left-wing People's Progressive party (PPP) from power to stem an alleged Communist plot.

But the British frigate Bigbury Bay has sailed downriver after a week's visit, and police reinforcements may be sent from Georgetown to bolster local vigilance and the 65-man company security force.

Maj. John Rowlands, 35, a former Palestine police officer, took over command of the local police Monday. Ted Judd, a Canadian, is head of the company police.

Company manager R. W. Johnson said PPP elements have tried unsuccessfully to infiltrate the company's labor force of 2,400 men. He said the presence of the British frigate had had a "reassuring effect."

This well-kept little settlement, carved out of the jungle on the banks of Demerara river, is easily the most prosperous area in which workers the best paid, in British Guiana.

While workers, with overtime and bonuses, may earn as much as 150 local dollars a week, they work about three times as much as the highest-paid sugar plantation employee makes.

Cowardice Charge Laid Against British Soldier

CATTERICK, Eng. (Reuters)—An English soldier who spent 18 months as a prisoner of war in Korea, today faced a court martial accused of cowardice in an action in which a comrade won the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest award for valor.

Patrick Lydon, 's former draftee who had volunteered for another 18 months' service, was attached to the 1st Battalion, King's Own Scottish Borderers, when the Chinese launched a vicious attack on Hill 217 in 1951.

The enemy prosecutor said today Lydon spent the whole of the actual battle "lying at the bottom of the trench, crying and whimpering."

He said Lydon refused to fight for the "rather fantastic, reason that he had his wife's little finger jumping into the trench."

When the unit finally withdrew, Lydon was found "sitting and muttering "twohon"—Chinese for "coward."

First in 30 Years

He was captured and spent 18 months in North Korea. After repatriation, he was arrested while on his way to rejoin his unit overseas.

It was believed the first time a cowardice charge had been laid in Britain for more than 30 years, authorities said.

The Hill 217action was the one in which Pte. Bill Speakman won the Victoria Cross for what he turned into virtually a one-man battle against the Chinese.

Two Champions Change Hands At Holstein Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Two world champion Holsteins changed hands Monday at the all-Canadian Holstein sale.

The sale, sponsored by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, brought a total of $44,500, an average of $746 for 59 cows.

W. K. McLeod of Dixnell, Que., paid $2,600, top price of the sale, to R. D. Graham of Erin, Ont., for Sir Inheven Johanna Posch, champion junior two-year-old on twice-daily milking for 305 days.

Ourville Princess Phyllis, consigned by E. L. Sweet of Belmont, Ont., was purchased by Lockwood Holsteins of Fortar for $1,975. She has a junior three-year-old record of 22,785 pounds of milk and 1,013 pounds of fat.

Highest price paid for a bull was $1,650 paid to George R. McLaughlin of Oshawa for Elmcroft Rag Apple Signet, a six-month-old bull, by Sherman J. Moore and John F. Graham of Lindsay.

Consumer Credit Bill at High Of $1,732,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians, increasing their purchases of automobiles and other goods, have changed deeper into debt, with the total consumer credit bill rising to a high of $1,732,000,000 in the first half of 1953.

This jump of more than $500,000,000 over a 12-month period was due mainly to a sharp rise in instalment buying which swelled to $759,000,000 from the $559,000,000 from $401,000,000 last year, a Bank of Canada survey disclosed today.

Officials said such a spectacular over-all increase in the consumer debt normally might be cause for some concern, but for these facts:

1. The increase was not due to under government control until May, 1952 and a sharp increase was anticipated with removal of the curbs.

2. There is no evidence of any heavy inflation in the rise in debt expansion.

3. The country's national income is increasing, along with labor income. Under these conditions it is natural for the consumer's credit to take place.

The big jump in the debt is caused mainly by the jump in automobile sales. They rose to 292,100 units last year, up from 275,700 in 1951. The portion purchased on instalment credit also rose to 42.8 per cent from 29.6.

250 Canadian Soldiers Arrive At West Coast

SEATTLE (AP)—For most of 250 Canadian soldiers who arrived here from Korea on the troopship It was just another leg of a long trip home. But for Signalman Murray McNicol it was a trip right into his family's new backyard.

McNicols his family moved from Toronto to Edmonds, just north of Seattle, last May, he explained.

"I know I couldn't be happier," he said, "even if I don't know anybody around here."

Lieut. Fred Sykes of Brockville is also impressed by the area's nearness.

"I'm not quite home," he said, "but the pine trees here look almost as good as the Canadian pine trees. I haven't seen a pine tree for a long time."

Sykes has been in the Far East for 13 months.

Homecoming for Lieut. Bernard Wallis of Kitchener will be "terrific," but his big moment is two weeks off.

It will be two weeks before Wallis can see his wife, now teaching school in Trinidad. "She didn't have time coming in time to get home to meet me."

People Today Lacking In Knowledge of Bible

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said today people lack a knowledge of the Bible that was common in all sections of British society 100 years ago.

Now a quotation from the Bible, he said, "would ring no bell in the hearts of vast numbers of people. It would be received with the same blank look Latin quotation is received in the House of Commons."

He referred to a campaign, "The Bible Speaks Today," to be inaugurated next Sunday in Canterbury Cathedral.

Officer's Nervous Condition Bars Him from Questioning About Missing Ransom Money

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police investigators, holding their inquiry behind closed doors, today continued digging into reports the FBI had discovered discrepancies in police accounts of the Greenlease kidnapping case.

Three of the officers who arrested Carl Austin Hall, the confessed kidnap-slayer of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease, was questioned periodically for 10 hours Monday.

The interrogation of one police Jeremiah O'Connell centres around the handling of two hold-up cases in which about half of the $600,000 ransom money was recovered. Some $300,000 still is missing.

Patrolman Elmer Dolan, who O'Connell said is not under suspension, but held on sick charge, was the first witness called.

Can't Question Officer

Lieut. Leslie Shoulders, Dolan's superior officer in the arrest, was under a physician's care for a nervous condition and was reported unable to appear for questioning at this time.

But Chief O'Connell said Shoulders will be questioned "as soon as his doctor says it will be all right to do so."

Dolan, one of three witnesses questioned Monday, told reporters afterward that he had been instructed "not to talk."

Shoulders, whose ailment was attributed by the physician to the officer's work on the case, withheld from reporters a full explanation of the reported discrepancies, but said:

"I can explain to the proper authorities every move I made."

The arrest of Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady followed a hot-car chase Thursday after Hall and John Hager that Hall was armed and speeding money on a big scale.

O'Connell said Hager will be questioned today "if we are able to reach him."

Examine Hotel Rooms

Officers also made a half-hour examination of the rooms in the apartment hotel where Hall was arrested and the ransom money recovered was found.

Police also are expected to question four special officers of Homestead police district headquarters, where the kidnappers were taken after their arrest.

The other two witnesses heard from were Capt. Frank Fichter, manager of the apartment hotel where the arrest was made, and police Cpl. Raymond Bergmeier, acting desk sergeant who booked Hall after the arrest.

The inquiry was ordered by the police board after published reports that the FBI had found discrepancies in police reports on the arrests.

But the board said it had no reason to believe any officers connected with the case had not given "all the information they have."

Commanding Officer Praises Girl's Record in Armed Forces

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The commanding officer of the reserve army unit in which Marie Anne Carrier was a sergeant Monday praised the 21-year-old girl's record in the armed forces.

Lt.-Col. Gordon J. Ross, commanding officer of No. 10 maintenance depot, a mixed unit, said at a press conference that Miss Carrier was the "most consistent member" of his unit and a "very important member of the precision squad." She lived at nearby Bienville.

Miss Carrier's nude and stabbed body was found Friday near Cornwall. Ontario Provincial Police are holding Ind Lieut. Peter Balonboke of London, Ont., for murder.

"There was no one in the unit for whom we had a higher admiration," Col. Ross said. "We consider Sgt. Carrier had everything she would want in the case of anyone in the army."

"She had the highest possible integrity, was co-operative, active and willing."

Also at the press conference was Brig. Frank J. Fleury, eastern Quebec area commander, who said he has ordered his officers to give police all possible assistance.

Helper Justice Done

"Whoever the murderer is we hope he will be brought to justice and get what's coming to him soon—be he in the army or out."

Brig. Fleury quoted Mrs. Carrier as saying her daughter was out with Lieut. Balconbe last Monday and Tuesday nights.

Col. Ross said Sgt. Carrier was last seen Wednesday night when

Delay-Riddled Red Efforts To Woo Prisoners Back Home May End to Avoid Rebuffs

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The delay-riddled Communist efforts to woo 22,600 ex-Red soldiers home to communism halted indefinitely today after the Reds were turned down flat on demands that the POWs be dragged to the armistice talks by force if necessary.

Stung by the rebuff from India, Switzerland and Sweden, the satellite Polish and Czech delegates on the neutral nations repatriation commission walked out Monday and gave no indication when they would return.

The explanations apparently were postponed indefinitely—at least until the commission can get operating again.

May Drop Talks

Observers speculated that the Red walkout could be a prelude to dropping their persuasion efforts entirely in an effort to avoid more of a propaganda windup than they have already taken in two days of interviews.

Only 19 of the 321 Chinese who heard the Red pleas to return home chose the door to communism.

Despite the lopsided results, the interviews with the 7,900 Chinese POWs were proceeding smoothly, but the 14,600 Koreans completely stopped the show with a belligerent refusal to even listen to the Red persuaders.

Stalemating efforts by their Indian guards to get them out of their compounds, the Koreans once threatened a mass breakout to make their point stick.

Demands Denied

In the repatriation commission Monday, the Polish and Czech members pressed the Red demands that the Koreans be brought to the interviews by any means necessary.

Outvoted by the other three members, they left.

The Poles and Czechs did not show up today for the usual daily commission meeting and there was no immediate word when they would.

The prisoner talks originally were scheduled to begin the last week in September but after long haggling over interview sites, they finally started Thursday, but two groups of Chinese have met the Red persuaders since.

If the Reds have not, the UN command still can interview the Chinese and Koreans, and Indian and Swiss Koreans who have said they want to stay with the Reds.

The UN has not given any indication when it will begin—and apparently there is plenty of time.

Member Resigns To Provide Seat For B.C. Minister

VICTORIA (CP)—Percy Wright, who walked off his job to represent Victoria riding as a Social Credit member of the legislature, resigned his seat Monday night to make possible a by-election that is intended to seat a B.C. cabinet minister.

Mr. Wright said at a Social Credit constituency meeting here he was giving up his seat to allow a by-election for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, defeated in the June provincial election in the neighboring riding of Oak Bay.

Mr. Wright, officially told 24 hours before that he no longer worked for the city of Victoria, also said he would try to regain his post as assistant city clerk.

No Date Given

Almost all the provincial cabinet except Mr. Gunderson, holdaging in Peace attended the meeting. The by-election date was not announced.

Mr. Wright explained that the decision to resign—"one of the hardest" of his life—was his own. He had not asked to do so.

A civil servant for almost 23 years, he walked off the job the day the first session of the 26th legislature opened. City council declined to give him leave of absence on grounds that such a leave for political reasons was illegal under municipal law.

Mr. Wright reported to work Monday and talked with his superiors, city clerk Frank Hunter and city manager Cecil Wyatt, then walked out jobless.

He said he asked Mr. Wyatt if he still worked there. A definite "no" was the answer.

Report said Monday:

Later, the former member said he went to work in City Hall "every morning for a week, if necessary," until he gets his job back.

French Drive In Indo China Comes to Halt

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters)—The French offensive in Indo China's Tonquin lowlands has come to a standstill after an advance of 15 miles.

French Union troops who broke out of the Red River delta and cleared the hills of the Vietminh-held plateau of Viet Nam have made no further progress since Sunday.

Reports said French troops ordered to mop up Vietminh pockets interrain already captured, consolidate their positions and search for arms-dumps concealed in caves on the wooded mountain sides.

The offensive, which the French say was intended to have only limited objectives, may be resumed later but at present there is no intention on the part of the French high command to press on.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading hers, and she started in first, saying to pop, Here's a good one in Pickman's Pithy Paragraphs. It says the man who claims he understands women may know a lot but one thing he doesn't know is what he's talking about.

And she kept on talking, and pop said, nobody but a woman is capable of written that nonsense. As a matter of fact I'm doing of writing a book about women myself. I'm going to call it All About Women, he said, and it's going to be full of stuffing. Tell me about it rite away, Mister, you'll add to my store of nolege, she said.

Well, natcherly it will be a long book, but to boil it down into a nutshell, a woman is a person who spends 3 hours preparing a dinner but if her husband is one minute late in sitting down to it, she considers the whole operation a complete loss, and ma said, Well, well, that's what I call deep and penetrating. It's worthy to go down into posterity with flying colors. Just for that I've got a good mind to write a book about men, and do you want to know the nutshell of it?

By all means, my dear, pop said, and ma said, Well a man is a person who clammers that he's hungry as a starving bear, and when you sit him down to a meel fit for a king he hasn't the faintest idea what he's eating and he would reed his newspaper as the same time if you let him, and yet he dies a thousand deaths at the very mention of going out to a restorant to eat. And if the truth is funny, keep rite on laffing, she said.

Which he did.

KEEPING 'EM BUSY

Coach "Rod" Davies had his Redmen flying in Memorial Arena in another stiff workout last night. A familiar face was that of Jimmy Irvine who looked after the net shores for the Redmen a few years ago and who has been doing his peacekeeping in Toronto since. Jimmy's appearance made the ease Ryerson member three with Don Letman, former Kenora Thistle and Don Barclay also trying for the spot. Irvine seemed to have lost none of his old cunning and will be giving all he's got in an effort to nail down the berth.

The rest of the crew are beginning to find their skating legs and a week's stiff workout should see them in some sort of shape for the opening battle with Orillia Saturday night.

The Duncan twins, Jake Wade and Bob Turner should fit well into the picture with the Redmen veterans of other campaigns and the team on the whole should be a lot stronger than last year. And they will need to be for Hampton, Oshawa and Peterborough loom like powerful squads on paper while Orillia is yet an unknown quantity.

The Redmen will work out every night this week, and helping them not a little is the excellent condition of the ice. Manager Wall Gerow and his assistants went all out to give the team the ice as quickly as possible and they came up with a fine job.

QUESTION MARK

Soft-spoken Randy Turpin, the pride of Piccadilly, who fights Carl "Bobo" Olson tomorrow night in Madison Square Gardens, is proving something of a poser for the boxing experts south of the border.

Randy, reports state has conducted one of the strangest training sessions ever heard, seen or wrote about in the road old USA and the millwrights of Typewriter Row and announcers of the airways are plainly baffled by the British hero's possible attitudes.

According to reports Turpin's last sparring session was last Thursday a week before the fight. They say he has done none since unless it is being done in secret. Turpin says he's fit and is going to win. No one else seems to be in a position to know what is going on.

What is causing eyebrows to rise and foreheads to wrinkle along Cauliflower Boulevard is the fact that Turpin sparred 16 and 15 rounds a day while training for his battle with Sugar Ray Robinson. In defence of his attitude the dusky Britisher from Jamaica says "This is a different fight. I'd been doing a lot of fighting before I met Robinson. This time I haven't had many fights, not a dozen in the last two years."

And Mr. Turpin is the boss man of the camp. He is monarch of all he surveys and takes orders from no one. He gives 'em.

His strange attitude baffled the usually staid British boxing writers. In fact he puzzled them so much that a small army of them flocked to ascertain what was going on between the Turpin ears.

It was reported a few days ago that Randy was suffering from a touch of homesickness. This was probably true for one of the British scribes wrote a squib in his column, asking the British public to send their hero letters of encouragement. 500 arrived in one day alone and Lonely Randy gobbled them up like nobody's business. He sits down and writes letters by the pile for hours at a time.

At time of writing the colored enigma was slightly overweight, but he shrugged this fact off with the statement "it will drop off". It doesn't worry him the least bit.

Unlike the loquacious manager of his counterpart in tomorrow night's battle, Turpin is not making any predictions on the fight. He refuses to comment on what could happen, but he has told friends he must win the title and take it back to Britain in this, the Coronation year.

Thus far, Turpin says he has boxed less than thirty rounds since coming to this side of the pond on September 15. But he adds he went through 39 in Britain before leaving for Grosslinger's Catskill training camp.

His American trainer, however, who takes orders from the British champion, says Turpin is in "top physical condition—just needs a little more sparring to sharpen him up."

Most Canadian boxing fans will be pulling for the Britisher to bring home the championship bacon. Randy got a "quick decision" in his last appearance against "Sugar Ray" and a lot of people are of the opinion that the referee not been so anxious to stop the fight, things might have gone otherwise.

However there is one loyal Turpin fan in the city, and he is Joe Samain. Joe knows quite a bit about the boy from Jamaica and after his return following a safari to the Old Country a few years ago, advised the columnar ear to watch or listen for news about a young colored middleweight whom he saw fight over there.

"His name is Randy Turpin" Joe told this department "and three pets you one he will be the middleweight champion of the world some day."

Grab Fourth Straight Victory With Filchock Back in Game; Blue Bombers Defeat Stamps

By The Canadian Press

Saskatchewan Roughriders tripped Edmonton Eskimos 20-19 Monday night on Edmonton's home territory, thus handing the powerful Eskimos their first defeat of the season at home.

The Saskatchewan club, billed as possible tail-enders in the Western Interprovincial Football Union before season started, have counted three defeats and now have won four games in a row. They hold second place, two points in front of Winnipeg Blue Bombers who declsioned Calgary Stampeders 18-6 in Calgary Monday night.

Edmonton, with an eight-point margin in the league, already has wrapped up first place.

The triumph of the Roughriders was owed to Frankie Filchock, Rider coach who replaced Glenn Dobbs in the quarterback slot. Bounced as Edmonton coach after last season, Filchock produced a sparkling passing and ground attack.

Saskatchewan majors were chalked up by halfback Bobby Marlow, end Harry Lampman and Bill Mac Donald. Marlow was connected for two major scores for the Riders. He caught Adamchick and took a Claude Arnold pass for the third Edmonton touchdown.

Neil Armstrong carried the Blue Bombers to their triumph with two majors. Armstrong was connected for the other and all three were converted by Bud Tinsley. Tinsley's pedero left the scoring column only in the final minutes with a touchback by Art Al Englisi on a pass from Keith Spalth. Glen Christian converted it.

Alouettes Grab Argo Centre

TORONTO (CP)—Montreal Alouettes claimed centre John Shore from Toronto Argonauts for the waiver price, of $200 during the week-end.

The transfer from one Big Four football club to the other came after the release of Shore by the Argos a few weeks ago. Freddy Black, converted from guard to offensive centre, made way for the release.

Gene Roberts Leads Football Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—Ray Poole, 30-year-old American whose football claim to fame rests on his kicking ability, is proving to eastern Canada fans he is probably the deadliest field-goal and convert kicker to show in years.

The six-foot veteran with New York Giants who came to Montreal Alouettes this season with the reputation as one of the best ends and field goal kickers in the National Football League, has scored 51 points on his punting. Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts on top of the Big Four scoring list with 67 points, just six more than Poole who has been gaining steadily on the Ottawa Rough Rider the last few weeks. Roberts has scored 25 touchdowns, five field goals, 26 converts and one single against Poole's 18 converts, nine field goals and 24 conversions.

Consistent Scorer

Roberts, native of Bonner Springs, Kan., has been a consistent scorer since he came to Canada three years ago.

Avatus Stone, the Riders, early - season leader, is in third place with 52 points. Stone, who jumped Chicago Cardinals this year for the Ottawa club, holds a 12-point lead over Hamilton Tiger - Cats' Lou Kusserow and Chuck Hunsinger on the ball, tied for fourth position with 40 points each.

Kusserow, from New York Yankees, and Hunsinger, veteran with Calgary Stampeders, have two scores, have scored eight touchdowns each for their points.

John Mancos, from Kent State college in Ohio, leads Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring with a 71-point total. The Kitchener-Waterloo halfback has scored 13 touchdowns and six singles.

Gino Fracas of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, is headed for the intercollegiate scoring title with 30 points on four touchdowns and 10 converts.

Dutchies Report Plenty of Injured

KITCHENER (CP)—Talking in century order their Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior week-end game against the Toronto Balmy Beach, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen Monday reported a long list of injured players.

Of 13 injured players, two are probably out for the rest of the season. They are flying wing Al Auchterlonie and centre-halfback Jim Smith, both of London. Auchterlonie suffered a broken hand and there is a slight possibility he may return late in the season. Finch has a cartilage injury, expected to keep him out of action until next season.

The other injured players, although not in top condition, will be ready for Saturday's fixture, are in Kitchener Saturday. They are Paul Amodio,—Nat Pegram, Carl Pinsky, Jack Mungo, Huck O'Connell, Bill Needham, Gerry Tuttle, Al Wade, Ed O'Hara, Don Sherman and Andy Gilmour.

Joe Krol Announces Grid Retirement Decision Hastened by Knee Injury

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's Mr. Football has ended his playing career.

Joe Krol, ranged among the ultimate stars of the game and considered by many as the outstanding Canadian-born player of the last 20 years, announced his retirement Monday night.

His decision was hastened by a knee injury suffered in the dying moments of Sunday's Big Four game in Montreal when he handled the ball for the last time for Toronto Argonauts against the Alouettes.

The 34-year-old triple - threat backfielder from Windsor, Ont., began his big-time career as an intercollegiate all-star for the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in 1939. In the years that followed he played on six Dominion championship teams and won all-star ranking in every league in which he played.

Always a Natural

From his earliest appearances after he was graduated from Assumption College in Windsor to the Mustangs, Krol won speedy recognition as a great natural player. He seldom made an unnecessary move on the field, but showed a knack of finding holes in defence or opening them on the attack.

In recent years, when Argonauts used him almost exclusively as a kicker, Krol continued to show his all-round ability and difficulties. He seemed to produce his best punts with a wet ball, against the wind, or when rushed by a bad snap or poor protection against an opposing line.

But Krol is best remembered as the passing, running, place-kicking wizard who seemed to be a whole football team by himself in the 1940s.

Moving from Western to Hamilton Wildcats of the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, he sparked them to the Grey Cup, accounting for seven points himself and throwing a touchdown pass to defeat Winnipeg RCAF Bombers 23-14 in 1943. The following year the Wildcats defeated Toronto Balmy Beach 9-8 in their league finals Krol scoring all the points.

Helped Win Grey Cup

Krol joined the Argonauts in 1945 and scored another personal triumph in the Grey Cup final, running 80 yards for one touchdown, hurling two touchdown passes and kicking two converts, as Toronto whalloped Winnipeg 35-0.

In succeeding years, he and Royal Copeland became the "touchdown twins," both equally dangerous on either offence or defence and almost unstoppable in the open field.

In 10 full seasons since he joined the Wildcats, Krol has scored more than 400 points in scheduled play. Twice he won the Eastern Canada scoring crown—in 1944 when he scored 48 points for the Wildcats and in 1946, his most prolific scoring year, with 61 points for the Argos.

Krol injured his knee in preseason practice this season and appeared in only two scheduled games. His first start Oct. 10 saw him in action late in a disastrous Argonaut rout by Hamilton. He defeated Toronto Balmy Beach 9-8 in their league finals Krol scoring all the points.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson
If you're seeking the standard Canadian athlete of the year, don't look for the party among the golfers. Yes? Well her among the alleged weaker sex, and, of course, Marlene Stewart Streit. She's the darling of the golf links and has been for a couple of years.
As winner of the British Open, the Canadian Close, and finalist in the Canadian Open, Marlene captured the imagination of the sporting picture of the year. In Canada, she's a complete standout, with those feats or glamor no Gordie Howe, no Rocket Richard, no Teeder Kennedy, in fact no male athlete can compete.
Already admirers wonder if she doesn't even now rate with the very best of women players of any country, and the consensus of opinion declines to commit itself. But she's a great golfer, and a loveable sort of wholesome kid.
The little freckled-faced lady, born at Chinook, Alberta, but playing from Vancouver, B.C., today, not only tremendous skill and will to win, but a stout heart, the poise of a veteran, and concentration that even Ben Hogan himself could envy. Two years ago, then only 17, she had developed concentration to a point that she apologized to an opponent at the ended of a match: "I hope you won't think I'm rude, but I never talk on the golf course."
And now, 19, Marlene plays a precision-like game that astounded British golf experts. Marlene Stewart is not merely a Canadian champion who won the British Ladies title, the youngest golfer to do it and as the London Daily Herald put it "the smallest and certainly one of the greatest women champions in the world."
Marlene Stewart was born with the lure of golf in her veins. Her home in Foothill is only a short walk from the nearby Lookout Point links, and as a wee tyke, she was there daily, shagging balls for professional Gordon McInnus. Now Gordon is only a little bit of a shag himself, and perhaps for that reason, he became interested in little Marlene. She took to the game as to no other, and takes to ice-cream. At 9 years, she already was displaying amazing determination, and equally amazing potential skill. Weighing little over 100 pounds, she was a pint-sized dynamo, and at closer range, developed a style of driving straight for the pin, which today remains one of her trade-marks.
She has won honors, plaudits, the love of a nation. At 11, she won three titles, the Ontario Amateur, the Canadian Open and Close. But through it all, and perhaps because of it, she has remained a sweet, pleasant, unspoiled girl, a typical Canadian youngster, natural and unaffected.

DENIES DISSENSION TALK

OTTAWA (CP)—Jim McCaffrey, president of Ottawa Rough Riders, Monday branded as "all rubbish" published reports that his Big Four football club may be torn by dissension among the players and friction between some players and coach Clem Crowe.

The Riders were beaten 33-24 by Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday, their third straight loss. Hamilton scored all their points before Ottawa got moving late in the third quarter.

"We just played so badly that we couldn't come back in the second half," McCaffrey said. "We just haven't been in there at all in the last three games and when we did start to roll, it was always too late. Dissension in the team didn't beat the Rough Riders on Saturday, they were beaten before this one and there was no suggestion then by anyone that dissension caused the defeats.

"There is no foundation for reports that the team is not pulling together."

Tony Gan Saturday chanted "we want Karpuk." Halfback Pete Karpuk was fired Friday by Crowe for "indifference."

Crowe himself was in seclusion.

LACROSSE STAR DEAD

COMOX, B.C. (CP)—Searchers Monday found the body of Jack Green, 22-year-old Vancouver lacrosse star, missing since Saturday on a hunting trip.

A standout goalie, Green played with Vancouver Pilseners in the Intercity Lacrosse League, and in 1950 led Vancouver Burrards to an upset victory over New Westminster Adanacs and into the Mann Cup final.

Reibel 'The Rebel' Top Scorer In National Hockey League; First Three Teams in Huddle

MONTREAL (CP)—It's a little early yet to give the National Hockey League rookie award to Kurt (Dutch) Reibel, but the way the Kitchener kid has been cutting up it wouldn't be surprising if a number of veteran sports writers in demanding there oughta be a law.

With the season two weeks old, Reibel the rebel, up from Edmonton of the Western Hockey League, has already displaced Gordie Howe himself as the league's leading point-scorer. What's more, he's thumbing his nose at such contenders for the throne as Ted Lindsay and Maurice Richard.

With Howe and Lindsay, it's all in the family. Reibel's 11 points in six games were a combined contribution to the Detroit cause and a mighty factor in putting the Red Wings in first place.

Reibel collected six assists for his first play in the NHL and then splurged with four goals and one assist last week.

Howe Two Points Back

The league's official statistics show Howe with nine points, two behind Reibel. The ace right-winger has been on the point-scoring trail the last three seasons, counted one goal and two assists last week.

Reibel's four-teamer of points last week wasn't Reibel but Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, who helped himself to three goals and three assists. He now has eight points, tied with Lindsay, who added four assists.

After two weeks of campaigning the first three teams are only two points apart. The Red Wings lead with nine, one point ahead of Montreal and two ahead of Toronto. Boston Bruins, with two fewer games played than the Wings and Canadiens, are only split even in the four games, a credit of four points.

Goalie Jacques Plante of New York Chicago Black Hawks have managed only one draw in six starts.

Terry Sawchuk is setting the pace among the goalies with a goals-against team average of 1.33.

Del Flanagan Hands Marcello First Setback

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Veteran Del Flanagan, 149½, St. Paul, Minn., Monday night handed New England welterweight champion Steve Marcello, 147¾, Providence, his first professional boxing defeat with an unanimous 10-round decision.

Marcello had run up 30 victories in a row, but this was his first major test. He staggered Flanagan in the first round with a right hook to the jaw, but that was the only solid punch he landed in the fight. Flanagan began landing freely in the third round with hard right hands and Marcello's low left guard and took charge of the fight the rest of the way.

Turpin Still Puzzle to Fight Mob, 'Bobo' Olson 11-5 Favorite to Win

By JACK HARD

NEW YORK (AP)—What's with Randy Turpin? That's the puzzler for the fight mob trying to stash a winner as odds favoring Bobo Olson hold steady at 11 to 8 in Wednesday's middleweight title bout at Madison Square Garden.

One is a known quantity. The Hawaiian is a busy, cuts fighter without too much wallop. Turpin used to be a rugged, awkward fighter who mishandled Sugar Ray Robinson like he never was handled before. But what is he today?

The British Negro did his best to confuse the experts with his sporadic training at Greenpoint, N.Y. He had three capable sparmates but bored only five times in three weeks. In the last week he worked only once, or, at least, only once publicly.

"He hasn't done enough boxing to suit me," said Jack Solomons, the London promoter. "When I watched him he appeared out of distance (off on his timing)."

"I talked to George (manager George Middleton) on the telephone Monday and he was as happy as could be. He said he didn't want to tell me his weight on the phone but not to worry.

"I was not impressed by the Olson that fought Harrison (Eugene Harrison, who was stopped by Bobo in 1953). Perhaps he has improved since then but a man that can't punch hard can't beat Turpin."

American managers and trainers, baffled by Turpin's strange training routine, are picking Olson almost to a man.

"He's a better fighter," said Whitey Bimstein, veteran trainer. "I saw him (Randy) when he was just a punk kid, boxing Tommy Yarosz. He do anything for other guy does and keep going all night."

"What do we know about Turpin!" said Harry Stickevers, major-domo of Turpin's camp when Olson in the American title bout last June. "I've got to lean to Olson. That's the same way I'm high."

At Weil, Rocky Marciano's manager, advised: "Pick Olson and don't make a mistake." Irving Cohen, manager of Rocky Graziano, a former middle king, also picks Bobo.

Freddie Brown, veteran corner man, casts a solid dissenting vote.

"If like Turpin knock him out," said Brown. "When he hits him he'll know he got hit. Young stuff, speed Olson has time and did nothing about it. Olson is too slow for this fellow."

Las Vegas Track Closes Gates After 11 Days

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Besieged by trouble from opening day, the Desert race track of the Las Vegas Jockey Club has suspended operations after only 11 of its scheduled 67 days.

The last racing day was Sunday, when the attendance was 3,937 and only $122,313 was wagered through the parimutuel machines. The $1,000,000 establishment opened Sept. 4 with fanfare and high hopes. But its take heard were haywire and bettors couldn't determine what they were going to get for their money.

The crowds found the betting too complex, sometimes having to wait a half-hour for the prices to be posted. Attendance dropped.

The sporting crowd is back at the gambling casinos.

Brunnette Stops Bobby Bass

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Joey Brunnette of Sault Ste. Marie Monday night erased an early defeat chalked up against him by Toronto's Bobby Bass in the feature attraction of a Sault Boxing Club card.

Brunnette scored a unanimous decision over Bass in the five-round main event of a six-bout card. The win came after Bass had racked up an early decision over his former ex-professional lightweight opponent.

Brunnette, a former United States Golden Gloves champion, was aggressive throughout, scoring repeatedly with hook-punch blows.

In the semi-final, the Sault's Frankie Nolan earned a draw with Harry Loyola of the Northland Boxing Club of Sudbury. Earlier this month Nolan scored a KO over Lynds but failed to repeat.

United States Grid Fatalities Up to Eight

NEW YORK (AP)—Two high school football players died during the week-end, bringing to eight the total of grid fatalities in the United States since the start of the season.

Other deaths have included three college players and three high school players.

Earl King, a Clay, West Va., high school player, died after being hurt in a game Friday night. Doctors said he died of a concussion and a ruptured spleen.

Lewis Robertson, a 17-year-old Parkersburg, W.Va., high school player died after he left the field at halftime of a Monday night game.

He complained of dizziness at the time. Athletic officials said the boy injured his head a week ago.

Patterson Whips Wes Bascom

BROOKLYN (AP) — Undefeated Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn won a unanimous eight-round decision over Wes Bascom, East St. Louis, Ill., Monday night.

Patterson weighed 186½ and Bascom 175¾.

Patterson, 19-year-old light heavyweight, won his eighth in a row since turning pro after he won the 1952 Olympic middleweight championship.

Canucks Stretch Unbeaten Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks stretched an unbeaten streak to six games Monday night as they clipped Victoria Cougars 4-1 in a Western Hockey League game at Victoria.

Victory moved Canucks into a first-place tie with Calgary Stampeders. Cougars fall to the cellar as they lost their fifth game in six starts.

Bill Wylie with two goals, Jack Gordon and Fred Hucal scored for Vancouver. Colin Kilburn counted for Victoria.

'Handy' Sande Retains Riding Skill But Hasn't Stamina of Younger Days

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Old-timers as well as present-day racing officials and observers agreed today that Earl Sande hasn't lost any of the riding skill that made him the United States' premier jockey a month -Nolan scored a KO over Lynds but failed to repeat.

It is just that at the age of 53 "the handy guy" hasn't the stamina to ride a full day's program every afternoon.

"He still has the quality that makes great riders," said Max Shall Cassidy, steward representing the Jockey Club at New York tracks.

Cassidy is one of racing's experts who saw Sande when he came out of the west in 1918 to begin a career matched by few in the sport.

"From the stands, he looks almost identical to the Sande of 35 years ago, crouching low and with his head down riding all-out to win; you recognize him instantly," Cassidy said.

Looks Good to Aracare

Eddie Arcaro, acknowledged top rider of the present generation, said he couldn't compare the Sande of today with the old Sande.

"I was just starting out west when Sande retired, and I never saw him then. I've talked to a few times since he returned, and I think he'll make the grade, but he looks awfully good on a horse. That it all boils down to the kind of horses he gets. He hasn't had a lot of good ones yet, but we're all rooting for him."

Cassidy was impressed with the grey-haired rider who's back in the saddle because "I need the money" is Clem McCarthy, veteran announcer who described Kentucky Derby and other major races for many years.

"I guess I saw him ride in 200 races, many of his greatest," said Cassidy. "When I saw him again the other day, I could see that he'll teach a lot of the younger riders how it should be done."

Can't Ride as Often

Sande, who said he felt fine, had no illusions about taking six or seven mounts an afternoon at his age.

"Naturally it isn't in the cards to ride as often as I used to, because it is physically impossible. But, my head's the same, and with a couple of mounts a day, I know I can ride well.

"Riding was rougher in the old days, and is much different now that we have movied pictures taken of all races. You have to be so careful not to bother or interfere with another horse."

GAY HEADGEAR

LONDON (CP) — Several newspapers printed a picture of Mrs. Dorila Jillock of Ottawa, wearing a gay, plot-sized top hat tilted over her eyes at a horticultural show here. She is the wife of Wing Commander F. W. Jillock, serving with the RAF on exchange from the RCAF.

Canadian Pro Football Rated High By Chicago Tribune Sports Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—Canada is proving it can afford big-time professional football on a scale comparable to that in the United States, Chicago Tribune sports writer, Edward Prell says in a four-article survey of the Canadian game.

"The sport now is on such a sturdy economic base that players are in general agreement they want no warring pact with the National Football League, which would eliminate with bidding for American stars," Prell writes.

"The Canadians . . . have learned that bulging gate receipts induced by the imports make it financially feasible to bid for them. Two years ago they weren't so sure.

Prell visited Montreal and Winnipeg, saw a couple of games and talked with numerous coaches and players of both the and Prell writes of the Montreal Alouettes and Winnipeg Blue Bombers as "the two best teams in Canada."

BANCROFT

uspend Sentence n Coe Hill Man or Two Years

BANCROFT—A 63-year-old Coe Hill man, who pleaded guilty to charges of false declaration in respect of old age pension cheques was given two years suspended sentence by Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

Crown evidence was given that W. R. O'Brien was awarded the old age pension sometime in March.

He received a cheque for April in May and for the intervening period. This cheque was cashed by Mr. R. C. Rollins of Coe Hill. O'Brien later wrote to the pension authorities stating that he had not received his pension for the above period and another cheque for the same amount was sent to him with instructions that the first cheque, should it be found, was to be returned. The second cheque was also cashed for the accused at Wannamaker's store of Coe Hill.

Defending counsel, J. D. O'Flynn, pleading for leniency in view of the age and hitherto clean record of his client, stated that restitution in full had been guaranteed by a relative of O'Brien.

A pitched battle in the beverage room of the Arlington Hotel, Maynooth, on Friday night Oct. 2, resulted in six Maynooth men being charged with causing a disturbance.

Daniel Scott, Elvin Scott, Kinley Scott, Lawrence Green, Reginald Flynn and Jack Flynn were fined amounts totalling $50 and costs. Harry Muncion of Shawbury was fined $50 and costs on a charge of driving with impaired ability.

Charged with speeding Earl Allison of New Carlow was fined $25 and costs.

Victor Noffke of New Carlow and Gerald Harris of Cobourg, charged with having liquor in public place, each paid fines of $15 and costs.

Grand slams should be approached with caution. Some players are in the habit of stumbling into them with blind faith. Don't step into them because of some wrong information offered by partner.

South was declarer at seven hearts in this deal.

♣K Q

He got that high because partner made a mistake in answering to a signal that asked how many kings he held. Instead of saying he had no kings, north unwittingly said he had two kings.

Opening lead from west was a club. When dummy hand was faced on the table there was only one problem. That was to see that spades should not give up a trick to the opponent side.

For a careful player this was no problem at all. But its homely innocence is overlooked by hasty Harrieta. It is one of those plain examples of acting first and thinking afterwards.

Quickly see that dummy can shuff two spades on the south second and third clubs. Note that the three small south spades must find a safe haven. They must be ruffed in the dummy hand.

Therefore, declarer must not lead trumps, not even one round until his spades are taken care of. After ruffing two dummy spades on south's clubs, the spade ace is cashed and a spade ruffed in dummy.

A diamond return to the ace enters south. Another spade is ruffed in dummy. A diamond ruff by south. Another spade ruff in dummy. And that settles it. South has the rest with nothing but trumps.

West now cries his eyes out because he did not start with a lead of trumps instead of clubs. He thinks a correct opening lead when he led the club. Now he wishes he had made a wrong lead of a trump.

Everybody knows south should have been in seven. Every body knows seven could have been declared. Everybody knows all this now.

Some fun. But not for the opposition.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 21, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Though financial matters, investments and gains through smart business management are favored generally, there are admonitions from several aspects to be cautious, careful in small things.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Extra care and patience advised for those engaged in hazardous activities—especially in handling machinery, tools; in railroading, aeronautics, engineering. Good day for finances.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury and Sun aspects indicate the need for sensible precautions in planning, written matters, signing documents, agreements; also in research, chemistry, etc. With sound management, day can produce good results.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Your Moon warns of moods of feeling sorry for self! Be especially cheerful, helpful and industrious now if you are to achieve as you truly can. Have system, be wisely progressive.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Do not seek advancement or raise in salary with justification. Work, improve, study and your chances will be bettered. Mighty managed interests can show gains.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—A day to put worry and appreciation behind you so that you may think and work with a clearer, happier mind and thus achieve good results more quickly. Avoid legal difficulties where possible. Smile!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Neither stimulating nor wholly auspicious days. Really a day to test your cleverness, astuteness and patience. A friendly Jupiter or two augurs well for sound financial matters.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Rather restricting in some trades—especially those dealing with machinery, tools, etc. A day advances aspects grow better and the morrow is very favorable. Be careful now and benefit then.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your planet in benefic aspect today, gives you an edge in many situations. However, be sensible in all dangerous activities. But do push ahead in your tasks.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Saturn not unfavorably aspected but some other planets are, so it behooves you to proceed carefully in all activities and to remain cheerful, hopeful and ambitious.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Double-check all important matters, work, agreements, commitments lest some errors go unnoticed. Day can be productive and beneficial if managed intelligently. Avoid extremes.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Special caution is advised in sea travel, handling of liquids, chemicals, oils. Caution, too, in important confidential matters. Day may be painful in familiar duties, sound business, work.

YOU BORN TODAY include among many fine assets high ideals, honesty, fairmindedness and general capability. People respect and admire you—if, of course, you are living up to your best characteristics and are striving to correct your failings. You may be too fond of social life, tend to be extravagant. These tendencies can counteract good intentions, actions and thwart the achievement that can and should be yours. Study, keep improving in every way and always pray when confused or tempted. Birthdate: Samuel T. Coleridge, famed poet, philosopher; Alfred Nobel, chemist, engineer, donor of the Nobel Prize fund.

Division of Trieste Region Only Practicable Move--Eden

BY TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Eden said today the division of the troubled Trieste free territory along the present ethnic border "seems to be the only practicable" method of easing Italian-Yugoslav tensions.

Eden told the House of Commons Britain is prepared to speed the movement of troops by either Italy or Yugoslavia if they think any increase tension and incite public opinion.

"If all concerned will recall the over-riding need for unity between nations who should be good neighbors, I believe we may yet find means of bringing both parties to agree to a settlement."

Hope It Again Agrees

Prime Minister Churchill and Eden expressed hope Russia would accept the Western powers' invitation to attend a four-power foreign ministers' meeting in Lugano, Switzerland, about Nov. 8. Eden said he thought "those talks would aid in a solution of the German and Austrian problems.

Touching on other international problems, Eden gave this accounting:

Egypt—Anglo-Egyptian talks on defence of the Suez canal were resumed July 28. "I am glad to make an announcement within the next few days about the progress of those discussions. They have reached an advanced stage."

New Chapter In Iran

Iran—"I hope that with a new chapter has opened . . . There is a new government there which is keen and the Persian people the British government wishes sincerely to extend once more the hand of friendship. The Persian government are aware that we are ready to resume diplomatic relations. If this can be done, it will then be easier for us to discuss together the complex problem of Persian oil."

Korea—Everyone is "considering the armistice has been slow and difficult." The political conference has still to be held.

Holy Land—Britain, the United States and France have asked the UN Security Council to give urgent consideration to the deterioration of relations between Israel and Jordan. "I sincerely hope that both the Israel and Jordan governments will meanwhile refrain from any action which might aggravate the present dangerous situation."

Unexpected Guest Gets a 'Maggie' Memento

A U.S. Navy aviator, Ensign James M. Elster, of Rosedale, Calif., is presented with a replica of the plaque of HMCS Magnificent by Commander Arthur H. Abrams, of Halifax, commander of the Canadian carrier on the ship's flight deck. The U.S. airman was a sudden visitor on board the "Maggie" when his aircraft was caught in a heavy fog during Nato's Exercise Mariner and he had to land on the first flight deck available. The overnight stay of his Sky-raider divebomber merited the ship's brand—a maple leaf and the word "Maggie"—being stencilled on his plane. The visiting pilot soon after returned to his carrier, the USS Bennington.—Central Press Canadian.

Brokerage Offices in Every Corner In 1914 Turner Valley Oil Boom

EDMONTON (CP)—"There was even a Calgary women's stock exchange," said D. I. Ivanatty of Edmonton, chief statistician for the Alberta government, in an address to the Alberta Historical Society.

"Real estate offices blossomed out overnight as oil brokerage houses."

he said in recalling the 1914 Turner valley oil boom.

"Second hand shops displayed posters prominently in their windows indicating a willingness to deal in stocks and bonds. Almost overnight Calgary could boast of more than 100 brokers' offices, where in 1913 there had been only 14.

"There was even a Calgary women's stock exchange. Printing houses worked overtime turning out share certificates in nonexistent and unlocated wells.

"If the crust of one company's bonds showed one gusher, that of its competitor was certain to show two. There was a mad rush to put on leases in the Turner valley area."

Valuable Experience

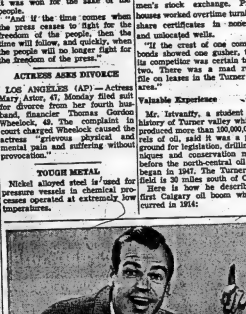
Mr. Ivanatty, a student of the history of Turner valley which has produced more than 100,000,000 barrels of oil, said it was a proving ground for legislative, drilling techniques and conservation methods before the north-central oil booms began in 1947. The Turner valley field is 36 miles south of Calgary.

Here is how he describes the first Calgary oil boom which occurred in 1914:

It was on a Thursday night that the news of the big Dingman strike was reported. On Friday every available motor vehicle in Calgary was forced into service carrying hundreds of men to the foothills to the Dingman well.

"Enough was seen to enable the pilgrims from Calgary to return home with the most optimistic reports of the discovery and stimulated with determination to make their city the greatest industrial city on the map.

"The whole downtown district was swathed in cotton streamers bearing the names and prices of new issues of stock.



"The main streets where the oil companies had established themselves were the scene of the wildest and most irresponsible kind of delirium. All day long men and women jostled each other in an attempt to gain entrance to the oil brokers' offices where shares must be purchased. Shares were sold all the way from 10 cents to $1.25 each.

"In the ticket office of one of the railway companies, an oil company had succeeded in renting a small space for stock-selling purposes. People were lined up for yards outside the door trying to get in to spend their money.

"Selling of railway tickets had been side-tracked entirely. Waste-paper baskets stood about the floor conspicuously filled with cheques and paper money. The entire staff was receiving money from the crazy mob who merely demanded shares and receipts for its money."

"I always wanted to be a photographer!"

"My hobby is photography, and from the sale of photos, plus what I saved from my salary as a grocery clerk, I have been able to build up a nice bank balance at The Dominion Bank. Now I'm ready to launch myself as a full time photographer."

Your own business, personal security, a new home, holidays—many things can be yours, when you practise, thrift the pleasant way—by regular savings at The Dominion Bank. For advice on any financial matter, come in and see our manager.

Nova Scotia Premier Will Unveil Plaque

EDINBURGH (CP) — Canadian publisher Roy Thomson, in British on a month's visit, arrived from London today to attend a special Canadian-flavored reception at Edinburgh Castle.

Guest of honor at the ceremony, to be held tonight, will be Premier Angus Macdonald of Nova Scotia. The premier will unveil a plaque commemorating Scotland's special ties with Nova Scotia.

The plaque refers to the time in the 17th century when King James VI of Scotland empowered the Scottish baronets of Nova Scotia to take possessions of their lands in the new world colony, long since freed of any distant bitelage. There are still more than 100 Nova Scotia baronets in Scotland with titles—but no lands.

Italian Divisions Face Yugoslavs On 90-Mile Border

Tito to Regard Giving Italy Part of Trieste 'Aggression'

Motorists Will Be Affected By New Rulings

TORONTO (CP)—Thousands of Ontario motorists may be affected by two Supreme Court rulings Tuesday by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale. Each declared the failure to pay law for the province on charges laid under the Highway Traffic Act.

Mr. Justice Gale, ruling in each hearing on a stated case from a magistrate, held that a charge of careless driving must disclose some offence and that a person cannot be charged with failure to yield the right-of-way.

The careless driving case involved Max Wehberg of Toronto, acquitted by magistrate W. W. McKeown on a charge under section 39 of the act with "unlawfully driving . . . without due care and attention, or without reasonable consideration for other persons using the highway."

Magistrate McKeown agreed with defence counsel D. Lorne Gales Wehberg's trial that such charges created two offences but pointed out magistrate Thomas Elmore disagreed with that opinion. Mr. Justice Gale agreed that the fundamental principle of criminal law was that the information "must disclose one offence only."

The right-of-way case was submitted by Crown Attorney J. C. Dunlop of Hamilton county. He had ruled with Russell Higgins had "unlawfully failed to give the right-of-way" to another car which was proceeding.

Mr. Justice Gale said magistrate Dunlap was in error.

Mr. Dunlop said that failure to yield the right-of-way may create a civil liability but that in the case before behind held negligent. But, Mr. Dubin added, the act does not make it an offence punishable by a fine.

Brantford Has Fifth of Workers Unemployed

BRANTFORD (CP)—Nearly 20 per cent of the estimated 15,000-man working force in Brantford and district was out of work although the city is experiencing one of its biggest building booms.

Some 2,944 persons, including 526 women, were on the unemployed list as of Oct. 16. Many of these depend on the two main industries in the area—farm implement factories and the textile industry.

Both industries are hit by lack of orders. Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., has shut Flow Co., Ltd., has been closed to its 1,800 employees since July 31.

There are about 12,000 residents in Brantford and district.

The employment situation was termed serious by United Automobile, mobile Workers (CIO-CCL) Monday night. Robert Lockyer, secretary of Local 88, and city council to send a delegation to Ottawa in search of other possible work projects or an increase in unemployment insurance payments through the winter.

Some local officials do not consider the problem serious. A provincial employment office here said Tuesday that most of the unemployed will be back working before long.

The Jockshutt company will take about 300 men back about Dec. 1. Massey will follow.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Fairly cloudy and warm today and days have followed one another for the most part in the Province of Ontario and the eastern half of the United States. Slight of a change in this weather pattern appear on this morning's charts.

Cool Pacific air has pushed its way over the Rockies and eastward into the Prairies. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms have been occurring in the leading edge of this invading air. This band of weather is forecast to cross northwestern Ontario Thursday.

TRIESTE (CP)—An uneasy quiet lay over this disputed free territory today in the wake of new threats by Yugoslavia's President Tito and demonstrations by students in Italy.

Three Italian divisions face Yugoslav forces along the 90-mile long frontier, manoeuvering on both sides of Italy's warning that his government would regard the handing over of any part of the free territory to Yugoslavia as "aggression" whether Italy sent troops to the area or not.

Yugoslavia and Italy have long been vying for the territory, and the dispute entered a new and crucial phase nearly two weeks ago when Britain and the United States decided to move out and hand over Zone A of the territory to Italy. Zone A has been under Anglo-American administration since the end of the Second World War.

Presses Withdrawal

British and American forces continued today to move equipment to the docks at the port of Trieste for transport, part of the British withdrawal, adding to the anxiety of the residents.

In Rome, students broke out of their classrooms for the second straight day to take to traffic in demonstrations for Trieste. About 4,000 Italian students, mostly university students, carrying Italian and Trieste flags and shouting "down with Tito," marched through downtown Rome as police watched, but did not interfere.

Youths of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement scattered leaflets calling on Italy to stand firm against "Yugoslavia, the ally of Russia."

Police, backed by a few troops, continued to guard the offices of the British, U. S. and Russian embassies and the Yugoslav legation.

Troops Move In

The Italian defence ministry announced Tuesday night that two more divisions, armed with American-made tanks have joined an infantry division already dug in along the Trieste frontier.

Italian sources claimed the Yugoslavs have strengthened their forces and automatic weapons to all shle-hold of the Italian and Yugoslav side of the frontier.

The United Nations Security Council meanwhile voted to postpone debate on the dispute until Nov. 2 to give Britain, the U. S. and France time to work out a solution through direct diplomatic action.

900 Railway Clerks Strike

DETROIT (AP)—Railway express shipments were at a standstill at 900 members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks (AFL) at midnight.

The strike was called by General M. Harrison, international president, who ordered members of a company-wide effort by the union to raise the hourly pay scale of all union-represented employees of Railway Express Agency, Inc., from the present $1.40 base pay for a 30-cent hourly increase.

Richard J. Kowalski, head of the local's protective committee, said he expects a complete tie-up of freight here because all express handlers, drivers and clerks belong to the union.

Returning Dutch Prisoners Say Canadian Airman Captive in Russia

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (CP)—Dutch former prisoners-of-war returning after almost 10 years in Russian prison camps say they think a Canadian is among prisoners still held by the Russians.

The repatriates said a Canadian "air force colonel" is being held at Russia's Cherbakov camp, but they were unable to give his name. They identified him as having a slightly dislocated lower jaw.

The Dutch say he is a full colonel. A Montreal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fischer, said last week that they had heard their son, who was conscripted into the German army during the Second World War, may still be a prisoner of the Russians. They said they met him in Yugoslavia when the war started and was drafted by the Germans.

The Dutch repatriates returning today were captured by Soviet forces during the Second World War after they had been conscripted into German units. They said at least two Americans and two Canadians were among the prisoners still being held along with the unidentified Canadian.

TWO FREIGHTERS IN COLLISION IN ST. LAWRENCE

Both Vessels Damaged But Nobody Is Injured

QUEBEC (CP)—A small Italian freighter collided with a heavy Montreal-bound Norwegian freighter early today in the St. Lawrence river 31 miles west of here. Department of transport signals say no one was injured.

Reports reaching here said the ships collided in dense fog near Portneuf, Que., 130 miles east of Montreal. The Italian ship was identified as the 1,450-ton Carla Maria G and the Norwegian ship as the 7,258-ton Stugard.

The Stugard bound out of Montreal and was believed to be carrying grain. The Stugard was bound for Montreal from Halifax. Reloaded Later

The Maria ran herself aground to avoid sinking following the collision. The Stugard remained afloat. She saw that the Italian ship was in no danger; then proceeded to Montreal.

Later the Maria freed herself and proceeded to Quebec. A tug set out from here to tow her to port if necessary.

At Narrow Spot

The collision occurred at 4.40 a. m. EST at a point where the St. Lawrence river is less than two miles wide.

The collision was reported to the coast guard in Quebec City. Quebec, a spot where the river winds between Portneuf county on the north shore and Lotbiniere county on the south.

The Stugard was reported to have struck the Maria near the bow on the starboard side. Damage was not immediately estimated.

The Stugard was reported to have a large dent in her bow, but was not taken water. While none heavily damaged the Maria was able to proceed under her own power.

The Maria was involved in a collision 70 miles off Halifax in August with the Shelburne schooner Robertson. The Robertson's men abandoned ship and were picked up by the Maria.

Reports reaching here were that the Maria and the Stugard collided last year at here and that both ships remained afloat.

More Canadians at Full-Time Work Than Anytime in History

OTTAWA (CP)—More Canadians were at full-time work in mid-September than at any other time in Canada's history.

The government's monthly report on employment today showed an estimated 4,896,000 employed more than 33 hours a week. This topped the June record by 8,000.

The report said the annual seasonal decline in employment set in immediately after the peak was reached, by the end of September, employment had fallen oft by more than 100,000.

The report added:

"By Oct. 1, however, it was apparent that labor demand had reached its peak and had begun normal seasonal decline. On the other hand, labor supply declined during September as many students and other short-time seasonal workers withdrew from the labor force."

The number of persons without jobs and looking for work was lower on Sept. 19, 84,000, against 92,000 a month earlier.

The report said all regions except the Atlantic area shared in the September improvement over the August employment total.

British White Paper Charges Leftist Fire Plot in Guiana

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — British Guiana governor expressed surprise today over official British charges that the colony's ousted leftist government plotted to seize power and overthrow the government.

But officials of the People's Progressive party, which controlled the government before British revoked the colony's constitution Oct. 9 and fired six cabinet officials, have said the accusations were an imperialist - inspired concoction designed to win London's support and its representatives in the colony.

The charges were made in a white paper issued in London Tuesday. The British government said its information came "from reliable sources" who were not named in Report.

The white paper said British troops sent to Georgetown foiled plans to turn the colony into a totalitarian state. It listed 11 charges against ousted Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and his regime, highlight from the fire plot to plan to rewrite the colony's school textbooks with a pro-Red bias.

In Frankfurt, Germany, en route to London, Jagan today labelled the white paper charges "pure nonsense." Asserting the PPP has been framed by the British, he declared "our chief aim is just to continue the process of democratic living conditions of our people."

Seeks Cause

Jagan said he is en route to the British capital to see Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton "to find out the exact cause" of his ouster and the suspension of the constitution.

The white paper asserted the fire plot was to be put into effect if the colony's constitution were revoked, its left-wing ministers arrested or if Jagan's cabinet were challenged by Britain's governor, Sir Alfred Savage.

Fog Disrupts Power In Brantford Region

BRANTFORD (CP) — Dirt-laden fog knocked out 25-cycle power service over a wide area for several hours this morning. Consumers on 60-cycle power were not affected.

Hydro officials said the combination of moisture and dust particles caused arcing on poles on feeder lines to catch fire.

Police had to direct traffic as traffic lights went out. Many factories were at a standstill. Most circuits were restored by about 8 a. m.

Real Wild West Gunfight Leads To Death of Man

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—A 21-year-old farmer died today of four bullet wounds pumped into his body during a "real wild west" gunfight between two men over a lonely road near here last week.

Albert Belisle, a farmer at Val d'Or, Que., 65 miles east of here, was fatally shot in the fight police said broke out during the Sept. 26 robbery attempt last Wednesday.

Roland Dumont, 32-year-old trapper, was charged with murder and held without bail.

Police said Belisle had appeared in court and offered to sell him some high-grade gold. That night the two men went out in Dumont's car to where the ore was supposedly hidden.

Belisle is said to have pulled a gun on Dumont and ordered him to hand over his money. Dumont grabbed a gun and shot Belisle as they were fired; three by Belisle and six by Dumont.

Regular Steel Mill Prices Holding Firm

NEW YORK (AP)—Although at least 10 American steel producers have trimmed premium prices for some steel mill prices in the United States are holding firm, Iron Age said today.

"The steel market actually appears stronger than it has for several weeks," said the national metal weekly. "Some buyers are returning competitive bids died down," Iron Age maintained that the steel market is "fundamentally sound" and "outlook is for better than-average business at least through the first half of 1954."

The publication stressed, however, that with three years of gunplus-bolter shortage behind them, many buyers have become "extremely cost-conscious." Once again they are making prices more important than delivery, and premium prices are "falling like tenpins."

Battle of County Courthouse Takes On New Phase

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The card-playing council of Essex county took the offensive Tuesday as the battle of the county courthouse entered a new phase.

A few weeks ago, Judge J. A. Legris said the council should quit playing cards and get down to business by replacing the present courthouse, which he termed antiquated and overcrowded.

Council, sensitive, finally admits a yen for card-playing—in recess periods only—agreed Tuesday to build a courthouse. But it is not forgetting the need for a new building. Councillors took time out to fire a few barbs at the judge.

Reeve William Morris of Tilbury North suggested that the courthouse is "perhaps in better shape than the critic."

"We have spent money on the roof, but I wouldn't call it a palace," Reeve Morris said the reeve. "The ungentlemanly way in which he has been handled by the judge has given me some warping in the interior of the critic."

Reeve George Hayes of St. Clair Beach, emerging from "our usual recess game of cards," presented a set of tiddly-winks to the council and suggested that Judge Legris might care to take on some members in a friendly match.

There was no comment from the judge.

Displays No Emotion At Court Appearance

CORNWALL (CP)—Peter Balcombe, A. Gilles of Cornwall, who was arraigned in police court today was remanded without plea for a week on a charge of murdering Marie Anne Carrier last Wednesday.

Balcombe showed no emotion when Magistrate P. C. Bergeron of Cornwall read the charge. The accused, a second lieutenant stationed at Valcartier, Que., was dressed in army trousers and a dark blue sport shirt.

He was led back to Cornwall jail several minutes after he was brought before Magistrate Bergeron.

Counsel Named

Balcombe was represented by George A. Gilles of Cornwall, who was asked by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Law Association to be his counsel. The Ontario government's select committee on reform institutions, meeting here, requested the association to supply counsel.

He had been in custody since Monday, but the police found, on a search warrant, 36 miles west of here, last Thursday.

10 M.P.H. Limit On Trains' Speed In City Urged

KITCHENER (CP) — Trains travel at "reasonable and advisable speeds" through Kitchener, a coroner's jury found last night in urging a city speed limit of 10 miles an hour.

The verdict which attached no blame to anyone came at an inquest into the death of Kitchener resident Mrs. Al. of Kitchener killed Oct. 8 when his car and a CNR passenger train collided at the Strange street crossing.

Witnesses placed the speed of the train at 40 or 45 miles an hour.

Tatham To Build New High School, Cost Is $527,844

Price Considerably Less Than Was Anticipated

The tender of the Tatham Company Ltd., of Belleville at $527,844 for the construction of a new 25-roomed high school was accepted Tuesday night by members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. The tender was the lowest of 13 bids received.

The second lowest tender was submitted by the C. Eastwood Construction Company, also of Belleville, while that submitted by Eastwood Construction of Peterborough, was third. Bidding by contractors was said to be very close, considering the size of the project.

Board members were enthusiastic over the price of the successful bidder, the contract price being considerably lower than had been anticipated. Approval of up to $650,000 had been given by the Department of Municipal Affairs and by the Ontario Department of Education. This approval was for the complete cost including equipment, but excluding the site.

Board Secretary Roy Dulmage said the board would requisition city council for $650,000, the amount $152,000 less than had been anticipated. The $650,000 will include school equipment, architects' fees and other costs, but will not include the cost of the site.

23-Room School

Plans call for the construction of a 23-roomed two storey brick school to be built south of College Street and west of King George School. The 23 rooms will include a double gymnasium, general shops and a cafeteria.

Government grants of $300,000 on a basis of $2,000 per class room, or on a total of $690,000, will be received. The board previously noted that final approval of the contract with the Tatham Company Ltd., would be contingent with all conditions, including approval of the elementary grants, the bond, being met by the contractors.

Construction is expected to commence immediately, final approval by the Department of Education and Municipal Board is given and the local school board hope the building will be ready for partial occupancy by the opening of the school term in September 1954.

Government grants toward the construction of the new school are figured on the basis of the pupil ratio of the urban and rural areas making up the district, while net costs of the school are based on assessment. Last year's pupil ratio for the school area was 72 percent for the city of Belleville and about 28 percent for the three rural municipalities of Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Ameliasburg.

Negotiators Fail To Agree On Suez Canal Base

CAIRO (Reuters)—The British embassy today said Anglo-Egyptian negotiators on the future of the Suez canal base have failed to reach agreement but will hold another meeting on the issue in Cairo.

The two sides had met today for what was regarded as an all-important session in their prolonged talks.

The embassy said a further meeting will be held but no date has been considered the position. No details on today's session were given.

Information here is that the main points to be settled are the terms under which British forces would be allowed to return in event of another war. The Egyptians are also reluctant to let uniformed British technicians remain as temporary maintenance crews.

Windsor Hunter Circulating Duck Story to Friends That Sounds Fishy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Vincent Westfall is circulating a duck story and friends say it sounds a little fishy.

They refuse to swallow the story hook, line and sinker, as the saying goes, but Westfall insists that the hook, line, sinker, rod and reel and a creditable witness to back up his story.

It goes something like this:

Vincent, an industrial relations official at Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Ltd., went fishing with his father-in-law, Cleve Mousseau on nearby Lake St. Clair. While cruising in their motor boat they came upon a wounded duck.

They decided to put the bird out of its misery by killing it with a stick.

Upon pulling the duck into the boat, Vincent noticed a fish hook and fish leader hanging from its bill. He pulled the rest of the line from the water and found an eight-pound pike on the other end. The duck had apparently grabbed the lure and reel attached to the other end.

"I'll be the strangest fishing trip I ever had," he said. "We got about 40 perch between us and came back with three rods and reels after starting out with only two."

They also had a duck dinner.

Vincent's guess is that the wounded duck probably picked up the fish hook while diving for food. The rod had presumably been lost overboard by a fisherman.

Duke Thinks Car Designers Not So Smart

LONDON, (AP) — The Duke of Edinburgh opened the British motor show today and said he thinks it odd that designers haven't solved some simple problems of motorist comfort.

"Why is it for instance that there always seems to be a handle or knob just opposite one's right knee?" he asked.

"Is it not surely a little research in a wind tunnel will do away with the draught coming through from a quarter of an inch of open window."

Sir A. Lascelles To Retire After 33 Years' Service

LONDON (CP)—Sir Alan Lascelles, probably the only man who has received knighthood on a train, is to retire as the Queen's private secretary after 33 years of service with the Royal Family, a Lascelles, will be succeeded at the end of the year by Sir Michael Adeane, it was announced from Buckingham Palace.

Lascelles, known to friends as Tommy, first joined the palace secretariat in 1920. From 1931 to 1935 he was private secretary to the Earl of Bessborough, then governor-general of Canada, and brought the proposals for the Ottawa trade conference of 1932.

He accompanied King George VI and Queen Elizabeth on the royal tour of Canada in 1939 and it was then that the accolade of knighthood was dispensed in unusual circumstances. Sir Alan was knighted by the late king on a train proceeding to Washington from Niagara Falls, Ont.

Adeane, 42, has been assistant private secretary since 1952.

Insurance Topic Of Talk To Sales, Ad Club

Frank Wilson, past president of the Toronto Sales and Ad Club, addressed a meeting of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club in the Belleville Club Tuesday evening. His topic was insurance.

The speaker suggested local business men on all forms of insurance and stressed the need to maintain points. He cautioned that every business man should carry as much insurance on his place of business as he would wish to have if he were putting it up for sale.

The speaker also warned public garage owners against keeping gasoline in open containers and more than the maximum safety amount. Infringement of these regulations voids fire insurance coverage in the case of fire. Mr. Wilson pointed out insurance coverage on loss of business revenue due to fire and wind as well. He illustrated his talk with many humorous stories which made the evening entertaining as well as educational.

Harold Myers introduced the speaker and Harry Brant voiced the thanks of the club to Mr. Wilson. Mr. Myers presided and conducted as chairman.

Special guests from the Kingston Sales and Ad club were present. They were: Don Neville, president; Ken Hamilton, vice-president; and directors, Ron Rawson, L. Jones and Harold Foy. Gifts were presented to the guests by the Belleville club.

A dinner was served before the business part of the program and Jimmy Cornell entertained at the piano.

Coroner's Jury Says Man's Death Was Accidental

Probing the death of Carlton Wood, of Redcliffville, who was killed on the night of October 13th on the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge, a coroner's jury Tuesday evening returned a verdict of accidental death.

The adjourned hearing was held before Coroner Dr. J. Ross Sell Scott with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown.

The jury found that Wood had come to his death as result of injuries received when he was struck by a car fell under the wheels of an east-bound train.

Claire Dingman, Front street, Thurlow, a driver of the car that had been walking across the C.P.R. bridge shortly after midnight on the night in question when he spotted a "heap" lying at the side of the tracks. He had run home and returned with his brother-in-law and the two men had determined what he had seen was a body. Police were then notified.

James Allen, C.P.R. station master, testified that the eastbound trains had passed over the bridge just before midnight.

Police Inspector J. Claire Hayes said in his opinion the victim had fallen into the side of a passing east-bound train and had possibly been cut to the track between two cars. Locomotives of both trains, which had passed had been inspected and there was no indication the man had been struck by any machine. Crewmen of both trains had seen nothing. The body had been discovered lying on the north side of the track.

Allan Thrasher Held By Police For Break-in

The suspicions of a cab driver who saw his fare enter a garage at 1:30 in the morning, resulted in the arrest early today of Allan Thrasher, 33, of Holloway, who had been charged with provincial police with breaking and entering McKeown's Garage at Foxboro, a quantity of cigarets and chocolate bars were said taken from the garage.

The Belleville cabby told police that his fare had requested him to drive to McKeown's Garage at Foxboro, which he said was operated by his father-in-law. After his fare got out of the cab the driver became suspicious, returned to Belleville and notified the police.

Police checked in the area and apprehended Thrasher as he was walking on the Madoc road three miles north of Foxboro. Entry to the garage was made by breaking a window.

Provincial Constable Robertson investigated.

New Positions Will Commence November 1st

Duties of the recently-appointed principal for the new high school to be erected in the city, and of the assistant principal for the present Belleville Collegiate Institute will commence on November 1st, it was decided last night by members of the Bay of Quinte High School Board.

At a special meeting held last week board members named Leslie E. Wright as principal for the new high school to be built on College street, and Gordon Stirling as assistant principal at the present collegiate institute. It was then felt that due to the great amount of detail in planning administration for the new school that the two appointees should commence duties as soon as possible.

Applications of religious denominations for the use of the Collegiate auditorium will be considered by the board on the merits of each application, it was decided. The board rescinded a previous motion which set a number of policy ruled out the use of the auditorium by organizations of a religious denominational nature.

At the same time a committee of board chairman Clifford Barber with board member J. Durnin, C. Campbell and Wm. McKechan was named to meet with officials of the Belleville Theatre Guild to discuss installation of a special type of lighting for the school auditorium stage. The lighting installation would be paid for on a co-operative basis with the Theatre Guild. The committee will report to the board.

McIntosh Brothers was awarded a contract to install drapes and plastic blackout curtains for three collegiate classrooms at a cost of $225.

Canadian Seaman Commended For Rescue Work

By MARTIN DIER
Canadian Press Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)— Leading Seaman Bruce R. McDonald, 24, of Dartmouth, N.S., was commended Tuesday for the part he played in rescue operations following the crash of a Royal Canadian United States Navy patrol boat.

The plane crashed Monday night within 50 yards of the newly-commissioned Canadian frigate Prestonian, of which McDonald is a crew member. Six of the 10 persons aboard the plane were rescued. Bodies of the other four were recovered by divers.

McDonald was commended for his "prompt action" by Capt. Allen Smith, commanding officer of the United States naval station here.

McDonald was coxswain of a small boat which put out after the plane crashed in St. George's harbor here, where the Prestonian was moored, after attempting a landing at Kindley field. It was on a routine training flight from the U.S. air base at Ramey, Puerto Rico.

McDonald told The Canadian Press he saw five-men floating in the water. He brought the motor cutter alongside one of the survivors, who said his back was broken.

McDonald said he did not lift the man into the cutter for fear of aggravating the injuries, but towed him to a bigger U.S. air force crash boat which had reached the scene.

The Canadian seaman then headed the cutter back through the oil-slicked water to pick up three more men, all injured. They were also taken to the crash boat.

Tenders Will Soon Be Called For Sir Winston Churchill School

Tenders for the construction of the proposed new Sir Winston Churchill public school to be built on MacDonald Avenue, are expected to be called within the next two weeks, it was stated today by Ley L. Mills, superintendent of Belleville public schools.

Sketch plans for the new school to be built in two stages, have been approved by the school board and were taken to Toronto yesterday by Mr. Kells for approval by the Department of Education. When this approval is received detailed plans will be drawn and tenders for the construction of the school will be called.

Plans call for the construction of a five-room school with auditorium and playroom, the second stage of construction planned to take place as needed would add an additional six classrooms. The completed school would be similar to the Queen Elizabeth School.

Tribute Paid

At the regular meeting held Monday evening public school board members paid tribute to the unselfish service in the interests of children of the city that had been given by the late board member, Harry Knott, Mr. Orliff Lloyd was named as board member to finish out Mr. Knott's unexpired term of office.

Mr. Kells advised the board that city council and the Municipal Board had given final approval of $168,000 for the completion of the Prince Charles School where an addition is now being added. The Department of Education had approved $104,000 for grant purposes with an indication that further consideration would be given to any expense above this amount when the building was completed.

The board named H. R. Frink, vice principal at Prince Charles School, to the principals' staff. It is expected that Mr. Frink will be given charge of a school at the new term in September, 1954. In the meantime the addition of another principal was indicated following completion of the proposed Sir Winston Churchill School.

Privilege Denied

The board denied the W.C.T.U. the privilege of entering schools to lecture the pupils. The board advised that principals had been authorized to receive and make use of any films the W.C.T.U. wished to make available for instructional purposes.

A replacement piano for Queen Mary School was purchased for $225, while a record-player radio was purchased for $95 and purchase of a bench saw, stand and equipment was authorized at about $175.

The board was commended by Chief Central Fire Prevention for excellent attention given to safety measures observed during his inspection of schools during Fire Prevention Week. Certain additional safety measures recommended by the chief were authorized to be carried out.

Mr. Berton Fitzgibbon and Vernon Burt were given the contract to clear a major part of the new school site on MacDonald Ave. for the Sir Winston Churchill School with trees over eight inches in diameter to be left standing throughout the site. The amount of the contract was $1,123.

Budget committees of the board will consider their 1954 budgets as soon as possible and a special meeting of the board will be called for this purpose. Presentation of their 1954 budget early in December of this year was requested by city council.

The South Hastings Educational Association was given the privilege of holding its annual meeting in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra School on Nov. 13th.

Suggests U.S. Invite Canada To Be Partner

BOSTON (AP)—A Canadian industrialist suggested Tuesday night the United States invite Canada to be a partner in its role as world leader and begin by eliminating "their greatest source of irritation" — tariff barriers between the two countries.

D. W. Ambridge, president of Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., told the Boston conference on distribution:

"Let us remember that from our two nations must come most of the industrial power which will be necessary if we are to prevent unimaginable disasters. . . .

"No nation, however great, can undertake the enormous responsibilities of world leadership without friends upon whom absolute reliance can be placed."

Ambridge said the United States should look north for its partner and it would find Canada "whose word is as good as its bonds and dollars."

Canada has the same fundamental philosophy of life, Ambridge said, and "has never gone begging for its bread."

'I Had Enough of Their Life' Says Repatriated U.S. Soldier

SEOUL (AP)—An American war prisoner who quit the Communists and was returned to the United Nations command today told a press conference: "I had enough of their life."

Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, 25, of Big Stone Gap, Va., refused to answer almost every controversial question about why he first elected to stay with the Reds.

"I did not want to stay with the Communists any more," he said when asked why he had changed his mind.

Dickenson was among 23 American war prisoners who originally refused repatriation. The others are being held by Indian troops in the Panmunjom neutral zone pending a final decision on their fate.

Dickenson told reporters after he was returned to the Allies that it is "more than likely" that some of the other Americans will change their minds.

However, he refused to tell dozens of correspondents at an evacuation hospital here anything about his former comrades.

Dickenson was asked if force was used to convert him to communism or to keep him from returning home.

"I don't think I should answer that," he replied.

Dickenson, a former farmer, appeared slightly bewildered and asked after about 10 minutes that the interview be halted. Then he agreed to a brief appearance before newsreel and television cameras.

Not Briefed

He said he had not been briefed by army officers before meeting with correspondents. The decision not to answer questions was his own.

He declined to answer when asked if his return had been delayed because he was afraid of prisoners in his neutral zone compound.

Dickenson said he had received no mail since he was turned over to Indian custody nearly a month ago.

Two Persons Killed

BARRIE (CP) — Two persons were killed and four others injured in a two-car collision five miles north of here early today.

Killed were John A. Rawn, 39, and Frances Day, about 35, Barrie, passengers in the same car. William Kelly, 25, of Toronto and Claude Murray, 23, of Barrie, suffered minor injuries.

Leslie Brooks, 61, of Toronto and Norma Ferrier, 18, of nearby Midhurst, passengers in the other car, also received minor injuries.

The Brooks car collided with the other as it turned out of a driveway.

Asked how the Indian guards treated him, he replied:

"They are neutral."

All he wants to do when he returns home is "meet my folks." He said he had a girl when he left but "She sent me 'Dear John' "—a soldier's way of saying she had another boy friend.

Dickenson, a rifleman with the 1st Cavalry Division, was captured Nov. 5, 1950.

He enlisted in the army on March 31, 1950, and arrived in Korea less than two months before he was captured.

THIS IS NAVY WEEK

Canadians, generally speaking, do not regard their country as a maritime nation.

In that they err. Without having been able to discover any reliable statistics, we would hazard a guess that Canada has the longest coast-line of any nation in the world. True, much of this coast-line is yoked by unnavigable ice for months at a time with the Pole and regions beyond. Still, it exists. Add to this expanse of seashore the shores of the Great Lakes and much more than three-quarters of Canada's perimeter lies on the water-front.

This geographical fact is offset by the expanse of the country. For most Canadians, the sea lies far away. Only in times of war do we become acutely aware of our dependence on it.

One of the minor miracles of the Second Great War was the manner in which a Canadian Navy was manned by men many of whom had never sniffed salt air until shortly before their little vessels sailed forth to guard great convoys on their voyages across the perilous Atlantic.

The Royal Canadian Navy, which blossomed from little more than a pinnace into an-actuality during those grim years, is now observing a "Week." During "Navy Week" the Navy is seeking to familiarize the Canadians of its current size and strength, its ships and personnel, its plans and hopes.

More than 100 warships are now in some stage of being, either in commission, under conversion to newer and harder-hitting types, under construction or in reserve. This growing armada requires an increase in personnel and in funds. Most of the latter has since demobilization, the strength of the RCN in officers and men passed 16,000. There is an active reserve of more than 6,000 men and women and there are also numbers on the retired list, emergency list men and cadets.

It would be erroneous to say that the Canadian Navy, despite its growing strength, is battle fleet. There are no "battle-wagons," but the Navy does boast aircraft carriers which, in this air age, are generally regarded as capital ships. Most of the vessels are designed primarily for the task of keeping the sea-lanes open for commerce, rather than for battle with an enemy fleet. Nobody who was old enough to read the newspapers during the years the Second Great War will conceive such a task to be unimportant.

FISH—LUCKY AND POOR

A quarter of a million cans of beer are to be dumped into the Gulf of Mexico.

"The lucky fish," exclaimed the office's youngest philosopher.

That is the beauty of youth. It always looks on the bright side of things. While youth was entranced by the fortune of the Gulf fish, (without even pausing to consider where they would acquire the necessary alcohol-content required to enjoy Lucullan bonanza) age was contemplating sourly the plight of the poor fish, can-opener equipped though they may be, who must stand on the shore and watch their wealth sink below the waves.

Byron was wrong. Man not only marks the earth with ruin—and stupidity—but refuses to stop at the shore. The wrecking of those 250,000 cans of beer is distinctly his deed—and in a too-familiar pattern.

There is nothing wrong with the beer. Nor with the cans themselves. It is the label on the can which has a fatal flaw. It fails to carry the word "Florida" A machine broke down and did not print that tag. And because there is no "Florida" on the can the beer cannot be sold.

World all us. And not a moment too soon, either, considering the necessity of avoiding profanity in this great family journal.

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION

The Ontario Liberal Party will choose a leader at its annual meeting next April.

The Liberals' choice will be of importance to the whole province—not to the Liberal party members.

No government is better than its opposition and no opposition party can be a truly effective one unless it is prepared to assume the reins of office if the people, at the polls, decide to place the responsibility of government in its hands.

No party is ready to rule until it has selected its leader. There are instances, as with the British Columbia's Social Credit party, where the selection has been made after the election, rather than before it. But this is an unsatisfactory state. Electors are entitled to know the identity of the man the party proposes to instal in the office of premier.

HOW ABOUT BARBED WIRE?

Toronto citizens who own cottages in Algonquin Park are indignant. Their cottages have been raided by bears. A great amount of damage has been done. The owners are now asking the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to take some action. The Canadian Press despatch does not say what kind of action the owners advocate. Perhaps they made no suggestions.

A suggestion—what about barbed wire entanglements? Erected at the cottage-owners' expense, of course. That should keep the bears out.

THE LADIES' AID

Without the ladies, church would be	Without the ladies, persons all
Deprived of fine embroidery.	For aid in vain would often call.
The surplices by choir boys worn	The heedless men would come
Would frequently be soiled and torn	and go
Without the ladies' thoughtful care	And little care or interest show.
The altars would of flowers be bare	For church and home, alike are both the men
Who'd get the dinners now and then	There's not a temple in the land
For those club meetings of the men	But needs the work by women planned
And pour the coffee in each cup	They give their thought and time and care
And later pack the dishes up?	To make God's house a dwelling fair.

Picton lost the Ontario intermediate O.R.F.U. championship when defeated at Guelph by the Southampton Tabernacle by a score of 6 to 5. The game was played in Guelph Agricultural Grounds. In referring to the game Ken Colling, Sports Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer says: "Defeated but in no way disgraced is the lot of the Vanover managed crew. They came from no where and forced the champions to a three game series for the provincial title; as Andrew S. Brown would say, "Ain't that sumpin?" To show their appreciation of the season's showing of their team, the citizens of Picton will tender the team a banquet on the evening of October 27 at which baseball experience will be present. Thanks to the business and professional men of Prince Edward County the baseball fans in Ontario were able to listen in a running radio account of the first half of the game given impartially by Wes McKnight of radio station C.F.R.B. and to the second half which was well described by Geo. H. Carven in this connection Ken Colling says "In a previous column we forgot to congratulate Geo. Carven upon effort of the Picton Gazette on his broadcasting efforts. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There has been a certain nicepess about Canadian history that may have escaped the notice of the international back of us, and may suit the present generation But it is likely to bore future generations. Future boys will not be the young son of a lively family. The older brothers had been born in Britain, but the United States, in their youth, weren't painfully nice. But by the time Canada was to give out of childhood into youth, the old fire brethren had settled down. They developed all the characteristics of the reformed scalawag Just as Canada began to emerge as a growing colony, the world was being overrun with out of the picture-esque, pie-eyed, wigged and dandified eighteenth century folk in knickers. The rakes of the Georgian period were succeeded by the sober-minded, long-tailed, long-nosed, long-faced gentlemen of the nineteenth era. Out in the backwoods and pioneer settlements, Canada may have had to get along without these types, but in the cities and towns, we grew to man's estate as a nation in the very nicest of atmospheres.

During prohibition days, there was a spot on the Alberta-Montana border called Whiskey Gap through which vast rivers of whiskey flowed from Canada into the parched regions to the south. Quite a community grew there, a railway spur line was run down to it. And when it came time to number the Whiskey Gap on maps, time tables and documents, its name was changed to Coutts.

Farnham didn't mean a thing to Quebec, and Peck were just rough old timers in the district to raise such a question, but up some of a lively family. The older brothers had been born in Britain, but the United States, in their youth, weren't painfully nice. But by the time Canada was to give out of childhood into youth, the old fire brethren had settled down. They developed all the characteristics of the reformed scalawag Just as Canada began to emerge as a growing colony, the world was being overrun with out of the picturesque, pie-eyed, wigged and dandified eighteenth century folk in knickers. The rakes of the Georgian period were succeeded by the sober-minded, long-tailed, long-nosed, long-faced gentlemen of the nineteenth era. Out in the backwoods and pioneer settlements, Canada may have had to get along without these types, but in the cities and towns, we grew to man's estate as a nation in the very nicest of atmospheres.

During prohibition days, there was a spot on the Alberta-Montana border called Whiskey Gap through which vast rivers of whiskey flowed from Canada into the parched regions to the south. Quite a community grew there, a railway spur small.

Rain In The East

(New York Times)

While farmers have been generally seeking to expand the fragments of accord that have barely been able to silence the guns of battlefield, the other great Asian underpan has been engaged under the relentless rain of the southwest monsoon. Since the first explosive fringe of Southeast Asia has, with but minor exceptions, been a scene of bloody, destructive and debilitating humidity. With approximately the same "set" of precipitation living in the monsoonal region that stretches from the Indus River in India to China's Yellow River, and with the vast majority of these millions dependent upon the regularity of the monsoon for life itself, it is surprising how little is definitely known of this phenomenon. It has been well stated that only a meteorologist understands the monsoon, meteorologists are still in doubt as to its origins.

Until quite recently scientists were content with the simple theory still found in many school geographies. Briefly stated, the unequal heating of the great East Asian land mass in the summer causes the air in that region to rise, thus creating a vacuum which would be filled by moisture-laden air rushing in from the Indian Ocean and the South China Sea. However, as meteorologists turned more attention to the problem and a supply of reliable data was built up, it developed that far more complex factors were involved and the original theory today takes greater cognizance of the constant functional relation of the northeast and southeast trade winds. These two tropical air currents collide over the Asian interior to form an "intertropical front" where the air movements are primarily vertical. This front is alternately displaced either north or south of the equator by the annual migration of the sun.

In Southeast Asia the crucial factor in creating the monsoonal downpour of summer and fall is the summer low-pressure areas created over India and the marginal seas. Similar areas of low density in central Burma and central Siam. It is the vacuum created by this northern India low-pressure system which draws part of the south tropical air mass considerably above the Equator in late spring. As these southeast trade winds move north, the rotation of the earth causes them to turn and maintain «» parabolic path curving from the Indian Ocean. They are now the winds of the southwest monsoon which, except for certain parts of eastern Indo-China, govern the rhythmic pattern of life in Southeast Asia. In the autumn this process is reversed. The "inter-tropical front" moves south of the Equator and dry winds from the northeast blow steadily across the region. In the springtime the monsoon usually "breaks" with suddenness and severity, often bringing devastation in its wake, but its departure is gradual, and until the end of October an occasional heavy rain is not unlikely.

From the set under examination the Chief French Lieutenant in Saigon despairing of keeping the soldiers from his wife moved to the short-rationed Chinese quarters in the district of Cholon. In Burma—the departure of the rains means the end of the fighting season of dreary months in which the green paddy had stood in the fields. In the dry season the land turned placid streams into impassable torrents and unpassable bogs. Operations during these conditions modern war had been reduced to reconnaissance by ever-present cloud cover had made semi-reconnaissance almost worthless and the early months of the rains the frequent and violent thunderstorms made flying by sight itself hazardous. For the guerilla warfare conditions were ideal. Operations to form an "intertropical front" where air movements are primarily vertical. This front is alternately displaced either north or south of the Equator by the annual migration of the sun.

Soviet 'Truth' Fights 'News'

(Christian Science Monitor)

There is a story of a Quaker who said to his wife, "Everyone is a little queer except thee and me, and sometimes I think thee is a little queer." To the Soviet world everyone has been a little queer (or worse) except Pravda and itself, and now it appears that Pravda thinks even Izvestia is a little off the beam.

Pravda itself is the official paper of the Soviet Communist Party. Izvestia (news) is published by the Soviet Government, ostensibly their co-ordination is as perfect as that of two persons of whom one appears to extend the hand through the other for his left sleeve.

Not that Pravda and Izvestia always agree. Sometimes they do in fact, to corrupt Keats' line, the position of Moscow journalists toward Russian politics has been that "(Communist) truth is news, (The Agency) news is truth" and that is all ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

But now Pravda has taken Izvestia to task for failing to print a "correct" report of a recent issue of the Soviet's leading collective farms "Red Harvest" (one of the rest of the Soviet press for "interesting only superficially" the Kremlin's many other farms) in Siberia.

This may or may not be extremely important. It is right in the centre of information in the Soviet Union that there is investigation of a result due, it is said, to minor accidents, as when Lavrenti Beria, Stalin's agent in Georgia, or state opera or when someone notes that little has been heard lately of Trotsky or Voroshilov.

As readers of this newspaper know, there is extensive reason to believe that the Union Soviet is grappling it its Marxist way

New Nation Chooses Name

(Ottawa Journal)

A people in search of their history make a picture of particular interest. Such a picture is now engrossed in the daily search for Ghana, without knowledge of the past although he may be a student. He is kept in bondage strong by taboos. An interest in history is the stirring of pride of distinction in the isolation of the tribe or nation.

We see this picture today in the Gold Coast, which is a United Kingdom colony in Africa where a native government has been the natives toward absolute self-government. It is the land that rejoices over their own affairs, have among their proposals for constitutional reform. To this land the name "Ghana" be henceforth applied. Their search for a symbol of national unity and a link with past history.

The name and the link is rather slender makes no difference. The ancient kingdom of Ghana was somewhere between the fifth and 11th centuries and its achievements are hazy. It was without being at all sure where it was located. Nobody knows if we have become proud of it but we can believe that the future Ghanaians will endow it with its head a bit higher than if he is always condemned to be "Gold Coaster."

with a very serious crisis in food production.

The farm program was presented by Nikita S. Khrushchev, who replaced Premier Georgi Malenkov as first secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee. Costly for all is Malenkov, the Red Army, the secret police, or some other element of the Soviet government is less sanguine about Mr. Krushchev's agricultural plan than the Communist Party bloc desires?

YANKEE BERIBERI

In a recent piece about American beriberi — a milder but equally prevalent type of nutritional deficiency disease compared with oriental beriberi—we were making progress, as I recollect, by lumbering along a description of the enlisted tation from the chapter on vitamin B1 in the 2nd ed. of Bicknell & Prescott's Vitamins in Modern Medicine, published by Gruse & Stratton, N.Y. (One of the outstanding medical textbooks of recent years):

Dr. Brady

"The clinical picture is one of" (hang onto your hats, folks) "descending, symmetrical bilateral, peripheral neuritis."

I don't know being a quack at heart I guess I liked the description, "just as I like to refer occasionally to the function of the receptaculum as the cisterna chyli or the panniculus adiposus. It is indeed regrettable, but the world is not yet so well that no one has to employ these aids to quiet some patients. But now that we understand each other we can omit the imposing language and say that the two complaints characterize American beriberi.

Legs tired, weak, heavy, stiff.

Peculiar sensations in feet and legs, burning of soles, numbness of calf, sudden smarting or stinging sensations here and there.

Calf muscles are tender when squeezed in the hand. Sometimes area or the skin over the shins are anesthetic — insensitive to pin pricks.

The legs, as patients complain, become quite "stiff and sore" before the day's work is over or when the patient walks a mile or more.

Along with the weakness there is generally more or less weakness of the heart as manifested by panting or breathlessness on slight exertion, rapid pulse palpitation.

Diatetion or unusual prominence of veins in neck and arms.

Because few physicians in America recognize beriberi when well-to-do persons have it, cases have been wrongly diagnosed as tabes dorsalis (locomotor ataxia), muscular "rheumatism" (whatever that is), Graves' disease, progressive muscular atrophy and hookworm infestation.

Cure Is Therapeutic Test

In any case of beriberi, oriental or American, severe or moderate, the main cause is long-continued or habitual vitamen B1 deficiency, though deficiencies of other vitamins of the B group are contributing causes.

Therefore the best preventive and, if degeneration has not gone too far, the best cure for beriberi is simple: Boop thiat is up, raise, increase the daily intake of vitamin B complex.

Not for a few days or weeks but for at least three or four months, as a test to determine whether the trouble is improved in the patient's condition follows. If so, the daily intake of the B complex should be kept at an optimal meaning two or three times the minimum daily requirements (scientists of present treatment of nutritional deficiency.

Lights Go Out In 'Northland'

(Hamilton Spectator)

Over "the north" each week-end thousands of cottage lights flicker-ed and went out to leave shuttered and empty windows against winter's dark days. Calm and a season of distances, which are the great pause of the seasons, stand now between the glow of summer and the whole of the world. Late autumn has its own holiday with its deep red of maple flaunting its heraldry in the green and dusty yellow forest mass, but the season of drifting smoke, the out-board's whine and canoelit's easy ripple-these are now past. The exultancy of sun and blue water is a short-lived voice in the past.

The chapter that nature seals is not a gloomy one. Those stretches of glacial rock and sand will take out into them through patient centuries have known the brief thrusts of adventurers and ring of the woodsman's axe as only a moment in the seasons' long span. So what is the oldest land on earth the newest summer is a happy one. The same infinite sentinel lines of spruce and pine, like ragged armies of dusk at the edge of the world, are symbolic to the vacationer as they were to those who first saw them on the primeval land.

But the front and stillness settling on our lakes there is the inevitable wait for the time when . . .

"Dawn has soft blue-shadowed aisles of snow

Night, like a sacristan with silver lamps

Passes to light the tapers of the stars . . . "

Then cottage and upturned boat and deserted wharf are one with the land that spreads, one, too, with the certainty of a birth of another summer's sun.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CHANGELESS NATURE

Nature is our great refuge. Never does it become worn and old. It is full of beauty, form and challenge to the mind. It is always fresh. It has the power to soothe the soul. To no two does it speak the same words, but it does speak the same language, for it is a universal one.

In one of the interesting essays of William Hazlitt—his "Table Talk"—I came across these lines: "Nature is always new. Her oldest scenes, of long-tried beauty, and familiar to the sight, are but a succession of knowledge and natural gifts. Her secrets are legion. Never will all of them be fully revealed. The Creator has hidden them for wise purposes. Not that they were meant that they should be discovered for any other purpose than to be a source of wonder and lovelihood.

I often think of John Muir, who lived so long into the mountains and forests, and search among the glaciers, and wrote about them for all of us. For months at a time he would be there, living upon little but always finding in his work and in nature everywhere he went. Happily he put into books what he was learning. Over half a century ago he had published a book which he called "The Mountains of California". It is an undying book. One of my favorite books. From it he has one entitled "The Water-Ousel." It is a silent beauty.

Nature, though ever changing in form and color, actually remains changeless. All its varieties are preserved. Michael Faraday, author of that immortal little book, "The Roadmender," put this dedication to it: "To my friend Nature, the Earth, my Mother, whom I love."

New 50-Bed County Memorial Hospital Will Be Constructed

PICTON — A campaign with an objective of $400,000 was inaugurated yesterday in Prince Edward. This sum, donations by individuals, corporations and organizations, will make possible the erection of a new County Memorial hospital at Picton.

Cost of the new hospital has been set at $612,000, of which $112,000 is on hand from expendable bequests and $100,000 to come from government grants. It will be a 50-bed hospital, replacing one registered at 28 beds but often accommodating twice that number.

It is hoped to wind the campaign up on November 11th, so that the Memorial to the County's war dead can be fittingly marked on Remembrance day.

A dinner, attended by 150 canvassers, was held at Wellington Monday night. Confidence that the objective will be met was voiced by Mayor H. J. McFarland who is minister of the hospital site. Reeve James Cleminson of Wellington and Donald Baxter, co-chairmen of the campaign. They cited pre-campaign donations and pledges as evidence of interest and support of the campaign. Many organizations have pledged up to $3,000 each, and several county people have donated $1,000 each. Schools are taking part and Prince Edward Collegiate students have pledged $2,500.

Present Hospital Inadequate.

Hospital Board chairman E. J. Williams pointed out that the present hospital is inadequate and accordingly over-crowded. The condition is aggravated by the fact that military personnel and their families take advantage of local hospital facilities, he said. Realizing this, personnel and families of the army camp here are backing the drive.

Committee in charge of the campaign comprises J. Cleminson and D. Baxter, honorary; H. J. Williams, Mayor McFarland, Mrs. F. J. Webster, Mrs. S. W. D. Hart, Howard Leavens, Dr. J. H. Walmsley, H. S. Colliver, members of the hospital board; L. B. Caisan, W. G. McLean, F. J. Webster, Mrs. Clifford Barber, Donald Thompson, Mrs. F. E. Healy, Mrs. John Mallory, Dr. C. A. Fuhrer, Mrs. Percy Anderson, Clifford Barber, members of the planning and development committee.

Reeves of the various municipalities are acting as division chairmen for the canvass. E. S. Thacker, Picton, is campaign treasurer and R. Small, Picton, secretary.

The present hospital was opened in 1919, with a new wing and nurses' residence being added later. A campaign was launched to put a great strain on the available facilities and efforts were made to erect a new hospital was arrived at early in the year. Since then, many hospitals have been visited by the committee. Brewster and Smith are architects. Contract will not be let until sufficient money for building is assured.

Parade Date Set

Saturday, December 5th has been set as the date for the annual Santa Claus parade in Picton. A meeting of a committee named by the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday to make plans. It was decided that the parade would start at 12.30 noon, so that families could have an early dinner and get down to town. A plan that a program be given the children in the armouries after the parade is being investigated. This would permit parents to visit the stores. An appeal is to be made to individuals and organizations to assist the parade by donations and floats. Treats will be given the children and the only other expense is rental of costumes. Seats being a matter for organization and stores. The Picton parade is the largest in this part of Ontario.

Members of the Committee are Sam Gentile, Phil Dodds, Barry Anderson and Boyd Chalmers who will name committees to arrange details of the parade.

Fishing Trawler Lucky to Survive Tornado on Ocean

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—When the 1,200-ton French fishing trawler Vaillant arrived in Port here recently, crew members told an adventure story that ranked with the most nightmarish tales ever recounted in St. John's.

During a tornado 400 miles southwest of Ireland, a mountainous wave struck the ship, swept away part of the superstructure, smashed steel partitions in the officers' quarters, flooded the crew's quarters to three feet of water and swept 40 barrels of fuel off the deck.

Everything above deck was warped and twisted when the ship put in here for repairs. Capt. Michel Desjardin and his 40-man crew from Fecamp, France, told of the chaos during the remaining 17 hours of the storm.

"Mon Dieu, I am lucky to be alive," said the skipper. He had just left his room when the wave struck, carrying away the sink and the door.

The ship shivered and appeared likely to founder. After several tense minutes it put on a burst of speed and came out of the trough spilling water like a diving sea monster. The trawler took another dip, rose laboriously to the crest of a wave and rolled from then on.

Capt. Desjardin said he had never seen such a storm in 24 years at sea.

The ship was without electric light until its arrival here. The crew was left without water when a keg was washed overboard. One of the boats had been swept away and a three-ton anchor had been shifted from its berth on the foredeck.

MADOC

Trinity Ladies, Club Hears Talk on Music

MADOC—The October meeting of Trinity Ladies' Club was held at the public school.

After the business part of the meeting, consisting of the secretary's roll call, treasurer's report and tatting and crochet work, the anniversary supper to be held on November 4 were discussed.

Guest Speaker

The ladies then joined with the Home and School for the remainder of the program. Mr. Ray Binch introduced the speaker, Mr. Quirt McKinney, music instructor at the Teachers' College, Peterborough, who started out with a sing-song in keeping with his address, "Are We Making Canada Musical."

Mr. McKinney stated that some of the greatest composers, Bach and Beethoven lived in the 18th and 19th century when music was one of the few means of entertainment. music was the mark of a gentleman and scholar, who had to be able to sing his part sure at sight, and to be able to play it on the flute.

Most of the great folk songs were written before the 18th century and handed down from generation to generation.

Mr. McKinney stated that music was made for man and if it is not enjoyable it is not worth doing. He also said that music should be encouraged in the home. He illustrated his lecture with many personal examples, which were both interesting and humorous, and concluded his talk with another singsong after which Mr. Rumpel thanked him.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

Grow Good Crops In Drought Area

In a field in the U.S. drought area where most crops have withered and died, Silas McCobbin (left) and father-in-law, O. D. Riley, grew corn which averaged 128.74 bushels to the acre. They operate a 700-acre farm near Clark, Missouri. They fertilized their land according to soil tests recommendations which preserved such moisture as was available. In 1952 their corn averaged 134 bushels to the acre.—Central Press Canadian.

Dulles Promises To Help Speed St. Lawrence Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has assured Canada that if opponents of the St. Lawrence river power project begin legal moves to block it, the U.S. will attempt to dispose of the dispute quickly.

L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, said State Secretary Dulles had assured him of that Tuesday when the two conferred here.

Canada is "most anxious" to begin construction of the $600,000,000 power development jointly with the U. S., Pearson told a press conference after his talk with Dulles. Construction of the St. Lawrence seaway is dependent on the power development.

The Federal Power Commission has given the New York state power authority and licence to join the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission in the construction, but the New York authority has not yet accepted it formally.

Delay Deadline Near

Pearson said it is expected to do so by Nov. 5 or 6—the deadline for opponents to begin court action to block the project.

Pearson told reporters Canada has no desire to oppose the right of any American to object to the power project in the courts.

Nevertheless, he asked Dulles for "a minimum of delay" in halting any litigation that might arise. Dulles replied that the U.S. would cooperate in any possible way to hasten construction, Pearson added.

Canada, Pearson continued, hopes to start work on the project next spring, possibly by early April.

"We are assuming that it will be a Canadian seaway," the minister concluded. "We'd like it to be an international project—but if it can't, we'll be quite happy to go ahead alone."

Utilities Commission Bests Town Council

PRESCOTT (CP) — The town council, outplayed in a financial feud with the public utilities commission, decided to call it quits Tuesday night.

It began when the commission asked the town to pay a larger share of the salaries of three men working for both the commission and the town.

Council agreed, but raised the total of the commission's town hall offices from $200 to $1,200 a year to make up the difference.

The commission replied by doubling rentals on 106 fire hydrants from $2,650 to $5,300 a year.

Council members agreed Tuesday night to stop the vicious circle.

"We don't mind breaking even," said councillor Douglas Laporte, "but they've gone away over us."

Deferred Price System Will Encourage Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian wheat board, for the first time in 10 years of compulsory marketing, has instituted a deferred price system to encourage wheat sales.

A trade official said Tuesday that under the system now launched last month, a buyer of wheat for export has the choice either of paying the price at the time his order is booked or the price which may prevail at any time until he takes delivery. Previously the fixed-price system prevailed.

This price choice is designed to protect exporters to Britain and other countries where the grain trade now is in private hands and where internal prices may fluctuate sharply.

Weddings

BROWN—WILSON

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday, October 9, at 11:30 a.m., in the Presbyterian Church, Cobourg, when the Rev. Ewart MacKay united in marriage, Audrey Margaret Wilson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wilson of Cobourg, to Garnet Thomas Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brown, of Belleville, R.R. No. 1.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother, was lovely in her street-length gown of pink nylon lace, with tight fitting bodice, matching taffeta bolero, and full skirt of nylon net over taffeta. She handed a posy of flowers and her shoulder-length veil, and she wore a corsage of pink roses with lily-of-the-valley, and matching pink nylon gloves.

Mrs. Melva Bylow attended her sister, wearing a street-length gown of blue taffeta with tight fitting bodice and bouffant skirt of nylon net, the whole accented by a matching bolero of taffeta. A matching French floral bandeau for her shoulder-length veil. She wore white nylon gloves and a corsage of blue Butterflies roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Merrill Brown, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing navy blue crepe with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in black-and-white checked taffeta with black accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's table was prettily appointed and centred with a three-tier wedding cake. A toast was proposed to the bride by the Rev. Mr. Vandmeer, to which the bridegroom's father responded.

After the reception the relatives were entertained at the bride's home until Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for their wedding trip to Orillia and other western points. The bride travelled in an American Beauty wool suit with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid, a china cup and saucer. The bridegroom's gift to the groomsman, a leather wallet.

Out-of-town guests were present from Shannonville, Thomasburg, Belleville, and Orillia. The young couple will reside in Cobourg.

Queen Victoria H-S Association Holds 'Open House'

On Monday evening the Queen Victoria Home and School Association held its annual "open house" for the first meeting of the term with the president, Mrs. W. Orvis, presiding over the business period.

A financial statement was given by the treasurer. The president commented on the excellent attendance at the meeting and hoped that it would continue as there was a fine program planned for future meetings.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can He Care For His Mother And Marry, Too?

There's few questions of principle to which one can give a definite Yes for an answer. And there are things to which one can say No without hesitation.

But there are others—and these are the ones that put people through agonizing periods of heart-searching—to which the answers must be tailor-made by the individual to fit his own particular set of circumstances.

One young man who is struggling to find his own right answer to this type of question has these specific factors to reconcile:

"I've taken care of my mother for years, and she is very good to me, yet my life is empty. I want my own wife now, while I'm still young, but how can I explain this to my mother? Although I weigh 179 pounds, am 6 feet 1½ inches tall, she still looks upon me as a small boy.

"I am in love with a wonderful girl, Geri I haven't told her yet, and, if I don't do something soon, I'll lose her. She seems the kind of girl who would treat my mother right, but I hesitate to bring them together lest something go wrong.

"Esther is 21 and I'm 23. We work for the same concern and enjoy our jobs. Is it right to expect her to share a home with my mother? For financial reasons, this would have to be done for at least a few years. I wouldn't leave my mother alone, and yet the fullness of life is passing me by."

Considerations Due

Always when I read a letter of this sort I think how fortunate the girl would be who would get a husband of this kind. For this is no letter of a Mama's Boy who obviously wants most of all to stay with his mother and so has no real problem. On the contrary, it represents the tortured indecision of a conscientious son who does not want to let his own wishes overrides his duty to his mother. And any young man with such a sense of responsibility would certainly make any woman a fine and dependable husband.

In his anxiety to be fair to his mother, however, this young man, and every other like him, must not lose sight of the fact that there are two other people to whom he must be also be fair—this girl and himself. Even though he has not told her yet that he is in love with her, I strongly suspect that she knows it, and that she reciprocates his feeling.

I would like to see him speak out to this girl in all honesty and sincerity, laying his love and his doubts together before her. In other words, I think he ought to give her a chance to help him in working out a solution to the problem, if she so desires. And a girl in love, if she is worthwhile, would welcome such an opportunity and such an expression of confidence in her understanding from the man she loves.

However much this mother may look upon her son as a small boy, the fact remains that he is a man, and should take to himself a man's status. While the mother will doubtless be reluctant to give up having him all to herself, and to share him with another woman, if she is a true mother, she will not want to rob him of his natural right to marital happiness. And if the girl is also the right kind, the two should be able to adjust the situation smoothly and become good friends. Since the future daughter-in-law has a job which she might like to keep, things might work out even more happily by having the mother keep house for the working members of the family.

On the other hand, if the mother is the type of woman who would regard a daughter-in-law as a thief stealing her son from her, and would resent the fact that his first marriage so bitterly as to make it impossible for the newcomer to get along with her, then I think the son should make other living arrangements for his mother and marry anyway. With both himself and his wife earning, the income surely would be enough to finance this.

Undoubtedly, it will take time to arrive at the proper solution. But if the son can be convinced that it is right for him to try and find one, the first big step has been taken. The second is, as I have already said, to give the girl the chance she should have to help him find that solution.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

In some communities because of this frost, farmers gathered their green peppers early and sold them quickly at a rather low rate. "Rather low"? What am I talking about? One of my neighbors who has a farm 12 miles out of town telephoned me very late Saturday night to ask how many peppers I would use. I said twelve. He said "What do you mean, bushels or baskets?" I said "Horrors, no—twelve peppers!" He had 100 bushels to dispose of.

I raised my purchase to a 6-quart basket—cost 25 cents. So we had peppers raw, fried, baked, relished, sauced until they were coming out our ears. Since I made up a new stuffed baked pepper recipe that we liked for its flavor and low cost I'm using it as the main dish in today's menu.

Vegetable Soup
Baked Rice-and-Tuna-Stuffed Peppers
Autumn Succotash
Broccoli with Mock Hollandaise
Pear Salad Delight with Cheese or
Wolf River or Gravenstein Apple Pie with Cheese
Coffee

This is a vegetable-packed meal, appropriate in this season, when there are so many colorful vegetables available.

Baked Rice-and-Tuna-Stuffed Peppers

Six medium peppers (I used 3 sweet red and 3 sweet green), 1 7-oz. tin tuna (broken tuna flakes will do and cost about 24 cents), 2 cups cooked rice, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 3-4 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and cayenne, 1-3 cup water. Cook the rice by adding 1 1-2 cups of water and 2-3 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon butter to 1 cup rice cooked in large saucepan. Cover and turn on heat as low as possible. Cook until all water is absorbed—about 30 minutes at very low heat. To this rice add the drained and flaked tuna, the grated onion, cheese, milk, pepper and cayenne. Gently mix. Slice top from washed peppers and trim out seeds and ribs. Cut these in halves lengthwise if they do not have flat bases. If they will stand up leave them whole. Fill with the rice-tuna mix. Place on baking dish, pour water around. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 50 minutes do 1 hour or until peppers are tender. Baking time may be shortened by parboiling peppers 10 minutes.

Autumn Succotash

Cook 1 pint shelled out fresh limas 15 minutes, then add the corn cut from 5 medium cobs, after draining off all of the cooking liquid. Now add 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper and 1-3 or 2-3 cup sweet cream or top milk and simmer ten minutes or bake until some of the moisture has dried off. This is wonderful.

Pear Salad Delight

(This is a specialty of a well-known restaurant in the suburbs of Chicago.)

For each serving, split a ripe Bartlett pear, and core and pare it, and marinate in French dressing 1-2 hour. Drain. Place in bed of lettuce and garnish with 3 rosettes or balls of cream cheese at center of each half pear. Allow a small space between each rosette and in this space place a whole blanched almond, and around the base of the pears put blanched almonds. Garnish further with tiny slivers of maraschino cherry. Lovely with wafer-thin cheese crackers. If you wish you can substitute while cream cheese with Roquefort to which you have added a little cream to make it workable.

Ida October when I taste an apple pie made from Gravenstein or Wolf River apples I think it is the best apple pie ever. For a 9-inch pie you will need 6 or 7 cups sliced pared, cored apples, 1 to 1 cup sugar, 1-2 to 1 teaspoons nutmeg or cinnamon and about 1 1-2 tablespoons butter for dotting over. I baked my Wolf River apple pie last night for 50 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr. I'm not one to boast (much) but the pie is gone and there were only threes of us.

BEAUTY

Sleep Is An Aid To Beauty

Cut down on your sleeping hours and your beauty treatments will be to no avail, for even professional treatments will help, since they cannot compensate for the wear and tear brought by lack of sleep. They are refreshing, of course, and they serve a definite purpose, but no fingers are skillful enough, no cosmetic has sufficient magic to erase the lines of nervous exhaustion. In fact, nothing can accomplish what Mother Nature does when she closes the shutters of our eyes and gets to work making the necessary repairs to our body and face.

To live in an atmosphere of ceaseless activity, as do many women these days, and to get to bed late when one is utterly exhausted, is doing oneself an injustice. More than one woman has found that out, and has had plenty of time to think things over while she gathered up the broken threads of her nervous system and pulled herself together again. What loss of sleep does to appearance and disposition is plenty.

When a woman is tired she is irritable. Premature wrinkles may appear, lines form around the eyes and shadows beneath them. There's no ginger in the step.

Blessed is the woman who drops into slumber her mind at peace, her body relaxed, and who awakens in the morning feeling restful, ready for whatever the day may bring forth. Her eyes are bright, complexion glowing. Not bothered with a "before breakfast face," she can look into the mirror without outcoing a strange, tired woman there.

Long hours of sleep will do more to retain youthful appearance than all the cosmetics compounded in the world's laboratories.

Periods of activity must be followed by periods of rest. You can't talk yourself out of that fact. Not if it's while sleeping that the heart catches intervals of rest, that new cells are built and all the worn ones of body are recharged. The pundits of the eyes are contracted, too. And, since your eyes are working during every moment of wakefulness, you should not deprive them of needed rest, either.

It is safer when breaking eggs for cooking to break each one first into a cup, then transfer it to the mixing bowl or pudding pan. Then you catch any bad eggs.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

Hooray, Hooray For Birthday Parties For Children!

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

To settle a discussion for a group of mothers, will you please answer this question: Is it proper, considered good taste, to give birthday parties every year for children? A birthday party means of course that every child must bring a birthday present—and that's quite an item these days.

Mother

I'm all out for birthday parties for children! Birthday parties make wonderful memories and we all need wonderful memories. But I think that children's birthday parties should be extremely simple parties, no fussing to have elaborate, planned entertainment, no fussing about elaborate and expensive refreshments. Ice cream and a Birthday Cake, or just a fruit drink and a proud, home-made Birthday Cake . . . and devoted little friends gathered together to choose their own games. And today's mothers should wisely guide the young guests by doing only very few simple, inexpensive presents . . . merry little items from the five-and-ten, or, perhaps best of all, presents most thoughtfully made by the guests themselves.

The Rehearsal Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My prospective bridegroom's parents are to give the rehearsal dinner. There seems to be some unpleasantness around as to who is supposed to be invited to a rehearsal dinner. Will you please make this clear, so that there will be no misunderstanding as to who should be invited?

Marie A.

You are fortunate indeed to have such friendly and genial in-laws-to-be! The giving of the rehearsal party is one of the most charming gestures the prospective bridegroom's parents can make to their son's fiancee and her family.

The guests who must be invited to the rehearsal dinner are, of course, all the members of the wedding party: bride and groom; all the bride's attendants, maid and or matron of honor, bridesmaids; all the groom's attendants, best man and ushers. The bride's mother and father are, if possible, present at this dinner (the bride's father, or whoever is escort her, is also a member of the wedding party).

Other guests may be invited by the host and hostess giving the dinner . . . but this is not at all necessary, nor should it be expected by anyone invited. For example, some other members of the bride's or groom's family are particularly intimate friends. Sometimes these "extra" guests are invited to the dinner only after the formally invited are also invited to the church rehearse the form for a "preview" of the proceedings.

While the ladies were registering at the morning session, quiet organ music was played by Mrs. Pace.

Miss McKeen, Dominion secretary for younger groups, gave a worthwhile address on "The World's Need," using excerpts from letters of conditions in India, Korea, also quoting from letters from Mrs. Taylor, who is now making a trip to the Orient, of her visit to Seoul, of the influx of people to the cities, and the destruction of the hospitals and the university during the war; of how they were trying to carry on and looked to Christians as their only hope. She said it was a challenge to faithfulness in the W.M.S. "In a changing world we need to have vision, faith and courage to go forward. There is no participation in Christ unless you have participation in the world."

Mrs. C. D. McLellan, president of Belleville Presbyterial was in charge and conducted a model auxiliary meeting, using the year theme song, "Jesus Shall Reign" for opening. She was assisted by Mrs. Denton as secretary; Mrs. Carmen, Friendship; Mrs. Jones, Literature. Mrs. Sexsmith dedicating the offering and Miss McKeen conducing the worship service, choosing as her subject "Fellowship With Christ", quoting excerpts from a letter received from Rebecca, an Indian missionary, who had attended the missionary training school in Toronto. Being the missionary, also gave thanks to the W.M.S. who had made it possible for her to attend the school, and now she is doing a wonderful work in her homeland.

The service was concluded with a skit "None Are Too Hidden" by Madoc Auxiliary. Those taking part were: Mesdames, A. Empey, F. H. Nayler, F. Phillips, D. Carmen, W. McCoy, L. Bennett, F. Lane Miss A. Holmes, Miss A. Keene and Miss Marie Stephens.

Mrs. P. H. Nayler reported on the allocation to the Madoc section for funds to build the new training school and how it was being met. Some had gone over their allocation while others were still lagging hoping to be able to fulfil their obligation.

Miss McKeen, guest speaker, again brought a most worthwhile message. She gave a report as Dominion representative on the building of the new school and that they were hoping to be able to start early in November. Her address was on the need for recruits such as missionaries, doctors, nurses, dietitians and church workers, throughout Angola, N. Rhodesia, Japan, Korea, Trinidad, Zodia and even in Canada, they were asking for workers in Christian education, some 40 churches in Canada were in need of deaconess, ministers, and many other offices to be filled.

Younger Groups

Miss McKeen also dealt with the younger groups of the W.M.S. and their relationship to the senior society from Baby Band to Mission Circle. She closed her address with the words of one of the missionaries in the foreign field: "To God Alone We Owe Our All."

Mrs. A. Empey, Branch secretary, spoke on the "Missionary Monthly", and "World Friends", official organs of W.M.S., and asked that the members take more interest in them and that they were asking for an increase in subscriptions.

Mrs. W. Blair, of Hazzard's W.M.S., extended an invitation to the group to hold their next rally at Hazzard's United Church.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of St. John's Church.

Guests attending the rally as representatives of the Belleville Presbyterial were: Mrs. C. D. McLellan, president; Mrs. M. Denton, secretary of Christian Stewardship; Mrs. F. Jones, Literature secretary; Mrs. E. W. Jones, treasurer, and Miss G. McKeen, Dominion secretary for younger groups.

Alfred De Marigny Leading Simple Life as Salesman

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Alfred de Marigny, whose names was embla zoned in headlines 19 years ago, is leading the simple life of a salesman here, happy that he is about to become a United States citizen.

"It is wonderful to live and work in peace in a decent, respectable country," said de Marigny. "I am proud that this country may grant me citizenship."

Ten years ago de Marigny was acquitted of a charge of murdering his Canadian father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes, in Nassau. But the jury which freed him of the charge recommended that he be deported. The colonial government ordered him out, and with his wife, Nancy Oakes de Marigny, he sailed in a tiny boat over stormy seas to Cuba.

Nancy later had her marriage annulled. Freddie wandered in the Dominican Republic, to Canada and finally to New York.

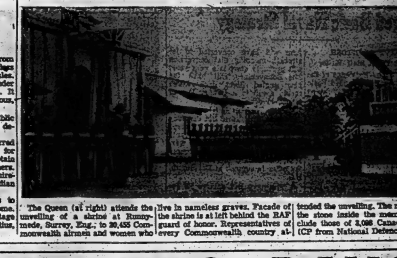
He is married now to Mrs. Mary Taylor de Marigny, a niece of Myron C. Taylor, former United States envoy to the Vatican. They are living in a rented house here but plan to build their own home.

Freddie is working as a sales trainer for the Miami Corp., maker and distributor of aluminum windows and awnings.

"I am happy here," said de Marigny. "I have a very good sales job with a good firm. They put you to work, give you a fair break and if you do you to prove how good you are.

Unplessant Memory

"Everything about my five years in the United States has been good. It is fair, and it is democratic. I work, I live a simple, normal life at my job and in my home. My wife is a gradtuate nurse. She is from a fine family and gives her services to the poor in the clinic. I have had many troubles and she is very understanding.



"The memory of my stay in Britain is not a very pleasant. They have a rule, article 36, which forbids British subjects from becoming Canadian citizens unless they were born in the British Isles. I had a feeling that I was under a Gestapo and had no rights. It was a little Gestapo, "not vicious, but it was there.

"Here one is given a public hearing, with a fair chance to defend one's self."

(De Marigny apparently referred to provisions making it easier for some British subjects to obtain Canadian citizenship than others. Any applicant meeting the requirements may become a Canadian citizen.)

De Marigny says he plans to make Miami his permanent home. He was born of French parentage on the British island of Maruitius, in the Indian ocean.

West Belleville Section W. M. S. Rally Held in Centenary Church

The autumn rally of the Belleville west section of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, was held on Friday in Bridge Street church with the president, Mrs. J. Fred Wilson presiding. Following the theme hymn, "In Christ there is no east or west" Mrs. Wilson's prayer was one of rejoicing and thanksgiving for God's wonderful creation and guidance of His universe; for the magnificence of autumn with bountiful harvest and for the beautiful sun that had been shining all week for all three rallies.

Mrs. Fred Moon extended a brief but warm and sincere welcome to the delegates.

Guest Speaker.

Mrs. S. W. Spafford, president of Bay of Quinte Conference Branch, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Catherine McKeen, Toronto; and the team, Mrs. C. D. McLellan, Napanee; Mrs. M. Denton, Trenton; Mrs. R. W. Jones, Tweed and Mrs. Pierce Jones, Picton.

Mrs. Denton and Mrs. R. W. Jones conducted a quiz dealing with the "Christian Stewardship" and financial plans made by the Dominion Board and handed down to the Presbyterial. These two ladies stressed tithing; for every wage earner gave back to God's work the tenth that He asks there would be no financial lack in the extension of His Kingdom. We have come a long way but goals are still a long way ahead." Mrs. Denton said. "A pilot train is one that goes over new tracks to see that the way is safe. We hope the way is safe." The question was asked, "Why do people who live look with such confidence to the future?" They know whatever happens in life that God will see them through. It is a wonderful experience to tithe, it only means a closer walk with God but we walk, work and plan together."

Letter From India

Miss R. Catharine McKeen, secretary for younger groups, who has worked in the Renfrew area in Ontario and in Alberta near Drumheller, was the guest speaker. She directed the thought of the rally to a letter from Miss Joyce Kilpatrick, B.A., Central India, who is asking for prayers of W.M.S. for the work there.

She took the rally to Korea and the appalling destruction of Seoul where the people are pouring in by the millions to a city already overcrowded. Miss McKeen says, "It is not enough for us to be sending our old clothes —As Christians we must find some way to bring peace and help and see that everyone has his chance to live in this, God's world. Women can do a lot toward bringing this about.

Not All Are Communists

"Our hearts go out to China—not all people in China are Communists, not all Russians are communists. The people are still the children of God and we must not hate them, we must love even our children not to hate them. Communists claim they are revolutionists, but the Christians are the first and true revolutionists. Christians are concerned that people should have their rights. It was Christians who said, 'There should be no race distinction'. Let us be strong and continue to have initiative. Let us not be so afraid of communism to not do anything about it. Let us make a witness for Christ.

"We have been asked this year to study the world church and see some of her responsibilities. Every woman is asked to do serious studying and reading. Study and pray and find ways to do something about our responsibility. God is still speaking to us through the Bible. We need a more powerful study of this book."

Small Study Groups.

Miss McKeen suggested small groups be formed and "God calls us all to make our life for Him but we must make the choice. We are called to Christian Stewardship—the cultivation of Christian home—the acceptance of Christian witness. We are called to isolated areas. Christ commanded was 'Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught.' There is no participation in Christ without participation in the Mission of the world. Let us renew our pledge of faithfulness to Christ's World Mission.

Mrs. Elwood Free, of Sunderland, sang appropriately at this time "Holding Thy Hand, Dear Lord" which she kindly dedicated to a staunch W.M.S. member, a former Sunday School teacher, and a woman of fine Christian character, Mrs. Jodson Kelly, of Centenary.

"Operation Living"

Mrs. C. D. McLellan conducted the quiet half hour. Her theme was "Operation Living". We are each one required to make adjustments. Every choice we make builds our character. If we choose to operate our lives according to God's plan we are going to take Him into our lives and follow His patterns. We are walk with Him at all times. We will let every choice we make be made in the light of His love and be what He wants us to be. We can re-call our faith by reading our Bible. He speaks to us there always. Jesus Christ is really present with us then we are anxious that everybody in the world will share this experience we have shared with Him. If we make the choice to follow Jesus no hardship will hold us back."

During the afternoon session a model auxiliary meeting was held by the team assisted by Holloway Street Afternoon Auxiliary and Miss Catherine McKeen. Stories and convictions related to the study of the life work of the Christian Church around the world to make the Church the Lord of every heart through sharing, serving, teaching and a multitude of ways. None is too hidden.

Last of Noranda Mines Is Closed As Strike Starts

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—The last copper and gold mine operating in this northwestern Quebec area was closed down early today when some 400 workers at the Waite Amulet mine went on strike.

The workers struck at midnight after last-minute negotiations on the issue of union dues checkoff broke down. They voted last week to strike, with 88 per cent of the men favoring a walkout.

The work stoppage raised to more than 3,000 the number of men on strike in this area. The other mines shut down are Noranda, which employs 1,800 miners alone, Quemont and Normetal. The whaite mines are subsidiaries of Noranda.

Resist Checkoff Firmly

T. E. Little, Waite Amulet mine manager, said after a negotiating meeting Monday that the company was prepared to discuss all points outstanding in the dispute, including higher wages, if the union withdrew its demand on the checkoff.

However, Pat Burke, area supervisor for the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said that the company has not offered to discuss anything except a wage increase and that only if the check off were dropped.

The union has insisted on the report of its nominee on an arbitration board as the basis of negotiations. The report favored a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase, a 40-hour week, six statutory holidays, shift premiums, a pension and welfare plan and union security involving the checkoff.

xistence of A-Bomb Has Not hanged Basic Naval Strategy

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Existence of the m bomb has not changed basic val strategy or tactics as they affect Canada concerned, says Vice miral H. E. Maingay, chief of the naval staff.

the navy's role in any future ar would be the same as in the Second World War: Protect convoys and flooting and kill enemy submarines.

The Russians are known to have out 300 subs compared to less than 60 with which the Germans started the last war. And, Admiral Maingay, the Russian fleet should not be underestimated as a "land animal" only.

anada Tougher Test

hat if Russia posed a greater nat at sea, Canada was far repared for naval warfare now than she was in 1939, the 53-year-old admiral said in an interview. The Russians might be tougher than the Germans, but we're tougher, too. We'd give a good account of ourselves."

The admiral reviewed how the navy stands today:

1. It hopes to hit its 150-ship ed by the end of next year. ough the ship-building program be hatched in 1949, However it does not expect to reach its goal of 51,000 men by then. The navy now has a complement of 15,- 7. It is forced to reject 60 per cent of applicants. In 1939, the navy had 16 ships and 1,585 officers and

2. The navy hopes for a 12,000- reserves by the end of 1954, ving it 23,000 men to sail 100 ships and man shore establishments in event of war. Unless then. The navy now has a complement of 15,- 7. It is forced to reject 60 per cent of applicants. In 1939, the navy had 16 ships and 1,585 officers and

ips Reserve

3. The navy hopes to evolve a cheaper escort vessel. Five of the Canadian-designed and Canadian-built escorts have been launched, but are to be launched before the end of this year, six more next year. Original estimate on the first three escort was $8,000,000 but this has since soared to $15,000,000. The escorts built after the prototype are expected to cost less.

4. The new aircraft carrier Bonaventure, under construction at Belfast, won't be ready until late 1956, when the Magnificent will be returned to the Royal Navy. By that time, the Fleet Air Arm will have converted to jet aircraft, meaning that conversion will probably start late next year. The Bonaventure will have the new angled flight deck which should result in a smaller loss of planes in deck landings.

5. Two reserve navy squadrons have been established but the navy does not intend to put increased emphasis on its air arm. It wants a reserve of fliers in case of war. There now are two active squadrons, one aboard the Magnificent, the other in support at Dartmouth, N.S.

6. The navy will enlarge its reserve base at Hamilton and carry out reserve training in the summer on the Great Lakes, thus taking some of the heavy summer reserve crush off Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C. This should start next year.

7. The navy intends to keep its cruisers, the Quebec and Ontario, for training purposes. Because they are roomier than destroyers, more men can be trained faster.

8. The escorter service is working out the kinks which developed after the Second World War. From 15 ships and a complement of 1,585 in 1939, the navy expanded by 1950 to 139 ships and 20,000 men at its wartime peak, then contracted to 54 ships and 8,000 men by 1951.

1949 "Incidents"

In 1949 a series of "incidents" or "temporary mutinies" occurred aboard the Magnificent, Ontario and the destroyers Athabaskan and Crescent. The result was a report by a three-man commission comprising Admiral Maingay, not then Chief of Staff, Louis C. Audette and Leonard W. Brockington.

Admiral Maingay says many of the report's 30 recommendations have already had been or were being carried out by the navy at that time but that the report hurried up the process.

One of the chief reforms dealt with training of officers. Previously they were trained with the Royal Navy for four years. When they returned to take commands, they found they were dealing with men of different temperament and relations between officers and men were often strained. Now the navy trains its own officers, putting emphasis on leadership, and then posts them to the Royal Navy for 18 months. Relations between officers and men, says Admiral Maingay, have improved tremendously. Since 1949, there have been no "incidents."

Return of Wounded in French Offensive

Litter-bearers, walking shoulder-deep in water, carry French soldiers wounded in the Tonkin Delta area, where some of the most violent fighting in recent months is taking place in Indo-China. French forces have opened a new major offense against the Communist-led Viet-Minh troops in what the French called the most important ground operation of the seven-year-old Indo-China war. The new offensive against the Communists is toward the towns of Ninhbinh, Phunhoquan and Thanhoadale.—Central Press Canadian.

DESERONTO
H-S Assoc. Holds Most Successful Tea

DESERONTO. — Beautiful autumn weather and friendly atmosphere made the setting for Deseronto Public School "Open House," on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. R. K. Jackson, Mrs. Weber, and Mrs. German welcomed those who came to see the display in different rooms, the work of the pupils, and to meet the teachers.

Many parents, who took the opportunity to become better acquainted with the staff found it most personally gratifying, and also the pupils and Home and School Association.

The homecooking table, under supervision of Mrs. Bender, Mrs. Maybee and Mrs. E. Dosey, realized $45 on sale of many good things donated by parents and friends.

The tea room under joint conveners of Mrs. C. Grey and Mrs. Goodaday, with the able help of Mrs. Britton, and Mrs. G. Armstrong, Mrs. Burkitt, Mrs. Fry and Mrs. Webster, realized an equal sum.

Mrs. D. Dawson and Mrs. E. Keech added twenty new members to the roll call of Home and School Association.

The senior girls proved to be excellent baby sitters.

The staff, the pupils and Home and School Association, thank one and all for their attendance, co-operation and help.

A grand total of $96 was realized. This will help in the plans of the Home and School Association to provide playground equipment.

A number of friends met at the home of Mrs. Alex Wilkins on Saturday evening to help her celebrate her 85th birthday.

After a social evening, refreshments were served.

Mr. Arthur Wilkins of Watertown, N.Y., was a recent guest of his mother, Mrs. Alex. Wilkins.

'What Is The Christian Alternative To 'Communism', Topic at W.M.S.

RAWDON — The October meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Weaver with 18 members, 10 visitors and several children in attendance.

The Service opened with a devotional period in charge of the Baby Band leader, Mrs. James Hoard.

Mrs. B. Rossteel sang an old familiar Thanksgiving Hymn written in 1625, "O Lord Make Us Free". A paper on "Thanksgiving", prepared by Mrs. John Holmes, was read by the leader.

The president, Mrs. Burton Sharpe, presided over the business, and welcomed the visitors. Plans were made for the sectional rally on Friday at Aiken's Union Church. Each member is asked to provide an article for a layette for supply work.

Subscriptions for magazines are to be in by November 1st.

The next meeting will be November 13th at the home of Mrs. Herbert Smith.

Mrs. Ross Hoard gave a slew-bridalp message on "God is the Owner."

New Study Book.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen introduced the new study book, "Where'er the Sun", by Dr. Samuel H. Moffett, who is the son of a pioneer missionary of Korea. The author served in China as a missionary from 1917 until the Communists forced him to leave in 1951.

Throughout the book it is stressed that "The first responsibility of the local church is to cultivate missionary work among its own members and then carry the message to the outside world.

A World-Wide Mission

Chapter I is entitled "Following the Sun" and the author pictures a small group of Christians gathered in Communist China singing "Jesus Shall Reign." It took courage to sing that hymn and in 1718 Isaac Watts expressed his great faith when he wrote it. Today the most significant fact is that protestants have a world-wide church with a world-wide mission and the old hymn has come alive on every continent and has called the whole church to a world wide mission. Chapter I emphasizes the glory of a Christian protestant church on which the sun never sets and above all "The Reign of Jesus Everywhere."

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang most effectively "Go Carry The Message."

The guest speaker, Mrs. Chester Sills, of West Huntingdon, gave a splendid message on the theme "What Is the Christian Alternative for Communism?", with various reasons why Christian people must be concerned over this great problem.

The Communism pamphlet calls upon you to stand alone and disregard God. The state comes first and everyone must obey and not put their faith in God or in any other power.

Growth Of Communism

Mrs. Sills traced the growth of Communism through various countries and told of conditions in Russia at present time. She then vividly pictured the recent A.C.W.W. convention in Toronto, where it was pointed out that two thirds of the women of the world are from the rural areas; also that one-half of the people of the world are illiterate. The need for a complete gospel in every country is emphasized and a welfare church is far more important than a welfare state. She closed her address with an appropriate poem, "One Heavenly Father For all Races."

The speaker was thanked for her message and the service closed with a hymn of thankfulness after which the hostess and her assistants served light refreshments.

Govt. Intends To Tread Warily On Question

LONDON (CP) — It looks as though Britain's Conservative government intends to tread warily on the question of reforming the university seats in the House of Commons.

University representation was abolished by the Labor government, ending a 359-year-old feature of the British Parliamentary system, the custom started with James I, who granted Oxford and Cambridge the right to send two representatives each to the Commons.

Labor claimed the system was undemocratic, since it gave two votes to university graduates. The Conservatives in their election manifesto pledged themselves to restore the franchise, which cost the 1945-50 Parliament such outstanding independent members as playwright Sir Alan Herbert and journalist Wilson Harris.

The Conservative party was scheduled to discuss university representation at its annual conference in Margate Oct. 7-10, but the debate was squeezed out. Now it appears the question may be postponed indefinitely.

Once again a cat—this time in Illinois—has received a fat legacy. It couldn't happen to a creature better equipped to turn a contented smile on the relatives when the will is read.

UN Security Council Ready For Debate on Palestine After Shelving Trieste Issue

By TOM HOGE

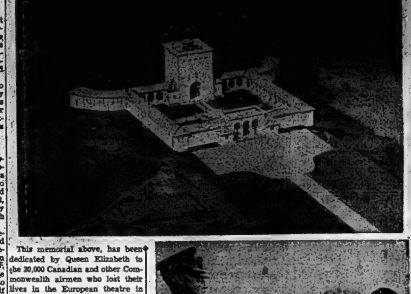
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United Nations Security Council voted Tuesday night over Soviet opposition to hold off debate on the Trieste issue, and cleared its decks for an exhaustive probe into the explosive Palestine situation.

The council faces its next Palestine debate Thursday when it takes up Syria's complaint that Israel is endangering Middle East peace by diverting the waters of the historic river Jordan.

During two wrangling sessions Tuesday the council pushed through a United States call for a full-dress inquiry into the alleged border incidents between Israel and her Arab neighbors, including the recent Israeli attack on the Jordan village of Kibya in which Jordan claims 66 persons were killed and the village flattened.

Summoned to Report

Gen. Vagn Bennike, chief of staff of the truce supervision organization in Palestine, has been summoned to report on the general Palestine situation. He left Jerusalem by plane Tuesday night and is expected to arrive here later this week.



The tense Middle East issue was further complicated Tuesday night when Israel fired off a counter-complaint, demanding that the council take up a charge that the Arab states violated the 1949 armistice agreements, engaged in illegal blockade measures and refused to negotiate a peace.

Fresh Debate

At the close of its meeting Tuesday night, the council overrode Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky's demands for immediate action to internationalize Trieste. It decided instead to postpone the issue until Nov. 2, to give the Big Three time to try to settle Trieste's future through diplomatic moves.

The Trieste dispute flared recently when Britain and the United States announced they would withdraw their occupation troops from zone A and turn it over to Tito Yugoslavia, which controls the territory in zone B, threatened to march her troops into zone A if Italian forces set foot there.

Queen Dedicates Memorial to Commonwealth Airmen

This memorial above, has been dedicated by Queen Elizabeth to the 20,000 Canadian and other Commonwealth airmen who lost their lives in the European theatre in World War II. The memorial is situated in the beautiful Berkshire countryside on a hill overlooking Runnymede, where the Magna Carta was signed in 1215. Built of stone, it contains 53 chapels, each with the badge of a wartime air force squadron inscribed in the coppered ceiling. The Queen inspects an RAF guard of honor; right, during the dedication ceremonies.

Special U.S. Envoy Leaves For Korea to Sound Out Red Chinese, Koreans on Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special envoy Arthur Dean leaves for Korea today to determine when, where and on what conditions the Far Eastern Communist powers are willing to negotiate a Korean peace settlement.

State Secretary Dulles, having directed this "practical step" to sound out the Red Chinese and North Koreans, called on Moscow, meanwhile, for "revealing" evidence on what Russia intends to do concretely about a settlement there.

At a press conference Tuesday and in a New York speech Thursday night, Dulles made it clear he is thinking only of dealing with the Reds on specific issues and that he intends to allow them no opportunity to create what he called "the illusion of agreement."

He did not tie this directly to Prime Minister Churchill's reaffirmed interest in exploratory talks that would include President Eisenhower and Premier Malenkov but it seemed evident he thought little of the Churchill project.

Plan Talks

Dean, with a staff of eight advisers and assistants, will talk with United States military and diplomatic leaders in Tokyo Friday and with President Syngman Rhee and U.S. officials in Seoul Saturday. He will go to Panmunjom to meet with Red Chinese and North Korean representative Monday.

In preparation for the mission, Dean met Tuesday with represent atives of the 15 other United Nations members which fought in the Korean war. He will be representing them in his talks.

The State Department noted notice they will again insist on inclusion of a scheduled trip.

Dulles discussed in take-it-or-leave-it fashion a proposal for negotiations on Germany with Foreign Minister Molotov, Foreign Secretary Eden, Foreign Minister Bidault and Dulles agreed on the offer in London last August.

Previous Proposal

The Western powers had previously proposed that Russia negotiate on German unification. The Western officials figured the "evasive" replies which Moscow made reflected Kremlin fear of a weak Communist position in Germany and possible other fallout, such as preoccupation with internal problems and a desire to frustrate the West whenever possible.

Prior to the London meeting of the Western Big Three, the U.S. had argued that Russia's latest response probably was conclusive evidence that the Reds would not meet on Germany now. The Russians had issued a bid for Molotov to sit down with the three for talks opening at Lugano, Switzerland, Oct. 15.

Britain and France, however, had reported to Washington their effort should be made. Hence the Western powers now have proposed that Molotov meet with them at Lugano Nov. 8.

CYCLIST KILLED

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Hancy, 56, was fatally injured Tuesday [illegible] bicycle into a parked car. It was Toronto's 50th [illegible] fatality this year.

Five Bodies Recovered From Plane Wreckage

VANCOUVER (CP)—The bodies of five plane crash victims were flown here early today. The tragic sequel to a pilot's desperate gamble to bring a badly injured miner to hospital through stormy skies.

The plane, a single-engined de Havilland Beaver owned by Pacific Western Airlines, crashed Monday in the mountainous Garibaldi Park area 55 miles north of here on a mercy flight from Bridge River, B.C.

All five persons aboard were killed. They were: Bob Drinkwater, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., the pilot; Lucille Worden, 31, of Langley Prairie, B.C., a nurse; Joseph Neynayer, of Pioneer Mines, B.C., the injured man; and Lawrence Hamilton of Pioneer Mines and Ernest Maple of Goldbridge, B.C., passengers.

Their bodies were recovered by a ground party which reached the wreckage late Tuesday after it had been spotted from the air.

Wing Sheared Off

The wreckage was spread over the side of a mountain. One wing was apparently sheared off by a tree and the fuselage was found several hundred feet away.

Russ Baker, general manager of Pacific Western Airlines, who spotted the wreckage from the air, said the pilot had reported he had been made in such poor weather on a scheduled trip.

"He should never have attempted to fly in weather like that if he didn't feel that injured man's life depended on getting through," he said.

Drinkwater, an experienced bush pilot, flew to Bridge River Monday afternoon to bring Neumayer, suffering head injuries, to hospital at Vancouver. Maple and Hamilton boarded the plane there despite protests of the poor weather.

The pilot was apparently following the Pacific Great Eastern Railway tracks and flying low beneath the cloud cover. The wreckage was found near Garibaldi Station on the railway, 15 miles north of Squamish, B.C.

WOOD PIERCES HIS CHEST

HAMILTON (CP)—A 20-year-old workman was recovering today after a piece of a board 16 feet long and three inches wide was plunged into his chest. The board, used to steer machine belts, pierced Salvatore Domika Monday night at Dominion Foundries & Steel Company plant here. Workers sawed eight feet from the board and took Domika to hospital where the remaining piece was removed. Doctors said the wood caused no internal injuries.

SAVE FISHERMAN

TRENTON (CP) — Two men Tuesday saved the life of an unidentified fisherman who fell into the Murray canal here. Clarence Finlan and Albert McMurdo found him clinging to a log and pulled him ashore. The fisherman, drove off without identifying himself.

Cheese Is Sold With Rider For 30-Cent Price

STRATFORD (CP)—Cheese was sold on the Western Ontario cheese exchange here Tuesday with a conditional rider attached to the 30-cent price.

Cheese factory salesmen were told that if the price does not hold sales will be cancelled and cheese offered again at the next board on Nov. 3.

Interpretation of a cheese marketing board telegram created confusion. The telegram advised the cheese board and the trade had agreed to a 30 cent f.o.b. factory. However, there was no indication what deductions, if any, might be made by the cheese board in excess of the regulation five cents per hundred-weight marketing service charge.

Factory salesmen at first would not offer their cheese for sale until that situation was cleared up.

Exchange officials in telephone conversation with marketing board officials at Belleville, could get no clarification but they did learn that a deal has been completed to sell 200,000 pounds of 1953 Canadian cheese to Britain.

Canadian Navy Modernization Well Advanced

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy said today its long-range plan to provide a modern fighting force is starting to become a reality this year.

In a statement marking Navy Week it said two notable additions to the active fleet have been the Algonquin, converted from a wartime destroyer to an anti-submarine destroyer escort, and the modernized frigate Prestonian. The two ships were stripped of their superstructure, rebuilt and rearmed to meet the threat of the modern submarine.

Both warships are geared to the atomic age and can go into battle without a man appearing on the upper decks. The captain directs operations from an enclosed bridge. Two other frigates, modernized along the same lines, will be in service before the year ends.

The navy said plans for a 100-ship fleet have begun to reach fruition. Besides the new Canadian-designed destroyer escorts—five launched, nine more on order—and the aircraft carrier Bonaventure being built in Ireland, other major items in the shipbuilding program include 20 wood-and-aluminum minesweepers, in which service personnel, the Arctic patrol ship Labrador, which will be ready for duty next year, and eight seaward defence patrol craft, now being built.

TRAPPED IN SAND

TORONTO (CP) — Rufus Niles was trapped up to his waist in sand for more than 15 minutes Tuesday when part of a sidewalk excavation collapsed on him. Police were forced to hold back crowds who gathered to watch fellow-workers dig frantically to rescue him. Doctors said Niles was not seriously injured.

Kidnap Inquiry Will Hear All Evidence from Police Clerk Up

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police officials today called witnesses ranging "from a police clerk on up" in the third day of their closed-door investigation of possible irregularities in police handling of the Greenlease kidnapping.

Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell, heading the panel of police officials holding the inquiry into the arrest of the kidnappers here and the recovery of half of the $600,000 ransom, indicated, however, that the key witness may again postpone his appearance.

O'Connell said the panel today would hear about five more witnesses, but he did not know whether Lieut. Louis Shoulders would be included. It was Shoulders, acting on a tip from taxi driver John Conley, who arrested Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, the confessed kidnap-killers of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease, and recovered about $235,000 of the ransom.

Hager was questioned for six hours by the panel Tuesday.

Shoulders Upset

O'Connell said he talked to Shoulders Tuesday and found him "still emotionally upset." Shoulders' physician said the officer suffered a nervous condition after overworking himself on the case.

O'Connell also said the inquiry might move to Kansas City to question Mrs. Sandra June O'Day, "if the FBI will let us talk to her." Mrs. O'Day, held as a material witness, has admitted staying with Hall the night before his arrest Oct. 8.

The inquiry was ordered by the board of police commissioners Sunday after published reports that FBI agents were investigating possible discrepancies in police reports in their search for the missing $300,000 ransom.

Hager Questioned

Following the lengthy questioning of Hager, O'Connell refused to say whether the taxi driver's testimony differed from his written statements to police and reporters.

Hager told reporters before testifying, however, that he had been "hounded so much by this thing that my wife has become a nervous wreck."

"All this because I decided to tip off Lieut. Shoulders. It's gotten so I wish I had never called the police. But you can bet your bottom dollar I won't call them again on anything."

CPR Inaugurates Fastest 226-Mile Run in Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway announced Tuesday inauguration Nov. 30 of a new passenger train which will operate between Toronto and Windsor in four hours and five minutes. Officials said it will be the fastest railroad run over that distance in Canada.

The schedule calls for seven intermediate stops including a 15-minute halt at London, Ont.

The train—known as the Daylimer—will be made up of two new stainless steel, self-propelled diesel cars, manufactured by the Budd Company of Philadelphia.

U.S. Soldier Quits Communists As First of 359 Unrepatriated Allied PoW to Return to Allies

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A smiling United States soldier quit the Communists today and said it is "more than likely" that some of the other 22 Americans who cast their lot with the Reds will change their minds.

Apparently in good health Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson of Big Stone Gap, Va., was turned over to the United Nations command today. He was the first of 359 unrepatriated Allied PoWs to return to the Allies.

"It sure feels great to be back in the hands of the Americans," Dickenson grinned to reporters at the short transfer ceremony.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren Dickenson, who live in a remote cabin in the southern mountains, were joyous.

"If you can," his mother told a reporter, "I wish you would get a word to him—tell him that Dickenson hereabouts thinks hard of him for what he done and we will give him a big welcome home."

Dickenson was one of 23 Americans, one British and 335 South Koreans the Reds said refused repatriation to remain under Communist rule.

Changed Mind

Dickenson changed his mind with no coaxing. The UN command has not started efforts to persuade former Allied soldiers to return.

The Communist explanations to 22,400 North Korean and Chinese PoWs, meanwhile, were cancelled again for the fourth straight day.

The neutral nations repatriation commission, which has custody of the balky PoWs, made the announcement without details.

Delegates from all five nations making up the commission sat in on the meeting and quickly validated the return of Dickenson.

It was the first time Polish and Czech members had attended since they walked out of a stormy session Monday. They walked out after the other three members of the commission rejected a demand that prisoners be forced to listen to Communist persuaders.

Dickenson, wearing a blue Chinese PoW uniform, snapped a smart salute as he walked up to a U.S. marine major who received him at the transfer tent in the neutral zone.

After the 16-minute transfer process, Dickenson was whisked by helicopter to the evacuation hospital in Seoul for a medical checkup and processing.

Approached Guard

Dickenson made up his mind to come back some time before 10 o'clock Tuesday night. The soldier approached an Indian guard, complaining of being ill and asked, to be taken to the medical station outside the stockade.

Once there, Dickenson asked for an officer, and an Indian noncommissioned officer asked the American prisoner: "What is wrong with you?"

Dickenson then was segregated from the other non-repatriated prisoners.

Wednesday morning, one of the other American prisoners reported to Indian guards that Dickenson was missing, a reliable source said.

He said the PoW, showing no reaction, immediately went back to his compound and told the other Americans that Dickenson had asked to go home.

Indian Band Against Voting, Liquor Privilege

CORNWALL (CP)—The Ontario legislature's committee on Indian affairs was told Tuesday by the St. Regis band of Iroquois Indians that it was unanimously against provincial voting rights being extended to them. The band also rejected extension of liquor privileges.

Chief Dave Benedict said his band is not yet ready to vote. He said that when "we are ready, we will ask you."

The band lives on Cornwall island reserve and, unlike many tribes, has made educational progress. It is considered that it may well be close to 50 years before the band will be at the development equals that of the Tyendinaga band or the Six Nations reserve.

BIRTHS, DEATHS UP

TORONTO (CP) — There were 11,340 babies born in Ontario last month. A total of 3,821 persons died. Ontario government statistics branch today showed there were 11,020 births and 3,574 deaths in September of 1853. Marriages totalled 4,995 last month compared to 5,994 for the same month last year.

Goes on Trial In Murder Case

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—George Nelson, 23, of Stamford township went on trial here Tuesday on the murder of his 19-year-old wife, Patricia.

He pleaded innocent to the charge that he beat her to death in suburban Gadshill township last July 17 with an iron bar.

Crown attorney Lloyd Goodwin told the jury early July 17 a man, whom he would later identify as Nelson, arrived at the detachment jail here and led a turnkey to his car parked out in front.

The battered body of Mrs. Nelson was found in the car. She died several hours later in hospital.

Children Erect Underground Shacks, Bunkers

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Dozens of underground shacks or bunkers, laboriously constructed by small boys to provide places where they can play, roast potatoes and smoke cigarets in private, have been discovered in vacant lots, it was announced here.

Officials of the inspection division of the fire department said the bunkers, some as short as 30 feet long, are apparently a new juvenile fad. It would take a group of boys, working with pick and shovel, several days to construct one of the more elaborate types.

Apparently they dig an open trench about 20 feet long. This leads into a large hole about five feet square. They cover the top of the trench and hole with a network of sticks and corrugated cardboard and camouflage it under earth.

Capt. Emmett Byrne, a fire department safety inspector, said the underground hideouts are more of a threat to the lives of children than discarded ice boxes which have claimed the lives of more than 17 children in Canada and the United States in the last three months.

Motorists in busy East York, Ont., blinked when they saw this sight—a two-storeyed, six-room house being moved, chimney, porch, garage and all, down the highway. Houses being up in the stratosphere in price, the owner, Kenneth Thomas, found it more economical to shift it than build another when an apartment house was scheduled to be built on his property.—Central Press Canadian.

100 Foraging Bears Have Been Shot in Park

ALGONQUIN PARK (CP)—More than 100 foraging bears have been shot during the last few weeks by game preserve officers in Algonquin Park.

The officers' normal duty is to protect animals but bears have been so numerous that the rangers have been forced to shoot them.

Unable to find food, the bears broke into cottages and cabins. More than 40 cottages at Cache Lake were damaged. Rangers fear more damage to others at Smoke lake.

District forester W. E. Glasby said there are more bears in sight this year than he has seen in 25 years. He blamed the hot summer which destroyed the animals' food supply.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Hope springs eternal in the mind of every experienced bridge player. Gives him a big hand and a little encouragement and he will be thinking of better things. Like a slash, either small or grand.

Such are the times when he should be particular about his give and take information. Instead, he is bitten by the maneuvering bug. He reaches for just a little more than safety suggests.

In a duplicate match came the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K 10 8 5 4
♥K

♣J 6 5 4 2

WEST
♠A Q 7
♥9 8 2 3

♦8 6 2
♣K 8 7

SOUTH
♠J 9
♥A Q J 4
♦A K Q
♣A Q 9 3

At one table the bidding went like this:

South	North
2 NT	4 S
4 NT	5 C
5 NT	6 H
6 NT	Pass

Three no-trump is not the correct opening bid with the hand held by south. It should open with one heart. If he must gamble a little, an opening of two-no-trump might be tried. Not three no-trump.

Four no-trump is the signal for asking partner how many aces he holds. Five no-trump is the signal for asking partner as to the number of kings he holds. These are their convention signals.

In reply to four no-trump, five clubs show no aces. In reply to five no-trump, six hearts shows two kings. Learning thus that existing are no ace and a king, declarer did not go to seven.

Having stretched his opening bid, south should have slowed up by his persistence to play it in no-trump. Correct bidding would have told him that their safest contract was in spades.

Regardless of result they should be in six spades. But saying so would only start an argument. Especially when declarer took all 13 tricks after went laid off a spade. Such is life.

Bringing Up Baby

Mum-Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 3)

Crying is a perfectly natural part of a young baby's life. Hungry? I'm sticking the little one? Need a diaper change? Got a bit cold? All these "reason why" can be and are handled from day to day. But new things to cry about come into any baby's world. Even a normal, healthy infant will cry for things he wants and at those he doesn't want. But with patience and perception, it's amazing how soon even brand new mothers learn to distinguish between legitimate crying and unnecessary fuss.

Patience pays too, when you launch baby on his first solid foods. (Remember turnover food is quite different from easy-to-slide-down liquids.) A "trial run" at solids may well be easier with Gerber's ready-to-serve Cereals. For Gerber's have the nicest-to-be-tongue texture . . . the blend, pleasing flavors infants respond to. Even more important, they're enriched with the vitamins and minerals growing bodies need. Five for mealtime interest: Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, and Wheat.

Cries from stinging eyes during shampoo time can often be eliminated if you rub a bit of vaseline over baby's eyebrows and nose. Wonder-ful how it stops suds from trickling into little eyes.

Bib tip! Large plastic bibs really cover baby, keep clothes cleaner. And once over with a damp cloth, food dribbles disappear.

Send for this lovely Baby Spoon! Famous Wimbrop design in heavy silver plate! Regular value $1.25.

Yours for only 25 cents plus one box top from any of the five Gerber Baby Cereals—Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, or Wheat. Address: Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18, Canada.

BROOKE-POPHAM DEAD

HALTON, England (Reuters)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, 76, Britain's Far Eastern commander-in-chief in the War, died Tuesday. He retired from active service in 1941 after the Japanese had swept through defence positions in southeast Asia for which he was responsible. At the time he was severely criticized for "unpreparedness." He contended he was never sent the supplies he pressed for.

New Home Will Be Waiting For Polio Victim

TRANSCONA, Man. (CP) — A new home will be waiting for Mike Gesnick when he's well enough to leave an iron lung, thanks to the boys in the local plumbers' union.

When polio struck him back in July, the 37-year-old railroader had just started building a new house for himself, his wife, and their three-year-old daughter.

It was to have four rooms in a 1½-storey frame dwelling.

Mike's fellow-workers at the CNR roundhouse here didn't forget him.

Bright autumn days saw the men up early, heading for the skeleton dwelling. And they worked with such zest that the house is just about ready for a coat of stucco.

Mrs. Gesnick says the way things are going she will be able to move in well ahead of cold weather.

The house-warming? That will be postponed until Mike gets home.

Sport in Brief

MILES IN SECOND PLACE

WINNIPEG (CP) — A spooky little Negro halfback from a small North Carolina college piled up five touchdowns in two week-end games to vault into second place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union individual scoring. Nine points behind leader Bud Korchak of Winnipeg.

In the best individual performance of the season, Rollie Miles of Princeton Tigers scored three majors against Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday and two more Monday night against Saskatchewan Roughriders to run his season's point total to 55.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Miles collected seven points in the week-end double-headers to raise his total to 64 on one touchdown, nine field goals, five singles and 37 converts. Bob Korchak and Miles were named to last year's Western all-star team.

Miles, a third-year import, replaced teammate Billy Vessels, the Oklahoma flash, as runner-up and also as tops in the touchdown department with 11. Vessels, with 16 majors, was held scoreless during the week-end, and dropped into a third-place tie with another Eskimo tackle Wilbur Snyder from the University of Idaho. Snyder booted eight converts to raise his point total to 30.

NAMED TO HALL OF FAME

MONTREAL (CP)—The selection committee of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Hall of Fame Monday night named George Generoux of Saskatoon and Doug Hepburn of Vancouver to membership. Generoux won the Olympic trap-shooting event at Helsinki last year and Hepburn, in overseas competition, won a world weight-lifting title. Nomination of both was unanimous.

St. Mike's Trim BCI Juniors By 23-12 Score

By PETER UPPER

Behind the running, passing and kicking, of Wayne Fox, the St. Mike's team overcame an 11 point first quarter deficit to defeat the Collegiate Juniors 23-12. The game was played at O.S.D. Tuesday afternoon. Fox averaged about 70 per cent completion on his passes, throwing three for T.D.'s. Fox had the B.C.I. pass defence fooled on almost every attempt to throw one. He carried the ball on quarter back sneaks for about 60 yards and after a few bad kicks, he found his form in this department booting the ball for an average of thirty yards. He also kicked one convert.

Joe Ryan led the St. Mike's scoring with two T.D.'s to his credit. St. Denis got seven points. Kelly crossed the line for five while Fox kicked the odd point.

Jones led the Collegiate scoring with 2 touchdowns while Joe Kennedy converted one of Jones' touchdowns for a singleton. Cusack kicked a rouge for the extra point.

After getting off to a good start, the Collegiate's pass defence fell apart and that was when St. Mike's started to roll. Fox began to hit his ends and like flying with disconcerting regularity. On one series St. Mike's came from their own three to score on a play later.

Stan Jackson led the Collegiate attack with 146 yards gained on the ground. Jones was right on his heels with 143.

Batchelor attempted eight passes and completed one.

The Barons new goalie, Emile Francis, had a shutout until midway in the third period when Billy Gooden scored while two Cleveland players were in the penalty box.

Smythe Calls On Movies To Prove Point

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, held a special matinee for Toronto hockey writers Tuesday to show them the movie of Saturday's National Hockey League game here with New York Rangers.

The game ended in a 1-1 deadlock and Smythe attempted to show that a disallowed goal scored by Eric Nesterenko in the third period was a mistake on the part of referee Gerry Oliniki of Kitchener. It appeared that the films sided with Smythe.

The goal was disallowed because Oliniki said Bob Bollinger, a Toronto winger, was in the crease. But the movies showed that Bollinger was hook-checked by a New York defenceman with such force that he spun around, lost the puck and glided into Rangers' goaltender Johnny Bower. Nesterenko grabbed the puck and fired it into the New York net.

According to NHL rules such a goal should have been allowed or a penalty shot awarded to Toronto.

'Ole' Magician John Adams Comes up With Smart 'Rabbits' From Farm System Hockey Hat

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A few months ago, when Detroit Red Wings failed to make the Stanley Cup finals, it was whispered in National Hockey League circles that the five-time league champions were on the decline.

But today things are back to normal. The Wings are on top as usual, and observers are wondering how many more tricks general manager Jack Adams has up his sleeve.

So far, Adams had produced two surprises from his farm system: A centre who can outscore the mighty Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay and a goaltender who can stop just as many pucks as Terry Sawchuk when the regular Detroit goalie gets hurt.

Since the Wings dont usually play two netminders at the same time, rival sharpshooters are likely to be spared the attentions of Dave Gatherum for a while, provided Sawchuk stays in one piece. The 21-year-old Fort William rookie, who allowed three goals in as many games, has departed for Sherbrooke in the Quebec Hockey League.

But Earl Reibel is something else.

Since Sid Abel retired to his coaching job in Chicago two years ago, the Wings have lacked a centre who could keep pace with Howe and Lindsay, the most formidable pair of wingmen in hockey today.

In 24 games, Reibel actually has overshadowed his famed linemates. The 22-year-old Kitchener, Ont., product who led the Western Hockey League in scoring last season with Edmonton Flyers, tops the league with four goals and seven assists for 11 points, one more than both Howe and Lindsay in every department.

Disgruntled Montreal sports writers, upset by the failure of high-priced Jean Beliveau to live up to his advance billing, with the Canadiens, are asking why the big Quebec centre doesn't abandon his slap shot, and get his shots away as deceptively as Reibel.

Conn Smythe, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, took one look at Reibel and pronounced him "the best rookie by a city block."

Reibel and his mates will be on display in Toronto for the first time tonight in the only NHL game scheduled. The third-place Leafs, who suffered their only loss of the season when Gatherum blanked them at Detroit, need a victory to pull into a first-place tie.

The remainder of the league sees action Thursday, with Montreal visiting Boston while Chicago Black Hawks while the fourth-place Boston Bruins visit New York to protect their one-point edge over the Rangers.

Call By-Election To Fill Seat

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced Tuesday a by-election will be held in Victoria Nov. 24 to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Percy Wright, Social Credit member.

Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, defeated in the June provincial election, will be the Social Credit candidate. Both the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberals are expected to contest the seat. The CCF may also.

Mr. Wright, a surprise victor in Victoria, traditionally Liberal seat, is out of two jobs now.

He was assistant city clerk when he entered the election campaign, but on his election to the house he was refused a leave of absence. A municipal law prohibits such leave for political purposes.

When the legislature opened five weeks ago, he left his city hall job, and Monday, on returning to his desk, found he was automatically fired.

Monday night he announced his resignation from the legislature.

Olson Is 11-5 Favorite To Defeat Turpin In Middleweight Title Bout

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT!

Tonight in Madison Square Gardens two middleweights, rumored to be the best in the world will cross fistic rapiers for the global championship. Jamaica-born Randy Turpin, will carry the hopes of Britain while Carl "Bobo" Olson, who first saw the light of day in Hawaii will battle under "Old Glory."

Usually the pre-fight blasts of other world championship bouts regardless of class, have covered reams of paper, but this Turpin-Olson bout stands out by the fact that the Britisher has withdrawn into a shell that even the nosiest sportswriter couldn't penetrate.

Some American reports differ to the general run. While Olson is quoted as being an 11-5 favorite, some of the experts say that Turpin is in splendid physical condition, can outpunch the Babe, etc. Perhaps this is being written with figurative tongue in cheek to make the American's victory all the more impressive, if he wins.

Then too, probably American reports had something to do with the fact that overseas despatches had it that Randy was fooling around too much and didn't look like championship calibre in his bout with Charles Humez, the flying Frenchman. The training methods he has been following and the fact he is a self-appointed "coach" of the camp haven't instilled any love for him in the hearts of American sportswriters.

But they know he can hit and fight. He created a favorable impression this side of the pond when he fought Sugar Ray Robinson, when the American was a shade of having the fight stopped when Randy opened a nasty cut over an eye. But the Sugar unleashed his heavy artillery and hammered Randy until the referee stepped in to save him.

Dan (New York Mirror) Parker who should know wherof he speaks, says, "Turpin's greatest battle to punch with Robinson or Turpin, for that matter. But he is a rugged tireless tosser of leather which though it may not be lethal certainly is discomforting. His dexterity awkward style is most effective as his opponents soon learn."

Parker thinks there is nothing in the records of the two men to justify the near 2-1 odds favoring Olson. The two fighters are only a month apart in age, Turpin is little to choose between them physically and their records are not far from identical, he says.

Olson looked good to the experts last spring when he swarmed over Paddy Young in Madison Square Gardens. Robinson is the only fighter to have won a knockout over the Hawaiian. The late Dave Sands floored him with his first punch but couldn't land anything worthwhile after that. Sands and Robinson have defeated Olson twice and the latter was outpointed by a youngster named Duko six years ago.

Turpin was knocked out five years ago in London by a lad named Jean Stock and he lost an eight-rounder a little later to one named Albert Finch. Stock itself held him to a draw the previous year. Randy won all his other fights except the one in which Robinson stopped him.

According to Parker, Turpin claims he was handicapped in the Robinson scrap because his brother was not allowed to act in his corner. However, it appears that the sporting press of New York have stretched a point, waived the no-relation-in-the-corner rule, and Randy's brother, whom the British champion has been belting out of the ring, will be Towel Tommy.

FINE EFFORT

Wayne Fox, husky St. Mike's gridder, almost stole the show in the game against BCI juniors yesterday. The big fella went to the air in a consistent offensive and his service had the Redmen off stride or lasting behind the Irish receivers. BCI stuck almost exclusively to ground attacks and our Mr. Boyd Upper states that when he did attempt to forward it was tossed in the same direction but one. Coach Bradley of BCI will likely knuckle the squad down to pass defence tactics at the next practice.

The St. Michael's team came up with a great effort and they should give the powerful Albert seniors a battle when they clash tomorrow afternoon on the college field. Campbellford will try conclusions with the Bradley-coached squad here.

NEW TALENT

The Redmen ripped through another stiff workout last night at Memorial Arena with three or four new faces trying out for the various positions. Proof of the efforts of the Redmen management to secure hockey talent is seen in the far and wide places represented by potential players. Lad of Perth, Tom Branagh of Napanee and Jules Biron of near Ottawa were in action. George Reeves of Cobourg has also been in a Redmen livery. Three players are needed and they should be known at the end of the week what will comprise the 1953 edition of the squad, at least for the time being.

The opening game at Orillia scheduled for Saturday night may be cancelled, Manager Bruce Smith said today. It seems the Terriers have had bad luck with their plant in their arena and consequently have not been able to practice very often. However, the Orillia Association 48-hour deadline for notification of cancellation arrives tonight at seven o'clock. If no word is received from the Terrier mentors the game naturally will be played.

Pembroke Kings Will Take Legal Action

PEMBROKE (CP) — Pembroke Lumber Kings and Memorial Centre Commission said Tuesday night they will take legal action to protect two hockey players claimed by Ottawa Senators of the professional Quebec Hockey League.

A statement released following a meeting here said decisions of Butch Shahan and Forward Emile Dagenais had been dealt with "most unfairly" in a ruling made at Ottawa.

At Ottawa, the heads of the National Hockey League and Canadian Amateur Hockey Association ruled Tuesday that three players, who moved from Ottawa to the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior league this season, are the Senators' property and ineligible to play elsewhere this season.

The ruling dealt with Shahan and Dagenais, who moved to Pembroke, and Ed Mulligan, who switched to the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds.

The club and arena commission say they have retained Ottawa lawyer Royden Hughes "to take immediate legal proceedings to clear once and for all the status of these players."

But Briton Declares Flatly 'I'll Win and Take The Title' Scrap Will Lure About 17,000

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl (Bobo) Olson, the hurling Hawaiian from San Francisco, holds firmly as the 11-to-5 favorite to whip Britain's moody Randy Turpin in their 15-round middleweight title fight at Madison Square Garden tonight. Although his strange training methods have been as unorthodox as his awkward fighting style, the 25-year-old British Negro said flatly: "I prove I was right. I'll win and bring back the championship to England."

Olson, poker-faced and quiet said calmly: "I'll take the title." Then he left the rest of the talking, as usual, to manager Sid Flaherty.

"Olson will win," was the studied comment of the veteran, who fought them both twice. The two will battle for the crown the former Sugar Ray abdicated nine months ago.

"Olson is aggressive and very busy," said Robinson. "He gives you no room and I don't think Turpin can't go back. I found that out. Olson will keep coming."

Three Britons Debtors

Even the visiting British writers and Londoner Jack Solomons have soured on their head-strong fighter.

"I don't approve the way Turpin has trained," said Solomons. "He should have boxed more. His timing is off. It goes 15 rounds Olson will win."

Turpin hasn't boxed since last Thursday. Despite his previous inaction and the big odds against him, the Briton's name is still right at the box office.

The International Boxing Club opened its windows today with more than $110,000 in the till. IBC managing director Harry Markson said the scene will have about 17,000 fans and about $175,000. Radio-television receipts will add another $60,000 to the pot. Each fighter will collect 30 per cent or about $27,000.

Big Drawing Card

The last time he was here Turpin drew a tremendous $1,270 turnout and $97,698 at the polo grounds for his title defence against Sugar Ray, Sept. 23, 1951. Then the faithful were curious to see the man who had copped the title at the quarter-century 24 days before in London.

Tonight, starting at 10 p. m. EST, they may see just the shell of a once-great ring prospect. The bout will be broadcast and telecast coast to coast by the New York, area to a 75 miles around the metropolis, will be blacked out on TV sets.

Off their performances against Robinson and their overall records, Olson should be no worse than even money. But he can't punch with his record tonight. He beat Robinson once and was stopped in 10 rounds the second time. He has won eight straight since the Robinson defeat and his record is 28-5-1 with 6 knockouts.

Olson, 25 like Turpin, has won 13 in a row since he dropped a close 15-rounder to Sugar Ray in San Francisco on Feb. 13, 1952. In their first clash, Robinson stopped Bobo in 12 rounds in '50.

Alexander Cup Passes From 'Amateur' Hockey

OTTAWA (CP)—The Alexander Trophy has passed from the Canadian "amateur" hockey scene.

W. B. (Baldy) George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday the three-year-old trophy will be returned to CAHA headquarters by its present holder—Halifax Atlantics. The reason: Lack of competition.

Emblematic of the senior, semi-professional hockey championship of Canada, the trophy was presented to the CAHA in 1950 by Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, governor-general at that time. George gave the account of its history, and its demise:

The CAHA, realizing that senior amateur hockey competition was being dominated by a few powerful clubs, decided in 1950 to set up a special country-wide group leg to be known as the "major series."

Trophy for New Group

The Alexander Trophy was to be presented annually to the champion club in this group. The CAHA was to continue to be emblematic of the championship of the Canadian senior league.

Both groups were to come under the jurisdiction of the CAHA, although there was an understanding that professional players could be signed up by major series clubs. Senior leagues were to be strictly amateur in status.

Composition of the major series was made up from the senior leagues: the Western Canada, the Ontario Hockey Association, the Quebec senior league and the Maritime Senior League.

Allan cup competition was provided by senior teams not conducted by any of these groups.

But, one by one, the major series clubs have dropped out until now only the Maritime league remains.

Mercurys Blank Cataracts 6-0; Take Loop Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys, Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finalists for the last three years, bounced to the top of the standings with a 6-0 shutout over Niagara Falls Cataracts in their first league appearance of the season Tuesday night.

In the only other senior hockey action the powerful Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds trimmed North Bay Trappers 4-1 as the Trappers opened their 1953-54 home schedule in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group series.

On their home ice the Mercurys had little difficulty with Niagara Falls. league newcomers. Roy Conacher, the goal-getter who, counting twice, Herbie Carnegie and Bill Mosienko each fired a hat trick during the 1953-54 season, Burlington and Ray McCallum got the other goals.

Niagara Falls netminder Don Auchinachie, a substitute, facing away 31 shots. Bobby Gibson made 36 saves.

In North Bay the Trappers commanded most of the play but they couldn't get by Tommy Donachey, Greyhound goaltender. Donachey saved the game for Sault, letting in only one goal and stopping 34 shots. Boofey Cascia only had 22 to handle in the North Bay nets.

Ron Lay, Terry Blocchi, Jim Johnston and Ted Rooney each bagged a single marker. Eddie Marineau's slap shot in the second period was the Trappers' only tally.

Action in the OHA loop tonight includes Chatham Maroons at Sarnia Sailors and Owen Sound at Stratford to tackle the Indians.

In the NOHA section Sudbury Wolves play Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians.

Brodie Ness Named Head Curling Body

TORONTO (CP)—The 89th annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association decided Tuesday that the playoffs which decide the three representatives to the Canadian single rink championship will consist of round-robins play this year.

In former finals the eight district representatives met in a knockout series which called for three games a day. The round-robin will necessitate seven games, at least, for the finals.

The association turned down a proposal to reduce play in the Toronto, Hamilton, Globe and Mail and Governor General's Trophy competitions from 21 to 12 ends.

Another proposal to adopt the Canadian Dominion Curling Association was postponed until next year's annual meeting.

R. Brodie Ness of Kingston was elected president. Other officers: Rev. Bishop of Orillia, vice-president; E. V. Vallance of the Hamilton Thistle Club, second vice-president; and W. E. McMurtry of Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

Carrigg headed the kids' rink in 1908 and 1910, taking the top awards in the Manitoba Curling Association bonspiel. He also introduced the "free guard zone" now used throughout Canada.

Hockey's Major Governing Bodies Rule Players Property of Senators

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Hockey League and Canadian Amateur Hockey Association today ruled that three players are the property of Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Hockey League and are ineligible to play for hockey elsewhere this season.

The special meeting was called to discuss the status of defencemen Butch Shahan and Emile Dagenais and Eddie Mulligan who moved to the Northern Ontario Hockey Association when the Quebec Senior Hockey League went professional last spring.

President Clarence Campbell of the NHL and W. B. George, president of the CAHA, issued the following statement after a meeting with D. D. Gormley, owner of Ottawa Senators, and Quebec officials:

"It was the joint ruling that the three players are under obligation to the Ottawa Senators and are not eligible to play for any other club without the consent of the Ottawa club."

The statement was signed by Campbell and George.

Shahan and Dagenais joined the Pembroke Lumber Kings while Mulligan switched to Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

MORE

Had Reserve Clause

The decision of the two hockey bodies was based on contracts signed by the hockey players last season which contained the reserve clause.

Under this clause the players' contracts are the property of Ottawa unless no new contract is signed for the 1953-54 season.

Gormley's ruling forces the players either to play for Senators or obtain their release from Mr. Gormley. Campbell said.

Campbell's attitude was that Quebec Senators were within their rights of the calibre of Shahan and Dagenais they must be willing to pay for their services.

"If they are going to be in business competing with the NHL they must have the money," he said.

President Leo Lafrance of the Lumber Kings, who sat in during the hearings of Shahan and Dagenais, said the decision would be "taken to the courts."

"It's a man doesn't want to play professional hockey," he said, "why should he be forced to do so."

Hurst Free Agent

Campbell said the solution on all three cases was simple—the three players could buy their release and go to the Pembroke and Sault Ste. Marie purchase them. Failing this, it is unlikely any of the three players will play this year.

Forward Ron Hurst, who also switched from the Senators to Sault Ste. Marie, has been declared a free agent.

Campbell said there never was any question about Hurst. His contract stipulated that if he didn't like the deal in Ottawa he could look elsewhere.

Campanella Heads All-Star Team, Strongest Ever Formed in National

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's slugging catcher, heads the 1953 major league all-star team, one of the strongest squads ever put together.

Campanella, whose 41 home runs and 142 runs batted in are the highest ever reached by a big league catcher, drew all but five of the 179 votes returned by the Baseball Writers' Association of America in response to the Associated Press' eighth annual all-star poll.

The team boasts seven .300 hitters, including the two league batting champions, the NEW and slugging kings, a home-run leader, four players who have hit 30 or more homers and five who have pounded home 100 or more runs.

The pitchers are Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phillies and Warren Spahn of Milwaukee Braves. Each won 23 games to tie for the most in the majors. Roberts beat out Washington's Bob Porterfield for righthanded honors, received 133 votes to 36. Spahn easily topped Chicago's Billy Pierce for lefthanded honors, 151 to 46.

Six of the 11 players are new to the all-stars. The four holdovers from 1952 include Phil Rizzuto, shortstop; Al Rosen, third base; Stan Musial, left field and Roberts. Musial made the squad for the seventh time, missing only once since the all-star team was inaugurated in 1944.

The world champion Yankees placed only one man—Rizzuto—on the team while Brooklyn Dodgers, whom they defeated in the world series, placed three men. They are outfielders Duke Snider and Carl Furillo in addition to Campanella.

The All-Star Team

First base—Mickey Vernon, Senators (.337)

Second base—Red Schoendienst, Cardinals (.342)

Third base—Al Rosen, Indians (.336)

Shortstop—Phil Rizzuto, Yankees (.271)

Left field—Stan Musial, Cardinals (.337)

Center field—Duke Snider, Dodgers (.336)

Right field—Carl Furillo, Dodgers (.344)

Catcher—Roy Campanella, Dodgers (.312)

Pitcher (righthanded) — Robin Roberts, Phillies (23-16)

Pitcher (lefthanded) — Warren Spahn, Braves (23-7)

The little Teepee centre scored eight goals and assisted on six others for 14 points in the first five games up to and including Saturday's contests.

Bill McCreary and Bob Attersley of the third-place Guelph Biltmores are close behind with 13 points. McCreary has seven goals and six assists while Attersley has five goals and eight assists.

Hugh Barlow of St. Catharines is fourth with nine points while four other players are tied for fifth with seven points each. They are Wally Maxwell of Toronto Marlboros, Al Smith of Barrie Flyers, Ralph Hicks of Kitchener-Greenshirts and Grant McDonald of Galt Black Hawks.

Al Buchanan of Kitchener and Marv Edwards of St. Catharines are tied for the lead in goaltending. Both have 2.6 goals-against averages for five games. Johnny McNamara of Toronto St. Michael's is third with a 3.33 average.

Stamps' Black Leads Western Point Race

SEATTLE (CP)—Steve Black of Calgary Stampeders picked up six points on three goals and as many assists last week to take over the lead in the young Western Hockey League scoring race.

Stampeders hold five of the first seven scoring positions with Sid Finney and Frank Ashworth, both of Calgary, trailing Black's 16-point total by two and three points, respectively.

Another Calgarian, Bill Brennan, is tied for goaltending honors with Lorne Worsley of Vancouver Canucks and Chuck Rayner of Saskatoon Quakers. Brennan and Rayner each has one shutout, while the agile Calgary netminder is tied with Worsley in the goals-against department. Each has allowed an average of two goals a game.

Canucks Lead Western League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The undefeated Vancouver Canucks moved into first place in the Western Hockey League Tuesday night by edging Edmonton Flyers 3-1 in Vancouver.

Canucks, who have won six and tied one game in seven starts, moved two points ahead of the idle Calgary Stampeders.

After a scoreless first period, the Flyers led 1-0 at the end of the second period on a shot by Steve Hrymnak. Andy Bathgate and Fred Brown scored for Vancouver.

Bell agreed: "We sign a player to a one-year contract with a one-year option. After the player has played his two years, he is free to sign with any club he wants to."

The reserve clause in professional baseball contracts gives the club the right to control a player's services for as long as it chooses.

Famous Irish Horse Trainer Draws Suspension

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The top of the turf today is the sensational suspension of P. J. (Paddy) Prendergast, a fast-talking, fast-moving trainer from Ellen Clara who looks after the largest stable in Europe.

The story in brief is this: Prendergast is the most famous trainer in Ireland. Among his patrons is the president of the Republic of Ireland, Sean O'Kelly. And this season horses "trained by P. J. Prendergast, "Ireland" are cleaning up scores rich races on the English turf.

Last week, at the height of Irish Paddy's success, the English Jockey Club ruled that no more entries will be accepted from Prendergast for racing under Jockey Club rules.

Claim Erratic Run

The ban was based on the seemingly erratic running of Prendergast racer named Blue Sail. In two starts in Ireland, Blue Sail finished nowhere. Then last Oct. 10 he came to England for a fairly good two-year-old race at Ascot and just failed by a neck to catch the Englisn horse Plaisseng.

The Jockey Club says it won't tolerate such discrepancies in form. The Irish say they don't, claim Blue Sail was just finding his true ability and was running at Ascot over a longer distance which suited him. Now the Irish Turf Club is to hold a second inquiry this week.

The case has aroused unusual attention because of the prominence of Prendergast. He had 27 horses entered for the 1954 Epsom Derby, including a possible winner-book favorite for the famous three-year-old race.

This is Moonlight Express' first strapping dark bay colt by Blue Train which once sported the racing silks of the late King George VI. Moonlight Express smothered his rivals in his one race in England this season and Prendergast is known to regard him as potentially the greatest horse he has ever handled.

Baseball Ruling Will Not Affect Pro Football

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if the Supreme Court should outlaw baseball's reserve clause in players' contracts, professional football wouldn't worry, Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner, and George Preston Marshall, owner of Washington Redskins, agreed Tuesday.

Last week two minor league baseball players and a minor league club-owner challenged the legality of the reserve clause. Supreme Court justices, who still have the cases under consideration, wanted to know whether the appeals before the high court would affect contracts in football or any other sport.

Attorney Raymond Jackson, representing organized baseball, said he thought football contracts differed from those in baseball.

"They certainly do," said Marshall. "We don't have any reserve clause."

Bell agreed: "We sign a player to a one-year contract with a one-year option. After the player has played his two years, he is free to sign with any club he wants to."

The reserve clause in professional baseball contracts gives the club the right to control a player's services for as long as it chooses.

Citadelles Win First Start

KITCHENER (CP)—Quebec Citadelles Tuesday night won their first game in five starts in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by defeating Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 6-3.

The win puts the Citadelles into an eighth-place tie with Hamilton Tigers. Kitchener is in second place.

The Shirts led for 17 minutes of the first period on the first of three goals by Flightwinger Rene Rochet. Stan Parker tied it at 19:32 and Lee Amadio put Quebec in front with the first of his two goals at 18:45.

The teams divided six second-period goals.

Mike Hatchford, former St. Michael's player, scored the insurance goal early in the final period. Other Citadelle scorers were Clermont Doyon and Gaston Pelletier. Greenman tallied the other Kitchener goal.

Reids Regents, Eastern Central Ontario Junior A Baseball Champions

Bryson Reid's Regents, won the eastern and central Ontario Junior "A" baseball championship but were defeated in the provincial titular series by the Hamilton Crawfords. They defeated the Peterborough and Cardinal clubs in their march to the finals in the season just finished. It was the first year of organization for the Juniors. Pictured above in top row from left to right: Coach Red Carson, Bill Drummond, Darry Jones, Ed Wallins, John Batchelor, Robert Wallbridge, Johnny Mowatt, Reg. Banting H.S. COSSA Reps In 'Red Feather'

TORONTO (CP)—Banting Memorial High School of Alliston will represent the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association in this week-end's Red Feather football tournament here.

Officials of the annual gridiron show said Tuesday that Oshawa Collegiate, originally scheduled to carry the COSSA colors, had withdrawn in favor of Alliston. Other officers said they unknowingly used ineligible players in a game against Banting last week.

The two-day tournament will see St. Catharines meeting London Central and Hamilton Westdale playing Toronto Danforth Tech Friday night with Alliston meeting Ottawa Fisher Park and Toronto Etobicoke playing Sudbury Tech Saturday.

Bob Porterfield, Haddix, 1953 Shutout Kings

NEW YORK (AP)—Washington's Bob Porterfield, a hard-luck hurler for most of his big-league career, and rookie Southpaw Harvey Haddix, in his first full season with St. Louis Cardinals, were the 1953 shutout kings of the majors.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press Tuesday showed Porterfield topped the American League with nine shutouts. Haddix set the pace in the National League with six.

For Porterfield, the 1953 season was a big change from his showing of a year ago. In 1952 he was on the losing end of seven shutouts and his won-lost record was 13-14. He registered 22-14 this year.

Haddix joined the Cards at the end of the 1952 season after serving a two-year hitch in the army. He appeared in seven games, winning two and losing two.

DUCKS LIKE AIRPLANES SHOULD FLY INTO THE WIND. WHEN THE WIND IS FROM BACK AND THE BIRDS GET FRIGHT OF YOU, TURN AROUND AND GET AWAY FROM IT AS QUICKLY AS YOU CAN. THEY'LL FLY MUCH BETTER THAT WAY.

WHEN YOUR DOG KICKS A LOT OF MUD AROUND AS HE SHOT WHERE IT WAS SHOT FROM, A RABBIT BEING CHASED WILL CIRCLE AND COME BACK TO THE SPOT FROM WHICH IT STARTED.

CONTINENTALS ARE USUALLY FOUND AROUND HEAVY WEEDFIELDS AND THICKETS ON BRIGHT, HAZY DAYS. IF YOU DON'T FIND THEM THERE, TRY THE OPEN FIELDS. THEY'RE OFTEN HIGH-FLY SUNNING THEMSELVES!

MADOC

Friends, Neighbors Honor Young Couple Make Presentations

MADOC — The friends and neighbors of the Trotter family gathered at their home on a recent evening to honor Oliver and his bride, and to bid farewell to Misses Hattie and Blanche and Mr. and Mrs. Jim McMechan, who are moving into Madoc.

Mr. George Ketchson acted as chairman and Mrs. George Lee read a few words of welcome and congratulation to the bride and bridegroom.

They were presented with a floor lamp and a walnut end table. Oliver and his wife expressed their appreciation to their friends and welcomed them to their home.

Mrs. Lee then read a short address expressing the regret felt by the community for the loss of the neighbors who were leaving.

Mr. and Mrs. McMechan and Misses Hattie and Blanche were presented with matching tablelamps. Miss Hattie was also given, by the Hazzard's W.M.S., a Life Membership certificate, and pin in recognition of her work and interest in the society.

Refreshments were much enjoyed and the younger members of the visitors gave the bride and bridegroom a rousing chairvari.

Luxury Line Gothic Will Carry Queen and Duke to Australia

By RICK STEVENS

SYDNEY (Reuters)—When the 13,800-ton liner Gothic, carrying the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, steams through "the heads" of Sydney harbor Feb. 3, she will be bringing here the first reigning monarch ever to visit Australia.

The Royal visitors' first glimpse of the Dominion—continent will be a panorama of beautiful days, attractive beaches, and houses and gardens clustered around the foreshore.

On the shores of this harbor, the forefathers of today's Australians founded the first settlement a century and a half ago. Here, too, convicts from Britain once came as exiles.

Many of Sydney's 1,620,000 people will crowd the tiers of foreshore to watch the Royal ship steam down the harbor, escorted by vessels of the Royal Australian Navy.

The Gothic will drop anchor at Farm Cove, so named because Governor Phillip, who established in Australia in 1788, and the Queen and Duke will transfer to the Royal barge for an official reception, headed by governor-general Field Marshal Sir William Slim and Prime Minister Robert Menzies.

Extensive Itinerary

That will mark the beginning of a tour of Australia which will take the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh more than 12,000 miles before they leave Fremantle April 1.

They will visit 50 or more country places in addition to the larger cities: Sydney; Melbourne; Brisbane; Perth; and Adelaide, known here as "the city of churches." Hobart, second oldest of the Australian state capitals; Perth, on Australia's west coast. Traveling by air, the Queen will be able to see much of the outback, or "brown continent" with its thriving provincial cities and "bush" town.

Then she will bring the Queen and the Duke in contact with aborigines, tribal names such as Wagga Wagga (meaning "many crows") and Benalla ("a musk duck").

shire city cost £425,000. The one-storey school is surrounded by 37 acres accommodating three soccer fields, a cricket pitch, rugby field and four hockey fields, netball and tennis courts and a 440-yard running track.

The Queen will open the Australian federal Parliament and several state parliaments.

During the course of official receptions, banquets and garden parties, the Royal visitors will also have the opportunity to meet some "dinky-di" Australians—the furry, ice-cream eating koala bear, the platypus and the kangaroo.

Five Free Days

They will see, too, the Australian bushland, with its stringy trees, golden wattle and plant life.

During the 58 days of her tour, the Queen will have only five days free from engagements. There will be others when she is free for an evening, or half a day.

Some newspapers here have been calling for an eleventh hour invitation that may describe as the "split second" tour program. They say the itinerary will impose too heavy a strain on the Queen and spoil the pleasure of her visit.

Newspaper criticism has also taken a statement by the director of the Australian National Travel Association, H. Rhi Berryman, that timing for the program was so precise that the Royal party has only a number of seconds which the Queen would have to wait for a train from the Royal aircraft to the ground.

Gen. Berryman, in reply, said he used the phrase "split second" timing to illustrate "the kind of efficiency we would have in our organization—not the kind of schedule it would be presumptuous to impose upon the Royal party."

Kidneys Disturbed Sleep Felt Nervous, Tired Rundown — Praises Syntona

Tells How This Herbal Medicine Brought Relief From Long-standing Health Disorders. "Wouldn't Be Without It."

If you are disturbed night after night by kidney disorders it is time you began taking Syntona Herbal Compound. This medicine, which is made entirely from herbs and roots, acts effectively, not only on the kidneys, but also on stomach, liver and bowels. It is a general tonic medicine which helps to tone up the entire system.

Here for instance, is the experience of Mr. Jacob Stover, R.R. 2, Tillsonburg, Ontario, who said recently:

"Before using Syntona I was getting up often at night and that interrupted some all through the night because of this and through loss of sound sleep I became nervous, run-downed and felt tired out.

"A friend advised me to try Syntona and in no time at all I could see that it was helping the condition. As I kept on taking it, the trouble cleared up and I felt like myself once more. Now I would not be without a bottle of Syntona in the house and want to let other people who suffer this way know how wonderful it is."

Why not let this Pure Herbal Medicine help you as it has so many others? Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Seven Vehicles Are Involved Due to Fog

TRAMBLEVILLE (CP) — Heavy fog obstructing No. 2 highway early Tuesday was reported the cause of an accident involving seven cars and injuring several persons.

A chain reaction of accidents started after a two-car collision in a fog pocket about a mile west of here.

One car proceeding cautiously through the fog was struck from the rear by the second. Someone managed to flag down an approaching gravel truck, but a fully-loaded transport plowed into the back of the gravel truck.

Then an old model car piled into the transport and two more cars followed into the wreckage. Harry McEachren of Thamesville, injured in the cab of his transport for almost half an hour, is in Chatham Hospital suffering undetermined injuries. William Saunders of Toronto, driver of one of the cars, was also taken to Chatham hospital with leg and arm injuries.

Supreme Court Will be Asked To Make Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada will be asked to rule at its forthcoming session whether income tax officers may be required to produce a taxpayer's income tax return in court at a criminal trial.

Hitherto, income tax returns have been regarded as secret. But in a recently decision last year, the British Columbia Appeal Court gave a ruling which it said may be produced as evidence at a trial.

The judicial opinion was sought by the B.C. government after the retrial of Vancouver income tax officials to produce in the B.C. Supreme Court the income tax returns of 37 men charged with keeping betting houses.

The federal government is appealing this judicial opinion to Canada's highest tribunal. This is one of 57 cases slated to be heard by the nine judges at sessions of the court getting under way today.

The tax returns case involves the B.C. Appeal Court opinion that the returns must be produced on order of the judge to allow the court to determine whether their contents are admissible and relevant as evidence and whether they are prejudicial or detrimental to public welfare.

Also involved is the Appeal Court opinion that the crown or the accused may subpoena tax officials to produce the returns and testify orally so the court may decide whether they should be used as evidence.

Training Program Since Cease-Fire Quite Extensive

OTTAWA (CP) — Army headquarters said Tuesday it was "not unnatural" for returning Korean soldiers to complain about the severity of the 25th Brigade's training program since the cease-fire. "You might say," a spokesman commented, "that the boys have had to revert to pre-truce soldiering. No doubt it has come as quite a shock to some of them."

He was commenting on a report from Vancouver that some of the 250 soldiers just returned from Korea expressed discontent Tuesday over "too much spit and polish within the brigade since the armistice."

The spokesmas said the troops' complaints reflected the "normal let-down" to be expected when a unit is withdrawn from the fighting line.

May Get Raise

KINGSTON (CP)—Members of the Frontenac county jail staff will soon have a salary increase if members of the county council act favorably on recommendations made to it Tuesday.

W. M. Hickie, Progressive Conservative member for Kingston in the Ontario legislature, said that efficiency and discipline could only be maintained if the salaries of the jail staff were commensurate with abilities desired.

Sheriff C. H. Wood said he felt there should be a wage boost of from $300 to $300 a year.

SECOND BLOOM

TILBURY, England (CP)—A lilac tree and an apple tree blossomed in September for the second time this year. Local experts believe last winter's floods, which swept this Essex area, had something to do with the double crop.

Labor Opposition To Challenge Govt. On Guiana

Churchill Likely To Ask For Resolution of Approval

LONDON (AP)—Labor Opposition leaders jettisoned their guns today to challenge in Parliament the government's action in ousting left-wing premier Cheddi Jagan pending the constitution in British Guiana.

The subject of the recent drastic action in Britain's South American colony is up for debate in the House of Commons, and Prime Minister Churchill's government has asked for a resolution of approval.

The ousted prime minister of British Guiana, Dr. Cheddi Jagan, arrived here by air Wednesday night to fight his case at the colonial office. He went into immediate conferences with Labor party leaders.

After a two-hour talk with Jagan, Labor leader Clement Attlee announced an amendment condemning totalitarian methods in a British colony. The amendment added that Labor "is not satisfied that the situation in British Guiana was such as to justify the suspension of such a character to justify the suspension of suspending the constitution."

Claimed Coup Plotted

The British government moved against Jagan Oct. 9 on grounds that the leftist politician was hatching a Communist coup. The colonial office said he planned to stage a coup and seize the colony.

Jagan, upon his arrival here, rejected the charges. He said reports we planned to burn down factories and buildings, why don't they take us to the court?"

Jagan accused the British government of inventing a "Communist plot" in the South American colony.

He said the British government, by suspending the colony's constitution and by sending troops and warships to the colony, was sending warships and troops to the colony.

Jagan replied: "We cannot say, but we were surprised to see the gunboat action which the American government took in endorsing what we considered a new film board headquarters in Ville St. Laurent, near Montreal, at a cost of about $6,000,000.

"The issue is settled," Mr. St. Laurent said.

The prime minister added that the cabinet's decision would be set out in a letter to be sent to Mayor Camillien Houde, who had the city campaign to retain the film board in Ottawa.

Four Children Burned to Death At Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Four children of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bradley died and their mother was severely burned early today in a small fire which damaged the Bradley home in this Eastern Townships centre.

Damage to the second-floor of the wooden tenement was limited to the living room. It is believed the children died from asphyxiation. Faulty wiring was said to be the cause of the blaze.

The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Mrs. Bradley, 35, is in critical condition in hospital suffering from effects of smoke. Mr. Bradley, a rural bread-truck driver, was on his route when the fire started.

The four children identified as David, 10 months, Robert, 4, Barbara, 3, and Keith, 10. The four children were found in their bedrooms.

Prime Minister Rejects City Of Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Wednesday the government has rejected a city of Ottawa bid to prevent relocation of the National Film Board from the capital to Montreal.

The prime minister told reporters following a cabinet meeting that representations by the city of Ottawa were received. He said there will be no change in plans, already announced, for the National government took in endorsing what we considered a new film board headquarters in Ville St. Laurent, near Montreal, at a cost of about $6,000,000.

"The issue is settled," Mr. St. Laurent said.

The prime minister added that the cabinet's decision would be set out in a letter to be sent to Mayor Camillien Houde, who had the city campaign to retain the film board in Ottawa.

Prophet Jones To Visit Canada

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Prophet Jones of Pekin, Illinois, Wednesday night he has "received a message from God" instructing him to visit Canada.

He said in a telephone interview that he has not yet been told just when to make the trip but he expects it will be "fairly soon" and when he arrives in Toronto.

The self-styled religious leader of some kind of sect says he is of the 48 states, the West Indies, Liberia and West Africa, "said he has never before been abroad.

The prophet, who lives in a 54-room French castle, is officially known as Rt. Rev. Dr. James J. Jones, Dominion ruler of the Church of the Universal Triumph, the Dominion of God.

Prophet Jones, who usually wears expensive rings and other jewelry, said he believes he has been instructed to visit Canada because of the "great friendship" which exists between Canada and the U.S.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: Warm, sunny weather will continue over the eastern half of the continent, but cooler air in the Pacific area has invaded the Prairies and is moving into the United States. However, its eastward progress is under the control of an intense low pressure centre located over North Dakota. As this disturbance moves northeastward towards Hudson Bay, cloudiness and showers will spread into northwestern Ontario today, and over into the Kirkland Lake - Timmins area. Elsewhere the warm, sunny spell will continue today and Friday.

LONDON NEARS COMPLETE HALT IN MOTOR TRAFFIC

Faces Gasoline Famine Due Truckers' Strike

LONDON (AP)—London's busy motor traffic moved toward a shutdown today in the face of a growing gasoline famine caused by a wildcat strike of 2,600 tank-truck drivers.

As the strike went into its fourth day, officials of the state-owned London transport system said its buses would soon be stalled because the "acid test" signs on their gasoline pumps, and there was a noticeable thinning of taxi services.

A spokesman for the British Automobile Association gave the gloomy picture:

"London, for all practical purposes, is without petrol. We are getting reports of cars stranded on streets to a gallon apiece so they can get home or go to a garage tenders. in the affected areas."

Ask Pay Raises

The tank-truck drivers, members of Britain's huge Transport and General Workers' Union, are demanding pay raises of 10 shillings a week, recognition of the union, and dismissal of non-union men.

Neither the union nor employers would divulge the average present wage.

The union officials advised the strikers to go back to work and negotiate their differences, but the truckers unanimously voted at a meeting Wednesday to continue their walkout.

The strikers run trucks supplying about 40 of the 1 depots operated by major British oil companies.

Case Dismissed

KITCHENER (CP)—A charge of impaired driving against Lincoln Miller of Kitchener was dismissed Wednesday by magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick after defence counsel successfully argued admission of blood tests for alcoholic content. Crown counsel George Lochead asked the court:

"Who is, or can possibly be, the authority on this matter?"

He questioned the validity of the tests presented by the chief Ernest Brown, a biochemist at the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital.

Mr. Brown testified that a test taken of Miller's blood showed it contained .15 per cent, while the established standards .5 to 1.5 indicate impairment of driving.

Magistrate Kirkpatrick ruled he had to have evidence relating impairment directly to Miller's driving.

MAYOR A. McLEAN HAIG

REEVE T. C. GRAHAM of Tweed

Mayor Haig, Reeve Graham Named City, County Chairmen Of Hospital Building Fund

It was officially announced today that Mayor A. McLean Haig has been named General Campaign Chairman of the Hospital Building Fund and that Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, has been named County Campaign Chairman.

Funds totalling $1,250,000 are now being sought for the expansion of the Belleville General Hospital; $650,000 will be raised through government grants and the remaining $600,000 by public subscription.

In accepting the general chairmanship Mayor Haig stated that hopeless overcrowding of the hospital has prompted urgent action to provide essential hospital facilities for the people in the community.

He said that although the General Hospital is officially rated by the Provincial Department of Health at 131 beds, experience shows that it must frequently make room for 175 to 190 beds. "In other words, beds are continually being crowded into public corridors of the building."

First Appeal

Mr. Haig said that this is the first time that the Belleville General Hospital has made a request to the general public for capital funds for building purposes and "it will likely be the last for the foreseeable future at least." He said that the fund is being sought through a voluntary organization of community leaders in city and county and that hundreds of men and women are giving their voluntary service to this great hospital project and many more will be enlisted to bring the campaign to a successful conclusion.

The broadest possible coverage of the hospital area is being made, he continued. The general public canvass will take place during the week, November 2-8, but an advance special naders canvass of national corpment of local businesses and individual men and women is now underway.

Leading Committees.

The campaign organization is under the policy guidance of a management committee which comprises industrial, business men, individual men and women and labor leaders. Four major committees will help to make responsible for the solicitation of gifts from business firms and corporations, employees, organized groups and individual men and women. They are:

Special corporations which is responsible for the solicitation of gifts who do business in Belleville and the County; Belleville executive committee which will be divided into a business group for the solicitation of Belleville commercial establishments, a men's division and a women's division; the County of Hastings executive committee which is divided into areas for solicitation and the solicitation for canvassing special prospects in the border areas of other counties served by the hospital.

In accepting the county chairmanship, Mr. Graham said, "I believe that the majority of county people realize the great need for this hospital building program. The General Hospital is also our hospital in the county and we must consider our responsibility of guaranteeing that this community health service will be available for all residents of the County ..."

10 Per Cent County Patients.

He said that through the years an average of 40 per cent of patients admitted to the hospital have come from the County of Hastings, 40 per cent have come from Belleville, and 20 per cent have been non-residents.

Mr. Graham attributed the extended need for new hospital construction to the rapid growth of population in the area. He said another major factor is that more people can afford and are influenced to seek hospital care through Blue Cross and other prepaid hospitalization plans.

Mr. Graham said that the county soliciting organization is divided to take in each township and that committees are being organized from public business firms, individual men and women and clubs and organizations in the county.

Too Hot for Bears To Go To Bed And That Means Grumpy Bruins

BEAR ISLAND, Ont. (CP)—and camps, boarded up for the Bears can't go to bed. Some days winter, is not scarce but is late. The animals claw through tools, because it's too hot. That means grumpy bruins; and possible trouble.

Such is the plight of thousands of bruins, caught without berries in the woods, wandering in small windows and doors of boarded-up summer cottages and deserted towns and cities.

Many of them are near Bear Island, a quiet piece of land deep in northern Ontario in the Timagami area.

Wildlife officials say the bears will not hibernate because of the warm weather in northern areas during the last 10 days. Temperatures as high as 79 degrees in some districts when bears should be in dens for winter sleep.

Manitoba's chief game guardian, A. P. Davey, says the weather may start serious bear trouble. He says:

"They can't hunt because they flies left for them to pick. The weather may start bear trouble."

In Port Arthur and Fort William, in Algonquin Park, where bears usually are seen around other districts, bears have come out of the bush to wreck many cottages

U.S. Makes Full-Scale Attempt To Tame A-Power for Peace

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States today announced its first full-scale attempt to tame atomic power for peace—a move billed as "America's answer" to Soviet claims of mastery over dread new nuclear weapon.

Thomas E. Murray, a member, said the Atomic Energy Commission will contract for a nuclear power reactor producing at least 60,000 kilowatts of electrical power—enough to run a city of 50,000.

He said the project will cost "many tens of millions dollars" and that the AEC hopes to have an operating plant in three to four years.

The plant, Murray said, may be located "at or near" an AEC facility for separating uranium-235, the parent of atomic power, from natural uranium. The AEC has one such facility at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and is building others at Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio.

He said Westinghouse Corporation will design, build and operate the reactor for the new plant, of a design "inherited from a naval propulsion plant." Westinghouse, however, the U.S. Navy's reactor expert, will have "immediate responsibility" for the new program.

Murray's historic announcement —a little more than eight years after the U. S. unleashed the atomic bomb against Japan in World War II—came in a speech prepared for delivery before companies public information program.

He said the AEC decided to beat Russia to the punch by putting ahead first with an industrial power program instead of concentrating almost exclusively on reactors for military use.

This should show the world that, "even in this gravest phase of arming for defence, America's eyes are still on the peaceful future."

WOMAN FACTORY WORKER KNIFED AT ST. CATHARINES

Harry Reece Remanded On Murder Charge

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Harry Reece, 43, was charged today with murder and remanded without plea to Oct. 30 in connection with Wednesday's fatal stabbing of Mrs. Florence Ricker, 34, formerly of Moncton, N. B.

Det.-Insp. Scott Shennan of the city police announced shortly after midnight that Harry Reece, 43, would be charged with capital murder today in the drinking parlor killing of his factory worker.

Police said Mrs. Ricker, who lived in Niagara Falls, Ont., and Montreal before coming here 18 years ago, died from a single thrust of a knife in the middle of her back. Investigators seized a long-bladed butcher knife found at the scene.

Mrs. Ricker is said to have been separated from her husband, said to be still living in Moncton.

Officers found the body during the aftermath of a wine-drinking party in a house on Junkin avenue in suburban Merritton. Reece, who said they found four empty bottles in theyblood splashed room where they saw the body of Mrs. Ricker.

They said the house, in what is regarded as a upper middle-class district, was in disorder. One wall was blood-spattered.

Police were called by a doctor, who was summoned by Mrs. Ida Martin, wife of the occupant of the house. They found Mrs. Ricker dead in a pool of blood.

Reece and two women were taken to police headquarters. Several hours later, investigators released the women.

Must Pick Site For World Scout Jamboree in 1955

REGINA (CP)—Canadian Scout officials meeting here Friday face the problem of choosing a site for a place large enough to supply a home for about 50,000 boys in heavy eaters, and with plenty of trees to keep their knives busy.

The Canadian site for the 1955 international Boy Scout jamboree will be decided by the national council of the Boy Scouts Association of Canada.

The jamboree, the biggest thing in scouting meets, is the eighth to be held since the first in England. The seventh was in Austria last summer.

More than 15,000 khaki-clad youngsters from 57 countries are expected to attend. Invitations to leaves have had more than 50,000 boys in their ranks.

Among the 35 delegates expected here will be Fred Finlay, British chief executive commissioner; Col. George Simmons, Ottawa, executive commissioner, administration, and Jackson Dodds, Montreal, deputy chief scout for Canada.

Mr. Finlay, secretary of the Bank of Nova Scotia, recently succeeded Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, now chief scout executive, as international international bureau in London.

MUSICAL STANDARD

WILD FLOOD WATERS SWEEP SOUTH ITALY AFTER CLOUDBURSTS

Fear Over 100 Lives Lost; Many of Victims Children

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) Wild floodwaters swept across the toe of the Italian boot today and fears mounted that the final toll would pass 100.

By midafternoon 47 bodies—many of them of children—already had been recovered.

Torrential rains, following tremendous cloudbursts, continued to batter the province-stricken region, which had been devastated by other floods only last year.

The rains, together with surging waters which swept over agricultural fields and farm lands and towns, balked rescue operations. The prefect of Reggio Calabria, capital of the region, issued a call for helicopters to aid in rescue operations.

The region, on the toe of Italy, is known to many Canadians as the spot where, on the night of Sept. 8-9, 1943, the British 8th Army began the invasion of the Italian mainland with the 1st Canadian and 1st British divisions.

Troops Join Rescuers

In Rome, the interior ministry said all available rescue units, including troops, have set out for the scenes of the disaster. It added that the provincial government had not yet been able to make an official estimate on the damage or loss of life because of broken communications.

Reggio Calabria is the capital of the province of the same name. It lies just across the Straits of Messina from Sicily.

The deluge followed a similar downpour in north Italy last week. Minor floods are still reported from the northern Po river delta. Hundreds of workers have been mobilized to prop breaches in dikes and clear roads of landslides.

Divorce Trial Takes Abrupt Turn in Court

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The turbulent John Wayne divorce trial took an abrupt turn today with a step toward a peaceful settlement.

The trial, one of the most bitter in the history of the courts, was continued until Oct. 29 to allow both sides time for conferences aimed at a settlement.

A source who declined use of his name but who was one of the main participants in a series of conferences between Attorney Judge Allan Ashburn, said the trial will probably be settled.

Mrs. Wayne, who is suing her movie star husband for separate maintenance, was in the courtroom instead. Wayne, this source added, will not contest the suit.

However, Wayne, who is demanding a divorce, has expressed a desire to get his day in court to refute sensational charges leveled at him by his former wife from the witness stand. It was suggested that Wayne might have a rebuttal statement for the court record.

Details of the property settlement were not disclosed on instructions from Ashburn.

Police Lieutenant Grilled 7 Hours By Superiors

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police Lieut. Louis Shoulders returned to exchequer Wednesday night after a seven-hour question-answer session with his superiors as key witness in the investigation of reported irregularities in police handling of the Greenlease kidnap-slaying.

It was Shoulders who Oct. 6 arrested Carl Austin Hall, the confessed kidnap-killer of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease, and recovered about $282,000 in ransom cash.

Particulars of Hall's arrest and the handling of the ransom money are under investigation. Half of the $600,000 Greenlease ransom is unaccounted for.

Police chief Jeremiah O'Connell told reporters that the panel of investigators may recall Shoulders for further questioning, but that he would not reppear today.

Shoulders, 33-year-old police veteran, locked past reporters after testifying and rode a private elevator to the ground floor of police headquarters. His appearance came as a surprise, as he had been excused through the first two days of testimony because of a nervous condition.

O'Connell declined to comment one way or another on the results of Shoulders' testimony.

Harvard Scientist, German-Born Professor Jointly Win Nobel Prize

By GUSTAVE SVENSSON

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Harvard University scientist and a German-born British professor jointly won the 1953 Nobel prize for medicine and physiology today for their studies of fundamental life mechanisms in human cells, it was announced today.

The honor went to Dr. Fritz Albert Lipmann, 54, professor of biochemistry at Harvard medical school, Cambridge, Mass., and Dr. Hans Adolph Krebs, 53, professor of biochemistry at Britain's Sheffield University.

They will share the 175,282 Swedish crowns ($34,000) prize money.

Dr. Lipmann gained the distinction through his discovery of coenzyme A, an organic substance which plays a leading part in nearly every biological process. Dr. Krebs was cited for his "research and explanation of how food becomes energy in living tissue. The two achievements were described related.

Both achievements were described by Dr. Goran Liljestrand, secretary of the medical Nobel committee, as being "of the utmost theoretical significance and very likely to have great practical importance in understanding diseases and similar disturbances."

The award was the 44th made by Stockholm's Caroline Institute medical committee since it created Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896.

A pounding noise emanating from the Belleville Crematorium which led a neighbor to believe the place was being burglarized turned out to be a false alarm last night.

During the early morning hours a neighbor living near the crematorium heard the strange noise and notified police. An investigation by officers of the law revealed the disturbance under way being made by the expansion of heating pipes in the plant.

Trout Dinner Interrupted By Game Officers

Add embarrassing moments... The boys had got themselves a nice haul of trout, without bothering with the fact that they had caught out of season, had them goldenbrowned in a skillet and sat down to some of a friend enjoying a delicious dinner, when what happened?

A knock on the door and conservation officers of the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests strode in.

A sniff or two and the fish-seeking scientists of the officers detected the familiar odor of fried trout.

It appears the boys had been fishing in Weslemkoon Lake out of season. The officers had been alerted but were thrown off the trail when the lads took the fish to the home of a neighbor instead of returning to the exhibition point.

However they were caught "redhanded" and will tell the magistrate all about it in a court session.

Week's Remand For Sentence Given Accused

Pleading guilty to breaking and entering McKeown's Garage at Foxboro and stealing a small quantity of tobacco and chocolate bars, Allen E. Thrasher, 22, of Hallowray was remanded one week for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county magistrate's court today.

The court was told that Thrasher had hired a Belleville taxi to drive him to Foxboro with a request that a stop be made at the McKeown Garage. When the cabby asked for his fare Thrasher said he would get it from the garage which he intimated was owned by his father, but when the driver saw his fare break a rear window to gain entrance he returned to the city and notified police.

Provincial police later apprehended Thrasher as he was walking along the Madoc Road north of Foxboro.

WILLIAM J. FITZGERALD

TRENTON — William J. Fitzgerald, born and brought up at Carrying Place and with the exception of a few years spent in the United States always lived within sight of his birthplace.

Yesterday in a simple service in bright autumn sunshine at picturesque Carrying Place cemetery Mr. Fitzgerald was laid to rest following funeral rites in St. Peter's Catholic Church at Trenton. And in the brilliant greeting the Fitzgerald homestead was plainly visible from the graveside elevated higher than the other property.

Last week Mr. Fitzgerald suffered a seizure while visiting with relatives in Detroit. He died Thursday morning at Highland Park Hospital in Michigan. He was 82.

Two weeks ago he closed up his resort and motored to the Pittsburg of a trip to California for the winter months. Having placed boat in tourists for years he was known far and wide both sides of the border.

In early life he was a stone cutter by trade and wrought facings for many of the great skyscrapers in New York City. In later years he prided his time taking up catering pains in raising vegetables and flowers.

He was predeceased by his wife Francis in 1951. A brother Mel of Springfield and John of Port Colborne both died earlier. He was the son of the late John Fitzgerald and Anna Boster.

Mr. Fitzgerald leaves to mourn both two sisters Mrs. D. Wesse of Detroit and formerly of Belleville; Mrs. M. Zimmerman of Carrying Place; two nephews Jack Hazard of Los Angeles, Calif., Bill Wesse of Detroit; a niece Violet Wilson of Port Colborne.

The bearers were: Bill Hendricks, Bill LaTour, Oliver Frost, George LaTour, Vera Westfall and Jack Clarke.

Police Report Three Accidents No One Injured

TRENTON, (Special) — Peter Cieng, 39, of R.R. 4, Brantford, a resident of Trenton for two weeks suffered no injuries when the motorcycle he was riding became involved in a collision with a car at the Corktown and Victoria Streets intersection. The car operated by Harold E. Johnston, of R.R. 1, Hillier, was making a left-hand turn from Dundas to Victoria into the path of the eastbound cyclist. Only slight damage to the motorcycle resulted.

Another costly accident occurred at "accident intersection" when two out-of-town cars rammed and created $500 in damage. Fortunately no one in the cars were not hurt, when the cars came together at the Dundas-Dufferin four corners.

Good driving practice saved a three-year-old boy from possible serious injury yesterday.

Jack Rigby, 16, of 96 Crown Street, driving his father's car was proceeding east on Dundas Street when he noticed a small boy running from the north curb. Instinctively he applied the brakes and pulled over to the south curb. An eye-witness reported that the young driver brought the car to a stop just as the tiny tot ran into the side of it. They were not hurt as the lad who had the narrow escape.

Will Address Air Cadets

The Trenton detachment of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets will be honored with the presence of the Air Officer Commanding J. G. Kerr, C.B.E., D.S.O., who will speak to them at the annual parents' night at the High School Auditorium, Tuesday. The other speaker of interest is J. F. Scruton, chairman of the Ontario Provincial Committee of the R.C.A.C.

Former Belleville Resident Develops New Process for Insecticide Varnish

A former Belleville man, presently on the staff of England's Agriculture Research Council in London, has been credited with a discovery which is described by the London Sunday Express, as "the most revolutionary advance in flood control since the discovery during the war years of DDT."

Joseph Lawrence Hitchon, a cousin of K. P. Hitchon, local druggist, has perfected a method of including insecticide in a spray varnish, which may be painted on the walls of the home and is said to be death to all insects which come in contact with the treated walls.

The scientist was joined early in his experiments by another Canadian, Miles David Price. The two men combined their research and the new resinous lacquer was finally perfected. Mr. Hitchon two years ago. The results were astounding. Even the hardiest of the insect world, the cockroach succumbed to the new method and commercial manufacture began a few months ago.

According to the Sunday Express the two scientists have developed this method to the point where everything from a ship to a clothes cupboard is insect-proof for years and the only ingredient with the killing properties is not DDT but a chemical known as urea formaldehyde. It had been previously worked with by Paul Bracher of the Colonial Office Insecticide Committee, but without success.

The problem at present, according to the newspaper, is that the lacquer has to be applied by trained men who must not only know how to apply it but where. Another problem is the price of the lacquer which in Canadian money would be about $12 a gallon.

Joseph Hitchon received his education at Queen Victoria school and R.C.I.V.S. He attended lectures at McMaster University graduating before the war. He joined the R.C.A.F. after working for the entomological division of the government in Ottawa. Mr. Hitchon piloted bombers in combat and rose to the rank of squadron leader. After being demobilized, he returned to the entomological division and was promoted to chief entomologist for two years. When the two years were up he left for Britain.

Suspend Sentence On Two Soldiers For One Year

An attempt to get back to Kingston before they were ruled AWOL by army authorities backfired on two young soldiers who in county magistrate's court today pleaded guilty to the theft of an auto.

The two young soldiers, Harry Thrasher and Harold Best, both stationed at Kingston, were given a year's suspended police with remand to the custody of their parents.

Having little luck in their attempt to hitchhike back to Kingston, the two men took the car from the garage of Harry O'Neill, Foxboro.

However, Mr. O'Neill heard his car moving out the driveway and notified police who result that the car was spotted by provincial police near Napanee. After a brief chase the car was abandoned and Dyer was arrested a short time later. Best was picked up in Kingston and returned to Belleville.

Bacon Prices Reach New High Scarcity of Hogs Said One Of Main Reasons for Upsurge

With bacon prices ranging up to $1.20 a pound, the humble pig is aligning itself with turkey, pheasant and other gourmet specials.

These porcine princes are strutting around the home barnyards with snouts so high in the air they are liable to drown in a heavy rainstorm.

Prices of the favored "rashers" have catapulted to a new high during the past three months. A survey of butchers and shops selling the product in the city today revealed that rindless bacon is selling from $1.10 to $1.20 a pound for the packaged product and the shop-sliced variety from 89 cents to 93 cents a pound. Peameal bacon ranges from 79 cents to 85 cents a pound.

A Canadian Press survey of a few days ago revealed that the price has reached $1.30 per pound in some Canadian cities. The reason given for price has been consistent all over Canada.

Several reasons have been advanced for the upping in price. Last spring's hog cholera outbreak is given part blame but the main reason appears to be market fluctuation which makes hog raising risky.

Quit Hog Raising

A Vancouver retail butcher said that about 3,000 small producers of hogs have quit during the past three months because "for the past three years hogs has been a pretty risky business due to price changes."

A well-known city butcher predicts there will be no decrease in pork and bacon prices until late next year. "Grcss beef will be a lot cheaper for farmers are deserting the hog raising business in favor of cattle."

He added that the reduction in support prices given farmers is responsible for a large number going out of the hog-raising business.

"Last year," he said, "the support price given them was twenty-five cents. This was changed by the government to 23 cents at the first of 1953. The producers, knowing they were not making any money at the 25-cent support price, realized they would make even less at the new figure. So they quit raising hogs and deserting the hog raising business in favor of cattle."

Federal Govt. Saved Little Money on Britain's Decision To Buy Ont. Cheddar Cheese

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain saved the Canadian government a little money in its decision to buy 30,000,000 pounds of Ontario cheese.

Under an agreement with the Ontario producers, the federal government was to purchase all unsold Ontario cheddar held on Nov. 30 at 30 cents a pound.

The British deal cleans out the Ontario surplus and thus there likely will be no Ontario cheese offered to the federal government.

Officials here were generally heartened by the arrangement since it would increase the flow of Canadian foodstuffs to its traditional market overseas, but they wondered about its impact on Canada's future supplies.

Canada on Oct. 1 held 46,807,000 pounds of cheddar. This was down slightly from 47,128,000 last year. The British deal will cut supplies to about 36,000,000.

Production has been relatively steady earlier in the year but declined slightly in August and September. One official said that if production is not maintained, Canadians may find themselves slightly short of cheese, with a possible price increase following.

In Toronto, members of the cheese producers' marketing board conferred with representatives of the trade but Friday no set a minimum price for the domestic market. They set the price for sales in Canada at 30 cents.

While no announcement was made as to the price for the cheese to be shipped to Britain, it is believed the export cheese will be sold for about 28½ cents a pound.

Britain Buys 10,000,000 Lbs. Cheese from Ont.

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government announced Wednesday night that it has bought $1,000,000 worth of cheese from the Ontario Cheese Producers Association.

Maj. Gwilym Lloyd-George, food minister, added in a statement that he is glad it has proved possible despite current balance-of-payment difficulties to agree to this purchase "of a commodity of which Canada had traditionally been a valued source of supply for the United Kingdom."

The deal will provide Britain with about 10,000,000 pounds of cheese— a little more than is needed to provide a two-ounce ration for everybody for one week.

WHAT IS BEHIND LABOR'S RETREAT?

David Low, that genius of the drawing board, has produced for the Manchester Guardian a revised version of the painting of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow, by the Louis Ernest Meissonier. Low has entitled his cartoon "Street to Liberalism" and it is complete with two Napoleons, one wearing the face of Clement Attlee, the other of Aneurin Bevan. This is Low's interpretation of the decisions reached by the British Labor Party at its recent conference at Margate, where the party decided against accepting further nationalisation of industries. The Liberal "Guardian", one of Britain's greatest newspapers, has for so long been without any real party to cheer in the Mother of Parliaments that it is understandable how it would welcome the rebirth of Liberalism, even under another banner.

The Winnipeg Free Press, another great Liberal paper, took a somewhat similar view of the Margate conference. "Moderate Policy Established" was the headline it used over its report.

Are these Liberal newspapers guilty of wishful thinking? The Manchester Guardian proceeds to outline the theory that the "Labor Party's cloak of sweet reasonableness" is a deliberate attempt to lull the British public—and the trade unions—into a false sense of security.

Which view is correct? As is so often the case, there appears to be sound reason to believe that the truth lies someplace between the extremes here outlined.

The British Labor Party has always been possessed of a broad streak of liberalism—spelled with a small "l"—but this distinction it has shared with other Socialist parties all over the world. Of course, the fragmentary Communist Party and the late unlamented Fascists of Sir Oswald Mosley.

But when Low—and the Manchester Guardian—saw signs of the Labor Party retreating to Liberalism it was evidently economic Liberalism to which they referred. Have the bogies of nationalization and socialism been confined to a belief in laissez-faire? Surely no sane person can believe that in true. But laissez-faire was—and remains—the trademark of economic Liberalism. As a practical political issue it is dead at a dodo today—and no party carrying the Liberal tag has been in power for two decades.

But if the British Labor Party is not retreating to liberalism, that does not necessarily mean that in turning its back on any immediate effort to expand nationalization of industries it is practising deliberate deception.

The Labor Party is composed of two parts, not always happily wedded. On the one hand, there are the heirs of the Fabian Society, that turn-of-the-century collection of intellectuals who, in contrast to the Marxian concept of a violent revolution, insisted that socialism must come by easy stages. The man who believes in the "inevitability of gradualness" what more reasonable than that the Labor Party, after its first term as a majority government, should pause and consolidate? Such would set as the objective for a second term in power the consolidation of its earlier gains and the eradication of these changes wrought in the interval by a Conservative regime? The second part of the Labor Party consists of the trade unionists. Here not principle but practice would suggest a pause. For the unionists, we suspect, do not know just what they wish to go. They have discovered that state ownership does not eliminate all those points of contention between employee and employer; that the fact that one's employer is the state has its drawbacks as well as its advantages. So the rank and file wants a "breather". As for the leaders, they may have been seized with uneasiness lest they nationalize themselves right out of office. For a country in which all citizens are employed by the state is not going to have much use for old-style labor leaders.

RUNNING WITH THE HARE AND THE HOUNDS

"Timely criticism of Kinsey rubbish" reads a headline to an item in this paper.

This daily, like many others, devoted considerable space to "Kinsey rubbish"—that is the report by Dr. Kinsey and his associates on the "Sexual Behavior of American Women."

The Ontario Intelligencer did not publish a resume of the report. Nor did it publish any criticism of it. The editors who rejected the resume did so for the same reason—or reasons. But it is also probable that many of them felt that they were not in a position to judge whether or not the report was "rubbish." For one thing, they did not have the report—but only a brief condensation of its findings. The full report might be a serious scientific study—but the same could certainly not be claimed for the summary of its findings. To print it would have served no useful purpose.

But to print it and then to write a headline about "Timely criticism of Kinsey rubbish"—that is running with the hare and hunting with the hounds with a vengeance!

JUST FOLKS

THE HAPPY HOMES

These the happiest homes today;
Those were children come to play
Where they scamper in and out;
Where the children's voices shout;
Where, 'til time to say good bye,
'Bikes" upon the sidewalk lie.

Some folks to a person way
Drive the children off and say,
"Home for supper, but 'til then
Don't you bother us again."
Those the homes they stray
Where they are allowed to play.

Boys and girls not far would roam

There their comrades they would sing
Could they shout and dance and sing.
But 'some parents think: alas!
More important is the grass.

Homes from angry scolding free
Are where children like to be,
Seeking for them, year on year
Find them where the youngsters
are.
Where, because it ell annoys,
They're not told to "stop that noise."

Plan Makes Savings Grow

(By DONALD G. MACLEAN
In The Financial Post)

Ever since some hairy Neanderthal man first started hiding soup bones in a dark corner of his cave, human beings have been worrying out savings programs.

You've got one yourself, he is a stocking stuffed in the cookie jar, a sheaf of gilt-edged bonds or a bank account.

But how effective is it? Is yours a savings program or just an accumulation, like a brick-a-brac in the attic?

Quite unlike Topsy, your savings won't "just grow."

You've got to build them, guide them, and that's where you've got to watch your step.

"I have a surprise for you, dear - - - a lot of our friends are coming over this evening to give you a 'Welcome Home Party'"

Miser Mike is a "bank book bug." He saves with the same swift actions until her nerves grate raw; his family lives on a bare minimum, and the moment time his children whisper, "Tight-wad!"

Careless Carl is a "sporadic saver." He'll put away $4 this week, $10 the next, and none for a fortnight. He looks at his bank balance after six months and wonders why it isn't bigger.

Are you one of them? Or do you know how and why to save money?

They say a man isn't really free until he has some savings, no matter how small, behind him.

Perhaps the most important thing savings-less man is a reason man you got a financial shock absorber?

Say you'd like to change jobs, move into a new home, or collect the cash to do it? Suppose you want to take a long, sight courses to improve yourself, or start your own business. Have you the money?

Savings mean freedom. They boss thinks the world of you. But suppose he doesn't? Suppose the boss thinks the world of you. But suppose he doesn't? Suppose the boss thinks the world of you. But suppose he doesn't? Suppose the Hospital Auxiliary Reviews Successful Year's Work

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital held its first meeting of the 1953-54 term in the Nurses' residence, Tuesday, October 20, with the newly-elected president, Mrs. James H. Forrester presiding.

The Auxiliary pledged itself to raise $10,000 for the hospital building fund over the next three years, and increased the number of bursaries for student nurses from three to four. The increase brings the Auxiliary's annual expenditure for bursaries to $480.

Chief source of revenue for the Auxiliary is the Opportunity Shop operated by volunteers each weekday afternoon from 2 to 4.00 p.m., and on Saturday from 9.30 to 4.00 in the market building. The Auxiliary will accept gifts of clothing, china, dishes, and jewellery or will accept items on consignment.

Reports Read

Mrs. T. Burrows read the recording and corresponding secretaries' reports, and Mrs. J. Yanover read the treasurer's report.

Mrs. John Buchan, past president, gave her report of the Regional Council of Hospital Auxiliaries meeting held at Queen's University in September.

The financial statement, audited by Mr. R. C. Bailey, and read by Mrs. Yanover, is published elsewhere in today's issue.

Mrs. R. Kennedy, recording secretary, submitted the annual report. It showed a steady growth and increasing success of Auxiliary work since the organization's formation in 1938.

The Opportunity Shop, founded in 1946, is the financial lifeline of the Auxiliary, turning over $1,400.00 to the treasury during the past year.

Year in Review

Highlights of the 1952-53 term included an address on the part the Auxiliary plays in public relations, a donation of $20 to be made annually to the Beta Sigma Phi Scholarship Fund, and magazine subscriptions for the portable library which that organization operates for the patients; a gift of 25 Christmas baskets to indigent patients; the establishment of a $10 a month indigent fund to provide small comforts for patients; a gift of Dry Heat Units to the hospital costing $360, and the annual fashion show held in March at the Capitol Theatre which raised $672.12 for Auxiliary work.

In April of last year the Auxiliary presented the hospital with an autoclave valued at $941.20, and raised $252.25 by raffling off a Manly-Macdonald painting. Proceeds were presented indigent patients at Easter and in May, 10 members of the Auxiliary acted as guides for tours of the hospital by the general public.

Successful Bridges

Several successful money-making projects included a tea at the country home of Mrs. George Stoble, raffles of costume jewellery and groceries, and the September tag day that netted $616.

The Auxiliary also purchased two $1,000 Dominion of Canada bonds which are to be placed in a special fund with the long range intention of assisting the completion of the new wing of the hospital.

Mrs. R. E. Burley, press convener of the Auxiliary was selected to compile a scrapbook of all clippings about the Auxiliary from its inception in 1938. Mrs. J. Yanover was named to compile the statistical reports.

The executive extended an invitation to all ladies in the community interested in hospital auxiliary work to join the local auxiliary at any general meeting. The meetings are held on the third Tuesday of every month in the nurses residence.

Concert Artists Delight Large Audience at Breadner School

Two young Canadian voices joined in well-blended harmony, Tuesday evening, on the stage of the A.C.M. Breadner School auditorium before an audience of classical and semi-classical music lovers from in and around Middleton Park.

Baritone Frank Keyes and tenor Roger Robillard, both of Ottawa, received a well-deserved ovation to mark the initial appearance of their first tour together as concert artists. Five curtain calls concluded an evening's entertainment brought to Middleton Park by members of the R.C.A.F. Trenton Women's Auxiliary.

Effective shading and clear enunciation characterized Frank Keyes' presentation of such numbers as "Caro Mio Ben" by Giordano; "In Questa Tomba Oscura" by Beethoven; and "Cielo ed Mar" by Dunhill. A most appealing interpretation of "The Serenade" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" drew warm applause from the three hundred listeners.

Displayed Voice

Roger Robillard displayed appropriate force and exactness of technique in his second number, "Nina" by Pergolesi. Nicely rounded top notes were a distinctive feature of Mr. Robillard's numbers predominantly operatic arias. The former pilot of the R.C.A.F. received his first enthusiastic ovation from a Middleton Park audience last March, when he appeared in the "S.S. Quiste" Coronation Cruise.

Accompanist Elizabeth Bowen, of Ottawa, was superb at the piano, with her fine touch and deep sense of feeling. Prolonged applause greeted the trio as they concluded their performance together with the lively and delightful "Il Soldata" from the "Barber of Seville."

Both artists have returned to Ottawa where Mr. Keyes is assistant to director of Ottawa Grand Opera Co. The major award winners in several Canadian music festivals are planning visits to Ontario communities this winter.

The Robillard-Keyes Concert was convened by Mrs. G. C. MacDonald, Assisting Mrs. MacDonald were Mrs. K. Running, tickets; Mrs. V. A. Rutherford, piano moving; Mrs. W. G. Dever, program; Mrs. Paul Daoust, seating; and Mrs. C. Nolan, entertainment.

Expects Tougher Competition In World Market

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canada may expect tougher competition from other countries as they strive to sell her products in world markets, J. H. Ferrie of Montreal, president of the Canadian Exporters Association, said today.

In a speech prepared for the associations annual convention, he declared that Canada must be prepared and industry must gear itself to meet these conditions.

"If, as has been stated, Canada is buying too much from the United States . . . why do we not transfer some of these purchases to the United Kingdom.

Improve Facilities

"We would thereby improve our trading position with the United States, and make available dollars to the sterling area, enabling it to buy more from us."

It was disturbing, too, said Mr. Ferrie, to read that $18,000,000 in orders for new-type railway equipment has been placed in the United States.

Wages Lift Prices

"This very fact puts up in a vulnerable competitive position with other countries that have a much lower wage scale, Canadian labor leaders, in demanding further increases in wages, should keep in mind that Canada is required to export 25 per cent of its production if this standard of living is to be maintained.

Should Be Market

Concerning wheat, he commented:

"Here is a product that has a potential customer in every man, woman and child in the world—probably a greater market than any other product of Canada.

"Surely, with the quality of our wheat products, Canada should be assured of an expanding market that would go a long way towards bolstering our export trade."

Canadians, Mr. Ferrie said, have a standard of living second only to that of the United States.

Y's Menetts Hold Bi-Monthly Meeting

The bi-monthly meeting of the Y's Menettes was held Tuesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. The president, Mrs. Eric Whitfield, reported to the members the wide community interest in the present pre-natal program of group teaching.

The aim of the classes is an attempt to do away with some of this "blur of bewilderment" among expectant mothers.

In conjunction with their physician, they are prepared physically and emotionally for having and caring for their babies, so that the obstetrical cycle shall be a satisfactory one. To date 16 anti-partum mothers have enrolled.

Final plans and organization of the bridge and euchre were discussed. The program chairman, Mrs. Robert Johnson, showed three educational films, regarding infant care.

Refreshments were served by the co-hostesses Mrs. Jane Pearson and Mrs. Ronald Cass.

Child Behavior In Dental Office

Parents who take their two and three-year-olds to the dentist are politely reminded in the current issue of Health that the dentist is the boss in his own office.

"Generally both parent and child are invited into the dental operating room," notes the Health League of Canada magazine. "The parent must understand that the actual examination must be conducted entirely by the dentist, who alone must give instructions.

"If both the parent and dentist give instructions, a sense of confusion and fear may easily be created in the child's mind and the appointment may be a complete failure. One guiding voice that of the dentist, is entirely sufficient.

"If, unfortunately, a behavior problem should arise, it can more readily be overcome in the absence of the parents. It is for the good of the child if the dentist requests the parent to leave the operating room."

Parents are reminded by the author, Dr. E. R. W. Bilkey, that parents are not permitted to remain with the child during his first visit to the kindergarten, nor are they permitted to accompany their child to the operating room of a hospital.

"Children adjust themselves to a new environment much better in the absence of the parents," submits Dr. Bilkey.

He urges that children make their first visit to the dentist after all their Primary teeth have come in — usually between the ages of two and three years. It is very important for adult dental development that the baby teeth be cared for.

Weddings

SUMMERS—BUELL

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the Yonge's Mills United Church at 3:30 p.m. on October 14 when Rev. R. E. McMillen united in marriage Marion Gibson Buell, youngest daughter of Mrs. Nettie Gibson and the late LeRoy Gibson of Yonge's Mills, to Donald Taylor Summers, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Summers, Mallorytown.

Given in marriage by Orval L. Buell, the bride was attired in a French blue suit with coral accessories and corsage of roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Everett Ferguson, of Brockville, who wore a navy blue suit and accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

Ronald J. Crumblin, Mallorytown, was groomsman.

The organist for the ceremony was Mrs. Charles Elliott, of Mallorytown.

After a reception held at Long Beach, the young couple left for a motor trip through the Adirondacks returning by way of Montreal.

On their return they will reside in Belleville, where the groom is stationed with the R.C.A.F.

Kiwanis Ladies Auxiliary Sponsors Attractive Afternoon Tea

Yesterday afternoon, the great artist, Nature, wielded her magic brush and painted a beautiful picture of a city street with cloudless blue skies and shafts of golden sunlight filtering through the thinning branches from her palette she dropped splashes of crimson, brown and gold upon the waiting maple leaves as they settled down upon the leaf-covered lawns and sidewalks, and rustled beneath the feet of the members and friends of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary as they wended their way to the lovely home of Mrs. Foxard, Bridge Street East, where the afternoon tea and sale of home-cooking was being held.

Smiling Welcome

Here a winsome little maid, Miss Natalie Murray, frocked in pretty pink, opened the door and smilingly bid them enter, to be further greeted by the gracious hostess, Mrs. L. G. Foxard, Mrs. H. H. Murray, president of the Auxiliary, and Mrs. F. G. Creegan, wife of the Kiwanis president — and later invited to the charming, blue-walled tearroom, by Mrs. N. E. Edwards, tearroom hostess.

Presiding at the attractively appointed tea table with its dainty Scotch lace cloth, which was centred by an exquisite arrangement of yellow snapdragons and burnished chrysanthemums, flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with tall yellow and brown tapers, and silver services were: Mrs. J. R. Marsh and Mrs. G. C. Sager, Mrs. C. A. Moll and Mrs. N. F. Edwards, Mrs. E. Boyd Fairman and Mrs. V. A. White.

Serving the many guests were: Mrs. H. J. Symmons, Mrs. A. S. Robb, Mrs. G. D. Dies, Mrs. R. Keel, Mrs. A. O. Drysdale, Mrs. G. H. Craig, Mrs. A. B. Duffy and Mrs. W. J. Allen. Those who replenished included: Mrs. F. R. Wotten, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. H. G. Argue, Mrs. M. J. Vanner, Mrs. H. D. Bateman and Mrs. D. Stanton. Mrs. R. Irvine and Mrs. W. A. R. McCreary were the conveners of the tearoom.

In the recreation room with its Chinese pink walls and cozy fireplace were the homecooking table and the candy table, while just outside the door, in the hall, the grocery hampers which would go to the holders of the lucky tickets, were upstairs, in the sun-flooded sunroom with its pretty vase of colorful petunias, was a member of the royal family of angel cakes, which now and then appear incognito, but are always known. This special member was in pink with silver-pointed juts of delicious icing, and like the grocery hampers would go to the holder of the lucky ticket.

Appetizing Picture

The homecooking table, under the supervision of Mrs. J. E. Logan, Mrs. F. Domenico and Mrs. J. E. Cowan, was a most appetizing picture with its array of delicious cakes, round, square, oblong, loaf and layer, as well as angel cakes. Some with white icing, nut-sprinkled, some in pink, and others in green with shredded coconut toppings. There were also date and nut loaves, raspberry tarts, tasty tarts, little one-bite lemon tarts with high meringues, date squares, little flower-like cup cakes iced in blue, green, yellow and white, deep frosted angel cakes, lazy daisy cake with toasted cocoanut topping, date squares, chocolate cakes with deep, rich icings, and "one decorated with tiny flowers made from shredded cherries and having tiny leaflet of parsley on a cream icing, very pretty. There to offset the sweet, there were pickles, relishes, mint jelly, plum jelly and potted parsley.

Delicious Candy

At the candy table, convened by Mrs. N. Cock and Mrs. J. R. Slavin, were decorated cups in gold and brown, filled to over-flowing with delicious maple cream, candy beans, chocolate fudge, divinity fudge, rice crispies, and other confections.

The grocery hampers contained a multitude of articles too numerous to mention, but some of those on the top were tinned salmon, canned fruit, canned pears, peaches, salad dressing, coffee, catsup, fancy biscuits and containers for cream, which would be filled to suit the winners fancy. In charge of these were Mrs. W. G. Slade and Mrs. H. Fuke. Mrs. S. L. Joss and Mrs. R. H. Widdifield had charge of the candy table, and Mrs. J. Allan of the publicity, while Mrs. C. Lusk and Mrs. R. Clapp acted as treasurers for the afternoon.

Appreciative commendation goes to the tea convener, Mrs. W. J. White, and to her co-convener Mrs. E. S. Fairman for a delightful tea most pleasingly culminated.

The winner of the angel cake, Mrs. L. McLaughlin, of the grocery hamper, Mrs. T. H. Gibbon and Mrs. C. N. Nicholson.

'The Hat Box' Opens Under New Ownership

The old Greek saying, "Nothing in Excess," was most fittingly exemplified today in the opening of "The Hat Box", Front Street, millinery emporium, under the new management of Mrs. S. Rose and Mrs. N. Schwab.

The soft pearl grey trim of stairway, woodwork, ceiling, floor and hangings, coupled with the coral pink of walls, which was also carried out in the chrome furnishings, with the addition of the indirect fluorescent lighting, produced a most pleasing and soothing effect.

Along the south side two attractive landscapes made for a 'homey' touch, while on the north side were the individual dressing tables in kidney shape, complete with oblong bevel-plated mirrors, and matching coral-pink chrome chairs. An attractive wall cabinet occupied the western side, displaying three chic little hats demonstrating the new pearl and sequin trim, and against the stair rail side and south-eastern corner, the low, modernistic cabinets in pale oak.

Lovely baskets of white, bronze and gold-edged chrysanthemums mingle with golden lacelon ribbon, and whimsical touches of fluffy net, and a petite chapeau in grey satin ribbon, completed a charming and restful room, one in which milady may choose, unhurried and untrammelled, the perfect hat.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should She Tell Him She Never Knew Her Father?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Eighteen years ago, when my only child, a daughter, was three years old, I divorced my husband. A few years later I remarried, and so far as my daughter has ever known, my present husband is her father.

Lately, I have begun to worry about this and wonder if I should let her know who her real father is. Do you think it would upset her after all these years, or that it would be better to tell her?

Mrs. L.B.

Dear Mrs. L.B.:

I think it only right and wise, for more than one reason, that your daughter should know about her own father. While it is quite possible that no legal complications might ever arise, there is always the chance that something upsetting could occur and I would think it better not to run such a risk.

If your first husband has had no contact with his daughter since she was three years old, as what you say leads me to believe, and if she has no recollection of him whatever, as I also gather, then I doubt if it would upset her very much if she knew the truth. While she might, at first, feel that she should have known this sooner, she also would probably make a prompt adjustment to the fact and not be too unsettled. It would be perfectly natural if she felt, sometime, that she would like to get acquainted with her father, and she certainly is now of an age to do what she pleases about this.

If you tell her the truth tactfully and honestly, and then leave it up to her to do what she wants to do, I think you will have done the right thing.

Why Bother With A Selfish, Inconsiderate, Unpersonality Boy Friend?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am nearly 18, and for about a year have been going steady with a boy who is 20, although he doesn't act or look it.

My problem is that he thinks of himself all the time, and never about me. For instance, he never calls to tell me he will be late for a date. He spends around like a crazy person when I am in the car and, although I have told him I dislike petting, he insists that I indulge in it with him. Also, he goes with a boy who has a bad reputation, and won't listen to me when I tell him it will hurt his own reputation if he keeps on going with this fellow.

I don't know why I like him, but I do.

J.H.

I never heard anything so foolish as for a girl to put up with the sort of thing you are taking from him eventually. The fact that he drives his car the way you say he does should be enough to give you the sense to leave him alone, before he involves you in some serious, if not fatal, accident.

Girls who are no more than "nearly 18" cannot, obviously, be expected to have the judgment they will have later but, even so, you are old enough to realize that this young man is a poor choice of a friend.

MOOSE CHARGES CAR

CHIBAUT (CP)—Harold Kenty told police that a big bull moose charged out of the bush and smashed his automobile. Kenty said he and the moose kept on going—in opposite directions.

Eat Well While Reducing

By Mary Moore

Up until about two weeks ago I could count on letters from you asking for pickle and late jam recipes.

Now do you know what's happening? In about every sixth letter there is a request for a calorie chart and reducing menus. They reminded me to weigh myself, and be switched if I hadn't gained two pounds.

That's what comes of cool weather, no gardening to do, and the comfort of cooking in a warm kitchen—and eating what you cook.

I put my coat on, pulled on my gloves, pulled in my stomach and went for an hour's walk, and made reducing resolutions on the march.

Besides, all that, I've run out of reducing menus; sheets so I am to the spot of having to line up another set of meals for you—and me.

Reducery can have a whale of a good time. If they really settle down to it they can eat like queens and soon look like one.

Reducing meals need never be dull. Just forget about stacks of buttered toast, cakes; pies, puddings, cookies; and accent the positive. Meat, eggs, fish, fowl, vegetables — beautiful colorful unlimited vegetables—fruits that would make even Cleopatra (who had to import so many of hers) envious.

So quit being sorry for your chubby selves and set to work on slimming that figure.

Breakfasts for Reducers

(1) One large orange sliced or sectioned; one poached egg on 1-2 slice toasted unbuttered bread. Clear coffee. (2) One-half grapefruit (no sugar) one egg cooked in shell with one unbuttered slice whole wheat toast. One glass hot or cold milk or cafe au lait (half and half double-strength coffee and hot milk). (3) Six-ounce glass fresh or canned unsweetened fruit juice; one egg very slightly but not cooked with fat; whole wheat toast with one teaspoon butter; clear coffee.

Lunches For Reducers

(1) Six ounces consomme; Salad Plate: 2-oz. cottage cheese or meat or fish on lettuce leaves; 1-4 cucumber, low-calorie dressing (see below); 1 slice whole wheat bread with 1 teaspoon butter; 8-oz. milk or buttermilk; small ripe, banana. (3) 8 ounces vegetable soup; 1 slice whole wheat toast with 1 teaspoon butter; 1 tomato, 1 carrot, 2 celery stalks; 8-oz. skim milk; 1 bunch grapes.

Dinners for Reducers

(These dinners may be extended for non-reducing members of the family by adding potatoes, rolls, cookies.) (1) Sole or other fish fillets baked in mustard and onion sauce; baked squash, broiled tomatoes; fruit salad plate of pear crescents, overlapped with cucumber slices (see 1 large pear and 1 large orange and little low-calorie dressing); clear coffee. (2) Broiled 4-oz. ground beef cake; shredded green beans sprinkled with low-calorie dressing; medley be quick-cooked frozen corn, string green and red pepper; thick slices fresh tomato and cucumber on lettuce; blanc mange pudding with plum sauce sweetened with sucaryl; clear coffee. (3) Broiled baby beef liver and bacon; cauliflower with skim-milk and parsley sauce; small baked potato with 1 teaspoon butter; cole-slaw with reducers' dressing (see below); individual baked custard. Clear coffee.

I am giving you a salad dressing that has not appeared here before. This is such a favorite it could be the deciding factor between clinchedness and a beautiful figure—for it will make you love your salads

Low-Calorie Dressing

In the top of the double boiler soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water for five minutes. Now add 1-4 cup sugar (or 2 sucaryl tablets), 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, stir well, then add 1 1-3 cups boiling water and 2 tablespoons butter. Stir until gelatin is dissolved over simmering water. Now beat 2 eggs well and beat into them the hot gelatin mixture. Return to top of double boiler, cook over simmering water, stirring, until mixture begins to thicken. Remove from heat and stir in 1-2 cup vinegar. Chill. When it is fairly thick, beat with rotary beater until smooth. Cover and store in refrigerator. The whole family will like this.

Eating An Artichoke

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How in the world does one eat an artichoke? I look at one and I'm so completely bewildered as to how to eat it that I've never attempted it! I'm ashamed to ask anyone I know, but I don't mind asking you because I can sign

Anonymous

An artichoke may look difficult to eat . . . but it really isn't. Let me try to tell you how simple and easy it is. Are you listening?

There are two parts to the eating of an artichoke.

Part 1: With the fingers, pull off one leaf at a time. The only part of leaf that is eaten is the soft base. Dip this soft base of the leaf in the sauce provided (Hollandaise, Mayonnaise, or melted butter), and eat this tender end. Place the inedible part of the leaf at the side of the plate. As you finish each leaf put it on the side of your plate . . . you'll assemble quite a pile of leaves by the time you reach the bottom of the artichoke, the heart.

Part 2: Eat the bottom of the artichoke with your fork, and with the tip of your knife scrape off the inedible fuzzy-like part in the center. Then cut the tender "heart," one mouthful at a time, dip into the sauce, and eat it with your fork. A delicious, delectable taste!

To Dress For Their Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm going to be married the last part of this month, and would like to ask you if the clothes we've selected are in good taste. I am to wear an informal, ballerina-length pink dress with a satin bird jacket, veil and head-piece, white satin slippers, and will carry a bouquet. My maid of honor is to wear a lavender ballerina-length dress, with matching hats, shoes of the same shade as the dress, and is to carry a bouquet. My mother and the groom's mother are to wear dressy afternoon dresses, street length, with hats, gloves. The groom, best man, ushers, and my father are to wear white dinner jackets, black tuxedo trousers, black bow ties, etc.

D.M.

For what I judge is to be an informal evening wedding, your dress-plans are appropriate. Your veil is to be a short one, of course? Your maid of honor is to wear a small hat or some other kind of suitable headgear? And white dinner jackets will be seasonable in your southern state, and correct if your wedding is in the evening.

A Gala Gift For A Gala Occasion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are invited to a Grand Opening of a Florist who is a very good friend of ours. When my husband opened his store, this florist and his wife sent flowers . . . but I'm sure we shouldn't send flowers to a florist! What do you suggest we send? We had thought of sending champagne. Would that be proper as a gift for this occasion?

J.L.

You've hit on a gala gift for this gala occasion. You might find that it would be convenient to send it in a container of ice, from a nearby store.

BEAUTY

Complexion Cleansers

Cleanliness is the first requirement for a beautiful skin. It is a pleasure to play with the fragrant items of the beauty kit, of course, but the real job is fighting dirt. Atmospheric dust lodges upon the face. It is held there by the light film of oil that is sent out by the sebacous glands and, unless a good scrubbing goes on at a merry pace, blackheads may appear and, in the course of time, the pores may expand, the epidermal coat developing a coarse texture that becomes a major beauty problem.

The skin that refuses to make friends with soap is the exception. But there are ways of getting around that problem, too. If your skin is sensitive, flares up when it comes in contact with lather, try this method:

Remove make-up with a cleansing cream or oil. Then put on a fresh application of cream. While it remains on, dip a heavy wash cloth in soapy water and press close to the flesh. No harsh treatment, no brisk rubbing! Rinse with warm water. Wrap a towel around your hands and dry with upward patting movements. Apply a heavy massage cream and tap the flesh briskly. In the course of time this daily treatment should bring the temperamental skin back to normal and soap and water can be used in the usual manner.

Among many other cleansing agents to be found at cosmetics counters are various meals which can be used in place of soap with excellent results. Sprinkle some on a wet washcloth and go over the skin lightly. They not only have decided cleansing qualities but their starchy content gives smooth ness and softness to the skin surface. The main element is finely powdered oatmeal.

Young girls who moan about blackheads are not always as fastidious about face washing as they should be. Washcloths must be changed frequently. If pimples are present, soiled washcloths can spread the infection. Also, it is necessary that rinsing be thorough. Any soap deposits left on the skin will add to the tenacious accumulation, increase the shine about which the teenagers are always lamenting.

All skin grade soaps are safe but varying with the individual, one may prove more effective than another. So, try out several and note results. Use warm water for rinsing if cream has been used; cold water if the skin is coarse and an astringent is to follow.

Prime Minister Malan Critical Of United Nations

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (Reuters)—Prime Minister Malan has called for reorganization or elimination of the United Nations, which he described as "a cancer which gnaws at world peace and quiet."

He told the Orange Free State congress of his National party that the time has come when the UN should either be radically reformed or scrapped.

The congress had before it a motion calling for South Africa to withdraw from the UN on the grounds of its high costs and the fact that "irresponsible people" were allowed to appear before it and make hostile charges against South Africa.

Malan said South Africa is not opposed to the idea of a world organization. The object of the UN was to bring peace and quiet to the world, but the opposite had been the case.

Malan also attacked the UN for "encouraging" what he called India's policy of anti-colonialism. There was unrest throughout Africa, which was not helped by the fact the UN "fostered India's attitude that all people, whether ripe for it or not, must have self-government."

10 Fined $50 Each

HAMILTON (CP)—Ten persons charged with obstructing police in connection with the Wallace Barnes strike were each fined $50 and costs Wednesday. All pleaded guilty.

John Agro, representing all the men, said the court the men were the kind who were "the backbone of Canada's labor force." He said they had "a God-given right to earn their bread and butter, and man-given right to strike in order to get jam to put on it."

British Soldier Jailed for Year For Cowardice

CATTERICK CAMP, Eng. (AP)—A court martial has convicted a British soldier of cowardice for refusing in a Korean trench while his comrades fought a desperate battle with the Communists.

Pvt. Peter Patrick Ayton, 25, was sentenced to a year in prison and discharged with ignominy. It's a shuffling and sentence are subject to confirmation. It was the first such case in the British Army in more than 20 years.

Ayton spent 22 months in a Chinese Communist prison camp and was placed under arrest when he was brought home recently with other returning war prisoners.

Several of Lydon's fellow soldiers were decorated later for bravery in the fierce action which took place Nov. 3, 1951.

Lydon testified he wanted to fight but felt helpless. A psychologist testified he had a mental age of 13 and was subject to periods of anxiety because he was socially inadequate.

Plague of Bears At Soo Dwindles

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The plague of bears which harassed Algoma district during the summer has dwindled to minor proportions, the department of lands and forests officials said today.

At the peak of the plague there were frequent complaints from farmers of raids on their fields and especially damage to apple trees.

Charles F. Cook, wildlife supervisor, said orchards suffered because the Algoma berry crop was poor this year and the apple crop exceptional.

Plans Are Nearly Complete To Funnel U.S. Military Aid To European Defence Group

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Plans are about complete for funneling United States military aid to West European countries through the projected European Defence Community in such as it is ratified.

This was reported today by government officials who pictured State Secretary Dulles and top officials as confident that the long-stalled EDC treaty will be finally approved in the next three or four months.

That action would clear the way for rearming West Germany, the only state which has ratified it so far. Other signers are France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Near Signing

Informants have said a special agreement governing the delivery of American aid to EDC, being worked out with a defence communities preparatory commission at Paris, is substantially completed.

In general, it follows the line of agreements required by the U. S. Congress with all the individual countries receiving American assistance.

In brief, the requirements are that the aid must be used to strengthen the free world, that there be adequate publicity as to the source, and that the aid not be transferred to other uses without U. S. approval. Technical provisions cover presence of American personnel in the areas where weapons and equipment are released and used.

Follows U.S. Policy

Officials said the agreement has been negotiated in line with basic U. S. policy, as laid down by Congress in recent foreign aid bills, that U. S. aid may be given to international organizations where that is desirable.

Beyond this, an amendment to the bill passed last year specified that only a portion of the authorized military help for western Europe could be delivered prior to the formation of EDC.

One result of this distribution of military equipment through EDC is that it will not be handed over directly to West Germany, Officials feel this should prove reassuring in some degree to French concern about a revival of German militarism.

Government Will Appeal Decision Of Judge Gale

TORONTO (CP)—The attorney-general's department said Wednesday it will apply for leave to appeal a ruling by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale that motorists can be booked with only one offence in a careless driving charge.

Mr. Justice Gale gave the ruling Tuesday in upholding the acquittal of Max Weinburg of Toronto who had been charged with "unlawfully driving without due care and attention or without reasonable consideration for other persons using the highway."

Mr. Justice Gale ruled that driving without due care and attention was one charge and that driving without consideration for others was another.

W. B. Common, director of prosecutions for the attorney-general's department, said the appeal will be heard by the Ontario court of appeal.

COSTLY WOOL

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP)—An offering of two bales of merino lamb's fleece wool sold for $3.86 a pound at the October wool auction in Geelong, Victoria state. Brokers said it was a world's record price.

Say Red Union Of Labor Groups New Cominform

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Communist-sponsored World Federation of Trade Unions wound up its third congress Wednesday night after an 11-day session that leaves little doubt it will replace the Cominform as the chief co-ordinating agency for world communism.

Speeches and reports made it clear, western observers believe, that the mass appeal of trade union solidarity is being prepared as the primary means of propagating communism through the world.

The Cominform, established after the Second World War, linked Soviet satellite countries by the "Communist information bureau."

Frantic Cheers

More than 800 delegates from 79 countries, claiming to represent 88,000,000 workers, cheered frantically as the last session wound up with a fiery speech by the WFTU's Italian president, Giuseppe di Vittorio. African, Asian and Latin-American delegates threw papers in the air, waved colored handkerchiefs and scarves, then linked arms and clapped and chanted in rhythm for more than 20 minutes.

The keynote from the opening day was the same. It was drummed home in every speech, appeal, document and regulation:

United Front Plea

"Let us create a united front of workers of the world of genuine trade union interests, let us enlist their support in the struggle of workers in every workshop and factory and let them force their unions to join the WFTU. Let us win support from the artisan and middle classes and from peasants and intellectuals by supporting their demands and making earnest mes'merir spotsemen.

"Side by side with this the new 'popular front' must fight intensively against Western capitalism in all its forms—against big power and big business rule in the colonies, against American economic influence in the capitalist Western states and against the capitalist economy everywhere."

Farmers Protect Stored Crops With Floater Policy

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan farmers, with little hope of early grain deliveries to plugged country and terminal elevators, are protecting their farm-stored crops with floater insurance.

Some firms insure for loss by fire and lightning and others provide additional coverage for burglary and for loss through transportation accident.

Floater insurance is nothing new in the wheat provinces. Large-scale farmers a decade ago took advantage of it while they awaited higher prices for their grain.

Floater insurance on grain can be taken for any period—one to 12 months. Typical premium rates are eight cents for $150 insurance for eight months and 19 cents to obtain additional coverage for burglary and transportation in the same period. Rates for two months are 12 cents and 15 cents; 16 and 20 for three months, and 40 and 50 cents for a year.

In former years, a farmer might estimate the price of wheat would rise by December. He would take out floater insurance for two months. Today's guess for the length of coverage depends on when the farmer thinks he will find an opening for deliveries.

Definitive of the large amounts of grain held by Saskatchewan farmers, one insurance firm said that the lowest general coverage sought was about $8,000, while many were taking out floater policies for up to $25,000.

Officer Manages 12 Beagle Hounds In Spare Time

OTTAWA (CP)—It has been said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. Canadian schoolboys, in years hence, may be taught that victories of the Canadian Army were won on the hunting fields of Camp Borden.

At least, that is the tongue-in-cheek thesis of a Canadian Army officer who manages a pack of 12 beagles during his spare time as a physical education instructor at Camp Borden's school of infantry.

The hounds are not on the army payroll. They were purchased in England by a group of Canadian officers for recreation purposes. Their upkeep is paid by the officers' owners.

Writing in the Canadian Army Journal, Capt. J. A. Gillanders of the Royal Canadian Regiment argues the case of beagling as an aid to infantry training.

In his historical notes leading up to his main argument, Capt. Gillanders, who edits his article "Beagling, as Training for War," notes that Edward VII sent a beagles to Lord Kitchener in South Africa where they were to be used as a means of exercising chaborne officers in Pretoria.

Let Capt. Gillanders take it from here:

"Many of the principles of war are equally applicable to beagling and to follow hounds with any degree of success demands the same qualities that are demanded of the present-day soldier. . . .

"Perhaps the most important of the follower's duties is that of maintaining silence. Nothing can be more distracting to hounds working out a line than a lot of idle chatter or yells of encouragement.

. . . Noise means loss of surprise and consequently a direct violation of one of the most important principles of war. . . .

"Beagling demands physical fitness, endurance, dash, initiative and personal discipline. . . ."

Statistics Office To Be Moved

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's vital statistics office is to be moved from the Parliament buildings for the second time since Confederation. Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar announced today the office will be moved Nov. 9 from the east block of the Parliament buildings to 70 Lombard street.

The first time the office was moved away from the main seat of government was in 1920 when it was located on Spadina avenue.

The move is necessary, Mr. Dunbar said, to give the registrar-general's department room to handle the increasing business in vital statistics.

Accuse Railway Of Unfair Move In Mine Strike

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) today accused the Ontario Northland Railway of trying to break the union's picket line at the strikebound Noranda mines.

In a telegram to Premier Frost the union, which has 3,600 men on strike for higher wages "and the checkoff of union dues," said:

"Railway workers have no desire to enter Noranda property or to set up goods on ONR spurs used exclusively by Noranda so that the company may draw materials in to the property. . . .

"Ontario Northland Railway and subsidiary Nipissing Central Railway officials state they only want pickets removed from railway property and that the company is to be free to come and go as it wishes over the same railway spur. This is obviously an unfair attitude aimed at abetting the Noranda mining company to break the legal strike."

Letter Written But Never Mailed Found by Police

CORNWALL (CP)—A letter written, but never mailed, by Marie Anne Cuyler before she was brutally murdered pledged her love to a second lieutenant but said she never could marry him, it was learned Wednesday.

The army officer, Peter Balcombe of London, Ont., is charged with the murder of the attractive reserve sergeant in the Canadian Women's Army Corps from Blenville, Que.

The letter, reported in the possession of police, rejected Balcombe's proposal that he get a divorce from his wife so that they could be married.

The letter was reported to say in effect: "I love you, but can never marry you and shall remain single for the rest of my life."

The letter was the latest clue in the case which started a large-scale investigation by Ontario and Quebec provincial police after a ripped body was found in a ditch near Ironside, 75 miles west of here, last Thursday.

In Toronto, it was reported a paper cup with a bit of fingerprints has been found near the spot where the girl's body was found. The cup has been sent to the RCMP laboratory in Ottawa.

TRADE COMPARISON

GLASGOW (CP)—Sir Archibald Forbes, past president of the Federation of British Industries, told a Chamber of Commerce meeting that Britain's share of Canada's trade is less than before the Second World War. In 1938, he said, Britain supplied nearly 18 per cent of Canada's imports compared with nine per cent in 1952.

U.N. Security Council Gets First-Hand Report on Strife In Palestine from Delegate

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Security Council prepared today to hear a first-hand report on the growing strife in Palestine which has sparked a Big Three call for a full inquiry and counter-demands for council action from Syria and Israel.

Maj.-Gen. Vagn Bennike of Denmark, chief of the UN truce supervision group along the Israeli-Arab frontier, has been summoned from Jerusalem to make the spot report. Informants said he may appear before the council Friday.

Bennike's report is expected to shed light on the three-pronged issue before the council.

1. A United States request—backed by Britain and France—for a full dress probe into border incidents between Israel and her neighbors;

Endanger Mid-East

2. A Syrian complaint that Israel is endangering Middle East peace by diverting the waters of the River Jordan;

3. An Israeli counter-demand that the council take up a charge that the Arab states violated the 1949 armistice agreements, engaged in illegal blockade measures and refused to negotiate a peace.

Last weeks Israeli raid on the Syrian village of Kibya brought the Big Three into the Palestine case and inspired their demand for council action. Israel says the raids, which Syria claims took 66 lives, were in retaliation for a long series of Arab killings culminating in the death last week of an Israeli mother and two children.

The Syrian complaint had been expected to come up before the council today, but it was sidetracked by the overshadowing Big Three call for a probe into the border incidents.

A Syrian spokesman emphasized, however, that his country wants to keep its demand separate from the Big Three request. He hoped the council would take up the Jordan river issue Monday.

Aid Stopped

State Secretary Dulles disclosed in Washington Tuesday that the U. S. has suspended a $60,000,000 aid program for Israel because he believes the Israeli government is defying a UN ruling that it halt the Jordan river project.

An Israeli spokesman said Wednesday night that the project did not involve any diversion of the Jordan's waters, and indicated his government would seek to bring this before the council when the Syrian complaint comes up.

Amendments Will Help Receivers Of Benefits

OTTAWA (CP)—Amendments to unemployment insurance benefit regulations governing money received or separation from employment and for holidays have been announced by the unemployment insurance commission.

A commission spokesman said the changes were made following representations from a number of various and employers. He said they represent an easing of the regulations covering money received on separation from employment and a more equitable method of paying benefits for holidays.

Under former regulations a worker who received a gratuity or gift from his employer at termination of employment could not immediately receive unemployment insurance benefits. He was not able to collect until the period represented by the gift of money had elapsed.

The new regulations stipulate that all gratuities received on termination of employment will be disregarded in determining when a person is entitled to benefits. However, the commission said that this regulation does not apply if the employee plans to return to work and receives wages under the guaranteed wage plan. It also will not apply to persons such as civil servants receiving retirement leave credits or those paid wages in lieu of notice. In these cases the employee must wait until the period represented by the money has elapsed.

Allied Observers Certain Turkish Army No Pushover

By TOM MASTERSON

GALLIPOLI (AP) — Allied observers who watched the Turkish Army go through its paces in recent manoeuvres here are convinced: The Turks won't be a push-over for anybody if war comes.

Turkey has a 450,000-man army, ample reserves and a growing air force that now numbers 30,000 men. Forty per cent of the Turkish budget goes for defence.

The swarthy Turk is a rugged soldier, well trained, well-equipped and disciplined. He's quickly learning how to get the most out of his United States fighting tools.

Turks Hate Russians

The Turks hate the Russians. It's a traditional hatred, dating back centuries in the time of the czars, and Turk soldiers are not allowed to forget it.

At the height of a sham battle only a few miles south of the Communist Bulgarian frontier this month, Gen. Nurettin Baransel, Turkish first army commander, stood on a hilltop and said to his troops:

"Always remember that the real enemy are the Russians and the Bulgarians."

Allied officers, who often try to create the impression they haven't Russia and her satellites in mind in NATO manoeuvres, feign embarrassment when the tough, practical Turks talk like this.

But they'd not fooling the Turks, who have a 1,000-mile land and sea frontier with Russia and Bulgaria. The "imaginary enemy" used the same routes in the recent manoeuvres that Russia has used for centuries to invade Turkey.

Defence Stressed

The manoeuvres were aimed at testing Turkish and Greek defences along these routes and the speed with which their NATO Allies could bring aid in event of an invasion.

They also underlined the tough job facing Turkey and Greece in defending Thrace against a Soviet attack at southeastern Europe. The treeless rolling plains of Turkish Thrace are ideal for tank warfare.

To protect the Bosporous and the area around the Golden Horn, the Turks have built up the Chatalja line, which cuts across a narrow isthmus from the Sea of Marmora to the Black Sea, 40 miles northwest of Istanbul.

The Turks also have built up a strong defence line before Gallipoli and the Dardanelles, but here they have a natural barrier to help. A few miles before Gallipoli, gentle slopes and pastures suddenly sprout into steep rocky hills covered with forest.

The manoeuvres proved Turkish and Greek troops to be among the world's best but also showed neither country can defend itself without substantial help from U.S. and British forces.

Shapely Brunette Faints, Asked Pointed Question

By RICHARD ERRMAN

NOVARA, Italy (AP)—A shapely Italian brunette who said she spied for the Allies in the Second World War testified here that a former American lieutenant on trial in Italy as a spy cheerfully admitted that she be mur-dered.

She provided an additional sen-sation by fainting when the court president asked her if she had been the lover of Benedetto Migliori, one of the five men on trial for the 1944 behind-the-lines slaying of American Maj. Walter Holoban.

The witness, Marina Duelli, 32, now is fashion designer in Geneva, Switzerland, named Lieut. Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh as the man who sought to do away with her. Icardi, former Sgt. Carlo Lo Dolce of Rochester, N. Y., and three Italians are on trial for the Holoban slaying. Holoban com-manded a secret mission in which the five participated. Both Amer-icans are being tried in absentia.

Miss Duelli testified that during the war she was a secret courier between Allied and partisan units in northern Italy and allied intel-ligence headquarters at Lugano, Switzerland.

"After the Holoban disappear-ance, I pressed Icardi for an offi-cial report of what happened, but he always eluded my request, which was made in the name of the partisan intelligence headquar-ters in Milan," she told the court.

"Finally he gave me a letter to bring to a partisan chieftain. I sensed something was wrong. In fact, the letter I was carrying was my death sentence. It was an order that I be removed for security reasons. But I saved myself, flee-ing to Switzerland."

Olson Wins Middleweight Title With Unanimous Decision Over Turpin

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

'AND CHAMPION'

The shades of the old middleweight champions chuckled in a misty Valhalla or hand-covered sly smiles from living retirement after that unreasonable facsimile of a championship bout staged in Madison Square Gardens last night.

And Sugar Ray Robinson, retired undefeated holder of the title who could have thrashed both participants without benefit of month training, is probably glad he relinquished the crown if last night's embroglio is indicative of the caliber of champions succeeding to his throne.

It was one of the greatest wrestling matches ever exhibited and probably the only one in which gloves were allowed to be used. Both Randy Turpin and Bobo Olson went into more clinches than a newly-engaged couple on a moonlit June night with neither side producing punches with sufficient power to clinch the verdict.

Olson who slings leather somewhat after the style of "Li'l Mo" Connolly's overhand service on the tennis court, had the Briton gaggly-eyed and leaning rather-armed against the ropes on more than one occasion but the tattooed boy from the shores of Walkiki who succeeds'd a sievely rhythm off the Jamaican's head couldn't induce him to adopt a horizontal attitude. He missed his chance for a K.O. in the ninth and tenth rounds, and had he been able to punch his way out of a wet sack, he would have sent stubbly Randy to dreamland.

Eddie Berl (If you're from Brooklyn dat is pronunciated Boil) was the referee and was as busy as either of the two participants. He did more breast strokes trying to separate the hugging couple than Flo Chadwicke did on her cross-channel swim.

Eddie laid down his instruction in good New Yorkese. "Not yeuse boys know d'rules, I pressoom", he stated. "In case of a knockdown, the one standin' must go to a neutral corner till I tell him to come out and resoom fightin'. Good luck."

Turpin blamed his defeat on his "mental attitude". He is involved in a divorce case and, it is stated, was in a car accident a short time ago in Britain. But the British sports writers take a different view. The London Evening Standard's boxing expert wired his paper, "It was a ring tragedy that can be explained at the moment only by inadequate training methods. He blamed Turpin's defeat on his lack of condition. The Evening News said, "Backcloth and Ashes and do not look for any excuses. Turpin was well and truly beaten." The Mirror added excuses. Turpin was well and truly beaten." The Mirror added that the British trainers' methods "were suspect from the start."

There is probably a lot in what the British writer says. The Randy Turpin of last night was not the smiling young man who whipped Sugar Ray Robinson in London and then lost the title in ten rounds in New York the next year. He was sullen and morose. He refused to hold press conference. He said he had enough sparring in Britain and insisted that he run his training camp his own way. His statement that the American idea of infighting was strange to him bordered on an alibi. Turpin fought Robinson twice and has seen American boxers in action both on the film and in the ring.

Then again he should have known that to win over a popular American fighter in a Gotham ring or any other American ring for that matter, a foreigner must either have a wide margin in points or clip the Yankee with a knockout punch.

Over 'ome tho 'Arrys and 'Arriets of 'Amstead 'Eath, Leamington Spa and other Lunnon spots are probably dropping big tears in their "arf-and-arf" and putting defiedenly on their 'Woodbines. But they have the consolation that their man was not the man he could have been had he trained properly and not dwelt too heavily with his mental machinery, if such is the case, over circumstances that had to do with his private life.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME"

Most the Belleville Memos. That is the new moniker tacked on the eastwide Redmen by the powers-that-be. It seems since the Arena Commission has taken over the ownership of the club, it feels it should be recognized in some manner and what better than on the manly bosoms of their puck-chasing gladiators. So Memos it is and will be.

The game scheduled between the Memos and Orillia Terriers for next Saturday night has been postponed due to ice conditions in the Lake Simcoe town. It appears the ice-making machinery kicked over the traces and the local boys are having trouble getting things in order. Officials have got in touch with the Memo officials and asked for a postponement.

The fact shouldn't hurt the Memos to any great extent. It will give them more time to get into shape, although in all probability the Orillia game will be a repeat before the champion Goodyears visit Belleville on Friday, October 30. And while on that note we must set that Ficken Times scribe right again. Listen chum the senior "B" group opens here on the aforementioned date but its the Kingston Goodies supplying the opposition, not the Orillia team.

The Oshawa Truckers, according to an arena commission official, will broadcast all their away games; bringing their own announcers, equipment, etc.

Coach "Red" Doran sent the troops through another heavy workout last night with more new faces from the faraway pastures on hand for the tryout. A familiar face was that of Dennis Rankine who tested out for the first time this season, and who appears to be in good shape. Jim Irvine, tryout goalie, who is a football star with the Cobourg Ghosts had to go back for his gridiron calisthenics but will be back at the end of the week.

Baldwin Beats Ernie Percy

TORONTO (CP)—Cord Baldwin of Toronto Wednesday night won a unanimous decision over Ernie Percy of Oshawa on an amateur boxing card at suburban East York Arena. Baldwin had Percy bleeding from a cut nose as early as the second round of their 185-pound class five-rounder and jarred him heavily several times.

In other bouts involving out of town competitors, Hughie Mickle of Toronto scored a decision over Bobbie Burrows of Oshawa, Al Moss of Toronto got the nod over Al Langfeldt of Hamilton, Don Church of Brantford took a split decision from Danny Damicco of Toronto.

New Champion Goes On to Win After Briton Gets Early Lead; Loser Blames 'Mental' State

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson may not be the greatest middleweight boxing champion the world has seen, but the tattooed man from Hawaii will do until a better one comes along.

Bobo did a competent job on Randy Turpin of England in their 15-round showdown at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. He did not score a knockout, but only because the man from Leamington Spa had a tremendous lot of heart when he was being badly punished in the closing rounds.

Turpin made a fight of it and made no complaint of the unanimous verdict against him by two judges and referee. He only said between battered lips that he believed he could have done better if he had been free mentally.

Exactly what Turpin meant by that is not known. It is a matter of record, however, that the British pugilist has been hauled on some sort of feminine trouble in his home country since the fight. He told a British writer that he thought he might have knocked Olson out in the eight rounds if he had been "right."

One-Sided Duel

This might, thus, have been the first world's championship decided between heart throbs, none of which was visible in the capacity crowd of 18,562 within the Garden or to those millions who witnessed the somewhat one-sided duel on TV.

This particular observer saw it more or less as the officials did. We thought that Olson walloped the British lad, who had to foot with one even—in other words, that Olson won the fight going away.

Turpin won the first three rounds and then he took a waxing. The only other round which Randy was credited with was the eighth, wherein he belted Olson a right on the chops that staggered the new champ. However, Turpin was unable to follow up his advantage.

Sliting Duck on Ropes

For some obscure reason, Turpin was a sucker at getting caught with his back against the ropes. Every time the former champ staggered into the strands, Olson followed him and poured in the leather. Randy couldn't explain this weakness.

Olson said he had not known beforehand of his opponent's weakness, but that once he discovered Randy was a sitting duck against the ropes he took full advantage.

The closest thing to a knockout probably came at the end of the ninth round. Olson had caught Turpin in his own corner and had sent the Briton down with a flurry of solid blows to the head. The bell clanged, however, as referee Al Berl reached the count of five.

In the following round Turpin went down again almost at the outset, but got up as Berl was ready to go as Berl reached the nine-count. He took a severe beating in the remainder of the round but was in no danger of going down again.

From then on it was strictly a matter of whether Turpin would go the route. Several times Olson had him in trouble, set up for a series of clean shots to the jaw, but each time the Briton called upon his stamina and his ability to slip punches to get away.

The only visible damage to either fighter was a cut which Turpin received under his left eye in the third round, and a cut mouth.

Both Did Their Best

The most that could be said of the fight was that both boys did their dead-level best, and that Olson won his title legitimately, by the sweat of his brow. Bobo should hold the 160-pound title with no trouble until he meets Kid Gavilan, supposing that the Cuban Kid beats Johnny Bratton at Chicago Nov. 13.

When Bobo fights Gavilan, that will be different.

Retirement probably looms for the crestfallen Turpin although he indicated he wants to keep on fighting. His nearly-blind mother,

Hornets Stung By Barons 6-4; Reds Rip Bisons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons bolster themselves into undisputed leadership of the American Hockey League Wednesday on the strength of a win over Pittsburgh and defeat of Providence Reds by Buffalo Bisons.

The Barons downed the Hornets 6-4 at Pittsburgh when Eddie Olson pumped home two goals late in the last period to give Cleveland the game. Roy Rose, Jackie Gordon, Chuck Blair and Glen Skov fired the other Cleveland goals. Willie Marshall, Ed Kullman, Phil Maloney and Dan Lewicki tallied for Pittsburgh.

At Buffalo the rampaging Bisons knocked Providence out of their first-place tie with Cleveland and themselves took over the No. 2 spot with a 7-3 win. It was the Bisons' first victory in nine.

Don Marshall, Gaye Stewart and Steve Wagar each scored twice with Capt. Johnny McCormack adding the seventh tally. Gene Delcore and Pete Conacher registered for Providence.

In the only other game played Hershey Bears chalked up their first win of the season with Dunc Fisher and Otis O'Brien getting two apiece to help the Bears to a 4-2 win over Syracuse Warriors. Arnie Kullman, George Sullivan, Lorne Ferguson, Don McKenney and Norm Corcoran notched the other Hershey goals. Harry Pidhirny fired two for Syracuse with Mike Narduzzi and Kelvin Burnett adding singles.

Mrs. Beatrice Naley, said in England "Randy is sure to retire now."

Turpin, who weighed a surprisingly-low 157 to Olson's 159½, had been criticized roundly for not boxing enough in training. Some felt he would have trained differently now that he knew Olson's style, he replied: "No, my trouble wasn't physical—it was mental."

His mental pains will be eased somewhat by a purse of $55,825. Olson received the same.

Red Feather Grid Tourney Starts Friday

TORONTO (CP)—Eight Ontario high school football teams compete Friday and Saturday in a tournament which puts the emphasis on sportsmanship rather than victory.

Not that it won't pay to win. Only a team which wins its game can qualify for the Red Feather tournament championship. But a team won't be selected for the championship unless it adheres to a 10-point code which calls for a high level of sportsmanship on the part of players and coaches.

St. Catharines meets London Central and Hamilton Westdale plays Toronto Danforth Tech Friday. Alliston plays Ottawa Tech and Toronto Etobicoke Technical Saturday.

The teams represent each football conference in the province. This fourth annual Red Feather tournament of champions is sponsored by the Federation of Ontario School Athletic Associations in cooperation with the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., and the Toronto Telegram.

Proceeds for Welfare

Proceeds go to Ontario's Red Feather organizations and thence into community welfare work across the province. Last year's tournament realized a total of $14,129.

L. S. Beattie, Ontario's superintendent of secondary education, said in an address last year's tournament competitors that the project linked good sportsmanship with community service.

"This Red Feather tournament is a demonstration of how the sport of football may contribute to a higher cause than even that of personal development or good sportsmanship," he said. "Not only have you given us an exhibition of good football, but you have also shown us you are prepared to make the extra effort, to go the second mile in service to others." Each winning team will receive a Red Feather football trophy and a mounted golden rule scroll, illuminated with the players' code. Awards will be made by Joseph McCulley, warden of Hart House at the University of Toronto.

Milwaukee's 'Jolly Cholly' Grimm Is National Manager of The Year

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee's Charlie Grimm, who boosted the Braves from seventh in a surprising second-place finish in one year today was voted National League manager of the year.

Grimm, runner-up to Casey Stengel Wednesday for major-league managerial honors, had no trouble outscoring Charlie Dressen, Brooklyn's crowned prince, for the National League's top spot.

The 55-year-old Grimm drew 116 of the 119 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association in the annual Associated Press poll. Dressen was awarded 86 votes, Eddie Stanky of St. Louis and Rogers Hornsby of Cincinnati, the only other managers to receive votes.

Stengel naturally was selected as top man in the American. He received 143 votes to outdistance his challengers easily. Lou Boudreau of Boston was second with 19, seven more votes than Paul Richards of Chicago received.

Grimm No Novice

Grimm, who succeeded Tommy Holmes as Braves' manager in mid-season of 1952, is no novice. He served two separate terms as pilot of Chicago Cubs, putting in a total of 19 full seasons and parts of three others. He led the Cubs to pennants in 1932, 1935 and 1945.

The jovial Dutchman, however, probably is as proud of his feat in leading the lightly-regarded Braves into the runner-up position to the champion Dodgers as he was in each of his three flags. In pre-season polls, few sports dared predict a better than fifth-place finish for the transplanted Boston club.

As a reward for his outstanding work in boosting his team five words notches in a single season, Grimm was given a three-year contract to lead the Braves through 1956.

Leafs Rally to Tie Detroit And Earn Second-Place Split; Nesterenko Gets Scoring Gem

By ED SIMEON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The suspicion is growing that Toronto Maple Leafs may have a hockey team this year.

Nudged out of the National Hockey League playoffs last season for one of the few occasions in their history, the Leafs are away with the leaders this, fall. And there are indications that they may stay there.

There are few personnel changes from the fifth-place Leafs of last spring. But Conn Smythe's bumper crop of rookies is a year older, and a number of them show signs that they have a better idea of what it's all about.

In fighting the league-leading Detroit Red Wings to a 1-1 tie Wednesday night, Toronto showed promise of better things.

Youths Get Goals

Trailing 1-0 after rookie Bill Dineen sank a 25-footer while they were a man short in the second period, the Leafs took command of play, bombarding Terry Sawchuk in the Detroit cage until he yielded the equalizer midway through the final frame.

And the tying goal by 19-year-old Eric Nesterenko was a gem.

The Flin Flon, Man., youngster, who graduated from junior ranks less than a year ago, appeared his shot between Sawchuk's pad and the goalpost on the short side. It was the only one of 22 drives to beat the great Detroit goalie all evening.

Harry Lumley stopped 30 shots at the other end, including some dangerous efforts by the top Detroit scoring threesome of Earl Reibel, Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay.

The result gave the Wings a clear two-point lead in the standings. The Leafs drew level with Montreal Canadiens' fh second place, but the Montrealers have a chance to cut the lead tonight as they visit the winless Chicago Black Hawks. Boston Bruins take on New York Rangers in a battle for fourth place. Montreal held by the Bruins by a one-point margin.

Attempt to Oust Maritime Loop, Charges Prexy

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is out to kill taking back the Alexander Trophy appears to be a "deliberate attempt" to force the league to withdraw from CAHA competition, Fred Mc MacDonald, Maritime Major Hockey League president, said Wednesday night.

"It looks like the CAHA is trying to do the same thing to us as they did to the Quebec Senior Hockey League—get out," he said.

The trophy, won last year by Halifax Atlantics, is emblematic of the major, semi-professional hockey championship of Canada.

There were four major leagues comprising 32 teams when the trophy was presented by Field Marshal Lord Alexander, then governor general, in 1950, but now there's only the four-team MMHL.

MacDonald last week sent a telegram to CAHA president W. B. (Baldy) George, asking for an explanation of why the cup was withdrawn without the league being advised of the proposed action.

Barrie Flyers Whip Greenies; Tigers Tag Cits

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts, who started the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season like a ball of fire, seem to have run headlong into a thunderstorm.

In their first five games the Greenshirts were tagged with only one loss. Since then they have suffered two consecutive defeats.

In Barrie Wednesday night the Flyers came from behind a 4-2 deficit to edge the Shirts 6-5 in a thrilling overtime battle. Last Monday night Hamilton Tigers handed Quebec Citadelles their fifth loss in six starts with a 4-3 decision in Hamilton.

The Flyers trailed 3-1 going into the final period. Kitchener made it 4-1 in the first before the Flyers came to life to score five goals while allowing the visitors but one.

Three and Four Goals

Chuck Morison hit the Kitchener net three times to lead the upswing. Jim Robertson, Johnny Martin and Ted Reid each scored the other Barrie goals.

Bob Gracie collected four for Kitchener with Glen Cressman, Grieg Hicks and Claude Boileau rounding out the totals.

The Citadelles traded the Tigers goal for goal in the first two periods at Hamilton before the home team pulled into two unanswered markers in the third.

Bill Stewart, Marty Kilrea, Marcel McMahon and Ted Reid clicked for the Hamilton goals. Karl Wandowich and Mike Rachkovan connected for the Citadelles.

Varsity Romps To Easy Win In Track Meet

By ROMEO MAGERA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—A surprising University of Toronto squad romped away with the 46th annual senior intercollegiate track and field championships Wednesday.

The strong Varsity contingent triumphed in eight of the 15 events and amassed 78 points, more than twice the total compiled by McGill University, who finished second. The Toronto team also scored nine second-place but did figure in the two records broken.

Also participating were McMaster, Queen's and the University of Western Ontario, last year's hosts and champions.

Toronto jumped into an early lead and gradually pulled away from the rest of the field. They beat McGill with 45¼ points. The Montrealers compiled 34½ points.

Western was third with 28½, Queen's next with 21 and McMaster last with only two points.

Double Winners

Points were distributed on a 5-3-2-1 basis.

Toronto's R. Harding and N. Williams paced their team with two victories apiece, Harding winning the 220- and 440-yard runs and Williams the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles.

B. Waller of Western ran the 880 in the record time of 1:53.9, beating the previous mark of 1:57.2 held by McGill's Phil Edwards. He also placed first in the feature one-mile run.

L. Whitman of McGill heaved the 16-pound shot 46 feet, 8 inches, bettering the previous mark of 44 feet, 9½ inches, also held by a McGill athlete. Whitman also won the discus throw.

F. McDougall of Queen's came first in the three-mile event and team-mate B. Barry won in the pole vault.

Was Not Right Mentally, Says Turpin; 'Just Took My Time' States Champion

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The new middleweight champion of the world said through puffed up lips and bloody teeth Wednesday night that his winning strategy "was to give Randy Turpin the first three or four rounds and then finish fast."

"My manager (Syd Flaherty) told me to go slow," Carl (Bobo) Olson said in his dressing room after his 15-round victory for the title.

"So I just took my time and let him sweat himself out. I felt I was stronger as I went along and wasn't tired at the end."

Shortly after the bruising fight, Jim Norris, head of the International Boxing Club, said he hopes to match Olson next with welterweight king Kid Gavilan if the Kid can whip Johnny Bratton in Chicago Nov. 13.

Gavilan Confident

Gavilan watched the middleweight battle from a poor seat. "I'd like to fight him," he said of the Cuban said. "I'm sure I can whip either one. I think Olson would be tougher than Turpin."

Olson's nose was bashed and his face was lacerated with several bruises.

"The hardest blow he hit me was a left hook in the middle of my face in the fourth round," Olson said.

"It was stunned for a while. But I shook it off. After that, I knew I could make it."

Casey Stengel Is 'Manager of Year' For Fourth Time in Five Seasons

By BOB MYERS

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—Casey Stengel is duly grateful, for the fourth time in five years, for being named baseball's manager of the year.

He made this point as clear as Stengel can make anything clear when he arrived at his home that he had won the 1953 award, hands-down.

The New York Yankee skipper received 197 of the 179 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll.

The vote was quite a tribute to the 64-year-old master, only man ever to manage a team to five straight world championships. He won that distinction in the years 1950 and 1952.

As Casey said put it this award was purely a case of the Yankee team, the front office and the coaches all cooperating. The established movement "to build me up and win for me" was "unknown."

Casey seemed intrigued that his vote was far greater than the combined total for the next two managers in the big leagues.

Second place, Charlie Grimm, was second, with 30 votes, six more than Casey's beaten rival in the world series. Third place then of Brooklyn, now of Oakland, Calif.

Other votes: Paul Richards, Baltimore, 19; Leo Durocher, Chicago, Boston Red Sox, four; Al Lopez, Eddie Stanky and Rogers Hornsby, one apiece.

"The first time we win the pennant and we win the championship,this vote or award to me was tremendous," recalled Casey, adding that he was "elated." It was "really something," and "wonderful" as the next awards were received.

"Now we get to this fifth and we win the championship again and first I have to say my players were great with speed and good arms and they attend to bizness and naturally you have to say the front office which there has been no changes in since I come to the club has stood back of me and coaches gosta be thanked for the job they did for me . . .

"Fellas kept asking me how am I going to win five straight." Casey went on, "and I said I don't know. I know, I know some people that know how they won four straight but I didn't know anyone who had won five straight and how was I gonna know how to win five if nobody else did?"

In conclusion, or nearly so, Casey noted:

"We got a pretty good outfit and if they don't get too confident and don't go too far on this honor Mr. Stengel has just won again, well . . ."

Well, the Yankees will make it six straight.

Chicoutimi Takes Over Top Spot In Quebec Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicoutimi Saguenens took over sole possession of the Quebec Hockey League leadership Wednesday night, when Springfield Indians 6-0 to move out of a tie for top spot with Ottawa Senators.

In the only other game scheduled, Sherbrooke Saints picked up their first point of the season by playing to a 2-2 draw with Valleyfield Braves.

At Chicoutimi the Saguenens caught Springfield off balance to build a 4-0 lead in the first period. Jean Richanan and Alain Moore starred for Chicoutimi, each scoring twice, while Buchanan was also in on Stan Smrke's second and final goal. The shutout is the first for Phil Hughes.

At Valleyfield the Braves remained tied with Ottawa in the league's No. 2 spot when they couldn't hold an early lead and let Sherbrooke fight them to a 2-2 tie.

Valleyfield looked in command during the first period as Jean-Guy Bisaillon and Larry Kwong pumped home goals within the first five minutes. But they failed to follow it up and goalie Paul Leclerc let Marcel Bonin and Gerry Gerrecht of the Saints outguess him to equalize.

Trophy Play Decided Later Says CAHA Boss

KEMPTVILLE (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will decide later this season what trophy the Maritime Major Hockey League teams will play for, W.B. (Baldy) George, CAHA president, said Wednesday night.

Whatever that decision is, the Maritime major clubs won't play for the Allan Cup if they have any professional players on their teams he said.

George was commenting on a statement in Glace Bay, N.S., by C. Roy MacDonald, president of the Maritime league, that the league will insist on playing off with the Allan Cup winner if the Alexander Trophy is taken out of circulation.

George said no formal motion has been made by the CAHA to withdraw the Alexander Trophy, presented in 1949 by Field Marshal Lord Alexander for competition among "major series" clubs which were allowed to carry professional players.

The Allan Cup was to remain the championship emblem of senior hockey unconnected with the major series clubs.

Archie Moore Told to Defend 'Light' Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing's joint boards of governors Wednesday told light heavyweight champion Archie Moore to defend his crown by Dec. 24 against "somebody," but preferably Harold Johnson, the No. 1 contender from Philadelphia.

Moore successfully defended his title on June 24 when he outpointed Joey Maxim, from whom he won the championship. His six months deadline will run out Dec. 24.

Charle Johnston, Moore's manager, told the board that he has never received an offer for a Johnson-Moore fight. Moore was one of the fourfighters with John son before he won the title.

"We are willing to fight Johnson or anyone else if someone will guarantee us $100,000," said Johnston.

Ted Waltham, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, said if no American fight appeared, he would try to promote London promoter Jack Solomons in a Moore-Yolande Pompee title match in London, Ont., or Toronto, in a second behind Johnson in the NBA rankings.

World Record Harness Horses Are Retired

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Florican and Highland Ellen, world-recordholding pacing horses, have been retired, it was announced Wednesday at Yonkers Raceway.

Florican, a 9-year-old trotter owned by E. Roland Harriman's son Roland Sladg, Goshen, N.Y., set a world mark of 2:33 for 1½ miles in winning the 20th American Trotting Championship at Roosevelt Raceway last year.

Highland Ellen is a 9-year-old mare owned by Hank Keesling of Milwaukee. She holds two records: Highest earnings among pacing mares, $69,266, and best pacing mark for two heats divided, 2:04 2-5, set in Lexington, Ky., in 1950.

Indians Scalp Owen Sound 6-0; Chatham Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three more teams got into action for the 1953-54 season Wednesday night as three games were divided between the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series and the Northern Ontario Hockey Associa-tion Senior A amateur group.

Sarnia Sailors made an unim-pressive season's debut at home suffering a 5-1 setback by Chatham Maroons when victory bolsted them into a tie with Stratford In-dians on top of the OHA Senior A standings.

In the other game of the big-eight loop, Stratford Indians slammed the gate on Owen Sound Mercurys with a 6-0 shutout in Stratford.

Sudbury Wolves, last year's league champions, also started their NOHA schedule on the wrong foot, being edged out 3-2 by Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians in Michigan.

Jim Connelly, Ed Didone, Joe Carveth, Jim Lee and Ernie Dick shared scoring honors as Chatham blasted the sailors, Pat O'Leary fired the sole counter for Sarnia. The Stratford marksmen were also evenly divided. George Aitken, Mickey Roth, Dinny Flanagan, Ros Ingram, Herve Dejordy and Tom Walker each scored for the In-dians.

Henry (Pop) Backors goal mid-way in the third period was the winning tally for the Sault Indians, Tom Rutter and Johnny Raynak notched the others. Mauno Kauppi and George Defelice shared the scoring for the Wolves.

Destroy Shacks

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Works department employees started Wednesday to destroy a number of underground shacks, laboriously constructed by school boys, which were discovered Tuesday by fire department inspectors.

Dozens of the shacks or bunkers, apparently designed by boys to provide themselves with a private place where they could play, roast potatoes and smoke cigarets, had been unearthed in two vacant fields.

Fire department officials said the boys might have suffocated or suffered burns in the cardboard-lined shacks.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 23, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Some gains in business and useful activities indicated. A day for aggressive action in worthy interests. Buy no care in signing documents, contracts.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — More initiative needed in artistic and personal matters but day is generally splendid for financial interests, business, trades and science.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Be patient in study, teaching, analyzing, research. Don't promise anything or sign your name to any document without knowing well what you are doing, so you can be productive, progressive, pleasant.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You may not get all you wish or work for where personal matters are concerned, but special enterprises can succeed if you stick at your tasks faithfully and forget petty annoyances. Money interests good.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Especially favored this day: Conjunction and mechanical interests generally, surgery, dentistry, mining, engineering, carpentry and others of same type. Extra care needed in written and legal affairs.

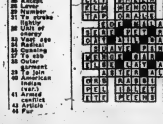
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Mental strain and worry must be taboo if you would achieve this day. Don't sign agreements, any documents without study. Day fine for aggressive activities, labor.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Similar indications as for Taurus. Be mindful of health but don't idle or lose time with unessentials. Get in all the necessary work you can. Trades, manufacturing, surgery favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your Mars, in excellent aspect, promises a really good day if, of course, you do your share to help make it so. Curb irritability, impatience. Be agreeable; don't procrastinate.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—A promising day — particularly if you show initiative and industriousness and if you don't allow overindulgences to hinder your progress. Your occupation, all worthy matters favored.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Double your protective shield against recklessness, taking, risky chances with investments, health and other valuable assets and the day's efforts will produce reasonably good results.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—A promising day especially if you have a well planned schedule and stick to it. Action and initiative will bring good results, but not stubbornness.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Be conservative when and where you should but tackle the hardest tasks with vigor and confidence. You can make good. Artistic and personal interests require more patience and understanding.

YOU BORN TODAY have determination and great energy. Though usually self-controlled and practical-minded, you do have a strong temper that must be controlled for the sake of your health and happiness. You are not sentimental but have a tendency toward procrastination.

Birthdate: George Saintsbury, English man of letters.

Red Delegates Resume Seats On 'Repat' Body

By FORREST EDWARDS

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The Red satellite members of the Korean prisoner repatriation commission ended a three-day walkout today, but there was no indication they had won their point—that anti-Red Koreans be forced to beat Communist efforts to wheedle them home.

The explanations have been stalled since Monday, when the Polish and Czech delegates left the commission in protest being voted down by the Indians, Swedes and Swiss.

Reuters Chinese

The Communist delegates are forcing the point by disregarding the 14,000 Chinese who apparently will listen, insisting instead on talking with the 1,800 Koreans who have refused with a show of boldness.

The Red reluctance to meet the Chinese may grow from the stinging propaganda beating they took in the first two days of interviews —only 19 of 321 Chinese chose the road to communism.

After unsuccessful efforts by Indian guards to get the Koreans peacefully to the interviews, the Red efforts were called off in stalemate.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the repatriation commission, said after Thursday's session that India's hopes are unable to produce the Koreans "at this time."

Recess Until Friday

The meeting was not adjourned, but was recessed until Friday, leading observers to speculate that there now line of argument may have been presented.

Before the meeting Thimayya said he was not ready to schedule its recess, but he declined comment on the point that after the session.

The days without interviews were chopping time from the explanation period set by the armistice, which ends Dec. 23. The Allies already have refused several requests for extensions.

Fly Task to Tokyo

The United States Army announced that Col. Frank H. Dickenson, the former prisoner who is heading the Allied repatriation commission to home, was flown to Tokyo Thursday.

The Commission also got back a prisoner today—a Chinese who was the only person among 180 present to vote a three-hour grilling by Red explainers which the Allies termed "cruel and unusual brainwashing."

The Chinese was dazed and bewildered after the long session Saturday and had been kept in segregation. But he was smiling when he left the repatriation commission meeting after requesting to go home.

Norwegian Ship In Wrong Channel Seamen Declare

MONTREAL (CP) — Seamen aboard the crippled Norwegian freighter Stugard said Wednesday night their ship was off the north side of the channel when she collided with an Italian vessel in the St. Lawrence River.

The 7,258-ton freighter from Tonsberg, Norway, collided with the small 1,450-ton Carla Maria G. heading downstream from Montreal early Wednesday near Pointe Claire, Que., about 21 miles west of Quebec City.

The master of the Carla Maria G. ran his ship aground as a precaution against sinking, but later backed her off the mud-bank and proceeded downstream to Quebec escorted by the tug Foundation Jasephine II.

The Stugard, her bow dented from the impact, arrived in Montreal Wednesday night at the Victoria travelling light when the accident happened owing she carried a cargo of British Guiana bauxite at Port Alfred, Que. Repairs are expected to take two days.

Weather Clear

Sailors said the Stugard was in the eastbound lane when she tangled with the Carla Maria. One seaman said the weather was clear, but the accident occurred at 4:43 a. m. It was not yet light.

Members of the crew who spoke to newspaper men refused to be identified, and Capt. Thorvald Carl K. Markussen said he had no comment to make.

The longest pitched many of them from their bunks, they said. Steve Hanagan, chief of the steward department, rushed on deck to find the other ship "badly damaged."

Crew Kept Aboard

Crew of the Carla Maria G. were kept on board when she limped into Quebec, but it was expected the crew would be arraigned at amidships, would be put into dry-dock at Lauzon, even to-day. Meanwhile the 20,000-ton liner Samaria left Quebec Wednesday night 24 hours behind schedule for Rotterdam with replacement units for the 29-ship Canadian Pacific fleet.

The liner was forced to drop anchor near Quebec when her mooring lines fouled her propellors. She turned back to have them cut and divers descended to free propellor shafts.

Lawyers Question Former Owner Of Distillery

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers Wednesday questioned the former owner about the financial backing ground of a Canadian distillery that figures in a $22,000,000 suit by bootlegger James (Nigg) Rutkin. Rutkin claims he was defrauded by his associates in a number of big liquor business transactions. His suit is being tried in federal court before Judge Thomas F. Murphy.

The projected transfer in 1951 of the L. L. and G. distillery at Chatham, Ont., from its Canadian owners to a group headed by Joseph E. Reinfeld, is one of the deals in which Rutkin claims he was defrauded.

Before the Reinfeld group could get control of the distillery, it was necessary to buy out Hiram Bronfman, president and vice-president respectively of Seagram's Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. of Montreal, who bought up defaulted mortgages on the property.

Rutkin, now serving a four-year term in jail on income tax violations, claims Reinfeld and the Bronfmans conspired to deprive him of an interest in the firm.

The Bronfmans and a son-in-law of Reinfeld are the only three individual defendants in Rutkin's suit.

Judge Murphy reserved decision on whether he will permit lawyers to submit depositions taken from Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight boxing champion, who is ill in California, and M. H. Schwartz, Montreal lawyer.

Schwartz represented Charles Burns, one of Leon's partners in the Canadian distillery, in a suit filed against the Bronfmans in 1938.

Maurice Edelbaum, Rutkin's counsel, earlier had produced documents having to do with powers of attorney granted to Schwartz to establish that Burns had granted Reinfeld to settle a suit filed by Burns in 1938 in Montreal.

Edelbaum has claimed Reinfeld's payment to Schwartz, allegedly $54,500, was evidence of conspiracy by Reinfeld and the Bronfmans against Rutkin.

Arab Legion Disperses Attack On US Info Office

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—A mob tried to storm the American information office here today but was driven off by soldiers of the Arab Legion. Windows and signs were smashed and a car belonging to the U. S. embassy was wrecked.

The attack came after demonstrators angered by recent clashes with Israel had marched on Premier Fawzi El Mulki's office and demanded that an Arab replace the British commander of Jordan's Arab Legion.

The legion, considered the most efficient fighting force in the Middle East, is commanded by Brig. John Bagot Glubb, the colorful Briton who organized and trained it. Although British-financed, it is Jordan's army and many of its officers are Jordanians.

U.S. MAKES

Murray said the world was stunned when Russia announced recently that Soviet scientists had developed the secret of the hydrogen bomb, the tremendous offspring of the A-bomb that leveled two cities.

But world peace would have been more gravely endangered, he declared if Russia had announced successful operation of an industrial power plant—and had offered to swap atomic know-how for uranium produced by other countries.

Need Outside Ore

"It is no secret that our atomic weapons program depends upon the receipt of substantial quantities of uranium from foreign sources," Murray said.

"These friendly nations, I think, are motivated mainly by the will to peace. They believe in the military protection afforded by our atomic weapons program. But the same motives are inclined to forget that they also are betting on our great record of success in solving industrial and technological problems.

"They are banking on the United States know-how and United States good faith to help them build their nuclear power plants of the future.

"I believe that unless we embark on an all-out attack on our nuclear energy program immediately, we may be deprived of foreign uranium ores the result that our weapons potential will be smaller than need be the case."

Murray urged a tremendous cost of building, testing and perfecting new industrial atomic power plant rules out any such development by private enterprise without government help.

But, with improved technology no government-launched program gets into gear, "the work should properly be transferred from the federal government so that eventually industry will be carrying the greater burden of this industrial development."

Kingston Bus Driver Freed Of Charge

CORNWALL (CP)—Lorne Chesebrough of Kingston, the 36-year-old driver of a bus which took 20 persons to their death July 31 in the Wilmansburg canal, was acquitted Wednesday of a charge of dangerous driving.

Judge C. R. Brennan freed the Colonial Coach Lines employee following a motion for acquittal submitted by defence counsel R. A. Hughes of Ottawa.

Mr. Hughes contended there was no case against Chesebrough and that much of the crown's evidence could be been used by the defence.

Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan admitted that the stalled unlighted truck which the bus struck before plunging into the canal three miles west of Morrisburg was a "menace to the highway."

Judge Brennan said there was no evidence of negligence on the part of Chesebrough.

Max Roodman, 40, of Toronto, the driver of the stalled truck, has been charged with manslaughter. A similar charge against Chesebrough was reduced to dangerous driving.

Roodman is scheduled to face trial on the manslaughter charge when the Supreme Court sezizes here next week.

HUNGRY SHEEP

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Hungry sheep disrupted telephone traffic between the North and South Islands here. Mistaken by eating away the lead covering of aerial cables at the submarine terminal. Water seeped in and caused a breakdown in the radio channel which carries telephone calls between the two islands.

GLUM TRIBUTE

LONDON (CP)—Anna Neagle's play "The Glorious Days," about Nell Gwyn's fourteenth run, was described by the Daily Sketch critic Kenneth Tynan as "one of the most glutinous recollections of Edwardian middle-class taste to be visited on London audiences in years."

H. T. A. Question To Be Decided In Weekly Court

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Can a car owner be convicted of a traffic offence, despite lack of evidence that it was the driver of the motor vehicle in question?

This question will be put before Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells in county court here Friday, His decision may carry far-reaching effects.

A. Woodstock man, George H. Greenfield, was convicted of careless driving by Oxford magistrate H. G. Groom, April 24 this year under these circumstances.

Greenfield's lawyer has appealed.

Magistrate Groom said there was no satisfactory evidence as to the identity of the driver but found sufficient evidence that Greenfield's car was being driven in a careless manner.

Jail Turnkey Gives Evidence In Murder Case

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A jail turnkey Wednesday quoted George Nelson, 23, on trial for murder in the death of his 20-year-old wife as saying he hit her with a crank handle.

Allan Ritchie testified that Nelson hammered on the front door of the jail early July 17 and told him: "I think I have killed my wife."

He said he asked Nelson if he had had an accident. He said Nelson replied:

"I did not have an accident. I hit her with a crank handle."

Ritchie said he admitted Nelson and saw blood on his hands and shirt. He asked another turnkey to call police.

Constable Earl Fare said he examined a car in front of the jail and found in it the battered body of a woman.

The woman died soon afterwards in hospital.

Britain Unveils New-Style Jet

A new aircraft, which may revolutionize the shape and performance of future airplanes, has made its first flight in Belfast, Northern Ireland. It is the Short Sherpa, the first aircraft ever to fly with an "arrow-leading" wing and instead of conventional ailerons and elevators it has rotating wing tips which act as controls. This is the first Sherpa produced, and so far is classed as a research model. — Central Press Canadian.

Report Hungary Seeking to Sell Art Treasures

VIENNA (AP) — Diplomatic sources here declare that Communist Hungary is attempting to sell in the West masterpieces from Budapest's National Art Gallery.

The gallery includes paintings of Raphael, Tintoretto, Murillo and others collected by the Austro-Hungarian emperors and princes. The informants said some of the paintings are being shipped to the United States as "diplomatic luggage" in the hope of interesting American art collectors.

The diplomatic sources said many of the pictures had been removed from the gallery because they "offended the taste" of the Communist government and were replaced by "works by 'progressive artists.'"

B.C. Detective Solved Two Famous Cases

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forbes Cruickshank, one of British Columbia's most famous detectives, died here Tuesday. He was 88.

Mr. Cruickshank won international fame for his work in solving the notorious "Beryl G" hijacking and murder case in 1924 and was given credit for clearing up a $42,000 Masalmo, B.C., bank robbery the following year.

The Beryl G, a small boat running rum between Canada and the United States, was found floating off the coast of Washington state in 1924. Its decks covered with bloodstains. The skipper, Capt. George Gillis, and his son Bill, 17, were missing.

With only a camera and a hat as clues, Mr. Cruickshank, then an inspector with the B.C. provincial police, started an investigation that took him through the slums of Seattle and across the continent.

His work resulted in the capture of Owen (Cannonball) Baker and Harry Sowash. They were convicted of murdering Capt. Gillis and hanged here in 1935.

Is Not Wrong To Tell Children About Santa

TORONTO (CP)—A psychiatrist testified Wednesday that there is nothing wrong with telling children about Santa Claus, "stilbon" or bogey stories.

Dr. Robert G. Armour said it would be all right to tell a child bogey stories provided they were told as a joke and not as a threat. He added children are amused by fanciful stories.

He was testifying in an action over custody of the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Gibson of Hamilton. Both parents claim custody of the two boys, John, 4, and David, 2. Mrs. Gibson is asking $50 a month maintenance for each and interim allowance of $25 a week.

Mr. Gibson is a son of Mr. Justice C. W. G. Gibson of the Ontario Court of Appeal who testified earlier on behalf of his son.

Gordon Ford, counsel for Mrs. Gibson, asked what Dr. Armour thought of the grandmother, Mrs. Rollie Gibson, using the idea on John that "sillies would get after him."

Dr. Armour replied that it "would be all right to use this method."

EXECUTORS AND TRUSTEES FOR OVER HALF A CENTURY

MORE THAN A 'PRUDENT ADMINISTRATOR'

'EN BON PERE DE FAMILLE' (as a good father of the family) is a phrase often used in the Civil Law of the Province of Quebec. It means a 'Prudent Administrator' and, as applied to Executors and Trustees, requires them to act with care and skill.

In addition it suggests that an Executor and Trustee must feel a deep sense of responsibility for the personal welfare and comfort of dependants.

It is the aim of the Officers of The Royal Trust Company to live up to this high ideal with sympathy and understanding, and to ensure efficient and economical administration of every Estate entrusted to our care.

Indian Youth Shot and Killed, Taken for Bear

SALAMANCA, N.Y. (AP) — An Indian youth identified as Harvey Silversmith, 21, of Caledonia, Ont., was shot and killed Thursday by another youth who mistook him for a bear, sheriff Morgan L. Sigel of Cattaraugus county reported.

The fatal shot was fired during a 30-30 rifle by Laverne Redeye, 19, also an Indian, according to Sigel.

Dr. James Rappl, Cattaraugus county coroner, said he would issue a certificate of accidental death.

Sigel said the shooting occurred after a group of children had reported seeing a bear swimming in the Allegheny river. Redeye thought he saw a bear moving in the bushes along the bank and fired, Sigel said. Silversmith was hit in the jaw.

The Canadian youth had been visiting relatives on the Allegany Indian reservation.

Canadian Cheese Poorly Marketed Says Professor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Dr. W. A. Jenkins, professor of political of Queen's University, said Thursday night Canadian cheese "is the most poorly marketed of all our products."

It was one of several barbs which he injected extemporaneously into the previously-prepared text of a speech at the Canadian Exporters' Association.

In a discussion of various Canadian products he started to say "large legislation (in Canada) would eat up all our cheese," and then added: "If producers of cheese could get an effective marketing system."

Teamsters Union Seizes Control Of Two Locals

DETROIT (AP) — The AFL Teamsters international union Thursday seized control of two locals whose leaders are accused of bribe-taking, shakedowns and sellouts of employers.

The action came as more excavating and construction contractors told of "getting right with the union" by paying ranging from $100 to $500. In one case "a couple of new suits" was the suggested payroll to a union official.

On orders from teamsters international president Dave Beck, trusteeships were clamped on Detroit Local 247 and Pontiac Local 614.

Five of six defendants now undergoing examination on extortion charges have been officers of the two locals. They were automatically removed, however, by the international's action.

The move placed even more power in the hands of James A. Hoffa, who already is boss of powerful Truckers union has been unanimously elected a year ago. Hoffa was named trustee.

FLASH FLOODS MAY HAVE TAKEN HUNDRED LIVES

Heavy Rains Continue In South Italy Area

By ALLAN JACKS

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) — Search workers combed frantically today through wrecked homes in a dozen small villages for victims of the disastrous flash floods that may have claimed as many as 100 lives.

Torrential rains pounding out of the Ionian sea this morning. They stopped abruptly at noon, but heavy clouds threatened more downpours.

In the Reggio Calabria area alone, 50 dead lacking identification. Scores of persons are missing.

Hundreds were injured in the disaster, the worst here since an earthquake levelled the region in 1908. Hundreds left homeless, estimated in "billions of lire, was the greater than that caused by similar inundations two years ago.

Men in Canada

Among the hardest-hit hamlets was Rosario di Valanidi, inhabited almost entirely by women and children whose husbands and fathers have gone to Canada to work. Another was Catona, where a rescued after her own heroic efforts toaave the lives of her three children. Mud-laden waters swept suddenly upon them.

Giorgio, bodies dug out of debris were lined up in a macabre column under the eaves of a building used as a morgue.

The floods struck without warning. Just hours before dawn Thursday, catching many persons asleep in bed.

Twelve hours of heavy rains had turned large areas into seas of mud. Bridges were washed away. Roads were impassable.

Mountain torrents, usually dry at this season, ripped away boulders and trees as they rose five to 25 yards above the water. The boiling water surged out of the river courses, wrecking homes, tearing down telephone lines and power lines and devastating thousands of acres of vineyard and olive orchards.

Rail lines were torn up, bridges and concrete walls and tossed automobiles and farm vehicles hundreds of feet.

Heroic Priest Drowned

Parish priest Don Giuseppe Macsano, 60, drowned trying to rescue a drowning child.

Army troops, firemen and volunteers, including women, searched for the missing and helped clear the debris cluttering village streets and highways.

Scores told of the rivers of stricken towns was for water, since supply systems were smashed.

Korean War Casualty Figures Indicate Toll of Three Million

By A. I. GOLDBERG
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Final casualty figures for the Korean war, still clouded by uncertainty over the fate of thousands missing who may be dead, indicate both sides suffered a toll of more than 3,000,000.

Based on figures from official and United Nations delegation sources, total casualties for the UN side are figured at 1,474,298, of which the Republic of Korea total is 1,312,815, United States 142,117 and the 15 other UN Allies 17,260. Canadas total was given as 1,390.

In all but a few instances, the figures run past the July 27 armistice date.

Washington sources, basing their figures on a counting-up to the end of July, estimated Communist casualties, killed and wounded, at 1,650,000, and prisoners at another 120,000 for a total of 1,770,000—scaled down from the estimate last April of 1,876,000.

The U.S. still has 7,955 listed missing. The defence department early this month said they "must eventually be presumed dead.

Along with almost-complete casualty tallies, the war damage, estimated in "billions of lire, was far greater than that caused by similar inundations two years ago.

Two-Night Party on Farm By Teen-Agers Aired in Court

CHATHAM (CP)—Charges ranging from indecent assault to chicken theft were dealt with in court here yesterday when 31 Wallaceburg district teen-agers appeared on 44 charges laid as a result of a two-night party on a farm in nearby Tupperville on Oct.

"This looks as though it's going to be a field day for the press," commented crown attorney A. D. Bell as he prepared to wade through the pile of charges before magistrate Ivan B. Craig.

"There have been many wild stories circulating about the Tupperville incident, and I am glad the press is here to get the true picture, magistrate Craig said.

He said he would always found the press very fair.

The charges included indecent assault, causing a disturbance, delinquency, theft of gasoline, consumption of alcohol by minors, supplying minors with liquor, theft of a chicken and trespassing.

The court action came after almost three week's intensive investigation by police, and ended a flood of rumour and gossip.

Ten charges of gasoline theft were heard. Some of the boys pleaded guilty and paid fines of $10 and costs. The rest, who pleaded not guilty were remanded for trial in Wallaceburg on Nov. 5.

Several boys who returned for a party the following night, pleaded guilty to consuming alcohol and paid fines of $25 and costs of $39.50.

Liquor Supplier Fined

George DeMasyer of Wallaceburg pleaded guilty to a charge of supplying liquor to minors and was fined $50 and costs of $39.50.

During the hearing Mr. Bell denied there was any truth in rumors of dope being sold.

Only the cases involving three juveniles got full detail in court.

When the in-camera hearing was held, magistrate Craig said he was "shocked by some of the evidence."

Later, in an interview, the magistrate expressed amazement so many could get drunk and finally attended the trial.

After some of the youths were fined and others remanded for trial, the mother of one of the girls said:

"I wonder if these fines will be a lesson to them."

The mother of another of the girls said:

"I think it the most shocking thing that has ever happened to me."

35 Passengers, Crew Members Killed in Crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Thirty-five passengers and crew members were killed and two others seriously injured in a crash reported caused by an attack from Israeli fighter planes on a Swedish airliner near the Israeli-Lebanese-Syrian borders Thursday.

The airliner crashed on the Jabal Al Sheikh mountain near the border of the three countries.

The dead and injured were transported to Damascus Syrian air authorities. The condition of two injured passengers was reported critical in Damascus hospitals.

The Swedish consul in Beirut, Lebanon, charged that Israeli fighter planes shot down the Swedish tourist aircraft.

Payroll Sales Up Four Times Over Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The new Canada savings bond campaign rolled up sales in the first four days of drive.

This, said the Bank of Canada Thursday, is about four times as large as the $7,329,000 sold in the first two days of the same period last year.

Ontario led the provinces with a spectacular payroll sales jump to $9,408,150 from $1,398,800 last year.

Catfish Cover Detroit Street

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit motorists Thursday had to drive gingerly today in a dense fog that blanketed the Willow Run expressway during rush hour traffic.

Cars inching along the fog-covered highway had to stop when 5,000 pounds of live catfish were dumped on the road following a truck collision.

Motorists stomped out of their cars and collected themselves fish dinners before driving on to work.

Korean POW Postpone Reply To Indians

No Hint of Solution Of Captives' Sitdown

By FORREST EDWARDS

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Red efforts to persuade anti-Communist Korean war prisoners to return home appeared today to be stalled at least until next week, and there was no indication whether the PoWs would call off a sitdown which threatens the armistice.

The prisoners had been expected to announce a decision today. But in mid-afternoon an informed source said the North Koreans would wait at least until Monday to reply to Indian efforts to get the explanation program going again.

The neutral nations repatriation commission met today for two hours, then recessed without reporting progress on the problem of coaxing balky anti-Red Korean PoWs to accept indoctrination interviews.

Out And In Again

The explanation program has been suspended since Monday when the Koreans threatened a mass breakout if forced to talk. Swiss, Swedish, Polish and Czechoslovakia walked out when the other three neutral members — Switzerland, Sweden and India—voted instead forcing the PoWs to attend.

Polish and Czech members returned Tuesday, but only to say how their demand that the Koreans be forced to attend explanation explanations. The Reds refuse to interview anti-Communists and are willing to attend the sessions.

Avoid Rebuff

Of the first 521 Chinese interviewed only 19 decided to return to the Communists, and there has been speculation that the Reds might be stalling away time allowed for explanations to avoid a further propaganda beating.

Nine PoWs were scheduled for the explanations, which must end by Christmas.

After today's commission meeting, Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, the Indian chairman, said the commission could not agree on the explanation to be given to the Korean prisoners out of their compound and on the possible consequences of such action.

Push 'Em, Then What

Thimayya was empowered to "push" balky prisoners to get them to the explanations. But he added:

A. Y. Jackson Praised By Governor-General

TORONTO (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey Thursday called artist A. Y. Jackson "a great Canadian painter, a great Canadian, and a legendary figure in the Canadian scene."

The occasion was Mr. Massey's first official visit to the art gallery of Toronto—for the opening of a collection of Mr. Jackson's paintings and drawings on display arranged by the Ontario branch of the Canadian Authors' Association.

Three of the Jackson paintings are from the governor-generally collection.

Winter Comes to Korea, U.S. Army Tucks in Soldiers Like Fussy Mother

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SEOUL (AP)—The freezing winter wind is whipping over Korea as the "iron curtain" closes in on the line" on the edge of the demilitarized zone, where troops will stand frigid watches in case the Reds decide to break the armistice.

But they can walk back to a tent and warm up by two stoves. One stove already has been issued for each tent and stocks of fuel are piled high in supply dumps.

When the soldier steps out of the tent, he'll look like a combination Eskimo-skier going hunting. Wrapped in 20 pounds of protective clothing, he'll don a hooded parka, a muffler, heavy mittens and "insulated" boots. Then he'll be ready to wait for what he hopes won't come.

And if he needs them he can have ice shoes with spiked soles for his hobnail boots.

He already has his winter gear, issued in all cases by size, as the winter walks in.

Long johns, socks and he'll get a break—a trip back to division. That's even plushier.

There the engineers are building jumbo quonset huts for snack bars, community centres, theatres, recreation halls, chapels and juniorgrade gyms.

Smaller huts are going up as libraries and reading rooms and hobby shops.

Billets front and rear have been winterized with wooden floors.

This is winter in Korea-1953 style.

Free Prisoner Jailed 41 Years On Truancy Charge

Massachusetts Judge Frees Seven Men Illegally Held

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP)—Seven men, found to have been illegally committed as prisoners, were free today after serving terms in state institutions for periods of from six to 41 years.

All seven wept with joy when their freedom was ordered Thursday by Superior Court Judge Felix Forte on the grounds their commitment was illegal and without benefit of a hearing in some cases.

Judge Forte found one of the men, Elmer Bridges, had been a prisoner more than 41 years on a case of mistaken identity.

Elmer Bridges and Bridges was locked up as a boy of 10 on a charge of truancy from Tewksbury schools when, in fact, it was Bridges' brother who was the truant.

Bridges was so overjoyed on his release he shook hands with everyone in the courtroom, from the judge to reporters covering the hearing.

All seven were sentenced to indeterminate terms as defective delinquents.

Minor Infractions.

Judge Forte found many of the men were transferred from detention homes to state prison institutions for minor infractions of their commitments.

The other six men released and their terms served:

William J. Bryant, 33, of Lawrence, committed at age of 10 for truancy.

Harold F. Martin, 27, of Lynn, one of a family of 16 children, in custody 11 years for receiving stolen goods.

Henry A. Gilbert, 48, of Northampton, a prisoner for 34 years. He became a musician and leader of the band at the Bridgewater state farm.

James Goodridge, 33, of Wrentham, in detention 29 years after confinement at the age of five. He was later termed a sex case and confined at Concord reformatory and Bridgewater.

Martin J. Perkins, 53, of Worcester, committed for larceny of a bicycle, tobacco and pillow slip, epip,t obacco and shrdcklgymtwP pipe, tobacco and pillow and confined for 30 years.

Paul Rivers, 25, of Somerville, committed at 16 as a defective delinquent.

Pre-Judged" Cases

During the hearings, Judge Forte criticized State Attorney - General Edward J. McCormick, Jr., who said "up to now, it seems, has found no merit in any of these cases. The attorney - general has apparently pre-judged all these cases."

"It is the duty made possible under a new law which permits inmates to file a petition to have their cases considered. If a Social Welfare Court judge finds they have been illegally committed he can release them. Or he may have the petitioners re-examined by a 15-day period by psychiatrists before making a decision.

Several others were released in recent months when it was found they were committed illegally.

In the past, defective delinquents were committed to state institutions for indeterminate sentences.

No Major Tax Cuts in 1954 Says Abbott

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Thursday night washed out hope of any major tax cuts in 1954, and left open the possibility of substantial cuts in 1955 "and later."

By that time, if world tensions ease, the government may also be in a position to resume paring the national debt, he added in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association.

"I cannot forecast what our economic situation will be a year over the next three to five years," he said. "If we have to maintain our present rate and scale of preparedness, further tax reductions can only come from further growth in total output and efficiency.

"If, as we all hope, real progress can be made in reducing world tensions, some real reductions in defence corps could come out of our war-time effort. If any, in 1954—but perhaps in 1955 and later."

Production Minister Howe, in a brief address, said he felt that Canada is now in a position to meet any defence problems that may arise.

Defence Minister Claxton said the satellite countries appeared to have changed their tactics, though not their unalterable design. He believed the change resulted from the defence efforts of the freedom-loving countries. Canada's effort obliged countries to

"Defence is like fire insurance," Mr. Claxton said. "You shouldn't cut off the policy just because you haven't had a fire."

The action came as more excavating and construction contractors told of "getting right with the union" by paying ranging from $100 to $500. In one case "a couple of new suits" was the suggested payroll to a union official.

On orders from teamsters international president Dave Beck, trusteeships were clamped on Detroit Local 247 and Pontiac Local 614.

Five of six defendants now undergoing examination on extortion charges have been officers of the two locals. They were automatically removed, however, by the international's action.

The move placed even more power in the hands of James A. Hoffa, who already is boss of powerful Truckers union has been unanimously elected a year ago. Hoffa was named trustee.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis — The pleasant sunny weather which prevailed over Ontario will continue for a bit of high pressure which extends from the Maritimes across the New England states and into the lower Great Lakes regions. However, the weather outlook for the high is breaking down. Cloud, associated with a weak cold front, is expected to move into southern Ontario this evening from the west. Weekend weather will be somewhat cooler but temperatures will still be above normal for late October. Cloudy skies and scattered showers are forecast to continue today and Saturday in the north country.

Continue Ban On Auto Imports

WELLINGTON (CP)—New Zealand has decided to continue through 1954 the ban on importation of Canadian and American automobiles and other non-essentials, the Canadian Commercial Corp., Trade Minister Watts announced today.

The minister said it has been decided to follow the existing policy of testing each application for import licences on the basis of essentiality, so New Zealand would draw on the sterling area's dollar pool only to minimum extent consistent with maintenance of essential supplies.

Famous Clown, Rhum, Is Dead

PARIS (Reuters) — Henrico Sprogiani, the sad little man who played the famous clown Rhum, often described as "the greatest clown of all time," died here Wednesday night after a long illness. He was 49.

Rhum, a circus top-liner for 40 years, made his last public appearance in London last month.

Born in Berlin of Italian parentage, he made his first professional appearance at the age of seven.

Ex-Queen Fails in Suicide Attempt When Her Husband Seeks Divorce

PARIS (AP)—Beautiful ex-Queen Alexandra of Yugoslavia appeared in a French divorce court Thursday wearing on her left wrist a bandage which her lawyer said was due to a grief-stricken suicide attempt.

Thirty-year-old ex-King Peter also was in court.

Louis de Chairesmartin, the lawyer for the former queen, said she had tried to commit suicide Wednesday night at her Paris hotel by cutting her wrist with a pocketknife. He said a doctor visited her Thursday morning, but that she did not ask for a medical certificate excusing her from the court appearance.

The lawyer said she had attempted the act when she finally became convinced that her husband would never agree to a reconciliation.

The former king filed a petition for divorce in Paris last month, charging the former Greek princess had deserted him.

He married Alexandra in 1944 while in exile, and in 1945 the Yugoslav National Assembly swept him from power.

Korean War Casualty Figures Indicate Toll of Three Million

By A. I. GOLDBERG
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Final casualty figures for the Korean war, still clouded by uncertainty over the fate of thousands missing who may be dead, indicate both sides suffered a toll of more than 3,000,000.

Based on figures from official and United Nations delegation sources, total casualties for the UN side are figured at 1,474,298, of which the Republic of Korea total is 1,312,815, United States 142,117 and the 15 other UN Allies 17,260. Canadas total was given as 1,390.

In all but a few instances, the figures run past the July 27 armistice date.

Washington sources, basing their figures on a counting-up to the end of July, estimated Communist casualties, killed and wounded, at 1,650,000, and prisoners at another 120,000 for a total of 1,770,000—scaled down from the estimate last April of 1,876,000.

The U.S. still has 7,955 listed missing. The defence department early this month said they "must eventually be presumed dead.

Along with almost-complete casualty tallies, the war damage, estimated in "billions of lire, was far greater than that caused by similar inundations two years ago.

Men in Canada

Among the hardest-hit hamlets was Rosario di Valanidi, inhabited almost entirely by women and children whose husbands and fathers have gone to Canada to work. Another was Catona, where a rescued after her own heroic efforts toaave the lives of her three children. Mud-laden waters swept suddenly upon them.

Giorgio, bodies dug out of debris were lined up in a macabre column under the eaves of a building used as a morgue.

The floods struck without warning. Just hours before dawn Thursday, catching many persons asleep in bed.

Twelve hours of heavy rains had turned large areas into seas of mud. Bridges were washed away. Roads were impassable.

Mountain torrents, usually dry at this season, ripped away boulders and trees as they rose five to 25 yards above the water. The boiling water surged out of the river courses, wrecking homes, tearing down telephone lines and power lines and devastating thousands of acres of vineyard and olive orchards.

Rail lines were torn up, bridges and concrete walls and tossed automobiles and farm vehicles hundreds of feet.

Heroic Priest Drowned

Parish priest Don Giuseppe Macsano, 60, drowned trying to rescue a drowning child.

Army troops, firemen and volunteers, including women, searched for the missing and helped clear the debris cluttering village streets and highways.

Scores told of the rivers of stricken towns was for water, since supply systems were smashed.

Two-Night Party on Farm By Teen-Agers Aired in Court

CHATHAM (CP)—Charges ranging from indecent assault to chicken theft were dealt with in court here yesterday when 31 Wallaceburg district teen-agers appeared on 44 charges laid as a result of a two-night party on a farm in nearby Tupperville on Oct.

"This looks as though it's going to be a field day for the press," commented crown attorney A. D. Bell as he prepared to wade through the pile of charges before magistrate Ivan B. Craig.

"There have been many wild stories circulating about the Tupperville incident, and I am glad the press is here to get the true picture, magistrate Craig said.

He said he would always found the press very fair.

The charges included indecent assault, causing a disturbance, delinquency, theft of gasoline, consumption of alcohol by minors, supplying minors with liquor, theft of a chicken and trespassing.

The court action came after almost three week's intensive investigation by police, and ended a flood of rumour and gossip.

Ten charges of gasoline theft were heard. Some of the boys pleaded guilty and paid fines of $10 and costs. The rest, who pleaded not guilty were remanded for trial in Wallaceburg on Nov. 5.

Several boys who returned for a party the following night, pleaded guilty to consuming alcohol and paid fines of $25 and costs of $39.50.

Liquor Supplier Fined

George DeMasyer of Wallaceburg pleaded guilty to a charge of supplying liquor to minors and was fined $50 and costs of $39.50.

During the hearing Mr. Bell denied there was any truth in rumors of dope being sold.

Only the cases involving three juveniles got full detail in court.

When the in-camera hearing was held, magistrate Craig said he was "shocked by some of the evidence.

Later, in an interview, the magistrate expressed amazement so many could get drunk and finally attended the trial.

After some of the youths were fined and others remanded for trial, the mother of one of the girls said:

"I wonder if these fines will be a lesson to them."

The mother of another of the girls said:

"I think it the most shocking thing that has ever happened to me."

NORTH KOREAN POW POSTPONE REPLY TO INDIANS

No Hint of Solution Of Captives' Sitdown

By FORREST EDWARDS

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Red efforts to persuade anti-Communist Korean war prisoners to return home appeared today to be stalled at least until next week, and there was no indication whether the PoWs would call off a sitdown which threatens the armistice.

The prisoners had been expected to announce a decision today. But in mid-afternoon an informed source said the North Koreans would wait at least until Monday to reply to Indian efforts to get the explanation program going again.

The neutral nations repatriation commission met today for two hours, then recessed without reporting progress on the problem of coaxing balky anti-Red Korean PoWs to accept indoctrination interviews.

Out And In Again

The explanation program has been suspended since Monday when the Koreans threatened a mass breakout if forced to talk. Swiss, Swedish, Polish and Czechoslovakia walked out when the other three neutral members — Switzerland, Sweden and India—voted instead forcing the PoWs to attend.

Polish and Czech members returned Tuesday, but only to say how their demand that the Koreans be forced to attend explanation explanations. The Reds refuse to interview anti-Communists and are willing to attend the sessions.

Avoid Rebuff

Of the first 521 Chinese interviewed only 19 decided to return to the Communists, and there has been speculation that the Reds might be stalling away time allowed for explanations to avoid a further propaganda beating.

Nine PoWs were scheduled for the explanations, which must end by Christmas.

After today's commission meeting, Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, the Indian chairman, said the commission could not agree on the explanation to be given to the Korean prisoners out of their compound and on the possible consequences of such action.

Push 'Em, Then What

Thimayya was empowered to "push" balky prisoners to get them to the explanations. But he added:

A. Y. Jackson Praised By Governor-General

TORONTO (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey Thursday called artist A. Y. Jackson "a great Canadian painter, a great Canadian, and a legendary figure in the Canadian scene."

The occasion was Mr. Massey's first official visit to the art gallery of Toronto—for the opening of a collection of Mr. Jackson's paintings and drawings on display arranged by the Ontario branch of the Canadian Authors' Association.

Three of the Jackson paintings are from the governor-generally collection.

Winter Comes to Korea, U.S. Army Tucks in Soldiers Like Fussy Mother

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SEOUL (AP)—The freezing winter wind is whipping over Korea as the "iron curtain" closes in on the line" on the edge of the demilitarized zone, where troops will stand frigid watches in case the Reds decide to break the armistice.

But they can walk back to a tent and warm up by two stoves. One stove already has been issued for each tent and stocks of fuel are piled high in supply dumps.

When the soldier steps out of the tent, he'll look like a combination Eskimo-skier going hunting. Wrapped in 20 pounds of protective clothing, he'll don a hooded parka, a muffler, heavy mittens and "insulated" boots. Then he'll be ready to wait for what he hopes won't come.

And if he needs them he can have ice shoes with spiked soles for his hobnail boots.

He already has his winter gear, issued in all cases by size, as the winter walks in.

Long johns, socks and he'll get a break—a trip back to division. That's even plushier.

There the engineers are building jumbo quonset huts for snack bars, community centres, theatres, recreation halls, chapels and junior-grade gyms.

Smaller huts are going up as libraries and reading rooms and hobby shops.

Billets front and rear have been winterized with wooden floors.

This is winter in Korea-1953 style.

Free Prisoner Jailed 41 Years On Truancy Charge

Massachusetts Judge Frees Seven Men Illegally Held

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP)—Seven men, found to have been illegally committed as prisoners, were free today after serving terms in state institutions for periods of from six to 41 years.

All seven wept with joy when their freedom was ordered Thursday by Superior Court Judge Felix Forte on the grounds their commitment was illegal and without benefit of a hearing in some cases.

Judge Forte found one of the men, Elmer Bridges, had been a prisoner more than 41 years on a case of mistaken identity.

Elmer Bridges and Bridges was locked up as a boy of 10 on a charge of truancy from Tewksbury schools when, in fact, it was Bridges' brother who was the truant.

Bridges was so overjoyed on his release he shook hands with everyone in the courtroom, from the judge to reporters covering the hearing.

All seven were sentenced to indeterminate terms as defective delinquents.

Minor Infractions.

Judge Forte found many of the men were transferred from detention homes to state prison institutions for minor infractions of their commitments.

The other six men released and their terms served:

William J. Bryant, 33, of Lawrence, committed at age of 10 for truancy.

Harold F. Martin, 27, of Lynn, one of a family of 16 children, in custody 11 years for receiving stolen goods.

Henry A. Gilbert, 48, of Northampton, a prisoner for 34 years. He became a musician and leader of the band at the Bridgewater state farm.

James Goodridge, 33, of Wrentham, in detention 29 years after confinement at the age of five. He was later termed a sex case and confined at Concord reformatory and Bridgewater.

Martin J. Perkins, 53, of Worcester, committed for larceny of a bicycle, tobacco and pillow slip, epip,t obacco and shrdcklgymtwP pipe, tobacco and pillow and confined for 30 years.

Paul Rivers, 25, of Somerville, committed at 16 as a defective delinquent.

"Pre-Judged" Cases

During the hearings, Judge Forte criticized State Attorney - General Edward J. McCormick, Jr., who said "up to now, it seems, has found no merit in any of these cases. The attorney - general has apparently pre-judged all these cases."

"It is the duty made possible under a new law which permits inmates to file a petition to have their cases considered. If a Social Welfare Court judge finds they have been illegally committed he can release them. Or he may have the petitioners re-examined by a 15-day period by psychiatrists before making a decision.

Several others were released in recent months when it was found they were committed illegally.

In the past, defective delinquents were committed to state institutions for indeterminate sentences.

No Major Tax Cuts in 1954 Says Abbott

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Thursday night washed out hope of any major tax cuts in 1954, and left open the possibility of substantial cuts in 1955 "and later."

By that time, if world tensions ease, the government may also be in a position to resume paring the national debt, he added in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association.

"I cannot forecast what our economic situation will be a year over the next three to five years," he said. "If we have to maintain our present rate and scale of preparedness, further tax reductions can only come from further growth in total output and efficiency.

"If, as we all hope, real progress can be made in reducing world tensions, some real reductions in defence corps could come out of our war-time effort. If any, in 1954—but perhaps in 1955 and later."

Production Minister Howe, in a brief address, said he felt that Canada is now in a position to meet any defence problems that may arise.

Defence Minister Claxton said the satellite countries appeared to have changed their tactics, though not their unalterable design. He believed the change resulted from the defence efforts of the freedom-loving countries. Canada's effort obliged countries to

"Defence is like fire insurance," Mr. Claxton said. "You shouldn't cut off the policy just because you haven't had a fire."

Shipments of Cheese Bought By Britain Will Start Soon

Starry Talent Features Variety Stage Show

What appears to be the starriest array of vaudeville talent ever to appear on a Belleville stage has been booked for the big Variety Stage and Screen Show scheduled for the McCarthy Theatre on Sunday, November 1 starting at nine p.m.

The Bay of Quinte Theatre Managers' Association has left no stone unturned to make this event one of the biggest entertainment offerings seen here in years. In addition to the colorful stage talent there will be the showing of the first run motion picture "Cruising Down the River" which stars Dick Haymes, well-known screen, radio and television songster, Audrey Totter and Billy Daniels both big names in motion picture circles.

The stage show will be given all out-of-town acts, the most of them coming from the Toronto theatre circuits. The program is as variable as it is entertaining and not the least feature is the personable Monte Hall, well-known master-of-ceremonies for the radio show "Who Am I?" who will emcee the affair.

Supporting the all star stage show are Leo Moss, famed accordionist; Tony the Troubadour of the CKCO's greatest attraction; Dorothy Steadman, beautiful dancing star who is one of Canada's best known magicians, who takes his audience by storm wherever he goes; Libby Morris, talented young comedienne and Barry Phillips, whose unique singing artistry rates him tops.

Messrs. George Forbin (Belle) Hall-Fawcett (McCarthy) and Larry Buck (Capitol) and their counterparts in Trenton, Picton, and Napanee, are confident that the show will be the most fastidious show-goer. And they are confident that the populace of the bay and district will show its appreciation with a packed house on November 1.

The proceeds go to Variety Village, a school for crippled boys and girls outskirts of Toronto. The money is used to assist these handicapped youngsters to equip themselves so they can be upright self-supporting citizens. What worthier cause than that?

Admission to the show is by "invitation" only. Of course a number of invitations are available for the asking for your invitation, so be generous.

Invitations are available at all the theatres in the city, Picton, Trenton and Napanee.

Initial shipments of the ten million pounds of cheese which the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board has contracted to sell to Britain will commence almost immediately, it was stated yesterday by C. H. Heath, secretary of the cheese producers' association.

Mr. W. C. Coon, president of the association, and R. Hart, manager of the association cold storage in Belleville were in Montreal Thursday making arrangements for shipments of the cheese.

Commenting on the cheese contract Mr. Coon said in a press release that the 1953 cheese sale of the Ontario cheese is being financed by the cheese producers of Ontario through amendments to the regulations under their marketing scheme, which was first approved by the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board.

Related to Surplus

Continuing Mr. Coon said that the stocks of the 1953 cheese on hand, plus the carry-over of cheese manufactured in 1952, together with the increased number of milking cows on Ontario farms had pointed to a large production at the opening of the 1954 dairy season.

The current sale of ten million pounds will materially relieve this situation and at the same time will leave more than normal domestic stockings of cheese on hand next spring."

At a meeting on the negotiating committee held in Montreal October 16th, it was the unanimous opinion of the representatives of both the cheese producers and cheese buyers that an export outlet was desirable at the same time that meeting a minimum price of 31 cents per pound at the factory with the usual differentials for under grade were unanimously agreed upon.

Committee Members

Members of the committee were W. O. Coon, Elgin; A. Hicks, Kinburn; H. Arnold, Campbellford; R. Kelso, Belleville; D. Hunt, Dorchester, representing the producers, and H. Wright, Montreal; K. H. Clive, Montreal; S. L. Fox, Belleville; F. E. Wiggins, Toronto, and G. Henry Ingersoll, representing the cheese buyers.

Mr. Coon noted that at the recent cheese conference in Belleville it was concluded that dairy surpluses in Ontario could be best handled in the form of cheese exports and that the cost of such exports should be borne by the entire dairy industry of the province. He went on to point out that while the present emergency had to be met by the cheese producers alone it was hoped the example would set a pattern whereby the entire dairy industry could organize itself as a single body and handle its own dairying problems.

Meanwhile the Ontario cheese industry has been passing through chaotic conditions for the past two years. This has been the dairy period since Confederation in which Ontario cheese could not been exported in quantity to Great Britain.

According to Mr. Coon arrangements have been completed whereby Australian cheese, which delivered cheese to the Marketing Board during the past five months will be paid in full on the basis of the guaranteed 30 cents per pound price for No. 1 grade effective Nov. 1st, less actual carrying charges by that date.

Quinte Sea Cadets Awarded New Seldon Sailing Trophy

Trim in their "round rig" members of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps stood proudly at attention in "HMCS Quinte" last night and saw two of their company presented with the Seldon Trophy emblematic of the dinghy sailing championship of the corps.

Before a crowd of proud parents, Navy League officials and others, Leading Cadet Brian Shaw and P. Brown; became the first winners of the beautiful Harold Seldon Trophy for their exploits aboard the small sailing craft in the annual regatta this year. Bradshaw and Brown, sailing the new "Pal" dinghies, three of which were presented to the corps last spring by three city business men, won seven of their eight scheduled races.

The trophy displays three small sailing craft and a chevron bearing well over to the breeze, superimposed on a background of dark shining wood. Chrome plaques for engraving of the names of winners adorn the pedestal.

The presentation was made by Mr. Harold Seldon, well-known city druggist and yachtsman.

"I have had great pleasure watching the cadets sailing their craft" he said. "And I foresee that a trophy should be awarded, perhaps in Belleville, to the proud of the officers of the Corps for the fine job they are doing in training their men. There is a movement afoot in the Yacht Clubs here to form a Junior membership and we hope to see you over there soon."

Better Sailors

Captain J. Watson of the Navy League addressed the corps saying he was proud to be able to say that the boys were better sailors, but not from a navy viewpoint. He mentioned the fact that the three dinghies had been presented to the corps and he suggested the hope that next year would see six of these craft on hand.

He paid tribute to Mr. Seldon for his generous gesture in donating the trophy and outlined the rules governing the winners. The corps, he pointed out had several promising youngsters who had done remarkably well in sailing.

"We are proud to have men of Mr. Seldon's calibre in Belleville" he said.

Lieut. Harry MacKenzie, officer commanding the corp formally welcomed guests and introduced Dr. Jack Gaitskell, chairman of the Belleville branch of the Navy League, Captain Watson, and Chairman of the Sea Cadet Corps committee. Inspector A. McDougall of the Ontario Provincial Police and others.

The corps drawn smartly up in three divisions executed their manoeuvres "aboard ship" with the precision of veterans.

Lieut. E. A. Prescott RCN of Toronto inspected the corps and paid tribute to their appearance, deportment and steadiness on parade.

Eleven Sworn in

A feature of the evening was the "swearing-in" of eleven new entries to the corps. Lieut. MacKenzie officiated and later the "Cadet Oath" were addressed briefly by Lieut. Prescott.

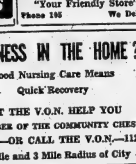
"I would like to remind you," he said, "that you have just joined one of the finest organizations in the world where discipline is the keyword. You have just made 6,500 chums, for every sea cadet in Canada is now a chum of yours. You will never lack for friends.

"The way up the ladder means a lot of study and hard work", Lieut. Prescott told the new cadets. "And it will be the same kind of boy of which Canada will be proud. The Royal Canadian Navy now has a definite interest in you but not from a recruiting point. If in the years you see fit to join the service then we will do all we can to help you. We shall be interested to hear of the many you men of which Belleville and Canada will be proud."

Included in the new cadets were Charles McCormick, John Thomas, Edward Simmons, William Radway, John Keith Rathwell, Robert F. Markle, Arthur M. Philips, Robert Wilson, Donald Ross, William Le Surf and Danny S. Hall.

The new addition to the corps brings its strength to 63.

Tribute Paid



Following the inspection and presentation, the cadets treated their guests to "cokes" made available through the generosity of the Coca Cola Company and its branch manager, Aubrey Carr. Parents and others were taken on a tour of the "ship" by proud cadet offspring and the hardest questions were heard on the spic and span "Navy" appearance.

Officers of the corps are besides Lieut. MacKenzie, executive officer Lieut. Watson and Sub-Lieutenant E. Richards and N. Judge. The acting cadet petty officer is Slim Palandrow.

Col. P. H. Wills, who has always had a keen interest in the sea cadet work and especial interest in the Quinte Corps arrived yesterday through the evening and added his tribute to the others.

Members of the corps with their officers and smart drum and trumpet band were paid collation by the Navy League ladies Monday where they took part in special observances and assisted in collecting in "Navy Week." The trim natty appearance of the cadets, the lively rhythm of the band, their precision-like marching drew a generous round of applause from spectators alike. A Royal Canadian Navy band was present and the Quinte Corps was one of the best he had seen, and, he added, "I have seen a lot of them across Canada."

IN MEMORIAM

HAGERMAN. — In loving memory of our dear sister Catherine Hagerman, who passed away October 23rd, 1947.
Catherine Hagerman, who passed away so suddenly,
In a year and silent graveyard
Where the wild flowers grow,
Where the birds sing sweetly
In her cold and silent grave.
The flowers we put round her
She raised her hand to bone.
Saying, "Lord, I'm coming home
That the trust is done
Now I'm in a quarter mother,
Where I'll be with you."
And He may bless our lonely home,
And keep us safe from harm,
And pray that God may give us
Strength to bear.
To hear your loving voice again
Would be joy beyond compare.
Sadly missed by husband Harold and son Carl, Gray, grandchildren Billy, Bobby, Barbara Gray. 033

HARVEY. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Clarice Hilda, who passed away October 23rd, 1947.
Years have passed since I parted from you,
Time cannot change them it's true;
Years that memory can never undo
My loving thoughts are with you.
Sadly missed by husband Herbert. 033

SEMARK. — In loving memory of a dear father, Charles Semark, who passed away October 24th, 1947.
One year has passed since we parted,
One year has been watching over us;
One year of sorrow and heartache,
One year of loving mother.
One year we have missed you,
One year we have cried,
One year when left alone,
Gone within those gates ajar,
Where angels take you in their arms.
Mary, Harry and family.

SEMARK. — In memory of a dear father, Charles Semark, who passed away October 24th, 1947.
We cannot, Lord, thy purpose see,
But all is well that's done by Thee.

Bank Officials Fled to Ontario With Loot in Tire

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP)—Two bank officials pleaded guilty here yesterday to stealing out the vault of the only bank in little New Market and speeding to Canada with $103,972 crammed in a slit inner tube.

Immediately after their arraignment in federal district court, Judge John Paul sentenced Theodore Roosevelt Beahm, 58, to a total of eight years in prison and Cor. Kemper, 35, to 12 years in prison.

Beahm, formerly was mayor of New Market and was cashier and executive vice-president at the Citizens National Bank in the Shenandoah valley community, Simpson, a director in the bank, took out bankruptcy papers last month.

Charles Simpson, 31, a nephew of the former director, pleaded guilty to charges of being an accessory and was sentenced to 3½ years in prison for helping transport the stolen money.

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said only $10,320 of the funds, which totalled $54,500 in cash, had been recovered.

Wage Scales at County Jails Scandalous Say Committee Members

The scale of wages at county jails is "utterly scandalous" according to the select legislative committee on reform institutions, members of which met in Belleville, Thursday afternoon, to inspect the local jail and to hear complaints.

Jailor Robert Scott told the committee that jail employees here were satisfied about everything except wages. He said the present wage for turnkey was $1,650 per year, with annual increases for three years bringing this up to $1,950. Hastings county paid a cost-of-living bonus of $300 per year to its jail employees.

Prince Edward county Sheriff Herb J. Colliver and Sheriff H. Webster for the county of Lennox and Addington, had the same complaint, noting that the low wages scale made it difficult to get suitable employees.

Jailor Scott said qualifications for turnkeys called for high school education, but young men of this calibre were "just not interested."

Officials Complimented

Hastings county jail officials were highly complimented by W. J. Stewart, Q.C., Peterboro, Parkdale, acting as committee chairman. Mr. Stewart said that the cleanliness of the Belleville jail and the fine maintenance and upkeep reflected the efficiency of the jailor and his employees. He said there was no evidence of discord among the prisoners.

Mr. Stewart said the committee on reform institutions, has been named to inspect jails, inquire into their operations, and study and spiritual advisement given prisoners. He assured the committee was not trying to make a Utopia for prisoners, but the old order of locking the prisoner up and throwing the key away was penalty.

Probation Thought Of

Mr. Stewart noted that a great deal of consideration was being given to the possibility of probation as a means of reducing crime, and that it had the feeling that many offenders could be reformed before they went to jail if effective probation could be realized. "This was an old custom in England," he said.

Committee members indicated that increased wages for jail employees was left pretty much up to county councils. Where councils saw fit to increase wages the department was ready to go along and pay its share of the increase.

Also consideration was being given to bringing all county and district jails under one provincial department, which would give jail employees the opportunity of advancement.

Questions Asked

Questions relating to the discharge of jail inmates, the collection of fines and the facilities provided for interviews with prisoners by counsel or solicitors, and the facilities for holding religious services, were asked by the committee.

Bruce Hennessy, representing the Salvation Army said a chapel and a room, where interviews could be had with prisoners was badly needed at Belleville jail. Such interviews were now held in the jailer's office.

Another need at the Belleville jail was detention quarters for juveniles. Warden John A. Kingston said that such detention quarters were now being provided in the basement of the jailer's residence.

Mr. Humphreys wondered if something could not be done to prevent certain habituals from considering the county jail as their home. He said that these men will not work and had no intention of working. When they got out of jail they looked for as many handouts as they could get and when scrounging was exhausted did something to get back into jail.

Enjoy Jail Comforts

"They seem to enjoy the good food and comforts of jail," he said. "If things were a bit tougher they might not be so keen to come back."

Bradley C. Anderson, Hastings county judge, agreed that probation was a wonderful field, but the first requirement was to make certain that probation was effective. As an ex-local councillor he could be satisfied that probation meant something he would like to see increased probation. This, however, would require a great deal of work in the part of probation officers.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan agreed that instalment paying on fines would give offenders an opportunity of paying when they did not have the money immediately available. "Of course," he said, "if they then failed to pay they would have to serve their penalty."

He said the effect of instalment paying of fines was quite prevalent in Belleville courts now. This was done in many instances through enlargement of court proceedings.

Arrears Morbid Curosity.

Committee member William Grummett, M.P.P. for South Ontario, asked the opinions of the three sheriffs present regarding a central place for hangings. He said that in his opinion hangings aroused a morbid curiosity that was a detriment to the community. Also few county jails had permanent gallows and there so many instances were erected where they could be seen from other buildings.

Sheriff Holmes said that unfortunately hangings could be carried out more efficiently at a central place than in county jails. He did not know, however, whether there would be the same deterrent value if a central place for hanging was chosen.

Sheriff Colliver noted that such a question went further than personal thought, while the Kingston sheriff said it would be difficult to answer. Both agreed, however, they would prefer a central place for executions.

Committee Members

Members of the elect committee on Ontario Institutions included W. J. Stewart, Peter Manley, Grace Hargrave, Rev. A. W. Downer, Dufferin-Simcoe; James Dempsey, South Renfrew and William Grummett, South Cochrane, Hon. William Foote, Y.C., Minister of Reform Institutions, did not come to Belleville, having been called back to Toronto.

W. E. Sandercock, M.L.A. for West Hastings, and Norris Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward county, attended the meeting. Others who met the committee included Magistrate T. Y. Wills and County Clerk-Treasurer Eric D. Smye.

FAMILY COURT WORK IMPORTANT

The Ontario Journal recently suggested, perhaps half in jest, that the Supreme Court of Canada could use the services of a public relations counsel, to adequately explain decisions to the Canadian public.

The Supreme Court's rulings are of vital concern to all Canadians. Still one might be pardoned for doubting that a public relations man would be influential in moulding the minds of the future than that done by a vastly different type of court whose decisions, also, are perhaps not as well publicized as might be desired. We refer to the family courts in this province, which now number some thirty.

Hastings and Prince Edward counties are both fortunate enough—or perhaps we should rather say far-sighted enough—to possess courts of this type. In this they are ahead of approximately half the province. In the past the procedure has been for the establishment of such courts to originate from local authorities and citizens, with part of the cost of their operation being met by the municipalities so served. There is good reason to believe, however, that provincial authorities envision the day when the family court system will be universal and when the costs of the operation of this system will be borne by the province. It is to be hoped that this day is not far distant.

The Family Court of the County of Hastings and City of Belleville, in fact including Trenton, is now in its fourth year of operation. The distinctive feature of such courts is that they aim primarily at prevention rather than cure or punishment. Their purpose is the help of the erring. In a certain sense one might say that they seek to take a familiar device, suspended sentences, an effective procedure by providing supervision during probationary term.

Judge of the Family Court here is Judge J. C. Anderson, who hears juvenile cases. The full-time probation officer is Mrs. Isabel Sanderson. The full-time probation officer, now paid by the province, is D. I. MacKinnon, who came here from Ottawa on February 1, 1950. There are other probation officers who are more closely connected with the Children's Aid Society, with which the Family Court co-operates in much of its work. In Prince Edward County this probation officer is Violet Anglin, is also superintendent of the Children's Aid Society.

The fact that the general public knows comparatively little of the work of the family court is one measure of its effectiveness. Where such courts do not exist the cases which come before it are heard by magistrates, either in juvenile court rooms or in police courts. Children are barred from juvenile courts and the press is forbidden to print the names of defendants. Domestic cases, however, when they are tried in police court are theoretically open to the public although the presiding magistrate has the power to clear the court. Even where this is done, the atmosphere differs greatly from that of a family court, where the hearing is private and public and press are excluded. The lack of publicity makes it much easier for the court to attempt reconciliation and to prevent family ties from being permanently broken.

Donald S. MacKinnon has found that his work as probation officer has been steadily increasing since his appointment in 1950, and he believes that the time should be soon when the court will be compelled to employ a full-time assistant. Should the court has failed in its task or that, in spite of its efforts, the incidence of domestic strife and juvenile delinquency is not declining in this district. Rather it is the conviction that the value of the court is being more fully appreciated. Judge Anderson states that police officials are referring to the court cases of a type to which they would, in all probability, not have laid charges under the old regime. The court and its probation officer have thus been able to head off many cases which otherwise would have started some youngster on the road to a life of crime.

Mr. MacKinnon says that three-quarters of his time is spent on domestic cases. As for juvenile cases he finds that, ideally, the maximum number that can be handled is 30, the bulk of them are not the result of broken homes. It is true that a broken family is a factor in many juvenile delinquency cases, but it is not true to say that it is the primary cause of delinquency. One pleasing feature of the work locally has been the comparatively small number of repeaters.

Still, the effectiveness of the court has not yet attained a peak where officials can afford to be complacent. Mr. MacKinnon indicated a point where improvement is needed, rather than deplore, a visit from the probation officer," says Judge Anderson. He believes that there should be closer liaison between the court and the educational and vocational guidance officials, on the one hand, and the family court's probation officer, on the other hand. If parents and teachers would seek the assistance of the probation officer the latter's trained knowledge of children or problems might result in assisting many juveniles long before their conduct brought them into trouble with the police.

If and when the family court system is extended to all of Ontario, at least 200 officers will be needed for probation work of all kinds in this province requiring training. Such officers either have a degree in social service work or five years' practical experience in such work. The supply of qualified probation officers is thus limited. The cost of training such men and women, and of later employing them, would, however, be money very well spent if it reduced the population of our jails, reformatories and penitentiaries. The probation system in Ontario is being patterned after that used in England, with marked success, and if necessary personnel could doubtless be obtained from that country.

AUTUMN

The beauty of the Autumn must
Be difficult to catch,
That exquisite art of color brush
And canvas cannot match.

Men and women, old and weary,
Display below the mark of Years.
But a tree in late October in its finest robe appears.

Every lovely thing in nature
Seems delighted old to Grow,
That its task has been accomplished it is very proud to show.

Wind and tempest may have scarred it, but the time has come to rest.
For the last few days permitted in its finest it is dressed.

We grow weary and we show it and our troubles, great and small,
But it still has color in its
and our best we've tried to
We may also through life's autumn wear a touch of splendor, too.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

OCTOBER 23, 1923

The South End Athletic Club has commenced the construction of a new club house at the corner of St. Paul and South Front Streets. The building will be of frame construction, 31 feet by 36 feet and the job will be done by the volunteer labor of the members. The size of the interior of the building will afford plenty of room for a regulation boxing ring. Social gatherings will also be held in the club house. For some time the club has carried on its activities in the club rooms of the Wharf Street Bathing Club.

The Rev. Stanley E. Morton, rector of Trinity Anglican Church, Brockville, has been appointed Rural Dean of Leeds by the Most Rev. John Pearson, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, to succeed Rev. Canon Tasker, now of Kingston. Rural Dean Morton was at one time the incumbent of Ameliasburg Parish, Prince Edward County.

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Thompson, well-known and popular residents of Marlbo, observed the 50th anniversary of their wedding on October 19th. There was a very happy gathering of relatives and friends present on the occasion.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The true and secret purpose of advertising art may be to form everybody that anybody can paint, play music, sculpture and compose in any of the arts. Who can look at the average contemporary abstract painting and not say: "I could do that myself"? CBC had a very distinguished musician and composer on hand on Wednesday days in succession, playing some of his recent compositions. In every instance the effect was ludicrous. From upstairs, one member of the family who was trying to study shouted down in all seriousness: "Get that man out!" And he had to come downstairs and see for himself that it was not the cat walking on the piano keyboard. My own impression was that Tommy Tweed, the actor with the whiskers, was perpetrating a hoax on the listening Wednesday night program. And I had to verify from CBC its self that the performer was indeed one of the foremost composers and artists in the contemporary field of music. But for the full period of the program, the gentleman did one finger symbolical pieces that sounded to the trained ear of the listener like idle, formless and random poking at the keys. I say trained ear deliberately because now nothing of ears are trained to expect certain sounds from certain persons disagree with him.

Peanut Glut Poses Problem

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

Peanut vendors may have been lying down on the job, public authorities may be changing—or something. At any rate there are too many peanuts around these days, at 10c a bag.

The situation is now right down to earth. Next year's acreage is being allotted by the department of agriculture at approximately figure allowable, and peanut growers will have 15 per cent fewer of their stocks continued for the next three years.

Maybe the eye of the peanut doesn't have an angle wide enough to see the possibilities.

Does anybody lift a shell and exclaim "Here's how"? Have you ever heard a radio commercial plugging what peanuts will do for you? Or a hurry shout how much chlorophyll is captured and held inside the nut? Or how delicious peanut oil might be on a salad, or what wonders it might work with the automobile? Or how peanuts are made into?

Or how well peanut butter will hold in flales teeth?

The goobers have simply been clumbered underground for so long that they've lost their market to foreign competition, other than antibiotics and demand can keep up. Besides, who expects to beat a shell game.

Vast Kingdom Of the Mind

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

In these days, when the repeated, and successful, attempt of Communism is directed consistently towards the lengthening of the years of man's life, it is somewhat surprising to find a member of the faculty of Medical University suggesting that "a short but enjoyable life can sometimes be better than a long one."

Dr. Segall was speaking of courses, in what might be regarded as a rather limited field; he was addressing the annual meeting of the Medical Society of the Province of Quebec on the subject of the Rehabilitation of the Cardiac Patient. His theory, Hence the patient, which he envisaged, the rest of a map in whom some form of physical disability prevents the real alternative—of a comparatively few years of normally full activity as against a long span of years of carefully reduced endeavor, might well be preferable as the extreme example.

Be that as it may, the argument appears to assume that the only guarantee of enjoyment in life lies in physical activity. Such a conclusion is the inevitable lot of the life in which such physical activity is precluded. If this is a true reading of the argument, then it seems a pity that the mental activity which is all too prevalent in these times, and the result of a philosophy which has been calling for "activism" is not doing more days the evil, only by immersing ourselves more and more deeply in the materialistic activities of our society—can we really live. The thinker, the philosopher, the idealist—these are no more than half alive. They live in ivory towers, divorced from the realities of life, cut off from the life-giving stream of the world's business in which alone human life can be made.

Beyond doubt there is much that is true and valuable in the ideas of activism, but the implication of the full life; the best of Christian philosophy has always insisted that the full life consists in that "faith without works is dead." But the implication of the value of the works to the exclusion of the more contemplative side of life, to insist that only in action, rather than in contemplation, can truth be found—that is grossly to underestimate both the powers and the pleasure of the mind.

Indeed, even within the circle of those of whom Dr. Segall was known as music. Music has a far vaster public than ever before in its history, and it has its rights, surely.

When the professor's recital was over, I went to our piano, announced, a mysterious and formless, and then one-fingered around the keyboard in what seemed to me as good a performance as the professor's. My family applauded me and remarked: "You should be grateful to the professor for trying to show you you are perfectly able to play the piano."

Chopsticks having been my sole repertoire after half a century, all I have to do now is find the right intellectual company, and launch into a new and wonderful career. Should we stop beefing about contemporary art in all its forms, and just go ahead with musical instruments, paints, canvas, wire, plaster and sculpture? Is there a career and a temporary art: "It is better to anything than nothing?"

Cats' Marriage Bureau Opens

(Stratford Expositor)

On the heels of the opening of Dublin's first psychiatric clinic for dogs, on which we recently made some observations, comes another report that London now has a matrimonial agency for cats.

We considered a dog-cat love novation when two women, a few years ago, started a marriage bureau for canines, but the exclusive Bond Street. Perhaps it was the latter's high-class image they built up that inspired the establishment of an agency devoted solely to the mating of cats.

On first consideration, such a project would appear superfluous because of all animals the cat is the most capable of attending to its own matrimonial affairs, its efficiency at this is attested by the fact that, however scarce the family, drowning proliferations of surplus kittens appear each spring.

Nor has anyone so far reported any decline in the number of Valentines, which are received by thousands of toms, and, it may be, Dicks and Harrys, that preround fill the damp night air from Land's End to John O'Groats.

And every backyard fence is still a rendezvous for amorous cats where couples exchange meows.

But there is a serious purpose behind the founding of this new enterprise. It seems that among the many strange people to be found in Britain is the International Association of Owners of Abyssinian Cats of a select coterie or only 40 people.

Not for them the mongrel breed. Their pets are descended from the sacred cats of Egypt. They are cats that it was death for a human being to injure or destroy. Hence the sale of kittens at prices of new-blood from Abyssinia, Siam, Singapore and Burma.

Hence the idea of making it easier for them to mate with their own kind by bringing them together. Which is to follow the whose motto, for all we know, might be "Sans purr et sans reproche."

Details on how the bureau will endeavor to tackle its task in a little imagination can fill the gap, but we understand that it has a list of these aristocratic kinsfolk, a sort-of Burke's Peerage or Who's Who. When clients are suited or, as one might put it, matched, the next thing to do is to announce the fact in The Times, whereupon there is a wedding, body, we thinks he is, advertises the fact that he is about to consider matrimony. The bureau will also as notice to other owners of Abyssinians that wedding gifts are in order.

No doubt this will give rise to the usual gossip-column chat about the bride and what she rates, and as in human affairs of this sort, there will be a lot of duplication of gifts such as pairs of candlesticks and showers entitling holder to a month's free groceries, free gasoline, pens, no barometers, bedside lamps or dolls.

And in case this catches the eye of any Abyssinian cat we may mention that the Stratford Zoo in New York has a stunning assortment of cat toys, such as ultra-turtle-neck sweaters (measure the cat first) and bowls of bonbons that give you a dry bath, and oh, lap of luxury, divans with lace-trimmed cat hair pillows, reserving that serve both as bed and breakfast and have built-in scratch-off drafts. Sorry, no nursery furniture, not even a cat's cradle.

presumably speaking, those to whom disease has brought a limitation of physical activity, there are many cases known to all to whom the "full life" has proved to be the salvation of the mind. And there is trouble may ever be that so many of us are today so implicated in the business of getting and spending that we are in danger of losing sight and cognizance of the values of contemplation. And in so doing we trade the vast kingdom of the mind—with all its "realms of gold"—for the mess of pottage of petty affairs.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH CASTS OUT FEAR

Nothing can torment us more than uncertainty. When the future is a blank, when the future is so confused that we cannot see anything about it except uncertainty, then fear takes over the driver's seat, and terrorizes us. Fear does not get even up to be a neurotic, frustrated, social problem. The woman uncertain of her husband's love, the Christian uncertain of his faith—these are in torment.

Linger for a moment on that latter item—the uncertainty of a Christian's daily faith. Well, he might as well face the fact that the deepest trials in Christian faith can never be demonstrated as the multiplication table can be demonstrated. The great answer to religion have to be received on faith, they come received on faith, they become the great inspiration for lives—moorings to tie to, well-charted channels, compass points, stars which can be depended upon through the years.

Life in its essence—is uncertain. But in the deepest sense of the word, it is sure. For those things everything worth while. But we don't like to live by certain if we have faith.

How faith is the giving of substance to things hoped for.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

HOW TO HAVE YOUR TEETH

Dr. Brady

In the years I have been contributing this column, which I would remind readers, editors, physicians and other people in the profession, is a health column, not a medical one, I have harped incessantly on the care of the teeth.

If you are children have been chided to think that means brushing the teeth with somebody's magic soap, I'm sorry for you.

I care for my teeth, but I waste no time or money brushing 'em.

From study, theory, observation and personal experience I am convinced beyond question that proper care of the teeth is essential for good looks, good digestion, good health, with consequent longevity or the nearest approach to these that is possible.

By proper care of the teeth I mean three things, namely, (1) good nutrition in infancy, childhood and maturity; (2) normal use of the teeth for their natural food (unrefined food); and (3) regular examination and prophylactic or corrective treatment of any decay or other defects the dentist may find. Failure in any of these three essentials, and most millions of child-minded Americans just don't know enough to follow it, and they are not likely to learn to take proper care of their teeth as long as the dentists bemuse themselves and their patients with the backster's slogan "A clean tooth never decays."

A member of the faculty of Harvard School of Dentistry, incisive difficiently condemned so much in a popular magazine recently. Although the slogan is more than 50 years old he observed that the decay of the teeth in the increase "despite a daily concern of vigorous brushing." However, there is no such thing as a clean tooth or a person who gets normally always has some germs and food particles in his mouth, on and between his teeth, no matter how often he brushes.

Well, now, we begins to hope that maybe somebody at Harvard has seen the light. But not for long. The faculty man hastens to mollify the wrath of you know whom by appending this weasel words: "The most that can be said" (good grief, what man must be afraid of himself) "is that if we (we ultrastrained Yankee pioneers) did not clean our teeth they would be worse than they are."

You might just as well have let the children go on brushing their teeth as to have let the truth by the way approved by the dentists of Harvard School of Dentistry.

I'm sorry, but I must mention here once more that the people of Trinidad, an island off the coast of, 1940-1950, had the best teeth in the world, civilized or uncivilized, had no use for toothbrushes or dentifrices of any kind, had no use for dentists, of any authority on dental hygiene find a people whose sound teeth can be ascribed even partly to tooth-brushing!

Meteorological Reactionaries

(New York Times)

There is the fellow—call him the meteorological reactionary—who always seems to believe it when the weather changes. You remember him coming home at night, the perspiration rolling off of his face, and announcing that it was hot. Or you remember him coming home at night, the perspiration rolling off of his face, and announcing that it was cold.

Somewhere in the middle of July his wife, a good soul who firmly believes in the freedom of the individual, especially as far as taste in clothes goes, suggests that maybe he uncover his cottons and tropicals. Whereupon, all she explained, was upon them. From then on everything went fine. Especially a neat way he has of waiting for color, he wore the season before last. Then he wore the season before that. Then he put on his office during the sartorial peace in his office during the sartorial August. Sometimes. Bright cotton ties and paper-bib linens.

Not that now! You see him coming home evenings; an anachronism of unexpected, the quick fall air freely blowing through his keenly-pressed open-weave suit and his natty sandals and his faithful corpuse is thinking of converting him to winter. Why, the baby sister sway, his come-home klas is so icy, And when he finally puts in his appearance at supper again you'll know that fall really means business.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOLDEN SILENCE

Yes, it is absolutely true that "silence is golden." I have been to New York City, Chicago, or Boston, to find it. It is not in those. But it will be found in the hills, the valleys, along streams, at the seashore, in the forest, or up on a mountain top, and you won't have to dig for it. It will be all about you, and you will drink of it as from a flowing natural spring.

With silence you will be aware of a multitude of things which otherwise would be of no notice. In silence we gather wisdom, which is itself a wealth. Our reflexes are alert with silence about us. In all our relationships it is for silence who is the most interesting, and the one most worth watching. Not a single expression may have more than a hint, but it will be about the long talk of another in which nothing but ignorance is revealed.

Silences are our sincerest and best thoughts created. In silence are our prayers uttered from the heart. We are closest to ourselves when alone and in some silent place. If we are out in nature we have a community of silence, and we become akin to it. The whole thinking of a great book come to life as we read it in silence. Silence

Girl Guides And Brownie News

The local Girl Guide Association is planning to have a uniform exchange, which will be a new venture, designed to be helpful to the leaders and parents of Brownies and Guides. All Guides and Brownies, and also ex-Guides are invited to participate. Anyone having uniforms no longer in use, or outgrown may either donate or sell them at the exchange, and if they wish, purchase the required size.

It is requested to securely tag the individual garments with the following information: Name, and address, the size of the garment and the price. The uniforms may be left at the home of Mrs. R. D. Arnott, 197 Albert Street before November 7th. The exchange and sale of the uniforms will be Saturday morning, November 7th at the Salvation Army Citadel, Dundas Street. Girl Guide Division Camp.

A happy and successful Guide Camp was held this year at Quinmo-Lac on Moira Lake from August 9th to 18th with the following officers and assistants in charge:

Staff camp commandant, Mrs. Samuels; assistant camp commandant, Mrs. Belanger; quartermaster, Mrs. Moult; nurse, Mrs. Arbic; cook, Mrs. Lewis; swimming instructor, Miss Frances Fiskin; crafts, Miss Joyce Miles, assisted by Miss S. Smith, Miss Barbara Payne and a Gold Cord Guide, Miss Marilyn Winder, of Trenton.

Whilst many badges of all kinds were worked for, and gained, there was also lots of fun and games, swimming being the favorite. The highlight of the Camp was a grand fancy dress parade which took place just prior to the last "camp Fire" of the holiday. The costumes were amazing in their skill and originality, and the finished results were highly creditable considering the Guides had made them out of practically nothing, just the odd bit of necessary camp.

The little concert was much enjoyed by everyone, and as all sat in the glow of that final Camp Fire, they felt that the memories of the happy comradeship would always linger. All had indeed worked well and played well, made new friends and gained greater knowledge, and were better guides for having been to Camp.

Awards — Badges.

Some of the awards and badges gained are as follows: best all-round camper, Marilyn Elliot; best cabin patrol leaders, Sally Bateman and Elizabeth Johnson. Ling Langeland, a thorough and hard working little Guide from Madoc, and Roberta McDonald, the youngest and smallest Camper, (such a help around the kitchen as quartermaster), tied as being the most adaptable and helpful Campers. Swimming Exams.

The following Guides passed the Red Cross swimming and water safety examinations: beginners, Rose Ann Meehan, Jacqueline Siring, Marlene Adams, Betty Lough, and Sharon Tinkess; junior, Mary Nicholson, Judy Linton, Marilyn Elliot, Barbara Woodbeck, Pat Fraser, Ling Langeland, Sally Fox and Beverley Holmes; intermediate, Katharine Belanger, Marcia Langeland, Vicky Armstrong, Geraldine Thomas; senior, Ruth Rowbottom, and Jane Hughes.

Badges.

Twenty-eight Guides passed second class, first aid and bedmaking; 19 Guides passed tests for nature Badge; 21 Guides passed tests for fire badge; 15 Guides passed test for trail badge; 3 Guides passed first class; 8 Guides, proficiency swimmers, stalkers and pioneers.

Gloucesters' Colonel Given Victoria Cross

LONDON (Reuters) — Lt.-Col. James Carne, leader of the "Glorious Gloucesters" during the regiment's Imjim river battle in Korea in 1951, has been awarded the Victoria Cross, it was announced today.

The only Commonwealth soldier to receive Britain's highest award for valor during the Korean war, Carne returned home only this month after having been freed by the Communists in the prisoner exchange.

Maj. Kenneth Muir and Pte. William Speakman earlier won VCs during the Korean fighting.

Carne, 47, will receive the medal from the Queen at an investiture in Buckingham Palace Tuesday. The Queen will also present him with the Distinguished Service order which he won for previous Korean service.

The citation accompanying the VC award, released by the war office today, said he "showed powers of leadership which can seldom have been surpassed in the history of our army."

Leadership Outstanding

He inspired his men to "fight beyond the normal limits of human endurance in spite of overwhelming odds and ever-increasing casualties of ammunition and of water."

Carne was in command of the 1st Battalion of the Gloucestershire Regiment when it came under heavy Chinese Communist attack from April 22 to April 25, 1951.

"During the 24th and 25th the battalion was completely cut off from the rest of the brigade, but remained a fighting entity in face of almost continual onslaughts from an enemy who were determined at all costs and regardless of casualties to overrun it," the citation said.

Disregarded Safety

"Throughout the entire engagement Lt.-Col. Carne, showing a complete disregard for his own safety, moved among the whole battalion under very heavy mortar and small arms fire inspiring the utmost confidence and the will to resist amongst his troops. . . .

"When at last it was apparent that the battalion would not be relieved, and on orders from higher authority, he organized his battalion into small officer-led parties who then broke out while he himself, in charge of a small party, fought on but was captured within 24 hours."

About 40 men of the entire battalion returned safely to the lines. Another 77 came home from imprisonment with their leader.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Elmer Vivian, 2nd Theatre, received word that Mrs. Florence Segar-Chase, of St. Paul, Minn., formerly of Belleville, died on September 27, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ethel Kidd.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mr. R. H. Elliott of the Penetang Collegiate staff, and Mrs. Elliott, Mr. Blair Ashmore of the Orillia Collegiate staff, and Mrs. Ashmore, were week-end guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Elliott, Stirling.

CAS Supt. Explains Adoption Policy

Mr. W. B. Meisenbacher, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, answered one of the puzzling questions that has come up frequently during the Goode and Chest campaign, at the recent board meeting.

"Why are more children not placed in homes for adoption and why do couples, who have signified their desire to adopt children, have to wait so long?"

The request for adoption is almost always for an infant rather than an older child. Most of the older children, therefore, under the care of the C.A.S. must be placed in temporary homes, where the foster parents often receive reimbursement from the C.A.S. A child placed with a view to permanent adoption, must be considered suitable in every aspect, such as parental background, health, religion, and where all possibility of his own parents bringing him up has been removed.

Need For Foster Homes.

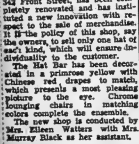
There is a great need for foster homes where people are willing to take in children for temporary periods, till the family affairs of these young people may be suitably adjusted.

The total number of children supervised by the C.A.S. in foster homes and also whom the society is legally responsible is 347; 182 of whom are in pay care. There are 425 additional children under the protection of the C.A.S. living in their own homes.

Placed In Homes.

Three children were placed in homes for adoption recently. One adoption was completed since last meeting. The adoption list now provides that an adoption can only be completed after one year's probation.

The C.A.S. is responsible for boys who are under its care, and who have not been legally adopted, until the age of 21. The responsibility for girls terminates when they are 21 years of age, or if they marry before then.



Mr. J. Fred Wilson, chairman of the board, asked the members for their opinion on the advisability of forming a small group of salaried, interested, citizens to work in co-operation with the staff of the C.A.S. on a special committee on "Child Care". Discussion resulted in a nominating committee being appointed to establish this group.

Vogue Hat Bar Institutes New Sales Policy

The Vogue Hat Bar located at 343 Front Street, has been completely renovated and has instituted a new innovation with respect to the sale of merchandise. It is the policy of this shop, say the owners, to sell only one hat of each kind, which will ensure individuality to the customer.

The Hat Bar has been decorated in a primrose yellow with Chinese red trimmings, which presents a most pleasing picture to the eye. Chrome lounging chairs in matching colors complete the ensemble.

The new shop is conducted by Mrs. Eileen Watters with Mrs. Murray Black as her assistant.

Two slender ankles in a row of buttons or, if you choose will anchor the bobby sox, strengthen the edges and keep it in shape.

Bishop K. Evans Speaks At AYPA Meeting Opens

That all delegates would start their day with prayer and gradually come to know Christ as Lord, something that His to Him Christ was the fervent hope expressed by the Very Reverend Evans, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, when he addressed the 22nd annual conference of the Ontario Provincial Council of the Anglican Young People's Association.

Bishop Evans spoke on the conference theme, "My Time For the Lord", at the impressive opening rally service last evening at St. Thomas' Church. He warmly welcomed the delegates to the convocation, and paid tribute to those of the AYPA who planned the conference with such an awareness that they chose the theme they did.

Yesterday afternoon more than 150 delegates from all parts of Ontario registered for the four-day conference, which is the first of its kind to be held in Belleville. By the week-end it is expected there will be about 250 attending.

Mad is Afraid

Man with his wonderful sciences and skills is being driven in a tempest which he cannot understand and so is afraid. But if Christ becomes Lord to him, then the fear vanishes, Bishop Evans said.

To illustrate his point Bishop Evans went to the scriptures and the story of St. Paul, at the time when he was a prisoner and was being taken to Rome. When the ship he was sailing on became caught in a terrible storm, the crew feared for their lives. But not St. Paul, for he had committed himself wholly to Christ, and knew Him as Lord.

"And this strength with God does not lie in numbers," Bishop Evans pointed out. Christ founded the world-wide church with only 12 disciples. But they radiated with his teaching and knew the Lord for life. The speaker voiced the hope that at least some in the convention would make this commitment of life to Christ.

Fear Obstacle

Continuing, he spoke of the four objectives of the AYPA, worship, work, fellowship and edification.

We all have certain rules for health we follow when we begin the day, and these rules are important to the well-being of our bodies. We ought to have rules about worship for the health of our souls, and always begin the day with prayer, he said. By doing this and making Christ number one in our work, Bishop Evans feels Christ would become more important to us. We would enjoy what we are doing while working, and clock-watchers would be fewer in number.

Fellowship and edification are emphasized at AYPA meetings. They stem from the expression of the desire to give and serve, and are most important in the church and the AYPA, the gathering was told.

None Lonely With Christ.

Bishop Evans was surprised at how lonely young people can be in the company of others. "No one felt lonely in the presence of Christ," he said. And for a simple reason, because he radiated spirit and love. The AYPA can be a vital force in the community if only it has the spirit to give.

"We live in a highly competitive age," he went on, where improvement of mind is needed. Without this improvement of mind there cannot be a very vital church. The secret of our life and power lies in the commitment to God, in the same relationship of trust that Paul had.

In conclusion, Bishop Evans told the convention to try to understand the secret of this relationship between Mr. Paul and Christ, so the AYPA members in years to come may "know the benefit of your deliberations."

Rev. Robert Mackie, provincial chaplain, of Agincourt, planned the opening service, and took charge of it. The lessons were read by Mr. Mackie and Rev. Douglas Burns, of Kingston. Also taking part in the service were Rev. W. J. Robinson, rector of St. Thomas' Church, and Ven. Archdeacon R. B. Creeggan, of Christ Church.

Reception Is Held.

Following the service a reception for visiting delegates was held in the parish hall when the convention themes were carried out in streamers of white and royal blue, colors of the AYPA.

Gerry Kilcoy of Toronto, provincial president, was master of ceremonies for the reception and introduced the following who extended words of welcome to the gathering: Mrs. Jean Jeffries, provincial secretary; Ven. Archdeacon Creeggan, on behalf of the wardens and Bishop Evans; Rev. Robert Mackie, provincial chaplain; and Ronald Lane, local convener.

Refreshments were in charge of Shirley Shaw assisted by Christ Church AYPA. In charge of various departments of the reception were Robert Macdonald, Stewart; treasurer, Bill Dack.

'Art of Public Speaking' Outlined to Canadian Club

"There is nothing mysterious about the art of public speaking," stated J. Alex Edmison, assistant principal of Queen's University, Kingston, one of Canada's most distinguished scholars, and eminent authority on crime prevention and penal reform, as he addressed the Trenton Canadian Club dinner meeting last evening in the Masonic Temple on "The So-Called Art of Public Speaking".

The art of public speaking," continued Mr. Edmison, "is as old as the hills" and recorded and tonight we shall get down to "debunking it!" There has been a great change, but the old type of lecture and the type of speaker from the old days to that of today. The old type of speaking carried a great deal of gymnastics with it; there was the waving of arms, the pounding of the desk, and many other motions, which have given place today to the conversational style, which is a variation of private speech. This is both easier on the speaker and on the listening audience.

Cures For Nervousness

The cure for nervousness is to know the simple rules, which make for a feeling of security. As an example of this "security" feeling, Mr. Edmison cited the difference between walking a plank ten feet up in the air, or walking it on the ground; the difference is the knowledge that there is ground under your feet. Another cure, is to concentrate on what you say; look at those to whom you are addressing your talk, not over their heads, nor out a distant window, face your audience, all of it, bringing all into your talk. You would talk privately to your next door neighbor.

Do not do anything which might distract your audience, such as pounding, handkerchief around your hand as if it had been severed. Strive to maintain a standing position without too much movement. Do not be too rigid, have a relaxed attitude, and make the motions of the hands convey the meaning of the words, action and not as the minister, who when reading the scripture lessons "When The Roll Call is Called up Yonder, I'll Be There," waved his arms, and pointed upward in the first part of the verse, and indiscriminately pointed downward to the "I'll Be There" portion.

Indicative of Feeling

The human voice is the most simple of all public speaking assets, and is governed by common sense. Not only takes in the tonal qualities and the rate or speed of talking, which should not be too fast or too slow, but such as will hold the attention of the audience. The voice should indicate one's feelings and express the meaning of the used words, as in the reading of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar"—and the "Charge of the Light Brigade", the former should be read with feeling and in a slow and reverent voice, while the latter should be read with greater speed, with emphasis on the important words, a sort of 'underlining' the word as in writing.

In wondering what to talk about, Mr. Edmison stated that a person should not underestimate their storehouse of knowledge, which comes from knowing people, reading of books, travelling, and observing the scenery.

To build up a speech, there is the logical method, indicate some things, and then select one or three, bearing the talk on it, and deal with that item, specifically. He mentioned how helpful his autographed albums were to him, as they recalled interesting anecdotes about the persons whose autographs were contained in them. If one is perplexed as to what he intended saying, and for the moment forgets, try the 'water trick' stop and take a drink. The audience will think you are clearing your throat. The use of snippings from papers, is another 'trick' of public speaking, which lends interest.

Ten Commandments

Mr. Edmison cited ten commandments for public speaking, which briefly stated are: 1. You shall not apologize for the talk you are to give; 2. Thou shalt not use statistics, as these are dull, and uninteresting; 3. Thou shalt not be over sentimental; 4. Thou shalt not exaggerate; your audience may take the rest of your talk with questioning; 5. Thou shalt not be sarcastic or unfair; 6. Thou shalt be dull; and interesting bits to your talk; 7. Thou shalt not murder the King's English; 8. Thou shalt not wander from the subject; 9. Thou shalt not steal the audience's time; don't be forever 'concluding', and 10. Thou shalt not be long-winded.

A short period for questions followed the address, which was most interesting.

The speaker was introduced by the president of the Club, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, who also tendered the appreciation of the members for a thrilling, delightful and inspiring talk.

Appreciation was also tendered for the bounteous dinner which had been provided by the ladies.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Miss Fairfax Advises Other Girls—A Married Man's Sister

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My fiance is a fine young man with a great many admirable qualities, but he has one habit that annoys me very much and, if he doesn't get over it, I am afraid we are going to have trouble. This is that he always notices every girl he sees, and comments on how pretty she is and all that.

I don't dare tell him how I feel about this, because I know he will just say I am jealous, but it certainly gets very monotonous and annoying. I wouldn't think it right to start commenting on the men we see, but I can't think of any other way that might get him out of this habit.

Alice H.

Dear Alice:

Maybe it would be smart of you to do just exactly that—start noticing and commenting on the men you see when you are with your fiance. Don't say anything that will alert him to the fact that you are just retaliating. Let him just draw his own conclusions, and maybe it will all come out as a big joke between you which ought to clear up your trouble. There is nothing like a good laugh at something to put it in its proper place.

On the other hand, you might simply do the laughing all by yourself and not tell him. Let this habit assume a place of importance in your life. For it's no secret that there are men who can't refrain from doing this sort of thing. The girls they comment on mean nothing serious to them, but they just can't help admiring a pretty victim of feature and a slim ankle. Nothing seems to cure them of the habit, and the girl who marries a man of this type might just as well make up her mind that she is going to have to put up with it forever. So if it gets under your nerves, you'd better be warned in time.

She's Heard A Disturbing Story About Her Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and have been going steady with a young man 24. About a week ago a girl who was a stranger to me came to my house and asked me if I was going with this boy. When I said I was, she told me that she had been living with him for over a year.

I asked him if this was true, and he said it wasn't and that he could prove it. I was so upset, though, that I told my family about it and they say they will not allow me to go out with him any more. They say this girl must have had some reason for coming to me, and they are afraid something might happen that would hurt me in some way.

Should I break with this boy, or accept his word about this matter?

D.H.P.

Dear D.H.P.:

There is a chance, of course, that some emotionally unbalanced girl is trying to break up your friendship with a young man to whom she has taken a fancy herself. But at the same time, I think your family are quite right in feeling that there may be more than meets the eye, or the ear, in the situation.

If this young man can prove, as he says he can, that he was never implicated in any affair with the girl, then, if he is sincere in wishing to be friends with you, and has the right sort of character, it seems to me he should ask your father for permission to come and give him an explanation. No doubt your father could tell very easily, from what the young man said to him, whether or not he was presenting the actual facts.

If your father finds his explanation satisfactory, and is willing for you to continue your friendship, then you can decide what you want to do yourself.

Question:

I need help quickly and badly!! I have been asked to decorate my little cousin's christening cake (fruit). While I have done a number of wedding cakes and I've honestly never even seen a christening cake. Would you have any ideas or pictures I could follow?—Mrs. D. A. D.

Answer:

I'm a weak reed on this subject. I haven't one reference to a christening cake in my files, but I did see a christening cake, frosted like a large one-tiered wedding cake with basic white frosting, then edged with piping tube in pink. At the corners were pink tiny rosebuds. In the centre a cradle had been piped, using the very narrow tube to build up a "cradle" like you would build up an elongated nest. It was just big enough to accommodate a little 3-inch baby doll which of course was dressed in a diminutive long christening robe. There was a tiny pink rose nestling at the top of the cradle. I imagine you could pipe a pink ribbon-knot at the bottom of the cradle. I sure hope this helps a little.

Question:

It is certainly grand to be able to approach someone like you with cooking and baking problems. I've been having trouble baking a real light banana cake. My recipe I've received is one I like as it is not too large for a small family. Only once has the cake turned out exceptionally light with dark flecks through. Otherwise it is very popular. I like a plain white cake when baked with none of the banana flecks and not very light. . . I use only really ripe bananas.—Mrs. H. S.

DODGE REGENT

Answer:

I read through the recipe, and I think you should be using 2 eggs and more sugar to 1 1-2 cups flour. Let me give you the recipe I like for a small banana cake.

Answer:

Thank you for this luscious-sounding dessert. The trouble with your white fruit cake recipe is that it requires egg yolks. Could you wait for another month or maybe three weeks, when I will give you my 1953 offerings in the way of rich white and dark fruit cakes for this Christmas season's baking? I will give them to you in plenty of time for them to ripen before Christmas. If you want your dark cake ahead of that write again, right away, and enclose stamped envelope.

BEAUTY

The Importance Of Sitting Correctly

"Most models who pose for fashion pictures assume graceful standing positions," says a commercial photographer whose business it is to take pictures of professional lovelies. "They look alive and vibrant. They are splendid and regal, and emphasize their swinging lines. But the ones who appear really distinguished while seated are in the minority. Someone has to adjust and pose them so that the silhouette is clear cut and graceful."

Take a critical survey of your friends as they sit around at the next party you attend. The girl who is "sitting pretty" is the exception. The average Young Creature folds herself in easy chair, with shoulders bent forward—a practice which flattens the chest and gives an awkward pose to the head.

The woman who is mindful of her appearance, who endeavors to cultivate grace, sinks into a chair slowly, keeps her spinal column extended, places her feet closely together, folds her hands prettily in her lap. She may cross her ankles, but never her knees.

In order to sit correctly one must occupy the seat of the chair to its full depth and hold the back erect with ease and grace. One should never sit on the edge of a chair or sideways on the chair. Body movements and poses are but the reflections of one's mind, so if you think in terms of good posture you will achieve it.

Oldtimers who fell for Delsarte—the word has no meaning to us of this generation, but it was an arty form of physical culture—will tell you that one of its inviolate rules was: "Never show the soles of your shoes." That meant placing the ball of the foot down first when walking and, in sitting, to point toes downward. That rule is just as good today as it was when Grandma was a girl.

Good posture should be maintained at all times—walking, sitting or standing—so that the muscular system will remain strong and never sag. The back should always be straight, shoulders posed easily, head balanced and the chest high.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"No Presents, Please" On Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are building a new home, to be completed in about a month. Then we would like to have a Housewarming, inviting only our relatives and very close friends. But we don't want to have the guests think they have to bring a gift. Please tell us what to do about this. May we request "No presents, please"?

2. Is buffet service right for this kind of party?

C.

1. If you feel very firm about this, the only thing you can do is to write "No presents, please" on the invitations, or when you are inviting verbally or by telephone, say, "Please come to our party . . . but for me, I hate 'no presents, please.'" (There's no way to make that request with moral grace. So many people prefer to have the privilege left up to them personally as to whether or not they are to bring gifts. However, today it is the "no presents, please" request is made far more frequently than heretofore.)

2. Yes . . buffet service is right, and indeed customary.

"No Gifts, Please" On Birth Announcements?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are expecting our first baby within a few weeks. We would like to send birth-announcements to our relatives, close friends and a few friends of the grandparents. Is there a way in which we can express our wish to let them know that the baby's arrival without having the announcement send him a "gift" for a gift? Is there a proper way to indicate "No gifts, please" on the birth-announcement card?

V.M.T.

Please just think of these announcement-cards as joyous messengers of the happy news of the birth of your baby . . . news you naturally want to share with those most interested in this news. Don't shadow them with worrying about whether or not the receivers will interpret them as a suggestion to give a gift. Most people are quite used to receiving birth-announcements, and quite used to responding as they see fit . . . occasionally with a gift, most often with a friendly little note of congratulations and good wishes. If you feel you must write "No gifts, please," do it . . . but this request, if it has to be made, does seem more suitable to invitations than to announcements.

Two Questions About Godparents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I have asked two of our friends, a married couple, to be godparents to our baby. Are we supposed to give each one a gift "from the baby," for doing us the honor of being godparents to our child? (Several people have told me this is the thing to do.)

2. Do the godparents buy the christening outfit for their godchild?

Mother

1. No; you don't give gifts to the godparents. It is the other way around . . it is customary for each godparent to give a christening gift to the child.

2. Customarily the godparents do not supply the christening outfit for their godchild. Very occasionally they express the wish they would like to do this . . but unless they do, the child's parents should not expect this gesture.

Fashion Flashes

A Challenge to the coat of fur is offered by simply stylish fabric coats. Black broadcloth is used for a beautifully cut coat—narrow, fitted, just kind of line. Drop-shoulder seaming emphasizes the bodice effect, and an asymetric collar with removable scarf of white ermine marks the open neckline. Sleeves are slightly slender under skirt, and the sleeves are cut short above the wrist. Pockets in side seams.

From the toe to toe it's leather all the way, as the leather hat registers well. Russet suede makes a soft, casual wigwam high, pointed crown and a wide brim that has a soft fold at one side. Long pheasant tails, rhinestone-studded at the base, make an interesting trimming.

Prepared for a busy city life are nine basic suits. Red and black-tweed makes up into a suit with softened, rounded line, the arched hipline softened to bell out below the narrow self belt. Self-banding makes a deep square across the bodice and is used at the front closing. Skirt is slim, with a kick pleat in back.

Waiting for baby to arrive finds mothers-to-be wearing very pretty go-places costumes. One such is made up of dark brown crepe, a two-piece dress, the top completely pleated from a squared-off yoke collar and cuffs are of shocking pink velvet.

Govt. Concerned Over Future Of Wild Life in Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Newfoundland government is concerned over the future of wild life in the province, and the need for conservation.

To get a scientific appraisal of the situation the government commissioned Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, president of the Wild Life Management Institute of Washington, D.C., to make a survey.

Dr. Gabrielson, his wife, and Willis Barake, a field worker with the institute, will confer with game association heads and other outdoor enthusiasts in many parts of the island.

Dr. Gabrielson wants to get a widespread sampling of public opinion. On the basis of his report, the government expects to enact legislation designed to preserve wild life resources.

Dr. F. W. Rowe, minister of mines and resources, said that because all parts of the province are becoming increasingly accessible by road, the need for economy measures grows more urgent.

Until now, he said, neither the government nor the public could be sure what measures were necessary. For example, many hunters claim partridge are practically extinct on the island while others say they are as plentiful as ever. Not wilder and more gun-shy.

One question that will probably be answered when Dr. Gabrielson's findings are made known is whether white-tailed deer should be introduced to Newfoundland.

Decision will probably also be made on the introduction of squirrels and other alien species.

2,000 Students Demonstrate Over Trieste

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Two thousand shouting students carrying anti-Yugoslav posters demonstrated for disputed Trieste today in downtown Milan. No incidents were reported.

It was the first Trieste protest in this north Italian city since the British-American decision Oct. 8 to pull their troops out of zone A of the Trieste free territory and turn it over to Italy.

Yugoslavia, which already administers the territory's zone B, claims the whole territory and President Tito has threatened to march his troops into zone A the moment Italian forces enter.

The demonstration here followed two days of rallies in Rome during which police and students battled briefly in front of the Soviet embassy.

In the Studio—cameras pick up perfect image. Diagram represents the television wave pattern as it appears on an engineer's oscilloscope.

But man-made interference—a passing truck, a neighbor's vacuum cleaner—can distort TV waves. Such interference scrambles the wave pattern like this.

Scrambled TV waves ruin reception. Image becomes streaked, distorted, or starts to roll over. Crosley tackled this problem—developed Picture-Sentry.

Crosley Picture-Sentry (an electronic circuit using a transistor-like germanium diode) guards against scrambling. Image stays clear, sharp—as in the studio.

Merchants Feel Loss of Sales As Customers Take to Suburbs

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A blight threatens many United States cities today. It is the blight of areas being allowed to run down rather than being renewed and repaired as was normal practice in former years.

Merchants are feeling the loss of sales as their middle-income customers take to the flourishing suburbs. Real estate values and income slip as worn - out areas spread around the badly congested central core of many cities. Municipal government costs rise faster than tax revenues.

Many city fathers find that deterioration seems to gain speed at the same time that their metropolitan areas are mushrooming.

Slum clearance and public housing projects have helped, but they haven't halted the tendency in recent years to let property run down. And the middle - income families which once lived just beyond the business districts have largely been ignored in post-war city construction.

The Twentieth Century Fund, a non-profit foundation for scientific research and public education, put Miles L. Colean, a city planning consultant, to work on the problem. His report, Renewing Our Cities, points out the reasons why cities are being blighted.

Traffic congestion is growing steadily worse and strangely enough driving people farther away from the business district. Rings of suburbs around most cities drain resources without reducing the load on downtown services, Mona Ignewit

The post-war housing shortage led to lax enforcement of housing regulations on the theory that a slum swelling was better than none. Strict enforcement, Colean says, is needed now to end the profitability of slums.

He also cites the low rate of return on money invested in new construction in recent years as having turned away needed capital. Shifting some of the local tax load off real estate could help the investor, he adds.

And he notes that in many cities red tape, long delays in, all dealings with local authorities and the consequent loss of income on tie-up funds harass large investors undertaking housing projects.

The first essential in attacking this problem, Colean holds, is to decide what kind of a city is wanted. Effective city planning then can be tried.

Modern street and throughway systems, control of population density to solve the traffic problem, intelligent zoning of functions between the central core and the dispersed sections, should be taken up on a timed schedule.

Jewish Faith Enslaves Jews; Reds Version

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Latest volume of Russia's Standard Encyclopedia, on sale today, charges that the Jewish faith is "in the hands of the ruling and exploiting classes as a weapon of spiritual oppression of the toilers."

The section on Judaism in the 600-page volume showed the latest Communist evaluation of the Jewish faith had not changed.

"At, ever it plays a reactionary role and is being used by the Jewish bourgeoisie of capitalist countries and by international imperialism as a means of the spiritual enslavement of the Jewish toiling masses," it said.

Defence Chief Tells Industry Research Must Pay Dividends

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. O. M. Solandt, Canada's top defence scientist, said yesterday that unless industrial research "can be made to pay cash dividends," then industry should not bother with it.

In a speech prepared for the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, the defence research board chief warned industrialists not to be carried away by their enthusiasm for research and development.

"If we are to have healthy industrial research and development in Canada, the same criteria must be applied to expenditure for research and development as to any other industrial expenditure. Unless management is convinced that research can be made to pay cash dividends then the research should not be done."

Fastest Progress

Technological progress has set a pace that "vastly exceeds anything seen before," he said. "In the space of a relatively few years we have seen the introduction and will see the perfection of the jet engine. We will see supersonic flight becoming commonplace.

"We have seen the introduction of fission and of atomic weapons, and we will see the widespread introduction of atomic power in industry."

But freedom in the international exchange of scientific information must be maintained if the world was to advance.

Canada must guard against giving out secrets that might help a potential enemy, but scientists and industrialists must recognize that secrecy "will seriously interfere with the growth of the body of scientific knowledge on which we all depend."

"The whole progress of science and consequently of industry depends on the free interchange of ideas and information between the scientific communities of different countries."

Headed in Europe

"One of the curious anomalies of secrecy is that the development of the atomic bomb and the present prospects for production of industrial power from atomic energy arose from a pooling of scientific knowledge arising mainly in Europe.

"If there had been effective barriers to the exchange of the results of fundamental scientific research between nations before the Second World War, the atomic bomb would never have been developed."

Dr. Solandt spoke of the rise of the "scientific community" in Canada which now compared "favorably" with those in other major industrial countries.

Canada had gone far in her scientific developments through cooperation between defence and scientists and industry.

"If we can continue to foster this effective partnership, we will be able to provide our armed forces with the most effective weapons systems at the lowest possible cost."

CAMPBELLFORD

E. Baxter Lawley Addresses Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD — An authority on all phases of the work of Institutes for the Blind in many lands, E. Baxter Lawley, superintendent of the Ontario Division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon here on Monday.

Mr. Lawley, a native of England, became blind in a B.C. mine in 1914. He returned to England where he studied history and social sciences and returned to Canada in 1920 after serving on the executive of the National Institute for the Blind there.

First School

The first school for the blind was in France. Beggary and degradation were formerly regarded as the lot of blind persons, unless their relatives looked after them. In 1819, Louis Braille, a musician, who as a boy was blinded in his father's shoe shop, attended a school for the blind. He devised a pin-point system of reading by pin-points and development of the Braille alphabet resulted.

T. Edward Armitage, a physician who foresaw blindness, arranged for the first mechanical press to print the Bible in Braille.

Receives Charter

In Canada, several schools were in operation before the First World War. At about 150 veterans returned home blind, the question of blind adult education as well as that of children became a problem. It was then that the Canadian National Institute for the Blind received its charter.

The work of the Institute is well known. They first encourage and help a blinded person in every way and try to make him completely self-sufficient.

Arthur K. Loucks introduced the speaker who was thanked by Rotarian, Harold Carr.

31 Charged After 'Sordid' Party in Home

CHATHAM (CP)—Twenty-seven youths and four juveniles faced a total of 64 charges today in a closed magistrate's court as a result of a wild teen-age party Oct. 3 in nearby Tupperville.

Two of the juveniles are high school girls from Wallaceburg charged as incorrigibles.

Police said the party was a "sordid affair" that involved "sex, drinking and vandalism."

Crown attorney A. D. Bell said what happened was so "frightful and sordid" that the names of those charged have been kept secret. Their parents were in court today.

The party, held at a girl's home when her parents were away for the week-end lasted from Friday night until Saturday.

Some of the youths played baseball with eggs. Another brought a calf into the house and allowed it to romp over furniture. One youth cut the head off a chicken and sprittered the house with blood. Two Weeks of Probing Provincial constable Fred Dickat of Wallaceburg said it took two weeks' investigation to get a complete story and gather signed statements.

Crown attorney Bell said details of the investigation were such that the press would be excluded from the trial. A press release would be issued later.

The charges include wilful damage, indecent assault, contributing to juvenile delinquency, theft of gasoline, consumption of alcohol by minors, consuming in a public place, supplying minors with liquor, theft of a chicken and incorrigibility. Police indicated there may be more charges.

Sunday School Lesson:

Alcoholic Statesmanship

By ROY L. SMITH

The most direful contribution Paganism made to the Newtown was drunkenness. When the children of Israel came out of the Desert entering the Promised Land, they were the most sober people in the ancient world. Their 40 years in the wilderness, where grapes were not grown, had seen them come to maturity with minds and bloodstreams unpolluted by alcohol.

For hundreds of years there was a powerful party among them known as the Rechabites who were "total" abstainers. Another group of religious ascetics we vowed to abstinence. It was not until paganism began to make heavy inroads upon the life of the nation that drunkenness became a problem among them.

Lessened Prosperity

The little land of Palestine affords little great trade routes that carried all the commerce between Asia and Africa, and it was impossible for the Hebrews to hold aloof from the life of the rest of the world. They were always in the thick of it. Their ideals and ideas were under attack from every quarter. Men who have to do business with pagans—trade, sell bargain, make contracts, seek markets—find it very difficult to restrict their conference to purely business matters. The Hebrews, in order to encourage world trade and pile up profits, offered paganism many encouragements. Heathen gods were admitted, and shrines were provided at which the strangers might worship according to the custom of his home land. It was inevitable that the religious life of the nation would be undermined in the process.

Alcohol Not Changed

The prophet Isaiah furnishes an interesting bit of evidence in the rise of alcoholism among the Hebrews—a plague contracted from the pagans who swarmed in to transact business. He refers to those who rise up early in the morning to drink.

Scientific studies in the field of alcoholism reveal the fact that one man who finds it necessary to drink early in the day has become, or is fast becoming, an addict. There is no more pitiable character on all the social scene than the chronic alcoholic. He is being called a "diseased person," by modern medicine, and such he is. But he has inflicted the disease upon himself.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 25: "THE WAR AGAINST BEVERAGE ALCOHOL." Proverbs 23:29-35 31:4-5 Isaiah 5:11-14 Matthew 26:6 Luke 19: 1-10 Romans 13:11-14 James 4:11.

No alcoholic has ever become an alcoholic without being warned. It is assumed that any sane person will do everything in his power to protect himself against the possibility of contracting cancer. Whole communities make an all-out effort to protect the children against any possibility of suffering from polio. But those same communities will offer the potential alcoholic no inducement to oppose himself to the disease that can work even more hideous woes upon the victims.

Alcohol has not changed either its chemical character or its psychological effects in five thousand years. The early morning drinker has always been an addict.

No teacher the world has ever known has ever held man in greater respect than Jesus did. The sanctity of human personality was the standard of value, for him. Anyone who caused another man to sin had, in Jesus' opinion, committed the most terrible sin it is possible for a human being to commit.

In the face of the terrible ravages which are being inflicted upon modern life by Alcohol, Jesus would surely be horrified at the sight of any disciple of his having any congenial part in the business.

Centre of Guiana Dispute

Dr. Alfred Savage, governor of British Guiana, is shown with Lady Savage in the garden of government house at Georgetown. Dr. Alfred is now ruling the British possession, backed by British troops and warships. He ousted Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and five members of his cabinet on allegations that they were plotting to set up a Communist regime within the Commonwealth. — Central Press Canadian.

French Worried by Hints U.S. May Cut Forces in Europe

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing talk here about the possibility of reducing United States ground forces in Europe has evidently disturbed the French government at a time when it is hoping for early parliamentary approval of the European Defence Community.

Retention of the six American divisions now in Europe for a long time now is regarded by the French as a major requirement for their approval of EDC.

They view the U. S. divisions not only as a safeguard against Soviet attack but also as affording protection, along with British troops, against possible revival of threatening German military power.

Under the EDC treaty, West German forces would be armed up to a strength of at least 12 divisions as part of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Not So Bright

The outlook for French approval of EDC had recently become bright again after much uncertainty. Now a possible threat to ratification prospects in France is seen in these developments:

1. An unofficial disclosure from Paris, which is confirmed here, that the U. S. has dropped a tentative proposal to send an additional armored division to join its North Atlantic Treaty forces next year.

2. Defence Secretary Wilson's recent remark that development of new weapons would make it possible to be less run to cut down on American ground forces in Europe.

There has been speculation concerning a review of military strategy by the joint chiefs of staff looking toward reduction in American forces now widely committed around the globe.

Misunderstood Maybe

Some authorities here are reported to feel that implications were read into Wilson's statement abroad, which were not factually justified. Their belief is that he was not necessarily talking about cutting down American fighting power at some future date, but was rather suggesting that new weapons, notably in the atomic field, might enable fewer men to do a better job in the western European defence system.

Nevertheless, reports reaching the state department have made clear that the French government was somewhat disturbed and apparently felt that assurances that American policy is basically unchanged should be forthcoming.

Social Credit Leader Critical Of Senate

VANCOUVER (CP) — The national Social Credit leader, Solon Low, said Thursday the Senate is nothing more than "an old man's home for Liberals."

In a speech before the annual convention of the British Columbia Social Credit League, Mr. Low criticized the non-political parties in Canada. He said the Liberal party is dedicated to "the spoils system."

The Senate was a place where "the wicked ceased to worry and the weary are at rest."

He asked what was the use of a Senate that was the same "color" as the Commons? How could hasty legislation be checked?

Awarded $45,074

TORONTO (CP)—A civil jury Thursday awarded Walter Hagan $45,074 damages for injuries received in an accident, even though he had only asked for $35,000.

Juries do not know the amount asked before they make their award, Mr. Justice G. A. Ayles reserved judgment on whether he would endorse the award. Judgment will be stayed until he does.

Mr. Hagan, 64, was struck by a truck which went out of control on Nov. 28, 1952, in east central Toronto. He spent seven months in hospital and has been unable to work since.

HUNT HUSKY BEAR

UXBRIDGE (CP)—Farmers in this area, about 40 miles northeast of Toronto, are organizing a weekend hunt for a bear, spotted by Robert Spencely, Thursday. The bear, reported to weigh at least 300 pounds, was seen feeding on garbage near the side of a road.

Experts Studying Aspects of Coast Fish, Marine Life

DEPARTURE BAY, B.C. (CP)—Stand well back men. Here is the basic—and ugly—ingredient in the latest perfume discovery:

Concentrated essence of old sea-lion skins.

But there is no need to panic. The tasty-sounding liquid is going to be used to stench-fish.

The concentrated essence is one of the least attractive odors in the world. Offensive to man, beast, bird and fish, it is being studied in the basement of the Pacific biological station at this Vancouver Island bay near Nanaimo.

There are 80 technicians and biologists on the station staff, all studying aspects of coast fish and marine life.

In his basement laboratory, Dr. J. R. Brett is studying habits of B.C. fish and tempting odd fur.

He has found that salmon have an acute sense of smell. They can detect the presence of a sea-lion, seal, bear, or other predatory animal by an odor emitted from the fur. They leave the vicinity fast when they detect the smell.

But they can't smell water polluted by such things as waste from pulp mills. That water lacks oxygen, and fish in it die from air starvation.

In order to keep fish away from polluted water, Dr. Brett thinks it will only be necessary to put one drop of the powerful distilled sea-lion into the water and every fish in the area will high-tail away for cleaner and sweeter waters.

D. C. MacDonald Will Seek CCF Leadership Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald C. MacDonald, national organizer and treasurer of the CCF, announced today he will be a candidate for the leadership of the party at its provincial convention Nov. 30-31 in Toronto.

The 39-year-old former newspaper man, a member of the Ontario provincial council of the CCF since 1946, will seek the post left vacant in August by the resignation of E. B. Jolliffe.

In a brief statement, Mr. MacDonald said several people have asked him to run and he has decided to let his name stand.

"I expect there will be several other nominees," he added.

Terms May Run

According to reports in CCF quarters here, these might include Andrew Brewin, Toronto lawyer and unsuccessful candidate in federal election, and Ali William Dennison of Toronto, former member of the legislature for Rosedale. Mr. Dennison has been a full-time CCF worker since 1946, first as national education secretary and since 1950 in his present office. He is a former president of the Ottawa and District CCF Council.

He was born in Cranbrook, B. C., and in the last federal election he ran in the Ottawa-Rockcliffe riding to a Liberal. It was his first try for legislative office. He was born in Lanarkshire Ormstown, Que.

Mr. MacDonald taught school in the 1930s and later worked on the Montreal Gazette. He served overseas with the navy in the Second World War, first as an ordinary seaman and later as an intelligence officer. He also edited the Canada Digest, a magazine circulated among Canadian servicemen overseas.

Even Weatherman Late for Work As Result of Fog

TORONTO (CP) — Even the weather man was late for work Thursday night as a result of fog which blanketed Toronto and areas along Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

Weather workers on the midnight shift at Malton airport were delayed 15 minutes on their way to work.

The fog slowed road traffic, halted air travel and interrupted movement of ships through the Welland canal. Buses fell behind schedule, Toronto Island ferries ran late and streetcars edged cautiously along Toronto streets where police reported visibility limited to 25 feet.

Observers attributed the fog to too much moisture in the air and lack of wind to dispel it.

ROUTED BY WATER PISTOL

TORONTO (CP)—A water pistol in the hand of cigar store proprietor John Peffer Thursday night routed two would-be robbers, one of whom fired a warning shot into the floor.

Peffer pointed the water pistol at the men after they told him: "This is a holdup; give us your money quick."

REPORTS $25,000 THEFT

TORONTO (CP)—D. Steinhoner, suburban North York jewelry salesman, told police Thursday that $25,000 in diamond rings was stolen from his automobile in either Niagara Falls, Ont., or North York township, Steinhoner said the rings, in two sample cases, were missing from the trunk of his car when he arrived in Niagara Falls Thursday from Toronto.

Churchill Gets Confidence Vote On British Guiana

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons gave a clear-cut vote of confidence Thursday night to the Churchill government for its action in suspending the constitution of British Guiana and ousting the premier, Marxist Dr. Cheddi Jagan.

The House rejected, by a vote of 294-256, a Labor amendment denouncing the government's move and then endorsed the Conservatives' action without a count.

The 38-vote margin was considered a decisive victory for the government, which charged the Jagan government was plotting to set up South America's first Communist regime in the richy colony.

Jagan Hears Debate

One spectator at the stormy five-hour debate which preceded the vote was Jagan himself, who flew to London to present his case. At a press conference the dapper East India-born dentist declared that the story of a plot was "invented" and challenged the government to arrest him if it believed he and his ministers had plotted to burn government buildings. He denied that his People's Progressive party, which won 18 of the 24 seats in the colonial Assembly at the last election, was Communist, though he declined to define himself as anti-Communist.

Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton told the House the government is considering bringing several of the deposed ministers to trial on charges of plotting a campaign of arson. But he admitted there would be difficulty in getting sufficient evidence as some "agents are unduly willing for fear of intimidation to make written statements or give evidence in court."

Prime Minister Churchill and Lyttelton directed the swift moves to halt the risky colony of rum, sugar and bauxite Oct. 8 after British Guiana had been moved in as a precaution.

Was Drastic, Says Labor

In their attack, Labor members called the government's action too drastic. Few, however, sought to defend the ousted ministers.

Clement Attlee, former Labor prime minister, contended the government should have dismissed the Guiana ministers while dealing with the threat, but should have kept the colony's constitution in force. The constitution came into effect only this year.

Attlee conceded there was little doubt some of the local leaders were Communists and said the people of Guiana had made a very big mistake" in electing them.

Jagan Thursday night addressed a rally of more than 1,000 wildly-cheering supporters at which he declared the charge of communism was a "red herring." He denied his party had conspired to foment strikes to halt production in the sugar mills.

North Ireland's Unionist Party Retains Power

BELFAST (Reuters)—The Northern Ireland Unionist government, firm advocate of maintaining the link with Britain, is once again firmly entrenched in power as a result of Thursday's election.

With 13 seconds to spare, the state of the parties bidding for the 52 United House of Commons seats was: Unionists 31; Nationalists 4; Labor and Independents 4.

In the previous House the Unionists had 37 seats and the Nationalists, who advocate union with the neighboring Republic of Ireland, had nine.

Victory for the Unionists was expected. They have been in office since 1921, when Northern Ireland was given a separate parliament. The country is responsible for its own affairs, while foreign and defence matters are handled from London.

Union Leaders Say Lawyers Are to Blame

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Guardian, official publication of the various locals of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), Thursday quoted union leaders as saying lawyers, employed as labor relations experts, have widened the gap between labor and management understanding.

The bi-monthly publication quoted Earl Watson, president of Local 195, as saying that "stalling seems to be the pattern in negotiations . . . especially where companies are hiring lawyers."

Wilfred Stackhern, the local's representative, said delay in getting contracts builds up a tension within the workers and their families "and it isn't until the union is in a position to strike legally that settlements are reached."

Chief "trouble-makers," he said, are the George Preston labor relations advising firm of Chatham, Ont., and lawyer G. C. Richards, Windsor, who do the talking conference at Margate, England, held Oct. 5-11.

Deny Churchill Is Considering Attending UN

LONDON (CP)—A government spokesman today denied a United States press report suggesting that Sir Winston Churchill is considering attending the current United Nations General Assembly to urge a settlement of critical issues between the Soviet Union and the Western powers.

The Times quoted "a reliable source" as saying Churchill discussed the plan with several Conservative members of Parliament at the Conservative party conference at Margate, England, held Oct. 5-11.

Giant Step-up in Production And Distribution of Consumer Goods Ordered by Soviet Govt.

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government ordered a giant step-up today in production and distribution of consumer goods. It was part of the big drive announced by the Malenkov government Oct. 8 to boost the living standards of the Russian people.

A two-page decree, issued by the Soviet council of ministers and the Communist party's central committee, ordered a 72-per-cent increase over the 1950 output of consumer goods—in terms of money value—by the end of next year. It also called for:

1. The opening of 40,000 new stores and 11,000 new restaurants and dining halls by the end of 1956.

2. A brush-up by all Soviet central trade organizations of their services to the public and elimination of backward distribution methods.

3. The training of additional personnel to give the Soviet consumer the best service he has ever received.

Admit Failures

The decree, a counterpart of recent Soviet moves aimed at increasing farm output, admitted that Soviet consumer goods arrangements have fallen short of satisfying the needs of the people.

"There are big drawbacks and deficiencies in the trade organization," it declared. "There is not enough refrigeration equipment or mechanical loading equipment.

"The organization of the public food supply is backward. There are insufficient dining halls and restaurants and the people must wait too long to be served. Sale and distribution of building materials is inadequate."

The new consumer goods schedule includes those included in the 1950 five-year plan that called for a 70-per-cent increase in the monetary volume of domestic goods trade by the end of 1955.

Fired by Godfrey, Singer Finds He Is Celebrity

By HEDDA HOPPER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Julius La Rosa, a singer whose swan song launched him as a celebrity, glided toward a show-must-go-on performance tonight amid publicity ripples from his abrupt firing by Arthur Godfrey.

Godfrey, the television titan, gave the young Brooklyn baritone his sailing papers Monday. That was a swan song, Godfrey told his morning viewers as La Rosa finished singing.

"At first," La Rosa told a press conference Thursday night through incident tears, "I didn't know what he meant. I had never heard the expression before. But I understood later when he said something about wishing me godspeed."

What's Humility?

La Rosa said another thing he doesn't understand is what Godfrey means by "humility," the quality Godfrey said La Rosa had lost.

"Ever since I was on his show, it was one of his staunch themes," La Rosa said. "He never said exactly what it was. It was sort of an indefinable something."

No Real Reason

La Rosa said "deep down in my heart I know that Mr. Godfrey had no bona fide reason for firing me."

But he acknowledged he had violated an agreement with Godfrey under which all the "little Godfreys" said they would hire no independent booking agency to represent them.

Godfrey told a press conference in New York that he fired La Rosa for signing the personal management contract. He fired Mercer, he said, because Mercer made a phonograph record featuring Joe McNeil of the rival American Broadcasting Co.

La Rosa's contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System still has five years to run and poses an iron-clad hurdle to his cashing in on big money offers.

Prime Minister Rejects City Of Ottawa Bid

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Wednesday the government has rejected a city of Ottawa bid to prevent the transfer of the National Film Board from the capital to Montreal.

The prime minister told reporters following a cabinet meeting that representations by the city of Ottawa were considered. He said there will be no change in plans, already authorized by Parliament, to construct a new film board headquarters in Ville St. Laurent, near Montreal, at a cost of about $6,000,000.

"The issue is settled," Mr. St. Laurent said.

The prime minister added that the cabinet's decision would be set out in a letter to be sent to Mayor Charlotte Whitton, who led the city campaign to retain the film board in Ottawa.

Speaker Critical Of U.S. Tariff On Imports

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The United States virtually shuts out manufactured goods of other countries, J. D. Ferguson of Rock Island, Que., president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Thursday night.

In an address prepared for the Canadian Industrial Traffic League, Mr. Ferguson said United States department of commerce figures for 1951 show that imports of manufactured foods and other finished products amounted to only 36.9 per cent of total U.S. imports.

In comparison, Canada's imports in 1951 were 73.4 per cent manufactured goods.

He said the U.S. tariff has been built up with two objects in mind:

"First, to import free of duty or at very low rates, raw materials and finished products which she either does not produce herself or produces in very small quantity.

"And second, to establish rates of duty so high that they are practically prohibitive on manufactured goods which compete with United States manufactured goods."

Canada's exports were declining in relation to her total production. About 18 per cent of her gross national production was exported in 1952, compared with about 25 per cent in 1938.

Victim of Brutal Murder Buried At Levis, Que.

LEVIS, Que. (CP)—The Roman Catholic funeral service was chanted Thurs. for Marie-Anne Carrier, 21-year-old victim of a brutal murder.

Approximately 4,000 persons lined the route while the bier was taken first to St. Antoine church in nearby Bienville and then to the family plot in Lauzon cemetery.

About 30 soldiers from the active army and approximately the same number from the reserve ranks of the Canadian Women's Army Corps walked behind the motor hearse.

Body of Miss Carrier, a sergeant in CWAC reserve, was found a week ago in a ditch near Ironside, 33 miles west of Cornwall, Ont.

Brothers Father Bier

At the funeral, the victim's seven brothers—Raoul, Eugene, Georges, Michel, Charles, Antoine and Jacques—walked behind the hearse. They were followed by the troops.

In the black-draped church, six sergeants of the women's force mounted guard about the illuminated catafalque.

Rev. Emile Hebert, parish priest, assisted by abbes Roland Fleet and Armand Lessard, sang the doleful Gregorian chant of the Roman Catholic Gregorian mass.

Members of the armed forces, including Brig. Frank Fleury, commanding officer eastern Quebec military district, and Col. J. Gordon Rose, commanding officer of 108 Manning Depot who was instrumental in identifying the girl, walked part of the way to the cemetery.

As Miss Carrier's body was lowered into the grave, the Last Post was sounded.

Mrs. Arthur Carrier, elderly mother of the girl, was unable to attend the funeral. Miss Carrier's six sisters travelled to the cemetery by automobile.

During two days an estimated 16,000 persons visited a local funeral parlor to view the body.

BOW ISLAND, Alta. (CP)—To oldtimers of this southeastern Alberta grasslands community, the telephone directory is becoming too complicated. Once you could phone the railway station by calling No. 1. The mayor was at your service with a simple No. 2.

But the three-digit numbers in the telephone book are only part of the new look in the town of some 900 people.

Bow Island has been made subdivisional headquarters for the local stage of the forthcoming irrigation from the St. Mary's river development. And mayor Gus Bogetti is confident the community is ready to take advantage of the expansion that is inevitable.

Town clerk H. J. Noble lists the local improvement debenture debt, which is self-liquidating, at $150,000, including $106,000 for a new power system. The waterworks debt is $82,000, with $35,000 extinguished or in the sinking fund.

Civic officials are operating on a pay-as-you-go plan for public works, and any future expansion of utility services will be self-liquidating.

Last year the municipality sold 94 building lots, and the total has reached 90 so far this year. As a result more than $300,000 of new assessment will be added to tax rolls.

Twenty-five of the new homes to be built this year will be constructed under the National Housing Act, ranging in value from $7,000 to $12,000. And 85 per cent of the town's families own their own homes.

New developments this year include the opening of a provincial treasury branch, and establishment by Calgary Power Ltd. of a full-time maintenance service for natural gas and electric services. The town sets aside about 20 per cent of its natural gas distribution revenue each year for development of new mains and services.

FRANKFORD

United Church Unveils New Organ

FRANKFORD — The regular church service of the Frankford United church on November 1st. will also include the unveiling of the new Hammond electric organ, purchased by the church.

Rev. Mr. Clarke will lead the service to be held at 7.30 p.m., the regular service time.

Praise Tendered

The church board is to be praised for the fine addition to the church, also for the work put into this project. The fact that this type of organ is not affected by dust, dampness or temperature balanced the vote in its favor, since in the past a fire was needed occasionally to protect the organ. Mrs. Sid Martin, Mrs. Gerald Carlisle, Mr. Art Southworth and Mr. Mervin Defoe, who made a special trip to Toronto to inspect the organ, also deserves praise for their efforts.

MORE THAN FREEZE-UP SAFEGUARD NEEDED TO GIVE ENGINES COMPLETE WINTER PROTECTION!

AMBULANCE DRIVER TELLS HOW HE LEARNED TO INSIST ON "PRESTONE" ANTI-FREEZE

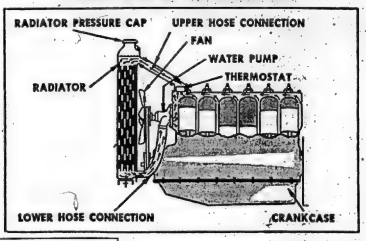
Walter Darwin, independent ambulance operator of Toronto, Ontario, learned the hard-way that there is no substitute for "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze.

Says Walter Darwin: 'One bitter night four years ago on the way to an accident I had one of those 'just as good' anti-freezes boil over. I had to stop and phone another ambulance to make the call. That cured me! There just isn't any other anti-freeze that gives the same complete protection as "Prestone" Brand. Ever since that night I've used "Prestone" Anti-Freeze and no matter how cold it gets, I've never had trouble.'

You're Set! You're Safe! You're Sure!

"Prestone" Anti-Freeze gives Extra protection against winter engine enemies

FREEZE-UP ONLY HALF THE HAZARD



"PRESTONE" ANTI-FREEZE PROTECTS AGAINST RUST, CORROSION, FOAMING AND ACID CONTAMINATION

If freeze-up were the only problem connected with winter driving the answer would be very simple. As a matter of fact there are many fluids, solutions and chemicals which either by themselves or when added to water will resist freezing at low temperatures. Many of these substitutes for a scientifically compounded anti-freeze have been tried . . . nearly always with disastrous results to the car engine. Many of these make-shift anti-freezes resulted in corroded, rusted and clogged cooling systems. Others boiled over, evaporated and foamed, causing serious engine damage.

No such problems worry the driver who uses "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze. Product of this country's largest, most completely equipped automotive cooling system laboratory, "Prestone" Anti-Freeze has proved itself over millions of miles of driving under the most extreme winter conditions.

"Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze —the most effective anti-freeze ever developed for automotive cooling systems—is fortified with a combination of special ingredients to give much more than just freeze-up protection. "Prestone" Anti-Freeze gives car engines extra protection against rust, corrosion, acid contamination, clogging, seepage, foaming and deterioration of metal and rubber parts. No other anti-freeze can give the same complete protection.

INCREASES ENGINE EFFICIENCY AND GAS MILEAGE

This cutaway view of an automotive engine shows the vitality important role of the cooling system

In winter, 150-160 degree thermostats do not permit car engines to operate at temperatures required for maximum efficiency. Cold-running engines develop oil sludge, carbon deposits and sticky valves.

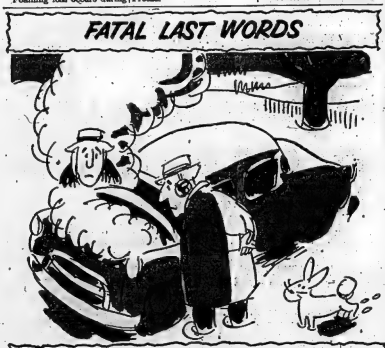
Because "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze does not boil or foam at high engine operating temperatures it is possible to use thermostats opening at 180 degrees. The results of using "Prestone" Anti-Freeze with a high opening temperature thermostat are tangible indeed. There is a definite reduction in oil sludge, carbon deposit and engine wear. The engine operates with greater efficiency and delivers more miles per gallon of gasoline.

More Anti-Freeze Lost Through Foaming Than From Evaporation

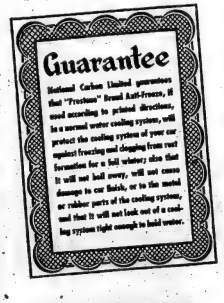
It is a popular misconception among drivers that evaporation is the only cause of loss of anti-freeze solution. The fact of the matter is that overflow loss through foaming of as much as a half-gallon of solution per thousand miles of driving can be caused by an anti-freeze that traps and holds air in solution.

Foaming loss occurs during high speed driving when air mixes with the solution at high circulating speeds. The trapped air takes up space and increases the volume of the mixture until some of it goes out the overflow pipe.

Although it is a serious problem with some anti-freezes there is no foaming problem with "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze.



Fourteen Special Ingredients make "Prestone" Anti-Freeze Different from Any Other



There's Nothing Else Like It!

Made from a formula with fourteen special ingredients, "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze gives the extra protection that makes it different and superior to any other anti-freeze.

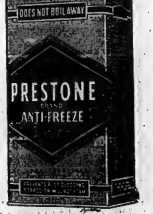
"Prestone" Anti-Freeze is the original 'one-shot' anti-freeze that is still ahead of the field. As automotive engines have improved, "Prestone" Anti-Freeze has kept pace through continued research, development and testing.

Proof of performance is shown by the overwhelming public preference for "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze over all other anti-freezes.

ALL-WINTER ALL-WEATHER GUARANTEE

The guarantee shown here appears on every can sold. No other anti-freeze is backed by this guarantee—no other anti-freeze can give the same complete protection.

Is Your Car Less Than 8 Years Old?



Registered vehicles produced during the last eight years represent more than 50% of all cars in service. The newly designed engines in modern vehicles affect anti-freeze solutions in many ways. Increased horsepower; high speed engines; high compression ratios; radiator pressure caps—these and other refinements combine to place tremendous loads on cooling systems. The result is increased heat and pressure build-up on the anti-freeze solutions.

"Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze has demonstrated under the most severe conditions that it gives complete protection to the most modern car engines.

SOLD ONLY IN CANS BEARING BRAND NAME "PRESTONE"

Unwary car owners are often deceived by claims that such and such an anti-freeze is 'just the same' as "Prestone" Brand. The truth is that "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze is made only by National Carbon Limited who make no other brand of all-winter anti-freeze. Drivers should insist on and get "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze. It is sold everywhere in Canada.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

REINSTATED

The Belleville Memos masterminds heaved a huge sigh of relief yesterday when an Ontario Hockey Association communication brought word that Bob Taylor, who played professional hockey with the Eastern League for the past two years has been given his release by Mr. Edward Shore and reinstated to the ranks of the "simon pures". Mr. Shore "kicked over the traces" as he his wont when his services ask for a release in order to play "amateur" but the OHA took the matter in hand and apparently persuaded the famous National League star to give Taylor his "freedom". Taylor, a 190-pound defenceman, will fill a long-felt want with the Memos, and with Jake Wade, ex-Peterborough star, should form a formidable blue-line duo for the shinny set.

Coach "Red" Doran is still jiggling his front-line combinations as well as testing blueline pairs. He is driving the team hard and hopes to whip it into fairly good shape by the time the curtain rises on the season schedule. Everyone seems to be fighting hard for positions and the presence of out-of-town "imports" seems to be driving the veterans of the squad to greater efforts.

The Memos should be a lot stronger than the clubs that represented the senior "B" sound in the past few years, and with the other teams of the group being strengthened in all departments, this year's senior "B" race should be one of the hottest since the inception of the group.

TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY

The Trent Valley Hockey League holds its annual meeting at the Balsam Recreation Hall on Sunday afternoon starting at two o'clock and the boys of the Valley's organized hockey loop of the district will ready plans for what is hoped will be another successful season. All last year's teams representatives have been invited to be on hand and potential entry should be given a cordial welcome.

While there is as yet no indication of the number of teams which will form the loop this season, it is expected at least ten will face the barrier when the bugles blow the "They're Off" blast come January.

Accordion of the grapevine Point Anne and Wellington will be strong squads, in fact both these clubs have been in organization action for some time now. Nothing has been whispered about an RCAF Trenton entry nor those of the northern section of the league, but it is likely some definite idea of how many teams will enter the fold will be aired at the Sunday confab.

THE MAN SPEAKS!

Bill Veeck, the ousted boss man of the St. Louis Browns, and now with the Chicago Cubs in an advisory capacity, gave out with the breeze over the Chicago airwaves the other gleaming.

The ladybuck who brought the circus into baseball was held to a minimum of wordage by the announcer who apparently had interviewed La Veeck before and knew-she capacity for verbiage via a microphone.

"What happened in New York the other day Bill," queried the announcer.

"They not only kicked my brains out but they strewed them all over the city" came back the irrepressible William. "I'm thrilled to be over here in the chicago to do what I always wanted to do, manage a west coast ball club. I got a first rate pushing around in the east. Now I'm going to spend a lot of time in the west and I'll know when its ready for major baseball."

Veeck said with the exception of New York and Chicago the days of two-club cities are gone. What with television and the increased cost of operation the majority of cities cannot afford to support two clubs.

The new Cubs member said he was in favor of televising baseball games, especially those of the road clashes "It maintains interest in the club and when fans cannot go to the game, the game is brought to them."

He lifted the lyrics adopted by the Detroit Tigers. "This club" he said, "televised games five days a week, and blacks out the Saturday and Sunday games. When the novelty of television is worn out, you will see that it has proved a tremendous help to baseball."

Asked if major baseball would go ever in Canada, Veeck said he thought Montreal or Toronto could support major league baseball, but "there is no area in the country that appears to me like Los Angeles. It would probably play to 2,500,000 the first year."

Veeck predicted the former St. Louis Browns, now the Baltimore Orioles will attract 1,200,000 next season. He thought Macty Marion will manage that club.

MINOR HOCKEY

Recreation Director "Red" Doran announced today that a meeting of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association executive will be held in Memorial Arena on Sunday at 2 p.m. Election of officers and general business pertaining to the coming season is on the agenda. It is important that all executive members attend as Director Doran is anxious to get the minor hockey machinery well in motion before the season starts.

Maintains Goal-a-Game Mark In 3-2 Victory Over Chicago Canadiens, Wings Split Lead

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somehow the word was getting around that Maurice Richard wasn't the man he used to be. The Rocket, on whose free-power the fortunes of Montreal Canadiens had depended for a decade, was considered doubtful, or at least obsolescent, to many National Hockey League fans exposed to the sharpshooting prowess of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and other younger luminaries.

Even the Montreal faithful began to waver this season, looking to Jean-Marc Beliveau, the fabulous rookie from Quebec, to take over the 32-year-old Richards scoring mantle.

No Pension Yet

But there were clear signs today that the Rocket isn't ready to draw his old-age pension yet.

When he fired the first Canadien goal in their 3-2 victory over the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night it gave him six for the season, just two more than Detroit rookie Earl Reibel and teammate Bernie Geoffrion, his closest rival.

Howe and Lindsay, who have played seven games, the same number as Richard, Rocket has counted three and two markers respectively. Blake has one.

If Richard could maintain his present clip over the full season he would wind up with the phenomenal total of 60 goals, 11 more than the record of 49 set by Howe last year.

Judged by the attention the Hawk forwards gave him in the later stages of Thursday night's contest, he will have to work for every goal from here in.

Goaltender Gump Worsley and a few more Canadien snipers can take the credit off him by improving their aim.

Boom-Boom Helps

Geoffrion did his part-firing the goal that brought Montreal level with the stubborn Hawks for the second time in the third period. And defenceman Kenny Mosdell produced the winning tally with less than two minutes left. Bill Gadsby and Bill Hicke were the Chicago marksmen.

The victory boosted the Habitants into a first-place tie with the Idle Detroit Red Wings.

Meanwhile, New York Rangers outlasted Boston Bruins for a 4-3 victory that severely threw to take over fourth place from the losers by by a single point.

A major share of the glory belonged to three alumni of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. Ike Hildebrand and Wally Hergesheimer scored a goal apiece and Hergesheimer, set up former Bruin Paul Ronty for a third tally while the third promoted Baron, goalie Johnny Bower turned aside 26 Bruin drives.

Nick Mickoski got the fourth Ranger tally from Lou Creighton. Real Chevrefils and Joe Klukay were the goal-getters for Boston, who cut their way back from a three-goal deficit at the end of the first period.

Britain Crawls Slowly Back To Sports Spot

By STERLING SLAPPEY

LONDON (CP) — The 1952 and 1953 sports seasons prove that Britain has crawled a long way back from her old position among the top sports nations in the world.

Biggest improvements and the best showings have been made in track, especially among milers, middle distance men and the long range boys.

In the last year, Jim Peters has bettered several marathon marks, although there is no recognized record because of the difference in courses. His present world's best figure for the 26 mile 385 yard grind is two hours 18.34.4. Gordon Pirie recently set the world six-mile mark of 26.18.4. Pirie also has set new British marks for the mile and a half, two, three, four, five and six mile races.

Britain's four-mile relay team of Bill Shankland, Chris Brasher, Roger Bannister and Chris Chataway holds the world mark of 18.44. after a 1951 performance. The 6,000-metre relay team holds a record of 29.07.2.

Bannister did a 4:03.6 mile this summer.

Golf Better

Great improvement in British golf has been shown. Early in October Britain beat the Americans 5 matches to United States professionals, 3 to 2. Had two final putts, three-foot putts dropped for the youngsters, Peter Allis and Bernard Hunt, Britain would have won.

Among the amateurs, Britain again lost in Walker Cup play. But, for the first time, Britain's Curtis Cup team, in June, failed to be defeated the American, 5 to 4, at Muirfield in 1952.

For the first time since 1932 England won a test cricket series against Australia last summer.

Marcel Boussac and the Volterras of France, and the foreign-bred horses of the Aga Khan, were sweeping most of the important races on British tracks for several years after the Second World War. But, during the last few seasons, British and Irish horses have made a huge comeback.

Soccer Wins

There have been recent soccer victories over Austria, France, Belgium, Spain and Switzerland.

In many other sports, such as motorcycle racing, auto racing, horse show jumping and figure skating, Britain has come up with new star performers.

But Britain is still deeply deficient in two major sports, tennis and boxing.

Other than middleweight Randy Turpin and possibly one or two others, Britain has not a single world calibre fighter.

In tennis the situation is about as dark, but the Lawn Tennis Association at least is at work on the problem. A scheme to provide competition for Britain's better youngsters is backed by the association.

Bobo Olson May Defend Title Against Gavilan

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson probably will defend his new middleweight boxing title against Kid Gavilan in February at San Francisco or New York.

While the champ flew home to his wife and four children in San Francisco Thursday, promoter Jim Norris started planning his future program.

"We'd like to have Olson fight Gavilan if the Kid gets past Johnny Bratton at Chicago, Nov. 13," said Norris. "Even if he should lose his title to Bratton, he might be matched with Olson.

"Flaherty (Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager) said Wednesday night he'd like very much to take on Gavilan. He wants to promote a set for San Francisco. I personally, would rather have it go to New York. There is no definite date. Bobo won't be ready to go until the first of the year."

As for Britain's Randy Turpin, who was dropped twice by Olson while losing a unanimous decision Wednesday night in a 15-round match, Norris would like to have him back in February.

"I asked his manager if he would be interested in coming back to fight Paddy Young or somebody like that in February," said Norris. "They seemed interested. He's a useful fighter and made a good showing."

Hopkins Trophy Golf Matches Set for June

TORONTO (CP)—The Hopkins Trophy matches between Canadian and American professional golf teams will be held at the Mississaga Golf Club at nearby Port Credit June 10-12, it was announced Thursday night.

Each team has six players plus one alternate.

The U.S. team is comprised of the U.S. Open champion and the American Professional Golfers Association titleholder with the five other members selected on their tournament records.

The Canadian team will consist of the Canadian PGA champion, three players chosen by the Canadian PGA selection committee based on the players' finish in the Canadian Open and the CPGA championship and the $25,000 Open with the rest of the team left to the discretion of the committee.

The players will play 18 holes the first two days and 36 holes the last day. Four-ball matches will be played one day with the rest of the play singles.

It was the second shutout of the season for goalie Bill Brennan.

Max Quackenbush and Steve Black were the marksmen, both scoring on plays with Frankie Ashworth.

Olson Not Compared With Greats, Doesn't Hit Hard Enough—Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It is highly improbable that Bobo Olson, the world's new middleweight champ, will ever be compared seriously with such giants of the 160-pound class as Harry Greb, Mickey Walker and Sugar Ray Robinson, to name only three former kings of a great weight division.

The former Honolulu street brawler simply doesn't hit hard enough to belong in such company. It cannot be said, though, that the father of four has not taken full and competent advantage of a situation made to his order—a comparative shortage of real top-notchers in the class which sometimes boasts two or three of them at once.

Bobo is what the trade calls an honest fighter. He can be counted upon to give you all he's got every time he climbs into the ring, and it is that quality more than any other which has enabled him to come out of the field in little more than a year and charge to the front. He hasn't made a bad fight since.

No Real Wallop

The fact that Olson knocked Randy Turpin down twice in their title fight does not necessarily indicate that he has all of a sudden developed a real wallop. The Briton was wide open on each occasion, backed up against the ropes and seemingly mesmerized, and Bobo was able to put everything he had into a volley of shots to the jaw. It was the cumulative effect rather than any single blow that put Randy on the canvas.

In fact, ringside experts thought the new champ exposed a serious weakness in not punishing his weary opponent when he had him so badly hurt. All Bobo needed to do, they contend, was shift his attack from the head and sink in a few blows up to the laces in Randy's exposed belly at that juncture to have scored a clean kill.

However, as Olson did win the fight with something to spare, it perhaps is unfair to look for the flaws.

Gavilan Next

Our private opinion, which is being widely challenged, is that Bobo will hold the title only up to the night that he takes on the Cuban Whip, Kid Gavilan, who currently rules the next lowest weight division, the welterweight.

Gavilan has had difficulty making the 147-pound limit for several years now and is anxious to step up a notch. He probably will face Olson for the middleweight crown eventually, no matter how he makes out in his welter title scrap with Johnny Bratton at Chicago on November 13, loss to Braddon who is an exceedingly good natured welter, wouldn't detract much from a meeting between the Reed and Bobo.

Furillo Made 'Greatest Return'

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Furillo, who brought his batting average up nearly 100 points to capture the National League batting title, was voted Thursday as having made the greatest comeback of the 1953 National League baseball season.

The Brooklyn Dodger outfielder won the honor in a close battle with teammate Gil Hodges. Of the 179 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America who participated in the Associated Press' annual poll, 86 voted for Furillo and 55 voted for Hodges.

Twenty National Leaguers received mention. Moose Irvin, who had a good year with New York Giants after being sidelined most of last season with a broken ankle, placed third with 21 votes.

Argonauts, Riders Are On Spot But Anything Can Happen Over Big Four Football Week-End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There are so many "ifs" attached to the play-off chances of Big Four and Ontario Rugby Football Union teams that even the figure-8 liberty have given up trying to "figure" out the situation. The teams can decide for themselves, on the playing field.

Everything is just about settled in the Western Conference and senior Intercollegiate Union. The 15-game western schedule ends Saturday night and the only thing to be decided is venue of the opening game of the total-point two-game semi-final between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs is the strongest group and considered shoo-ins for their second straight title. They lead the league with six points on three straight victories, two more than University of Toronto Blues who four up on both Queen's and McGill.

Mustangs are at home to Queen's Saturday and McGill journey the last-place and winless McMaster Marauders at Hamilton.

Members Play Home

The Western Conference schedule closes out with Winnipeg meeting the last-place Edmonton Eskimos at Edmonton and the last-place pair of contenders, Calgary Stampeders at home to Saskatchewan.

In the Big Four, Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders are on a knife-edge with six points, four behind Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats tied in second position.

And here's where the "ifs" start. If Toronto beats Ottawa at Ottawa Saturday and Rough Riders snap the Argos' four-game losing streak and knock over the Alouettes at Montreal, eastern Canada fans can look for a tight race to the wire.

If Montreal and Hamilton win, the point spread between the co-leaders and Ottawa and Toronto will be six with three games remaining in the 14-game schedule.

On paper, there looks little difference between the clubs in Saturday's games.

Close Race

The ORFU race shows Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the lead with 14 points, two more than Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach in a three-way tie. The Dutchmen end Imperials each Saturday on a home-and-home 12-game schedule while Beaches have three—two with Brantford Redskins and one looked pretty sad with nine losses in as many starts.

The Imperials meet the Beaches at Sarnia on Saturday and Kitchener is at Brantford. Victory would clinch a playoff berth for the Dutchmen.

Will Feature 'Joe Krol Day' In November

TORONTO (CP)—Retirement of one of Canada's all-time great football players will be marked Nov. 14 by a "Joe Krol day."

Krol's playing days after 13 years in senior football ended abruptly last Saturday when he aggravated a knee injury.

Toronto Argonauts were playing Montreal Alouettes that day and the same two Big Four teams will be in action for Krol's testimonial here Nov. 14 when "King Krol" is honored.

Big Joe, a Windsor high-school standout, broke into the Big Four league with Hamilton Wildcats after playing for the University of Western Ontario Mustangs. He started his nine-year tenure with Argonauts in Montreal Oct. 27, 1945.

In that game, won 31-6 by the Argos, Krol threw four touchdown passes to Royal Copeland, and kicked two converts and two singles.

Wally Hergesheimer, New York, whose third-period goal was enough to give the Rangers a 4-3 decision over Boston Bruins.

Bernie Geoffrion and Kenny Mosdell, Montreal, who pumped home two goals late in the third period to give Canadiens a 3-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Albert Gridders Blank St. Mike's By 32-0 Score

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The powerful Albert College squad of pigskin kickers ran through, around and over St. Michael's to the tune of 32-0 in a senior league game played at Albert College on Thursday afternoon.

The "Purple and Gold" lost no time in scoring when they took advantage of a fumble by a player to march down the field for a TD in the first five minutes of play. Lennox carried the ball over and Vaughan booted the extra point. From then on it was St. Mike's team put up a gallant fight and held the opposition off the score sheet until the third quarter when the score began to pile up.

Vaughan found himself on the "money" end of a ground attack for the second major of the game and a short while later went over from the three yard line on a plunge. Vaughan's convert sent the ball between the uprights for a 20-0 score at the end of 3 quarters.

The final quarter was a nightmare for St. Mike's as they had their players scattered all over their players with slight injuries, and another fumble paved the way for Albert's fourth touchdown. Gill and Gillingham scored on passes from Scott, Vaughan and McCullough respectively.

Scott, Vaughan and McCullough were the stars of the game while Fox, Schrieder and Johnson were good in a losing cause. Fox stood out on account of his fine work in blocking halted drives by the "big men."

St. Mike's: Fox, Foley, St-Denis, O'Neill, Ryan, Johnson-Schrieder, Trudeau, Lennox, Hickey, Hairston, Brown, Masterson, Belanger.

Albert: Vaughan, McCullough, Gillanders, Lennox, Ashton, Berry, Fildenza, Wilman, Babcock, Sandz, Scott, Fleck, Warren, Watson, Gormezi, Pettman, Budrell, Lake, Webster.

BCI Juniors Bow To Campbellford

By PETER UPPER

Campbellford handed the Collegiate Juniors their third straight defeat last night by downing them 13-0 at the C.S.I.

Campbellford scored their first converted touchdown in the first quarter and added another in the second quarter. The Collegiate squad held them through the second half but could not score themselves.

Rob Barnum played a whale of a game for Campbellford. He was the centre-half, the big plunger and the kicker for the visitors.

The Collegiate's pass defence looked fine with the visitors completeling only one and that was a stinker. They stuck almost exclusively to the ground but this was understandable as Fred Desjardine missed the quarter spot where Teddy Batchelor usually plays and Ken Gillespie was the did Jan Genaja for the Collegiate.

It was noticed that the Campbellford squad were good tackling. They hit hard and were fighting all the time.

Campbellford will play host to B.C.I. on Monday next at four o'clock sharp. It should be quite a tilt.

BOB TAYLOR

Belleville-born Bob Taylor who played professional hockey in the Eastern League the past two years, will wear a Belleville McFarlands uniform this season. The 4 190-pound defenceman has seen service with clubs from the Springfield, Indians and been given the reinstatement blessing of the O.S.A.

Virgil Trucks 'Comeback Kid'

NEW YORK (AP)—Virgil Trucks, who was tagged with 19 defeats in 1952 despite hurling two no-hitters, was voted today as American League baseball's comeback kid of 1953.

The 34-year-old righthander, who began the season with the lowly St. Louis Browns but was sold to Chicago White Sox in June, edged out the great Ted Williams for the honor on the strength of his 20 victories, 15 of them compiled with the White Sox.

Trucks received 55 votes to 50 for Williams, with nine others drawing one or more. Mickey Vernon, Washington's brilliant first-baseman and the circuit's batting king drew 29 votes to place third.

A total of 179 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America participated in the Associated Press' annual poll. The 50 ballots cast for Williams was a tremendous tribute to the Red Sox slugger who turned in a spectacular .407 batting mark in 37 games in August and September following his return from Korea. The great hitter actually did not make a comeback, in the sense that he never had experienced a poor season. The 35-year-old Williams' incredible slugging, however, following nearly two years in the services, can truly be regarded as one of the most amazing "comebacks" in the history of baseball.

Ropes Get Nod Over Fighters

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Fighters flew around the Grand Rapids Auditorium Thursday night, as if propelled from a giant slingshot.

The loose ropes around the fight ring gave and received the blows solidly by the fighters' backs, then snapped back, flinging them hither and yon.

Two didn't go into them solidly, and both tumbled out of the ring. Chili Bean Prado, 128, of Detroit, injured his back on the apron in his tumble, and referee Bobby Blagg declared his fight with Dave Moore, 128, Dayton, Ohio, no contest. Bennie Proffitt, 147, Chicago welt out twice before Adrian Hefel, 148, Detroit, floored him twice inside and won on a technical knockout.

Attempts to tighten the ropes ended with the referee calling collapsing on the stadium floor. It took half an hour to get it up again and the main show going between Lester Felton, 148, Detroit and Luther Rawlings, 148, Chicago.

Felton won a unanimous 10-round decision.

ORFU Moguls Change Mind On Deadline

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the four Ontario Rugby Football Union senior teams Thursday decided against waiving the Oct. 1 signing deadline which would allow Jerry Hermill and Blake Taylor to join Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Taylor, property of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four union does not start to play for the Hamilton team. Since the start of the season he has been trying to get his release to play with the Dutchmen. However, Hamilton would not put waivers on the player, leaving another Big Four club would grab him.

When the other three Big Four teams finally agreed to waive on Taylor, the signing deadline had passed. Out of six ballots cast in the OJFU, it is believed that four were against transferring the player. Hamilton Tiger-Cat Garnish Imperials are believed to have cast negative votes for fear of strengthening the Dutchmen and harming their playoff chances.

Hat Trick For Delvecchio Against Juniors

QUEBEC (CP)—Alex Delvecchio scored three goals Thursday night to lead Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League to a 5-2 exhibition victory over Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec Junior Hockey League at Montreal.

John Wilson scored two for the Frontenacs while Al Arbour, Tony Leswick, Metro Prystai and Dutch Reibel scored one each.

Benny Woit, Detroit Provovost and Bob Goldham, Detroit defencemen who were injured in practice, stalled for the losers along with Quebec regulars Fern Turcotte and George Donahue.

Remember When
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Victorias tilted the first challenge of the season for the Stanley Cup, still a challenge trophy 46 years ago today when it was held by the famed Ottawa Silver Seven. But Montreal Wanderers finally emerged Stanley Cup winners in that season of 1905-06. That was the first of three consecutive titles for Wanderers.

Tigers Claw Cataracts 8-2 To Regain Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tigers, able to break away for the odd touchdown, the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series only twice last year, and breathe easier after Thursday night's 8-2 victory over their last second game in as many starts in the new 1953-54 season and Hamilton Tigers are pleading themselves to make sure it's true.

The Tigers regained first place with an 8-2, home-ice victory over Niagara Falls Cataracts, league newcomers. In Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action Thursday night North Bay Trappers pulled their goaltender for an extra forward and scored a goal in the last minute of overtime to tie Pembroke Lumber Kings 3-3 in Pembroke.

In Hamilton the Tigers handed the Cataracts their third consecutive defeat. Murray Comfort had a field day for the Tigers, netting two goals and assisting on two others. Anslow also fired a pair for the Tigers while Cataracts were going to Dinning, Hammond, Busch and Taylor. Glass and McNulty clicked for the Cataracts.

George Gosselin salvaged a point for the Trappers in the shuffle at Pembroke when he fired his tying marker with a minute left to play in the overtime session. Mike Bukachevich and Chester Konopacki scored for the others.

Bruce Gieschbrecht bagged two for the Lumber Kings, including the one that gave Pembroke a 3-2 edge in the overtime period. Jack Douglas counted the other for the Kings.

Action in the Senior OHA loop tonight will see Stratford Indians at Chatham Maroons. In the NOHA Sudbury Wolves play Pembroke.

South plugged himself into a contract of six no-trump. It happens to be able to make either six clubs or six spades or six no-trump when rule bidding would have told you it should be six spades.

At six no-trump, the opening lead from west was the diamond 10. South hauled this in with a diamond top and entered dummy with a heart to the king. From there was returned a small club.

East ducked and south got it with the queen. Spade finesse was now led from south. Thinking declarer needed several tricks in spades, west decided to block that suit by holding up his ace.

So, west played small and dummy overtook with the ten. A small club came back. Again east ducked and south's nine held the trick. The ace of clubs was cashed and this dropped east's king.

Now the declarer reeled in tricks with all his remaining tops in the red suits. Then he led his fourth club that dummy captured with the jack. On the fifth dummy club south shuffled the spade jack.

In this way did the declarer take all 13 tricks at a contract that looked as if it might not take 12. Because east might have had the queen of spades and even the ace with it.

Of course, west could have hopped up on the first spade trick with the ace. This would have held declarer to 12 tricks. But west hoped his lead would give west south from taking 13.

Thus, I could tout you off that six spades was the correct horse to play. But this no-trump skate took top money at long odds. And it was not even a photo finish.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—People just won't let Amos 'n' Andy quit.

The veteran blackface comedics, who have stayed in the big time longer than any radio stars, were thinking of retiring last season, but they're back on the CBS network every Sunday as lusty as ever.

Amos (he also plays Kingfish) is Freeman Gosden, 54, playing father of three children, the spokesman for the comedy team. Andy is Charles Correll, 53, wry, friendly and father of five.

Wires and Calls

"Like a lot of old-timers in radio," Amos recalled, "we sort of felt left out when TV came along. Everybody was talking about the new medium and overlooking radio. We never had any notion about dying with our boots on; we wanted to quit while we were still ahead. So we let it out that we were thinking of retiring."

The reaction was immediate. Amos 'n' Andy fans poured forth a flood of letters, wires and phone calls. When Amos visited a friend in Asheville, N.C., residents heard about it and took a quarter-page ad in the local paper urging: "Please don't quit radio, Amos."

"Things like that helped change our minds," said Amos. "Also there was the urging of William Paley, head of CBS, and Justin Dart, our sponsor. We were impressed by the fact that there are more radios now than ever before. And there are many areas that the sponsors can't reach by TV."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 24, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — As soon as possible, finish work or business matters and devote time to recreation, family affairs. A healthy family is an asset to the native; business and community.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Through steady, cautious and thoughtful application you can achieve much in this fairly generous period. The desire for progress must be followed by action to produce results.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A wisely directed course will lead to just rewards. Stars indicate you can succeed if motivated by worthy instincts and if you attend all phases of action. Not too hard a task! ☺

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Aspects in excellent configuration for well-managed endeavors. An early but smooth start will enhance your possibilities of success, provide at safe speed and with dexterity.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Stimulating days abound for you this day. Need we say more to the active-minded, industrious ones? Opposition may come from unexpected sources, so be alerted, in proper position to combat.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Curb a tendency to oversensitiveness this day and remember that an open, imaginative mind has a better chance than a set, determined one. With patience we achieve.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Look for a turn for the good around noon. Finish up leftover chores and, with clean slate, place yourself to take advantage of new opportunities. Protecting charges protects your assets.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—You are in the middle of a refreshing, progressive influence. Maybe you can advance in a completely new field. Possible gains in financial and personal affairs, bring great satisfaction.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius)—Be selective in your interests and in possible deals. Remain in the back ground at first to get a bird's-eye prospective. In pen, influences are better and you can make up for slack periods.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Day favors matters requiring courage and initiative. Young people born under this Sign need intelligent guidance, gentle rather than forceful suggestions. Kindness assuages anger.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Some irregularities. Premature decisions could react unfavorably. In the P.M. influences are better.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Prepare now for good things to come in later hours. Efficiency, steady-knit action will save time and money. Be not adverse to well meant suggestions.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusual, highly shrewd, keen in business and personal matters; have the ability to see and solve problems while others are still thinking them over. Though sometimes too critical or too skeptical, you have grit, fortitude and are a great help in hours of need; sickness. You are fond of luxuries, travel but take them in moderate doses. Many fields are open to you. Choose wisely and you can achieve. Birthdate: Anthony van Leeuwenhoek, Dutch microscopist.

WAR CLAIMS COMMISSION

NOTICE

To ex-prisoners of war in Europe (including internees) who have not yet sent, and to surviving dependents of deceased prisoners of war

Notice is hereby given that the War Claims Commission, with the approval of the Government of Canada, has today adopted an amended interpretation of the War Claims Rules applicable to claims for compensation for personal effects (including merchant seamen) in Europe during World War II.

Under the amended interpretation, there have been removed the two presumptions of fact applicable to the following classes of claims:

(1) that no claim for compensation for personal effects will be considered;

(2) that claims presumably subsisted for some period or time after capture;

(3) that some degree of incompetency to work resulted;

(4) that work presumably subsisted for some period or time after capture.

On the basis of the amended interpretation, therefore, the Commission will now entertain claims in which the majority of claims of this class on the strength of documentary evidence provided by the claimants and of evidence obtained by the Commission, satisfies it that the prisoner relieving most individual claimants from the necessity of proof at all regarding oral hearings.

It should be borne in mind, however, that in order to avoid the necessity of appearing before a member of the Commission, claimants who have not already given notice of their intention to claim, should forward such notice in writing to the War Claims Commission, Department of Veterans Affairs, Ottawa, Ontario.

Given at Ottawa this seventh day of October A.D. 1953.

THANK A. CAMPBELL,
Chief War Claims Commissioner.

Israel Defies U.N., Continues Dam Construction

Construction work on diversion and damming of the waters of the Jordan river along the Syrian border is continuing despite U.N. orders to the Israeli government to stop. U.N. aid to Israel has been withheld because the work is continuing against U.N. wishes. Purpose of the water diversion to supply hydro-electric power to Israel. This power shovel is digging in the swampy bed of the Hubel river.—Central Press Canadian.

Court to Decide If Tax Records To Remain Secret

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—If you happen to be a smuggler, bookie, burglar or the operator of any illegal business, a case pending in the Supreme Court of Canada should interest you.

On its outcome may hinge your safety from the law insofar as the income tax act is concerned.

The law now requires every person to file an income tax return. If he doesn't, he can be prosecuted for evading income tax. These returns are secret and never go beyond the taxation.

This applies to criminals the same as anyone else. Any criminal can make a frank statement to the income tax people about his illgotten gains and be sure that he word of it will ever be used against him in court.

No record of income taxes can be produced in court in criminal cases. The reason, officials say, is this: The law requires everyone to file income tax returns. Therefore, it would be wrong to use his return in prosecuting against a person who had obeyed the law by filing the return in the first place. It would mean self-incrimination.

The case pending before the Supreme Court arose in Vancouver when 37 persons were arrested and charged as bookies. The prosecution requested that the suspects income tax returns be produced in court, so that income tax official testify orally about contents of the returns.

The income tax department refused, arguing that the income tax act does not permit any such testimony in a criminal case.

The Supreme Court of appeal for British Columbia upheld the attorneys-generals department argues that it is time to the public interest that criminals be brought to justice than the federal taxation department collect revenues from them.

Manitoba's First Flowing Wells Producing Oil

VIRDEN, Man. (CP)—A new oilfield with Manitoba's first flowing wells is blossoming on the outskirts of this farming town, 193 miles west of Winnipeg.

Discovery of the area was discovered in August of the old Melville Farm, two miles north-west of the town. More drilling followed, and Thursday Imperial Oil Limited announced had brought in another flowing well with an initial flow rated at 236 barrels of light crude daily—possibly the biggest producer yet in Manitoba.

Most Manitoba oil activity is centred in the Daly field, 10 miles southwest of Virden, where 56 "pumpers" produced 31,160 barrels of crude in August.

Others Bet Small

Small discoveries have been made at other scattered points in the southwestern corner of the province, but no hopes of a major field.

Climax of first by-passed the once-famous farm at Virden where Scot pioneer Kenny McIver cut the first Western Rye grass for the parched ranges of North and South Dakota. He sold the property to grandson Harley, whose drilling company did strike oil Thursday at Daly, persuaded the rest of the family who still have a joint interest in the estate to let the drill on the home ground.

In August, he and brother George brought in the province's first flowing well at Waskada-Rosebend No. 1. Five more likely producers were drilled on the farm before Imperial Oil, and Canadian Atlantic's Leduc and Redwater fields, 1,200 miles to the west, became the road on the W. C. Skinner farm.

Production is from the Mississippian formation, source of production at other Williston basin fields like Daly and Tioga, N.D.

Drill Two More

Two more-wells are being drilled and more are planned.

The discovery well which yielded 3,438 barrels in its first month now is being equipped for pumping 150 barrels daily.

The new Imperial well is being operated through a one-quarter inch choke which conserves flow for efficient production. Officials said the high quality crude—35 gravity oil, free from sulphur and industrial—is free from water which was doused high hopes in two other Manitoba wildcat discoveries.

The initial flow of 236 barrels a day is expected to drop somewhat under constant flow.

Mr. Skinner owns the mineral rights on his farm and retained a 12½-per-cent royalty interest when he leased the rights to Imperial Oil. Some Virden business men, who formed a mineral boom after discovery of the Daly field, formed a syndicate to buy an interest in the royalty.

IVANHOE

Rev. J. McMurray Guest Speaker at W. Huntingdon

IVANHOE. — Anniversary services observed at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, on Sunday, were greatly attended both morning and evening.

Rev. John McMurray, pastor of the Roslin charge, was guest minister and delivered stirring messages.

At the morning worship, Mr. McMurray chose for his text, "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

"We evaluate everything on a worldly monetary basis. But who estimates the worth of a soul? Not among the sons of men can be the price!

"The majestic mountains, the starlit seas, the scintillating stars, night well relate their tale of the rise and decline of untold civilizations and yet these are corporal and must pass away, but the soul is eternal—Jesus Christ forsook religious celebration of regional territorial —He left heaven and came to earth to die on Calvary's Cross to ransom back the soul of man.

"It was of the soul He spoke when He said "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost".

"The value of the soul is so great. The loss of the soul is a tragedy."

The evening service was conducted by the pastor of St. Andrew's, Rev. W. H. V. Walker, who welcomed the large congregation, many coming from neighboring churches. Services were withdrawn at Beulah United, Ivanhoe, Fuller Presbyterian and St. Andrew's, Stirling.

Evening Message

In the "Fatal Choice", was the subject of Mr. McMurray's evening message, based on "What shall I do with Jesus which is called the Christ?"

"This is the eternal question. It is inevitable. The scene of Christ's trial and crucifixion are shrouded in mystery. Here we behold mortal fingers of man clinching a scourge that stripes, the broken bleeding back of the King of Kings and Lord of Lords —the creature chastens his creator.

"What brought it about? Sin knocked at the door of Adam's heart, and man by transgression fell. A fallen race needed a Saviour, and God's own Son volunteered. The drama of destiny takes place in the council chambers. Man faces God across a judgment bar. Pilate realizes the significance of the occasion and cries out:

"What shall I do with Jesus which is called Christ?"

"Pilate's question still echoes today—What will you do with Jesus? Accept Christ and He will make you. Reject Him and He will break you!"

Autumn Flowers

Among the autumn flowers attractively arranged was a basket of brown and yellow mums placed in the church by Mrs. J. C. Sills in memory of her husband.

Special music for the day, included morning service, "Lead Me Gently Home", women's voices. Solo "Thanks Be to God," Mrs. William Grant. Evening anthem, "Abide With Me"; a duet, "Take Time to Be Holy", by Mrs. K. Nicol and Miss A. Fleming.

Canadians Meet Match In Korean Food

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP)—Canadian troops who stood up to some of Korea's bitterest fighting and coldest weather apparently met their match in Korean food.

Today when the 1st battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, celebrates the first anniversary here of their biggest battle in Korea they are to do so in an oriental atmosphere. But Korean chow is not included.

The army says that five cooks were sent to Ottawa recently for a special two-day course in Chinese cooking in preparation for the festivities. They took their "course" at an Ottawa Chinese restaurant.

Describing Korean food as "unpalatable," the army said it was decided to serve the North American version of Chinese food to provide the desired Oriental atmosphere. The menu includes: Chicken noodle soup, sweet and sour spare ribs, egg foo yung, chicken mushroom chop suey, Chinese almond cookies and colong tea.

Think That U.S. Will Reduce Aid Given to Europe

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States administration officials are considering further cuts in foreign economic aid on the theory that, because of Europe's improving economic health, they would not weaken defences unduly.

This administration reasoning is expected to be reflected in budget proposals to Congress next year for appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Economic improvements in Europe are measured, for example, by the expected achievement of a $9,000,000,000 total of gold and dollar reserves behind European currencies. Such gains are attributed not only to the prolonged U. S. assistance programs, but also to renewed confidence by the Europeans in themselves and to the cumulative effects of recovery methods, wartime destruction.

Review Progress

The economic prospects and outlook will be reviewed in Paris next week by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, which includes 17 countries. Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's chief of foreign operations, will attend in the role of observer. He is expected to tell the Europeans that they can count on a relatively stable American economy for a long time in the future.

Stassen and his advisers estimate that the next round of congressional appropriations will show:

1. A further decline in the economic assistance for Europe.

2. An increase in assistance and development aid for the Middle East and Far East and an unchanged contribution of U. S. aid to Latin America.

Two By-Elections In Saskatchewan On Wednesday

By WILFRED CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's CCF government seeks to increase its representation in the 53-seat provincial legislature in two by-elections among 44 members in by-elections to be held Wednesday next in the city of Regina and in rural Souris-Estevan.

The by-elections, made necessary when the provincial Liberal party lost two of its 10 members, in no way produce the only Progressive Conservative, voice in the assembly. Premier T. C. Douglas' CCF and Liberals nine and two vacant.

The by-election in Souris-Estevan was called after Liberal leader Walter Tucker resigned to contest successfully a federal election in the 19 to 19 general election. Souris - Estevan has been represented by Liberals since Liberal whip J. E. McCorriack was killed in a traffic accident last spring.

Five Running

Five candidates have filed papers. The CCF entered two, Liberals one and Social Credit one. A fifth candidate is backed jointly by the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties, although he is a Progressive Conservative.

RUSHING NATURE

VANCOUVER (CP)—How a little piglet can be turned into a 200-pound hog in a matter of 12 days was told by Dr. Alex Wood, director of the animal nutrition laboratory of the University of British Columbia. They have found a growing time in half by using pure cane sugar in the porker's diet.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The weather will be cooler this week-end across Ontario. Cloudy skies and widely scattered showers will continue to day in southern regions with clearing expected by Sunday morning. The clearing in the north country will occur by noon and Sunday will be sunny across the province.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—John Hager, the cab driver who tipped police to confessed kidnap-slayer Carl Austin Hall, was released by FBI agents about eight hours after he was seized early today.

Two agents routed Hager out of bed about 12:30 a. m., telling his wife only they were taking him to the office.

Hager told newspaper men as he left FBI offices that he was questioned "about the whole old story." He said he was served with a subpoena to appear before the federal grand jury in Kansas City Tuesday.

The jurors are scheduled to begin an inquiry into the kidnap-slaying of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease then.

Mysterious Fair Maid

Still unexplained was the seizure of a blonde woman who tipped police from a small downtown hotel about the same time Hager was taken into custody.

The pair was not identified. Police and FBI men, who blocked off entrances to the hotel, refused to comment on the arrests. They would not say where the two were taken or whether they have been released.

Hager spent a large part of two days with Hall drinking, eating and drinking with him, before he decided Hall was the man wanted for post office lieutenant Louis Shoemaker.

FBI and police have been conducting an intensive hunt for the missing half of the $600,000 ransom money paid by Robert C. Greenlease of Kansas City in an effort to secure the freedom of his six-year-old son, who was found slain after the Hall-Hedly arrests.

Hall contends he does not know what happened to the missing $300,000.

25-DAY SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED; SOME INCREASES

Agreement Signed Will Run a Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The storm that has hit Canada's ocean shipping eased Friday.

The 25-day seamen's strike ended with an agreement for a basic 56-a-month wage increase and a shorter working week.

And, with the strike out of the way, the cabinet will feel free to get on with making a decision whether to rush a federal subsidy to keep the fleet sailing.

The strike, called by the Seafarer's International Union (AFL), affected the 1,000 men in the 23 ships of Canada's ocean fleet, tied up about a third of the ships which happened to be in port. Those at sea were not affected.

Settled by Compromise

The union compromised on its original demands—a $30-a-month boost for "overtime" personnel and a 40-hour week at sea—and the owners promised not to discriminate against strikers.

The agreement, signed at Montreal by the union, gives the 56-a-month increase across the board, where the average basic wage is $250 a month, or $1.50 an hour. The week-week at sea will be 44 hours, eight hours less than there will be no change in overtime rates.

The diesel engine room personnel, who do only day work, will have their basic wage raised $30 a month, week at sea, making a 40-hour week, and get a raise of $15 a month.

Some smaller points are still not settled, but it is certain that the operators will not have recourse to lying up the ships and using them for grain storage. They had indicated that it might be necessary.

The settlement is based on the proposals made in mediation by federal labor department officials.

Pace New Problem

So, having solved its internal dispute, the industry now turns to the general economic problem of keeping going.

The cabinet, reluctant to make any move while the strike was in progress, has before it the shipowners' plea for a subsidy.

It will have to decide whether it is worth keeping a "nucleus" fleet on the theory that whenever how big it should be and how it can be kept operating in face of cheaper world rates are still competition.

A committee of departmental experts reported that the fleet can be kept going on a subsidy which might run to $5,000,000 a year.

Supervisor Draws Up Report On Arab-Israeli Incidents

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United Nations Palestine truce supervisor today drew up a report to the Security Council on threatening Arab-Israeli border incidents as tension continued to rise in the Holy Land area.

Denmark's Maj.-Gen. Vagn Bennike, the supervisor, was scheduled to give the council Tuesday the truce commission's version of recent frontier bloodshed, including an Israeli attack on Jordanian border villages in which 66 Arabs were reported killed.

Israel and her neighbors have accused each other of aggression and violation of the armistice agreement. Syria also has charged the Israelis with illegally diverting the waters of the Jordan river.

Wars Arab Stages

Bennike reworked on his report, informed sources in London said. Britain has informally advised the Arab states and Israel to avoid any military action that might upset Middle East stability.

These sources said the London government is confident that the Western powers still stand firmly on their 1950 declaration guaranteeing the frontiers and security of the area. Britain, the United States and France signed the pact in the UN investigation into the border disturbances.

Jordan has officially denied Israeli charges that large concentrations of Jordan's Arab Legion have been moved into the Jerusalem area, but Syria is reported to have moved troops up to the Israeli border with orders to inform Jordan of any possible Israeli aggression.

In a meeting at Amman, Jordan's capital, Friday night, two sub-committees of the eight-country Arab League hammered out decisions on several political, economic and military aspects of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

No details were announced, but Mukhtar Muhtadi, the Jordan premier said "reasonable and practical" steps would become known as they were put into practice.

Israeli Statement

An Israeli military spokesman in Jerusalem, meanwhile, said the Israeli government Friday denounced the derailment of an Israeli freight train by exploding mines as a grave truce breach.

The train was blasted Thursday in the Halfa-Lydda line. Israeli officials have called the explosion "a truce act."

Tears that Bennike's report would be delayed by an involved preamble and putting the counter charges on the agenda were allayed when Soviet delegate Semen Tsarapkin said he would not press for several days debate on their aggression charge.

Repatriation Commission May Call Off Violent Explanations

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The Indian command today gained another 48 hours for its attempt to talk Communists into handing over prisoners into listening to Red efforts to persuade them to return home.

The neutral nations repatriation commission is scheduled to make an announcement Monday that, a spokesman said, will postpone indefinitely the stalled explanations.

Only agreement by the Korean POWs to hear the Red "explanation" can break the deadlock, and it appears unlikely that the Indians can persuade the Communists to agree before the commission announcement is made.

The announcement was to have come today, but was put off until Monday when Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya command two more days to talk with the Indian members of the anti-Red Korean POWs.

The explanations were halted last March when the prisoners refused to leave their compounds to be interviewed by men in a U.N. agents.

While the Indians tackled the touchy problem, Arthur Dean, special United States envoy, said today in Seoul that he is hopeful it will take no more than "10 days to two weeks" of negotiations with the Communists to complete arrangements for a Korean political conference.

Dean met reporters shortly after conferring with Syngman Rhee, South President Syngman Rhee. He said they agreed that South Korea will have an observer at the political ary talks.

Communist and Allied officers here agreed today that the prisoner-of-war talks will be held on the armistice demarcation line.

Heavy New Rains Add to Damage In South Italy

By ALLAN JACKS

OLIVETO, Italy (AP)—Heavy new rains set swollen-raging torrents boiling anew today through at least half a dozen flood-stricken villages in this mountain region above Reggio Calabria.

The storm added to the vast devastation caused the last two days when flood waters inundated a thousand-square-mile, area.

Officials of Reggio Calabria province put the death toll figure might pass 100.

Other estimates were higher.

Today's floods halted attempts of rescue workers to get food and other emergency supplies to an estimated 2,000 hungry, grief-stricken survivors in the flooded mountain communities.

A ministry of health office official in charge of rescue operations said Friday authorities were watching closely for an outbreak of epidemics.

The violent downpour began early this morning, on the heels of a night-long light rain.

The new flood ripped out emergency roads built along river beds after the flash floods two days ago and tumbled more mud and rock into the homes inhabitants and scoo diers had cleared.

TROOPS HANDLE GASOLINE ENDING TRAFFIC THREAT

Order Cabinet Members To Remain in London

By ROBERT F. S. JONES

LONDON (AP)—Troops in full battle kit took over distribution of emergency gasoline supplies in the London area today as a wildcat strike of tank truck drivers that all but paralyzed district road transport entered its sixth day.

Red-fresh troubles loomed in the wake of the government's order calling in the soldiers. Bus conductors and drivers at several of London transport board's depots voted to walk out if their bodies are used to drive army-delivered gasoline.

Army troops moved in as every garage within a 40-mile radius of London reported its fuel tanks dry. The government has clamped on a rigid ration system, giving essential services first call on available gasoline and oil.

Keep Cabinet Handy

Prime Minister Churchill ordered all members of his cabinet to remain in London during the week-end—a measure of how serious, possible emergency.

The armed troops—1,000 soldiers and 1,000 RAF men—marched briskly into the city's gasoline depots at 6 o'clock and then moved aboard the fleets of idle tank trucks.

The 2,000 drivers quit work Monday, demanding that the wages of all non-union co-workers, full union recognition by the industry and a 44-hour week. Union drivers already have been averaging $47 5s 6d ($132.30) a week.

The strikers announced Friday night they were prepared to modify the demands, but the proposed changes were not disclosed. At a police-guarded meeting later, leaders of the Transport and General Workers' Union refused to accept demands which they termed unconstitutional.

Another task for the troops is to get food distribution trucks to the road again in order to deliver the huge city's vital food. Thousands of tons of food probably may be without their produce London day-roast because of the gasoline shortage.

Essential services such as hospitals, doctors, nurses, postal delivery, sewage disposal units and undertakers come next on the list. Then will come supplies to public transport and garages.

200 Snowbound Hunters Signal Need for Food

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP)—"Operation Breakthrough," to rescue an estimated 200 snowbound big-game hunters in the northern Wyoming Big Horn mountains, will move into high gear today.

Forest service officials and law officers have ordered the dropping of additional game food equipment and four "weasels" — snowmobiles from Yellowstone Park.

The hunters were trapped in the mountains when a storm dumped more than 30 inches of snow and accompanying winds piled drifts four feet deep.

Three reconnaissance planes spotted the hunters Thursday and Friday and reported sighting six camps where hunters have been stamped in the snow. This indicates a need for food. Otherwise the hunters are apparently in good condition.

Knew Devil Was in Baby As He Hissed So Detroit Mother Strangles Children

DETROIT (AP)—A slight, 27-year-old mother accused of strangling her two children to death says she "just brought her peace of mind."

Assistant prosecutor John Mowat said he will ask a first-degree murder warrant against Mrs. Shirley Boyd of suburban Inkster Monday. In the meantime he ordered her confined to a hospital.

Police chief Charles Deplanche of Inkster said Mrs. Boyd told him she strangled 18-month-old Mark Richard and choked the life out of seven-year-old Mark Richard, Jr.

Mrs. Boyd told police she knew the devil was in the baby" because he had himself at her, and that she knew the devil was in Terry Robert, 200, "otherwise he couldn't have fought against me so hard."

Evidence of Terry's fight was on his arm. There were three marks where the youngster appeared to have been bitten. Mowat said.

Ridgway Warns West Still Stands In Great Peril

Says 'We May Be Gambling With All That Is Precious'

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, urging a continued build-up of North Atlantic Treaty Organization military power in Europe, today said "we may be gambling away with all that is precious."

The United States Army chief of staff, who himself was NATO commander in Europe until this summer, said in a speech prepared for delivery at Lafayette College: "Soldiers by still another great peril."

His disclaimed intention of getting into the discussion of "radical new weapons" as an immediate substitute for conventional arms. But he suggested the world might reject one of such newspapers, or both sides in a war might use up their stocks of these without decisive result.

NATO "still has major deficiencies in manpower, equipment, units, arms and equipment, logistical establishments, reserves, and organization, and above all in air power," he said.

Arab Nations Reject Proposal For Use of Rivers

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Arab nations have rejected a plan presented here by President Eisenhower's special envoy for a joint irrigation and power project with Israel, Lebanese Premier Abdullah el Yafi said Friday night.

"No Arab state will agree to such a project designed mainly for the benefit of Israel," the premier told a reporter.

Eric Johnston, Eisenhower's envoy to the Middle East, disclosed the plan after his arrival here Thursday night. It proposes that Jordan, Syria and Lebanon cooperate in building a $121,000,000 Jordan-financed scheme for harnessing the waters of the Yarmuk and Jordan rivers. The project would provide irrigation waters for large areas of Jordan and whatever is left for the other countries involved.

Former Signal Corps O. C. Attends Reunion

Royal Canadian Signal Corps Observes 50th Anniversary

Conceived in sun-flashed heliographs; the wink-blink of lamps, and the "dah-dah-dah-dit" alphabet of Morse, the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, the oldest in the Commonwealth, observes its fiftieth anniversary today.

Formed in 1903 with 68 all ranks, the corps flashed into active service in World War I and distinguished itself in the second global conflict.

Today, at Vimy Barracks, Kingston, nearly 1,000 members of the permanent units of the corps along with 700 of their permanent force brothers, will honor a half-century of outstanding service.

From Montreal come two buglers, regimental musicians of Toronto which, with single regiments from Ottawa and London, are represented by drummers from Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Halifax, Quebec, Charlottetown, Fredericton and Saint John, along with those from the corps unit in the corps, will march with the permanent force units from Kingston and Camp Borden in a giant "Happy Birthday" parade this afternoon.

Proudly heading and interspersed in the parade will be five bands of the Corps. Three of these are of the trumpet variety with the other two military type.

The two-day observations began in the RCCS officers' mess at Vimy Barracks' Friday night when Brigadier J. E. Genet, honorary colonel commandant of the Corps.

Brigadier Genet, who resides at Rosmore, was awarded the CBE and MC for distinguished service in two world wars. He came to this district in 1947. He is credited with the fine reputation enjoyed by his corps at the end of World War II. He first became involved in signalling in June, 1916, as a lieutenant in France. His work at that time was chiefly concerned with artillery signals and he was awarded the Military Cross in September, 1916.

After the armistice he rejoined the Canadian Army as a lieutenant in Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry but later served with the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. Before there was a vacancy for him on Signals' establishment in 1924, he had served the corps as district Signal officer in Toronto; as adjutant and quarter-master of the Royal School of Signals at Rockliffe; as officer commanding The Depot, RC Signals at Camp Borden, and instructor at the Royal School of Signals, Camp Borden. In 1934 he became a member of the corps as a captain, and was promoted major in 1935. Before the Second World War he was adjutant to the director of signals at Ottawa and instructor at the Canadian Signal Training Centre.

Added Responsibilities

In 1939 he was chosen to command, First Canadian Divisional Signals, and as the Canadian Army expanded overseas throughout the war he remained the Chief Signals Officer, his responsibilities increasing as the army grew. Throughout the Northwest Europe Campaign he was chief signals officer, First Canadian Army, and was the only senior officer in the Canadian Army overseas who had remained at the head of his service throughout the war. General Crerar attributes this to "his genius for picking able men, persuading them to operate around themselves and give of their best to the signal service. For his outstanding service to his country he received the CBE.

In July 1946 Brigadier Genet was awarded the United States' Legion of Merit (Degree of Commander). The citation, signed by President Truman, described him as a "master of improvisation, a great organizer, speedily solving new and difficult problems under adverse conditions, and establishing and maintaining vital communications which contributed in an important degree to the success of Allied operations."

Brig. Genet retired from a full and rewarding military career in 1947. The presentation of a portrait in oils by the noted British Royal Portraitist Maurice Codner, R.P., in May 1947 attested to his popularity by the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. In 1951-52 he was president of the Canadian Signals Association, and this year he was chosen to head the committee in charge of the corps' anniversary celebrations at Vimy Barracks, Kingston.

Other Belleville men who have served as officers of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals include Lt.-Col. R. H. Widdifield, Lt.-Col. A. B. Hunt, Major H. B. Vance and Brig. F. F. Fulton (now of Montreal).

Producers Take Loss in Sale To Ensure Export Market

The decision of the Ontario Marketing Board to sell ten million pounds of cheese to Great Britain was described Friday afternoon by an official of the Producers Association as a "do or die" negotiation.

The price which so far have been agreed upon by the British buyers is 26 1-2 cents a pound, while the Canadian government had guaranteed the Cheese Producers a floor price of 30 cents a pound to be effective for all surplus cheese on November 1st. The sale of 10 million pounds of cheese at a three-and-a-half cent a pound loss was described as "a licking that the Board decided to accept at this time in the hope of getting it back in the future."

The official explained that the Canadian Cheese industry has been trying for a year to get the government to release dollars for the purchase of Canadian cheese in Great Britain, but was recently made available, it was decided to let the sale go except the offer rather than slam the door on a year's negotiations, despite the financial disastrous loss.

Wants British Market

"The cheese industry wants to keep its foot in the door of the British market," he said, "and we didn't not wish to be named, stated. "By accepting this offer now, we hope to be able to maintain an export market that is vital to the stability of the industry."

He pointed out that it is not safe for the producers to try to produce exactly what the Canadian market can consume. It is necessary to produce a surplus to protect the industry against large imports should the Canadian market expand. And it is also essential that the industry, to maintain its domestic price, should have an export market to drain off the surplus production as it accumulates.

"Without an export market to handle surplus production, it would be necessary for many factories to close," he stated.

"If the Board were thinking only of the immediate loss and could see angle of this deal, they would not have considered it" he said. "But they are looking at the years ahead, and the future of the cheese industry as a whole," he stated.

It was also pointed out that if the government purchased the surplus cheese, the cheese would remain in the country building up a stockpile that would ultimately force down the price.

Factories Protected

Factories which have sold cheese to the Marketing Board for the past five months will be paid at a price equal to that received by factories which sold cheese to the domestic trade according to Mr. W. C. Coon, president of the association.

It is expected that the price adjustment, which will be paid in full on the basis of the guaranteed 30 cents per pound for Canada No. 1 Grade, effective November 1st, will be met by funds from the Cheese Producers three cent a pound levy to the trade during the past year.

In a prepared statement issued Friday by Mr. Coon, he stated that the sale of the surplus ten million cheese would "materially relieve" what the industry had feared would be a demoralizing surplus at the opening of the 1954 dairy season.

Junior Farmers Hold Service At Foxboro

The Thurlow Junior Farmers and Junior Institute again held their annual church service in the Foxboro United Church on Sunday, October 18th at 8 p.m. The church was fittingly and seasonally decorated with colorful arrangements of large green melons, corn husks, pumpkins, ferns bittersweet and branches of maple; and with this was a centre background of cornstalks and cattails.

Capacity Crowd.

A capacity crowd attended the special service and heard the guest speaker, Mr. Linton Read, B.A., of the Belleville Collegiate staff, deliver a masterly and challenging address particularly for young people. Mr. Read's subject was "Quo Vadis"; (Whither Thou?)

The president, Mr. Ralph Swan, opened the service and the vice-president, Mr. Allen Lott, offered prayer. Miss Kathleen Rose was at the responsive reading.

Mr. Roy Treverton was the special organist.

The minister of the Church, Rev. Harold W. Giffin, welcomed the guest speaker.

'Blithe Spirit' To Be Produced By Theatre Guild

The Belleville Theatre Guild has chosen for its first production of the current season, Noel Coward's "improbable farce" Blithe Spirit. This spirited comedy, a smash hit in both London and New York, a brief decade ago, is slated for presentation at the Collegiate auditorium early next month.

Such Rouge, whose productions of "The Voice of the People" and "The Happy Time" are still happy memories of Belleville first-nighters, is directing this somewhat more ambitious production. Included in the cast are Vera Thompson, who starred in "Heaven Can Wait"; Katharine Darling-ton of "The Ghost Train," Court Miller, of "Overlaid," supported by Pat Bennett, Jones Gibbon, Flo Tarney and Harold Bankier.

Production chief Joe McKay reports that set construction and properties for the effects are nearing completion. The effect-iveness of the production will be much enhanced by the brilliant artistry of Philippa Faulkner in charge of lighting and the ingenuity of Stu Robb, who will create the difficult special effects.

Some Adjustments Made in Night Classes at BCI

Insufficient registration in some of the courses being offered night school students at the Belleville Collegiate has necessitated an adjustment in the adult education curriculum according to principal G. E. Currie.

Classes in advanced education and the English and mathematics of the academic group have been combined into one group because of insufficient registration in either class. The combined group is large enough to allow the class to go forward.

The plumbing and sheet metal working classes have been combined and the subjects will be taught on alternate nights each week.

The stationary engineering group, which needs 12 students, has only nine registrations. Mr. Currie has announced that the class will be kept open until Tuesday night, October 27th, in the hope that the required number will be made up. He also says that all those registered in these groups attend the Tuesday night classes, so that a decision can be made on continuance of the classes can be made.

The music appreciation group drew just four registrations while the meter servicing class but three. These classes will be discontinued but student fees will be refunded.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

By HORACE B. POWELL

Spirit Of God Descend Upon My Heart

Spirit of God, descend upon my heart;
Wean it from earth; thro' all its pulses move;
Stoop to my weakness, mighty as thou art,
And let me love thee as I ought to love.

I ask no dream, no prophet ecstasies,
No sudden rending of the veil of clay,
No angel visitant, no opening skies;
But take the dimness of my soul away.

Teach me to feel that thou art always nigh;
Teach me the struggles of the soul to bear
To check the rising doubt, the rebel sigh;
Teach me the patience of unanswered prayer.

Teach me to love thee as thine angels love,
One holy passion filling all my frame,
The baptism of the heaven-descended Dove,
My heart an altar, and thy love the flame.

"Spirit Of God, Descend Upon My Heart"

"If we live the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

Dr. George Croly, London preacher, took this bit of scripture from Galatians 5: 25 for his text when he wrote this lovely spiritual hymn in 1854. It was published in a collection of Psalms and Hymns for Public Worship which became very popular with nineteenth century Christians.

Dr. Croly was born in Dublin, Ireland on August 17, 1780. He was graduated in 1804 from the University of England. He moved to London and devoted a good bit of his later life to literary work. It was while pursuing this writing career that he found time to compose his religious poems. In 1831, he was honored with the degree of doctor of laws by his alma mater in Dublin.

Frederick C. Atkinson, English musician and organist, composed the tune for Dr. Croly's hymn, "Spirit Of God." Atkinson studied music at Cambridge University and, after graduating, became the organist at Manningham Church, Bradford, and at Norwich Cathedral. He wrote other popular sacred music, and tunes for religious songs and anthems of his day.

All In The Game

By Dr. Ralph W. Sockman

Three weeks ago I returned from a speaking tour in England. While I was there the cricket test matches were on between Britain and Australia. Public interest was at fever pitch. That contest was as exciting to the English as our World Series is to us.

England is a sporting nation. One thing which always fascinates me on my visits there is the interest in sports. The papers gave it more prominent space than in America. The Queen's horses carry her colors. Tennis at Wimbledon is an international event. Soccer was born in Britain.

The spirit of sportsmanship has been a great asset to England. I do not know how much truth there is in the old saying that Britain's battles have been won on the playing fields of Eton. But I do believe that her sports have bred in England a spirit and stamina which have sustained her through continued bombings and hardships.

Life Is A Game

The factors which make for good sportsmanship also make for good living. For life is a game. We often speak of life as a battle. It's better to think of it as a game. Games develop skill and strength without the bitterness and destruction of battles.

A game must have limits to give it fun and zest. The better has a limit of three strikes. He must make his hit or get-away within that limit or he is out. If the player could stand at the plate and keep on striking until he makes a hit, baseball would be too dull for playing or watching. The golfer at the tee is allowed one drive. If he could keep on hitting at the ball until he got a drive which satisfied him, some of us would be at the first tee yet.

The game of life also has its limits. We must make our play within an allotted span of time. The proverbial "three score years and ten" seems pretty short. Some of us may not have much of that left. We may complain about the shortness of time. But suppose we could write our own time tickets and live until we called a halt on ourselves! Would that make us happier? Far from it. Think what a magnificent game some persons play when they know the time is short!

Some of us bemoan our limitations in the game of life. We live in little places. Or we haven't much money. Or our health is not very good.

Pleasure of Economy

Such situations make me recall a chapel talk given by a great college president on "The Pleasures of Economy." Isn't it true that part of the fun of life is found in seeing how much we can do with a little? Isn't it true that young brides often get a real kick out of showing their husbands how far they can make their limited budgets go? Later when their purses are full they will probably look back on those early struggles as the happiest years of their lives.

How about those limitations under which we live? Maybe they are the very things which show our mettle and make the rest of the game. Years ago a young carpenter grew up in a town which we Canadians would think a mighty poor place to live in. He was poor. He never travelled more than a few miles from home. His life was cut off at 33. Yet within those limits He lived the most radiant and glorious life the world has ever seen.

Risks And Hazards.

And of course the game of life has risks and hazards. There is also an element of chance. The farmer takes a chance on the weather when he sows his seed. The lover takes a chance when he starts a home. But remember, there could be no faith and courage in a world where there was no risk. There could be no romance in love if there were no hazards. Only dead things are all cut-and-dried.

And remember, too, that in life we are playing under a Great Umpire who wants us to win.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

Without previously knowing anything about the bird, we get a certain impression when we hear the name "sparrow hawk", and that impression is wrong. One would naturally suppose it to be a great eater of sparrows. True, this little hawk very occasionally does catch a young bird; but as it is only 10 inches long itself (just the size of a robin), naturally a continuous bird diet would be rather difficult.

This is so seldom the case that when a sparrow hawk is discovered devouring another bird the event calls for remarks. In the April issue of "The Auk", a magazine put out by the American Ornithologists' Union, a report is given of one that actually pulled two fledgling bluebirds out of their nesting box, and proceeded to eat them. "Grasshopper hawk" would really be a more suitable name. Indeed, it is fond of various kinds of insects, although when they are not available it lives on mice, frogs, and so on.

This is a true falcon—first cousin of the gyrfalcon, peregrine falcon, and pigeon hawk. Our little falcon, which by the way is sometimes called "kestrel", is the only one actually common in Canada.

It hunts in the manner of all true falcons, not circling a large area from a great height as do some hawks, Certain lookout stations are chosen as perches, for instance the top of a tall dead tree near a clearing. The bird beats about over the open space, hovering now and then, and on sighting the quarry comes down almost straight, kingfisher style. Civilization has helped the increase of the sparrow hawk, as it prefers pastures with scattered trees rather than forests. The erect, chisel shaped silhouette, with pointed, back-bending wings and long, straight tail, is unmistakable.

The male is the brightest colored of any of our predators—really a little beauty, with red cap outlined in blue grey, a red back, red tail, and blue grey wings. Black markings in odd shapes help to accentuate the colors, making a very handsome fellow.

His spouse is a good looking bird herself, but lacks most of the blue grey. Living as they do near to man, they often become almost tame, and will nest in a box. Otherwise the pair take over the deserted hole of a woodpecker, or some other ready-made cavity.

The sparrow hawk's high, rapid call, "killy, killy, killy", is almost as distinctive as its looks.

WORDS FOR THE WORLD . . .

Blessed are those who work in groups, O ye friends of God! Knit ye with heart and soul, so that association, love, unity and agreement be obtained between the hearts, and that they may become as one soul, all the songs become one song and the power of the Holy Spirit may become so overwhelmingly victorious as to overcome all the forces of the world of nature. For this is the same Work, whether ye call it by one name or another.

O Lord, unite together my loved ones beneath the shadow of the Tree of Thy mercy.

A SHOCKING CASE

Shocking!

That is the only way to describe the plight of the Massachusetts man who has spent 41 years in state institutions after being locked up at the age of 10 on a charge of truancy.

Perhaps, after years reading about Buchenwald and other slave labor camps, some may find a case of mere life imprisonment anti-climactic. But that much worse treatment has been meted out to millions in totalitarian lands is not the point. This happened in a country which prides in the title of "The Land of the Free."

Perhaps, after reading of lynchings in the southern states of the union this account of injustice in New England will seem mild by comparison. But, again, outrages committed by unruly mobs are not the point. The men responsible for this persecution were the very men chosen to uphold justice.

Perhaps some may point out that until recently in Massachusetts feeble-minded cases with delinquent tendencies could be committed on a petition signed by a doctor and approved by a judge. And that is the point! Here we have a man illegally incarcerated for 41 years because law-makers decided some "easy" way should be provided for the state to deal with defective delinquents.

The whole case is shocking evidence of what can happen, even in a country deeply devoted to the principle of individual freedom and the right of every man to a fair trial, if once we permit authorities to take "short-cuts" in dealing with "problems" in the administration of justice.

THE IDLE AGED

Geriatrics is a ten dollar word meaning the "study of the aged."

It is a fascinating study for almost no one but insurance company statisticians and undertakers—hereafter known as funeral directors.

In recent years however, aging business tycoons, well preserved by modern medicines, diet, energy foods, and annual vacations in sunny climes, have discovered that life can begin at 65. The "fresh young blood" has spurred industry to fantastic growth has matured the age of 65, and, as everyone knows, what is needed is a "third and expanded, management." It is to this that's rest worker thrives on work and outlive having the job yanked from between their jaws, or simply having the laws are 60 or 65 years of age, is a case not to be borne.

Government statisticians, offshoots of the public health school of mathematics and displaced insurance actuaries, have made the alarming discovery that the population is aging and, with the elderly or high-salaried percentage mandatorily retired, there is not being added sufficiently to the youngest, or more low-salaried, elements of the population. This line of reasoning is inevitable and, since the law keeps students in school until they are 16, there is little hope of raising revenue by repealing the child labor laws. So! We must keep the old people working longer (and incidentally paying taxes longer).

Two years ago the average life expectancy was 63. You don't hear much from the worry warts at the cashiers' wickets for the retirement funds then, did you? Now the average life expectancy is 68.3 years. That means that the average retirement now lasts 3.8 years. You can possibly sense a certain method in the professional concern for the aged. "Time's a-wasting" of starting all things.

Suppose that in the next 10 years the retirement age pushed down to 60, and the average life expectancy rises to 76. Enchanting, eh? The vista is magnificent.

Born in 1963. Started to work in 1983. Works 40 years and then retires at 60 to enjoy a retirement that may last 15, 20, 25 years. That sort of obituary makes it almost worth living.

AT CROSS PURPOSES

Theodore G. Montague, president of the Borden Co., tells that what we need is government U.S. taxpayers build eat the country's surplus of dairy products.

The Financial Post thinks that Canadians, too, could eat their way out of some price-support problems in some products. Not in wheat, for we produce too much. But, thinks the Financial Post, we could eat all "our butter, cheese, eggs, canned fruit and poultry products and possibly more of our meat", with a little help. To accomplish that, says the Post, we will need not merely heartier eating but more eating. It adds the Post, "means more income, more jobs and lots of it."

And what does the Federal Government require of an immigrant, that needed reinforcement to the nation's manpower, that sacred and empty stomach to battle with our farm surpluses? Why his passport to this country is that he hurry right out to the farm and start helping to produce more farm surpluses.

Either the Financial Post or the Federal Government is its signals crossed.

NEED 'MALE' EQUIPMENT

Canadian post offices are to be equipped with "thinking machines" which will sort and speed mail to its destination.

More important is the need for a machine of that kind as standard equipment for husbands, so that the mail will pass speedily from their wives to the post office.—(Fort William Times-Journal).

THE DRIVER'S DUTY

Are children wise as grownups
When grownups walk, the children run.
They'll know the dangers they might meet.
They'll know the dangers they might run.
They'd stop for an approaching car
Before they dashed into the street.
The parents driving is the one
To careful be with children near.
What the old have learned they knew,
They'd slay beside the curb and wait.
Were children wise and old as we.
Then we could trust them to be great.
How'd do what older people do,
But drivers all should watchful be.
Should friends cross ave. ——— seven and eight.

20 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 24, 1933

A by-law, if advised to be legal, will be submitted to the voters at the next municipal election, to reduce the membership of the Board of Education from twenty-one, which it now comprises to ten; this would give nine elected by the city at large and one appointed by the Separate School Board.

A motion to this effect was made by H. Douglas Row and seconded by Charles A. Hyde and passed at the last meeting of the Board of Education. The unwieldiness and bulkiness of the Board has been previously outlined by the Intelligencer, the original mover and supporter of the contemplated reduction.

Holloway Street United Church celebrated its 60th anniversary on Sunday with special services and special music at which large congregations were present. Writing to Paper Helped Him

(Gali Reporter)

Publishers and editors are all sometimes in receipt of letters readers for publication. No one knows when a man may have a first class plan and workable plan for civic progress or betterment, which will never get before the people unless it is explained in a letter to the press or shown him in open discussion in some way.

We were naturally interested to read the account of a man in a metropolitan centre who decided he would try writing to the press. The other day he wrote a letter in which he said:

"I've been practicing with your help whether you know it or not. Even if you did not read my letters they served me well.

"For my 40 odd years I have been a great reader of the papers, books and magazines. And a student of politics.

"But it never occurred to me to write to you and thank you for it. Then, he goes on, he wrote to a couple of Toronto, and some farm papers. He also began to write regularly to newspaper. Here are his conclusions:

"Now I feel I have graduated. Never any problem in letter writing. And you learn to express your thoughts to others. I have written to the globe, in organizations, in political parties, in religions.

"I never was a joiner myself. I was for the church and the school and that is all. I vote as an independent. I had no voice in anything.

"And I always thought that letter writers and writers to the press I tried it. Then I found out that expressing yourself in long way from feeling or thought.'

"It has been a help to me to get to you and a benefit to democracy. I used to be afraid to state my opinions. Now I command and use clear questioning my beliefs.

"Now I know that I need not be ashamed of what I have to say and neither do I expect any special consideration. I write it, put it in piece and let it stand or fall on its merits. That is about but a hard thing for me to learn.

"I think it is fine that you let a lot of letters through that never get your paper. After all how could they? And aren't we all 'people'?"

Making It Easy To Catch Fish

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

One of the simplest of operations, so far as the catching of fish is, is the "shooting fish in a barrel" (though the saying is usually that fish are shot in water beyond a given depth may have set limits to this simplicity), but that is now about to be the case, if science began to be translated into reality. Scientists have a device that "takes the guesswork out of fishing," to the extent that it will be situated electrically-operated apparatus, being tested in Newfoundland waters, which will sink to the bottom of the sea which bounce back and forth from side to side, to elliptor attached to the bottom of the trawler." (To the ordinary mind this suggests the combination of radar and echo sounding.) The signals, which are in the form of light-rays, are read, relayed to the wheelhouse, where the trawler can steer to the right or left or other obstructions between the bottom of the sea and the trawler are clearly shown on the glass screen."

The purpose of the experimenting trawler, which gave the apparatus its first test, believes that with experience it will be possible to identify different kinds of fish, the density of the shoals and the area over which a school extends, and its distance from the bottom of the fishing craft.

If these expectations were realized in practical fishing operations the apparatus must assuredly will take the guesswork out of commercial fishing. 'The rod-and-line fisherman would still go on finding enjoyment and uncertainty the most fascinating elements in his favorite sport.)

Poverty Key To Reds' Rise

(Windsor Star)

Attempt by Communists to grab control of British Guiana is an illustration of Communist tactics and of the ever-present danger of similar attempts in other areas where the least chance of success. But if we allow this to cloak fundamental reasons for trouble we are being very superficial.

The attempted Communist coup in British Guiana a well organizing clique wasted its way into prominent positions in the government. Why were they able to succeed? It isn't explained in simple Communist trickery.

Poverty and illiteracy of the majority of the people provided a foundation upon which the Communists built. Had these people been reasonably prosperous and well educated the Communists would have had a difficult time selling their line. Yet British Guiana has the greatest wealth per people—even a much larger population than any of the countries of decent standard of living. It is rich in sugar cane; and its products, and its industries, are largely those of essential materials.

Latin America is not the poverty among the hundreds of millions in Asia. It exists on this continent, in the British Caribbean and in South America, among a large proportion of the people. It is particularly rife in the little countries and colonies clustered around the Caribbean and in the more backward nations of South America.

Latin America has tremendous resources of various kinds, but these resources are not developed sufficiently. One reason is the lack of education and the poverty of large numbers of people. Another is modern development and, in turn, lack of capital for industrial development and insurance. Much development which has occurred has been financed by the use of British money in The Argentine and Uruguay, Canadian and United States investment in many countries.

But the fruits of these developments haven't been spread equitably among the people. There are many very rich people in Latin America, but there are many very poor uneducated people. But in both education and economic development there is a definite "no depth." There is a thin layer of wealth and culture at the top of civilization.

The great need in Latin America is for a broad, prosperous, educated middle class. This is the class which provides stability and progress in most modern countries.

People of British Guiana, though living in the Americas, have not left their Latin nor American in the usual meaning of those words. More than 90 per cent of East Indian origin, imported as cheap labor when slavery in the British Empire was abolished. Another third are Negroes, descendants of slaves of plain buy. A beard was promptly painted on each topped with a pair of "persistent spectacles." The young client then sat admiring his reflection in the mirror—and perhaps making faces at himself—as the barber worked. Business proceeded smoothly and swiftly. At the end, the client could have the "beard" wiped off with a wet towel it to show his mother.

Within a week, small boys all over the town were suggesting that it was time they had their hair cut. Soon the establishment was...grasted they rushed off to the barber's shop handed into the chair and ordered "mutton chop whiskers, a goatee, a handlebar moustache, or, if some other disguise they had in mind. This was the beginning of a craze with children the best way to take hair off was to get it on.

Each child is too young to be affected by explanations: reasoning powers are stunted by struggling to birth. Many reluctances are born in the imagination, likewise emotion, is unresponsive to reason. Many little fears fade with the familiarity that playfulness creates. The barber's success with the wood was due to his fundamental or a brilliant stroke of catering; it dealt with a real matter which, to that dear matter is the result, and in achieving that he proved himself a child psychiatrist, although he probably did not know it and may not realized that what had been a nerve-wracking ordeal for him and his customer had suddenly become a pleasant profitable and comradely association.

Wise Barber Put Hair On

(Hamilton Spectator)

Among the ordeals many small boys face is the regular visit to the barber. For some it is a simple matter, for others a ritual approached with solemnity and a trembling apprehension. It is difficult to explain the cause of this attitude, for the lord of a mop of hair is a relief, and most barbers, perhaps realizing their own early reluctance, have a firm but fatherly geniality.

We once heard of a barber who solved the problem so satisfactorily that his business became the most popular place in a little country town. He equipped himself with a box of theatrical grease paint, set his young client in the chair with a towel over him and then asked him what sort of a beard he would like to have. Whiskers, Imperial or just the plain buzz. A beard was promptly painted on and topped with a pair of "persistent spectacles." The young client then sat admiring his reflection in the mirror—and perhaps making faces at himself—as the barber worked. Business proceeded smoothly and swiftly. At

WE ARE EMOTIONAL ABOUT HYDROPHOBIA

A doctor says in a Letter to the Editor (intended for printing in the paper) that Brady (grit, yourteeth and smart when you are addition" that name, brother) is responsible for the death of a man from one of these counts:

1. Brady states that rabies does not occur in man.
2. A Humane Society attendant, asked to explain why he returned to its owner a dog suspected of having rabies answered: "Dr. Brady says there is no such thing as rabies."
3. The dog bit the owner next day, and the dog died of rabies four days later, as confirmed by microscopic examination of brain tissue.
4. The dog's owner died six weeks later of rabies, as confirmed by microscopic examination of brain tissue.

The doctor presenting this indictment adds that he hopes—(a) that all newspapers will refuse to continue Brady's column, (b) that after I am interred in the sod I may exculpate him from a suicide's grave, (c) that I may be cremated and (d) in the more backward nations of South America.

Latin Americans have tremendous resources of various kinds, but these resources are not developed sufficiently. One reason is the lack of education and the poverty of large numbers of people. Another is modern development and, in turn, lack of capital for industrial development and insurance. Much development which has occurred has been financed by the use of British money in The Argentine and Uruguay, Canadian and United States investment in many countries.

But the fruits of these developments haven't been spread equitably among the people. There are many very rich people in Latin America, but there are many very poor uneducated people. But in both education and economic development there is a definite "no depth." There is a thin layer of wealth and culture at the top of civilization.

The great need in Latin America is for a broad, prosperous, educated middle class. This is the class which provides stability and progress in most modern countries.

People of British Guiana, though living in the Americas, have not left their Latin nor American in the usual meaning of those words. More than 90 per cent of East Indian origin, imported as cheap labor when slavery in the British Empire was abolished. Another third are Negroes, descendants of slaves of plain buy. A beard was promptly painted on each topped with a pair of "persistent spectacles." The young client then sat admiring his reflection in the mirror—and perhaps making faces at himself—as the barber worked. Business proceeded smoothly and swiftly. At

What with developments in commercial fishing methods and technique—and the demand for fish becoming more and more apparent that soon the fish won't have a chance—it is high time that we are catching up with them with astonishing rapidity. Fish are becoming scarcer. Fishing out of fishing, shooting fish in a barrel is the ultimate in commercialized procedure by comparison.

Actually and seriously, this new application of radar to commercial fishing methods. While it has been experimented with for some considerable time, the most recent revelations about it suggest that soon it may come into the experimental stages and in general practice.

While the principle is not new, its application to the fisheries is both novel and promising in a world that is getting used to the appearance of scientific marvels.

THE TRUMPET

"Praise the Lord with the trumpet."

It is with this commandment found in the last psalm, that the Israelites were called to worship, all others has comforted the human heart and revealed its hidden responsiveness to an end.

The significance of this command is that it is not enough to be sure that our religious faith has in it the basis of enthusiasm. There are many good people out of whose religion has gone all the joy of a trumpet blast. They believe the things a Christian is supposed to believe, live with some measure up more or less satisfactorily to the required standards of the gospel. But there is no enthusiasm in their religion. What God un-the end, the client could have the "beard" wiped off with a wet towel it to show his mother.

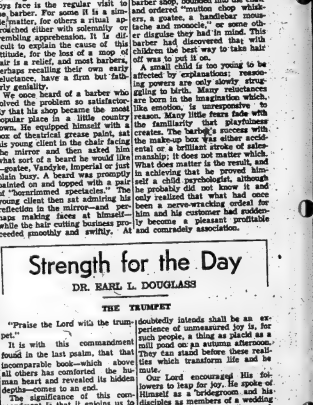
Within a week, small boys all over the town were suggesting that it was time they had their hair cut. Soon the establishment was...grasted they rushed off to the barber's shop handed into the chair and ordered "mutton chop whiskers, a goatee, a handlebar moustache, or, if some other disguise they had in mind. This was the beginning of a craze with children the best way to take hair off was to get it on.



Each child is too young to be affected by explanations: reasoning powers are stunted by struggling to birth. Many reluctances are born in the imagination, likewise emotion, is unresponsive to reason. Many little fears fade with the familiarity that playfulness creates. The barber's success with the wood was due to his fundamental or a brilliant stroke of catering; it dealt with a real matter which, to that dear matter is the result, and in achieving that he proved himself a child psychiatrist, although he probably did not know it and may not realized that what had been a nerve-wracking ordeal for him and his customer had suddenly become a pleasant profitable and comradely association.

doubtedly intends shall be an experience of unmeasured joy is, for such people, as dull as a cold mill pond on an autumn afternoon. They can stand before these wellsprings of power and feel a trickle transform life and be mute.

Our Lord encouraged His followers to leap for joy. He spoke of Himself as a bridegroom and His disciples as members of a wedding party. The word "rejoice" was often on His lips. He seemed to be pleased when a healing or some other gracious act had a result that drew His joy in a quite unconventional fashion.

Our Lord liked people to be enthusiastic and demonstrative in their religion. He liked to hear the sound of the trumpet in every man's faith.—

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The gull occupies a pleasant and comfortable place in the popular mind. Its association with the sea, with ships and lakes, together with its beautiful flight and attractive color makes it a sort of symbol of peace and freedom. The fact that it is a scavenger does not detract from its character. That is a fact to be glossed over, and used in defence indeed. A useful bird, besides a beautiful one.

Last week, an American merganser or sawbill, was wounded by some duck hunter and could not fly. After the hunters had gone, the other members of the flock from which the wounded one fell retreated to the shore. They swam about, some of them occasionally taking wing, as though trying to inspire flight in the wounded duck. It made various attempts, but as the day wore on, it was evident its strength was declining.

About mid-afternoon, a herring gull appeared and after inspecting the flock, dropped to the water and joined the duck flock.

A few minutes later, two more gulls joined them, early in the season, when the mergansers are migrating and beginning to dive and chase fish by the parent, terns and sometimes gulls hover over the flock of young mergansers, picking up minnows out of the flurry created by the young and exuberant fish ducks. But the behavior of the herring gulls seemed to me to get the binoculars.

They were not looking for any minnows stirred up by the ducks. They were shivvying the wounded bird. They perceived it was wounded and likely soon to be dead. They would take turns at flying a few feet to land beside the injured bird and peck at it. Sometimes there was blood on the odor of it around. The poor bird would dive, but finding that it surfaced, another gull would take off for a short flight and attack it. The other merganser swam around, apparently making no effort to defend their member from the gulls.

It is the gull's function and its right to eat carrion, refuse. Here was flesh not yet dead, not yet carrion. The gulls, in their wisdom but in Nature's, were merely anticipating, or thought they were, the function and their rights.

Some gulls are predators. The great Glaucous gull of the arctic lives on no shore birds it persistently and kills. The Greater Black Backed subsists considerably on other bird and on fish, dead and young. Many creatures in Nature are beautiful, but have their little work to which are not their ways at all, but are ordained.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE ONLY TO THE GOOD

I have a multitude of friends, each of whom has good and bad traits, the same as with myself. I try to be the same to them, as more of the good, I am sure, in each one of us that overshadows the bad.

Tolerance is a wonderful quality to have, for more of being happiness to us in the choosing and keeping of our friends. Nobody is perfect else. Look for the bad in a person and you are sure to find it, but look for the good and you will keep discovering more and more, as love always works.

There are people who try to make over others in their own image. It never works! We are separate entities. No two of us think or act exactly alike. None of us look alike. How fortunate! This gives personality to individuality and personality is starred with good points that make the whole spectrum. Tie to the good in a person and it will become absorbed in yourself!

There are few arts in life equal to the art of overlooking. Overlooking little disturbing things, that in themselves may amount to so much, but even worth attention, that there are people who persist in putting life to them, and making it full of unhappiness. We have more blessings than we ever realize. The good in life is the good we have and shine out and it should be something to be thankful for.

Much of the beauty and wonder in nature is lost to many because they do not use their eyes to see. Its the same with the good in us, there are people who are blind to it. And we are blind to the good in them. Tie to the good in people and grow in richness of character by doing so.

If we do not always get the thing for which we aim in life, we usually get something that we have got anyway. By aiming for the good in people and in life we usually increase our investment in happiness.

Heart Disease Topic of Talk To Y's Men

As a recent dinner meeting of the Y's Men's Club, Dr. Bruce Cronk concluded a two-part talk on the heart by describing the various diseases of the heart. Dr. Cronk had previously addressed the club on the heart organ itself.

In opening his remarks the speaker stated the large death rate from heart diseases today over that of a number of years ago, gives rather an untrue picture due to the fact the death rate from other diseases, which occur earlier in life, have decreased to such an extent. Thus, people who might have died formerly from other diseases now live to an older age and possibly die from heart disease.

In describing the types of heart disease Dr. Cronk spoke briefly on congenital heart disease, which is caused by a heart imperfectly formed before birth. The familiar blue baby falls into this category, he stated. The speaker next described rheumatic heart disease which is caused by rheumatic fever, generally with children. The rheumatic fever causes an inflammation which damages the heart valves, the valves of the heart, thus reducing the efficiency of the organ.

Dr. Cronk stated that for the heart to function the muscle of the heart requires a supply of blood, which is fed to it through the coronary arteries. Trouble arises tend to harden as people grow older and this may be restricted, due to matter or rust as the speaker described it, forming on their inner lining. Exercise occurs and the demand of the heart muscle for blood exceeds that which the hardened and narrowed arteries can supply. Heart pain or attack occurs, when the supply of blood is less than that demanded. If the supply is substantially reduced, a clot may form in the arteries, completely cutting off the supply of blood to the heart muscle. This results in coronary thrombosis or more popularly called heart attack.

Cause Unknown

Dr. Cronk stated that briefly the causes of coronary artery disease is unknown, however, he did state that certain non-conclusive evidence would indicate that diet has a great deal to do with it. As an example he quoted the case of India and China where the chief diet is rice and where the disease is unknown. The speaker stated that in his opinion, the greatest contributing factor to the disease on our continent is overeating and the resulting over-weight.

In closing, Dr. Cronk said that most people at one time or another have pains which they fear might be heart pains and if not are actually caused by something entirely removed from the heart, due to the emotional strain which this may put on a person. The speaker said that for the sake of happiness it is wise to consult a physician and find out the cause.

The speaker was introduced by Y's man Bill Hickey and thanked by Y's man Eric Whitfield.

During the dinner, fines master Don Williams was kept busy maintaining order, and levying the numerous fines, which were duly collected by Sergeant-at-Arms, Gordon Lee. The club was led in a singsong by Scott Denton, after which the business portion of the meeting was conducted.

Payroll Bond Purchases Reach $425,750

Employees of major industrial plants in the Belleville area have subscribed $425,750 in the first week of the Eighth Series Canada Savings Bond Drive.

R. W. Simpson, payroll savings plan organizer, said today that prospects for a record bond sales campaign were unusually good.

In the first five days of the two week campaign, 153 employees of Corbin Lock Company in Belleville purchased bonds totalling $41,450; 137 employees of Northern Electric Company purchased $40,200; 82 employees of Dominion Wheel Company, Cobourg, purchased $19,050; 80 employees of Edwards & Edwards, Cobourg, purchased $17,250; 78 employees of Hinde & Dauche, Trenton, purchased $24,000.

Last year Canada Savings Bonds totalling $2,252,700 were purchased by 14,193 persons in the Belleville area.

"Unlike any other investment," Mr. Simpson said, "all issues of Canada Savings Bonds, including the present eighth series, carry a continuing guarantee that they can be cashed at 100 cents on the dollar plus interest at any time, at any bank. No other investment offers this feature."

Canada Savings Bonds, for the first time this year, are available in fully-registered form in denominations of $500, $1,000, and $5,000. This means that interest on the bonds will be paid annually by cheque.

Petty Officer Young to Spend Next Two Years in Arctic

In the grim Arctic wastes in the shadow of the North Pole, eighteen members of the Royal Canadian Navy, with five Eskimos will spend the next eighteen months, cut off from the outside world.

The Canadian Navy has taken over the isolated outpost of Padloping Island off the east coast of Baffin Island, from the United States Air Force.

The station carries out meteorological observations and provides navigational aids for aircraft flying the northern route between North America and Europe as well as those operating in Canada's far north.

For nearly eight months of the year Padloping is completely isolated and supplies and mail are parachuted to it. Bulk of supplies are delivered by ship during the summer.

Included in the Canadian naval complement is P.O. Robert J. Young, eldest son of T. C. (Cy) Young, 3 Bettes Street, well-known sportsman of this city.

Bob was born Lere twenty-five years ago and attended St. Michael's College and the Collegiate institute. A talented musician, he played saxophone with the Belleville Municipal Band and many orchestras.

He joined the navy three years ago and has an enviable record. He spent six months on HMCS "Magnificent" and took part in the new famous "Operation Main Brace". The seven seas are no stranger to him for he has touched and visited such places as England, Ireland, Scotland, Malta, Turkey, Greece, Bermuda and many points on the North American continent.

Bob spent an abbreviated leave with his folks last August. He arrived here "ravin' to go" on a month's holiday, but officialdom said "No". He was recalled after two weeks to take training for the polar region stretch of duty.

Home In Two Years

He won't see Belleville for the next two years because he will spend at least eighteen months at Padloping Island and the next six months at Ottawa and Halifax. O, for the life of a sailor!

He won't be able to send any mail home during his Arctic period but he will receive mail once a month. His letters go to Ottawa and from there are flown to the Padloping base.

Bob will have completed an overall five years service with the navy at the expiration of his stretch of duty in the Arctic. At that time he can claim his discharge, or decide to "sign on" again. In the event of the latter, he will get four months leave.

Bob will have with him a district "buddy" for included in the draft is Canadian naval staff is Leading Seaman William J. Martell of Picton.

International Developments Theme of Talk

The fall dinner of the Belleville and district branch of Queen's University Alumni was held at Victory Memorial Church Hall on Wednesday. The usual excellent dinner for which Centre Church has a deserved reputation was served by the ladies of the women's auxiliary.

The guest speaker of the evening was Professor John Meisel of the department of political and economic science of Queen's University. Professor Meisel was introduced by Mr. W. Cook of Belleville.

Professor Meisel's address was entitled "International Politics."

In discussing the international situation and developments of the cold war several topics were cited which were both favorable and unfavorable to the western world. The following are seven recent developments which were considered favorable to the West; death of Stalin; unrest in East Germany, Adenauer's political victory in West Germany, ending of the Korean war, fall of Mossadegh in Iran, possibility of a satisfactory settlement of the Trieste problems and the arrangement for military bases in Spain by the United States. Professor Meisel discussed each issue briefly explaining the manner in which they were to the advantage of the non-communist world.

Unfavorable Aspects

The points which Ii Professor Meisel's opinion tended to weaken the West's position are: possession of the hydrogen bomb by Russia, the weak internal condition of France and Italy, the Trieste situation, recent disagreement of western countries concerning Russian peace moves, the Korean truce not being too secure, and finally, lack of representation of an eastern European country as one of the non-permanent members of the security council. According to a previous statement a representative of this country should have a seat on the council.

Professor Meisel concluded that due to the cold war and the unfavorable factors cited, the reduction of international tension would be a long term problem. He also pointed out during his talk the important contribution made by Canada towards the reduction of international tension within the efforts of the honorable Mr. Pearson.

A short business session was held and the president, Dr. K. E. McQueen of Bloomfield reported on the various local alumni activities.

Canadian Goods May Get Better Shot at UK Market

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canadian goods may get a better shot at the British market before long, Richard P. Bower, commercial counsellor at Canada House in London, indicated Friday.

He spoke to the Canadian Exporters' Association, dealing particularly with the question of whether Britain may make her currency interchangeable between dollars—one of the prerequisites to normal buying and selling. He said:

"The United Kingdom's economy for the first time is headed in the right direction. If this continues we may reach the objective (increased convertibility) sooner than we think. I am optimistic.

"Britain is doing a good job, but others have a part to play, including the United States and Canada."

Pound Was Overvalued

The pound sterling was overvalued in earlier years and this had resulted in heavy buying of goods from the United States and Canada, Mr. Bower said.

"Today the pound is not overvalued. In my opinion it now is undervalued. If it were freed, Britain might be surprised.

He thought experience with decontrolled commodities indicates that good results may be expected from progressive removal of restrictions.

The exporters, ending a two-day annual convention, talked in a resolution that the government "immediately explore the possibility of providing incentives" to Canadian companies to increase their exports.

The resolution did not define "incentives" but discussion indicated that it didn't envisage subsidies, but rather something like tax concessions.

Alex Gray of Toronto suggested the government might put a lower tax on profits made on export business than it obtains on profits from domestic business.

Steamers Collide

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two west coast passenger steamers collided bow-on in dense fog Friday at the entrance to Vancouver harbor.

The impact tore a 35-foot hole in the port bow of Union Steamships' SS Cardena. Two of her crew received minor injuries. The 2,351-ton Princess Elizabeth, owned by Canadian Pacific Steamships, escaped almost unscathed.

Canadian Army Morale in Korea Is Excellent

OTTAWA (CP)—A globe-circling member of Parliament says Canadian Army morale in Korea is excellent.

The army Friday quoted Philippe Picard, Liberal member from Bellechasse, Quebec, as saying the men of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade are a credit to their country. He recently visited the unit during his round-the-world tour.

Anglican Young People Name Provincial Officers

Members of the Ontario Provincial Council of the Anglican Young People's Association, gathered in upon the second day of their four-day annual provincial conference, which ends here on Sunday. Corsel boxes and colored scarves, long underwear and laughter, all had their part in making many citizens of Belleville stand up and take notice.

The morning began quietly with a corporate communion service followed by breakfast at Christ Church. The service was conducted by Rt. Rev. Kenneth Evans, Bishop of Ontario, assisted by Rev. Charles Staples of Belleville; Rev. Douglas Burns of Kingston; Rev. Robert Mackie, provincial chaplain; and Rev. Herbert Taylor of Hamilton.

Delegates from Niagara Falls were fully decked out in shredded wheat boxes and royal blue and white scarves as they made their way up Front Street yesterday morning, causing a little bit of commotion among people on their way to work.

At St. Thomas' Parish House, Bishop Evans gave a resume of his address at the 1953 session, "My Life for My Lord." A discussion period followed with the following in charge: Margaret Ashby, Ottawa; Kay Jagg, Harwood; Herbert Taylor, Hamilton; Rev. C. E. Staples, Walter Jones, Toronto; Rev. J. J. Robinson, Ven. Archdeacon J. E. Creeggan, Rev. Douglas Burns, Kingston; Rev. A. R. MacDonell, Trenton; Rev. Robert Mackie.

Presiding at the morning session was Mrs. Jean Jeffries, vice-president, and provincial secretary. Nominations were conducted by the president, Gerry Elliott, and Mr. Mackie led the morning prayer.

Returned as President

Gerry Elliog of Toronto was returned by acclamation at the afternoon session, when nominations were held. Also elected in office with the president will be: vice-president in charge of conventions, Roger Spaank of Hamilton; vice-president in charge of promotion and publication, Kay Jagg, Kitchener; secretary, Helen Downey, Ottawa; treasurer, Boyd Green of Lyn; chaplain, Rev. W. Riesberry of Toronto.

On the nominating committee were Thomas Digweed, of St. Catharines, chairman; Ruth Gooch, Deep River, and Mr. Mackie. Gerry Kliegg was chairman for the afternoon session, and read the president's report. Mary Poole of Brockville gave the secretary's report for Gladys Wilson. The treasurer's report was given by Mildred Thompson of Ottawa, and showed a generous balance on hand as of October 4 of $290.05. Singsongs in the morning and afternoon were led by Walter Jones.

Bishop Evans India Speaks

The great part played by the Anglican Church in missionary work in India, in schools, hospitals and colleges, was shown the convention last night at Christ Church, by Rt. Rev. Heber-Wilkinson, bishop of the newly-created diocese of Nagpur, India, and a missionary in the Punjab for 25 years.

Bishop Wilkinson showed an interesting color film of his work in the mission field in India and gave a colorful commentary on this important aspect of church work.

In the town of Amritsar the Church Missionary Society of England began its work of evangelism more than 100 years ago. Today the work of Christ carries the name of that little town and Bishop Wilkinson is its administrator.

"Illiteracy is one of the greatest problems facing missionaries in India today. Of the total population of 360,000,000 souls, illiterate, although steps have been taken by the government of India to decrease this percentage. Illiteracy makes the task of the missionaries very arduous.

With 75% of the Indians still living in villages and farming little plots of ground it is difficult to teach farmers how to increase agriculture. Many of them are tenant farmers working for landlords, receiving only half the crop they harvest.

Settle Border Area

The partition of India has left land near the border of the two countries unoccupied. The government allotted this land to refugees from Pakistan, but they left it unclaimed because of its dangerous position. Bishop Wilkinson has been assisting with the settlement of some of the Christians on this fertile land.

Approximately 20 persons are admitted daily to the Belleville General hospital through the admitting office. Mrs. Emma Bowen is admitting Mrs. Ethel Wilson. The patient is pictured filling out a patient documentary record. Behind the wall in the background is the switchboard. Each patient is documented before being assigned a bed from the 131 in the hospital. The number of persons passing through this department yearly has risen since 1941 from more than 4,000 to more than 7,000.

Admitting Office at Belleville General Hospital One of Busiest, Nearly 7,000 Admitted in 1952

"The true definition of laboratory is labor—not oratory," which is an involved way of pointing out that sometimes the best way of making the least noise is accomplishing the most work. This is true of the admitting office of the Belleville General Hospital.

It might better be called the nerve center of the hospital as it is the control room of patients coming and going out. Here is the staff that handles the receipts of which comes each patient is in. The department head, Mrs. Nordica Armstrong, is able at any time to run her finger down a list and know what patient is in what bed.

This department also has the job of assigning the incoming patient to a bed and for some time it has become an effort even to file a bed. Belleville General Hospital is registered as a 131-bed institution. That sounds like a great number of beds but unfortunately it is not sufficient.

According to Mrs. Armstrong, present capacity is 187 patients in hospital. This means that some of these people have their beds in corridors and a waiting room and at times of saturation patients have had to be put on stretchers in the emergency ward.

Much Routine Work

There's no form a great deal of the work done. As a patient is admitted he is documented which involves an expenditure of considerable time. Mrs. Armstrong stated that on an average 20 patients are documented and admitted daily.

Therefore, the monthly admittance would be almost 600 patients. In 1941 the hospital admitting department documented and found beds for 4,936 patients. In 1952, 6,975 persons were admitted. To the end of September of this year, 5,179 patients have been placed in hospital beds and the number continues to increase by the same proportions. It is estimated 1953's figure will be topped by the end of the year.

Besides Mrs. Armstrong, the admitting office is staffed by two full time admitting clerks; two full time switchboard operators and one admitting clerk on duty from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., the night clerk is in charge of the switchboard.

To Transfer Department

Arrangements have been made to transfer the admitting room to more suitable accommodations on completion of the new wing. At the present time it is located on one side by the switchboard, on another by the chest X-ray unit and the hallways on the other two sides. Needless to say the office is cramped.

There are a number of things incoming patients may do to help alleviate some of the problems of the admitting department. Those persons admitted into hospital with a hospitalization policy have their documents prepared by talking to their insurance agents. If a patient is asked to make a deposit on admittance, they are asked if they will be in bed the first part of the day to apply for admission, according to Mrs. Armstrong, between two and four in the afternoon.

JIFFY TEA

This tea is similar to instant coffee, being in powdered form and needing only the addition of boiling water. This eliminates the crockery and perhaps disappear from regular use.

Out we went, unlocked the trunk and passed out the gallon of gas. The young chap offered to pay for the supply but we refused to pay for the empty can on the front door step in the morning and said that he had returned the can minus the cap.

Powdered coffee is being used more and more by housewives. Improved flavor and more rapid dissolving have spurred sales. It is still not quite as palatable as freshly percolated coffee, but it is less trouble and more convenient when only a small quantity is needed.

Strangely enough, powdered coffee is quite acceptable when a large quantity is wanted. Many people can't tell the difference in flavor. It is a cinch to make a quantity of instant coffee for a crowd.

Weddings

BURLEY—AYLSWORTH

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized on Saturday, October 10, in the Deseronto United Church, when Marion Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Aylsworth and Ernest Edgar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burley, of Deseronto, were united in marriage. Rev. Mr. Neelands performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with sumac and mums in a background of fern.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a strapless floor-length gown of nylon net over satin. The net jacket was fashioned with long sleeves pointed at the wrist and a tiny Mandarin collar. The bodice and overskirt featured dainty clusters of sequins. Her fingertip veil fell from a crown of rhinestones and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Aylsworth, sister of the bride, was dressed green and the bridesmaids, Miss Beverly Burley and Mrs. Ralph Aylsworth, wore matching gowns of shrimp. Their dresses were in ballerina length of net over taffeta, with matching feather headdresses. They wore matching furs and carried bouquets of bronze and white mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Gordon Burley, Jr., brother of the bridegroom and the ushers, Mr. Don Aylsworth and Mr. Cecil Burley.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe.

Mrs. Aylsworth of Toronto, was the soloist.

A reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's mother received, wearing a beige of mink crepe with dark brown accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a mauve boucle suit with navy accessories. Both mothers were Johanna Hill roses.

For travelling the bride, chose a turquoise boucle suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride left gold showers of confetti for Niagara Falls and points north.

Upon their return they will reside in Deseronto.

Pr. Ed.-Belleville Club Enjoys European Travelogue

Favored with bright autumn weather the club held its October meeting at the Y.M.C.A. with 45 members and guests present. After the usual opening with the president, Mrs. Wannamaker, wedding letters were read and business discussed.

The sum of $5 was donated to the Red Feather Community campaign.

Mrs. Shelly Anderson and her co-convener, Mrs. J. Short, with their group, had arranged and conveners of an interesting program.

Mrs. Anderson presided and opened with the theme song of the Temperton Mission, "We'll Sing in the Morning."

All enjoyed the two readings given by Mrs. Thomas Gibbons, Guest Speaker

The speaker, Mrs. Edward Follwell, was then introduced.

Mrs. Follwell gave a most interesting travelogue of her trip through England, Ireland and back to London, where she attended the Coronation.

She left England with a party, accompanied by her son, Rodney. She gave a thrilling description of the food noted buildings and delightful scenery of Holland, Belgium—and then through Switzerland, dwelling in detail on the mountains, lakes and rivers, noted for their picturesque villages, hotels and tourist resorts.

The pictures were even clear and beautiful and Mrs. Follwell's narrative witty and inspiring.

Concluding the program, Mr. Robert Franklin, of Albert College, gave a humorous reading which was much enjoyed.

Thanks to those who assisted in the program was extended by Mrs. F. Lent.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Anderson and her group.

Bridge St. W.M.S. Holds Autumn Tea

Like the banquet hall of some old baronial castle was the very attractive hall of the church for the autumn tea held on Thursday afternoon, October 15, when a long table, laden with beautiful bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, red-bronze oak leaves and barley sheaves in the ever-popular autumn shades, graced all silver candelabra with tall yellow and ivory tapers, found about on tall pedestals were floral decorations of autumn tinted foliage and flowers, filling with fragrant, red carnations and tiny chrysanthemums in golden shades, which lent a pleasing accent, as did the long, oval town and country tables, chairs on either side of the assembly groom in Bridge Street United Church, during every afternoon for the afternoon tea and, and the evening supper, presided over by the Woman's Missionary Society.

Greeting the many guests at the door were, Mrs. Duncan McPherson, Mrs. Ivan Foster of the church; Mrs. C. Hyde president of the society, and Mrs. Gerald Sweetland, tea rooms convener.

Presiding at the tea table were, Mrs. G. S. Crook and Mrs. W. J. Hodgins, assisted by Mrs. P. Anderson and Mrs. F. Houston, while those who served were Mrs. Ivan Foster, Mrs. J. C. Allen, Mrs. P. C. McGuire, Mrs. W. Fraser, Mrs. Frank Cross, Mrs. A. Marshall, Mrs. Meyers, Mrs. G. Macdonald, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. J. G. Hudgins and Mrs. B. Leslie, with Mrs. R. J. MacDonald, Mrs. Ivan Foster, D. Houston and Mrs. A. Gilroy, assisting. Preparing the delicious cups of tea was Mrs. W. H. Lee.

Inviting to the room were Mrs. Ivan Foster and Mrs. A. May, and acting as treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. Ivan Foster.

In charge of the homecooking table was Mrs. Hollebone, displaying confections of lemon pies, heaped with golden-tinted meringue; pumpkin pies, nut short-breads, chocolate cakes, cherry-meringued tarts, date-filled biscuits, little cup cakes iced with creamy icing and dotted with candied cherries, fudge, maple creams, coconut candy, tea buns, date loaves, and a variety of other delectable foods were Mrs. W. S. Northcott, Mrs. A. Marshall, Mrs. J. Mitchell, Mrs. Tugnett and Mrs. W. Tice.

A dainty tea most attractively convened by Mrs. S. J. Hibbard, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Hudgins, and Mrs. W. C. Howis to whom appreciative thanks are tendered, and to all those others who gave so freely of their time to bring it to a successful conclusion.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is This Woman A Zombie, Or A Person Who Can Be Roused To Action?

Sometimes it's hard to figure out whether certain people who write to me are doing so because they really want to know how to change an unhappy situation, or simply want to get off steam.

This is the question in my mind now, after reading a letter from a middle-aged woman who is fed up to the teeth with a marriage that long ago reduced itself to deadly monotony and, one might almost say, practical sordidum. Has this woman, I ask myself, reached the point where she really intends to take some definite step toward mending matters, or does she just want somebody of this sort has happened to agree with her?

"I am 46, and have been married for 25 years to a man 12 years my senior. We have no children, have always been in very moderate circumstances, and have had small financial expenses and worry with my husband's aged parents until their deaths a few years ago. But all this has not affected me as much as my husband's personality and attitudes.

Incapable And Jealous

"He is moody, unsociable, stubborn, gloomy, sensitive and possessive. I am not sure of all these characteristics in him until I no longer feel I am an individual capable of self-expression, initiative or personal freedom. His characteristics are not constant ones, so that I find I am no longer 'me,' but merely a replica of 'Him' in my reactions and attitudes.

"Before my marriage I was no more the same woman I am now than day is from night. I was engaged in a profession that brought me in contact with interesting, stimulating people and activities. Now I spend my life at home alone, cooking and cleaning and washing and ironing and doing the hundred and one monotonous tasks of running a house and family. I have not lost his zest for living, and who thinks a woman was born to be a housebold drudge for him. Sometimes I wonder if any man or home or marriage is worth it."

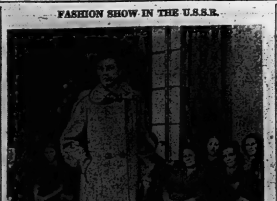
Then she concludes: "Thanks for listening."

Now I can't see anyone spending much time wondering if any man or home or marriage is worth the sort of thing this woman describes. So far as I'm concerned, I could say "No, it's not worth it," the minute I finished reading the letter. What I wonder, on my side, is why in the world she has put up with all this so long, why didn't she do something about herself long ago, and why she discovered what sort of life she would be expected to lead in the first place.

In any event, why shouldn't she now do something of long last? Is there any reason why she should continue to drag herself through one day after the other? Is it simply because this man expects her to?

The idea she probably intends to put across, is that she has been so beaten down all these years that she no longer has the will power or initiative to make an independent move; that all her energies, of whatever they may have been so directly out of her under the deadly pressure of her husband's attitude that she is no longer quite a complete, who automatically does as he is directed because she has lost the ability to act for himself.

Change Order Of Living



What I advise this woman is do, and immediately, is to set about changing her own life even though she may not be able to change her husband's. She speaks of having had a profession before marriage.

Is this profession a type of career she might enter again? If not since she has been a trained worker of some sort, there must be other kinds of work she can take up which would enable her to remodel her existence along new lines. If she herself where earning money, it should be possible to get someone else to do the cooking and cleaning and washing and ironing" and so forth, which now fill her down.

Admitted, it's not too easy for a 46-year-old woman to enter the business or professional world after a long absence. But, I think it is possible, and could be again. Or, if she cannot get some employer to take her on, she must have some skill which could be turned into a paying project of her own. There are people she can consult who are in the business of helping women how to analyze their skills and put them to work profitably. If she would like to have me do so, I can direct her to some such consulting service.

But first of all, perhaps if she has really become incapable of independent action, as indeed she may, this she must do. She is recovering her old power of spiritual leverage on her own.

FASHION SHOW IN THE U.S.S.R.

The U.S.S.R. has many fashion houses, according to Soviet propaganda, which design new clothing styles. The Leningrad fashion writer provides the correct vogue for the clothing factories and fashion establishments of many cities throughout the Soviet Union. Such styles are shown periodically. Here is a model showing off a new style of overcoat for a bevy of fashion-conscious Russian women. Comment seems to be for endurance rather than eye-appeal. — Central Press Canadian.

Readers Saturday Column

By Mary Moors

Question:

. . . It was quite a rush to get my house clean and prepare dinner single handed, after my family of eight and still get to our cooking school early enough every Saturday to get a good seat. . . . It was worth it and so nice to see you personally. . . . You may remember me when I tell you I was the lady first wearing a yellow hat and scarf with a grey coat. . . . I am sure you must get your pickle file . . . and about having a lot of faith. . . . (Your superstitious bunch that we are) have a special saint, St. Anthony to pray to for lost things. . . . My sister-in-law after 15 years when her faith was wearing a little thin said . . . "my wedding ring is the only thing St. Anthony never helped me find" . . . one week later they found the ring with some old washers. . . . Will keep praying-to St. Anthony to help you find your pickle file—let me know if and when I can help you.

Question:

Would you please send me the recipe of the white cake that was first prize at the cooking school? —Mrs. R. F.

Answer:

See letter below.

Prize White Cake

(Contributed by Mrs. R. S.)

Sift cake flour and measure 2 cups. Put this in the sifter with 3 teaspoons double acting baking powder (or 3 teaspoons single acting), 1 teaspoon salt and 1 1-3 cups sugar. In a large bowl put 1-2 cup shortening (pure shortening until it is soft and pliable, then sift the dry ingredients over this. Now measure 1 cup milk. Add 3-4 cup of this milk to the dry ingredients and stir mix until flour is dampened and then beat for 300 strokes by hand or for 2 minutes at low speed if electric mixer is used. Add about 2 unbeaten eggs and the remaining milk and beat 150 strokes if by hand or 1 minute at low speed on electric beater. Scrape down the bowl with rubber scraper occasionally but do not count those strokes or time. Line bottoms of 2 9-inch layer tins with wax paper and butter it. Turn batter into pans evenly and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes or until cakes shrink from sides. Cool cakes in pans 5 minutes then loosen sides with knife and turn out on rack, remove paper, turn right side up to cool.

Note:

If using butter, margarine or lard only 7-8 cup milk is needed; for other vegetable or other shortening use 1 cup milk.

Question:

Will you kindly let me have a recipe for Marrow Jam. . . thank you for the nice pickle cabbage and others which have been a great help.—Mrs. J. B. S.

Answer:

You nearly stumped me. My rearrow recipe is more of a marmalade.

Marrow Jam or Marmalade

Four cups chopped pared and seeded marrow, 4 apples, 2 oranges, 3 lemons, 4 cups sugar, 3 cups water. Pare and chop apples and add to marrow. Chop seeded oranges peel and all. Add with lemons and sugar and water. Boil 2 1-2 hours over low heat or until thick and of consistency you desire. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

No Rule Seems To Apply

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I feel that a name should not attend a wedding in a church unless he or she is invited to the wedding. Some of my friends maintain that because it is held in a church everyone is automatically invited, and that anyone even a stranger to all concerned, is privileged to attend. Please, in a few words right in the discussion we are having?

There is really no definite answer to this question . . . there really can't be, for there are so many I wouldn't exactly agree with your friends when you say that because a wedding is held in a church everyone is "automatically invited." If they are to be invited, they receive some kind of invitation, be it a written invitation, a telephoned or verbal invitation, a "collective" invitation in the minister of the church, to the entire congregation. If they aren't invited and still they sit on attending, they assume this privilege.

In many churches, anyone has the right to enter at any time, even at a wedding and there are many people take this privilege. In some churches in small or medium-size communities, I have often more or less taken for granted that people not invited may come to a wedding. For some large, formal weddings, where invitations, cards, cards of admittance are occasionally enclosed with the invitations let's even go as far as to presume who enter by a side door and "crash" the wedding. It's hard to keep a wedding-enthusiast down!

Eating Bacon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, please tell us: What is the correct way to eat bacon?

Phyllis

Whenever possible . . . and it usually is possible, eat bacon with the fingers. When bacon is very dry and crisp that you think some bits of it might slip off the plate if you cut it, then by all means you may eat it in your fingers.

Tuxedo Appropriate To This Occasion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are giving a Silver Wedding Anniversary party at a Club. I am wearing a pastel floor-length dress, street-length, and silver slippers. My husband thinks he should wear a tuxedo. Would this be correct?

L.

I think your husband's idea is right . . . that a tuxedo will be appropriate for him. Sometimes an evening party you and he are giving at a club, and so the type of costume you are to wear.

Corsages For The Aunts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

It is the groom's responsibility to corsages for his mother and his sisters and the bride's mother's sister? Is it a matter of fact, are they supposed to wear corsages?

It is the groom's responsibility to provide a corsage for his mother and a corsage for the bride's mother . . . and usually when a grandmother is to attend the wedding, he provides a corsage for her. This is as far as his corsage-responsibility extends . . . not for cousins. If he wishes to, he may provide corsages for any other relatives. But usually an aunt who wishes to wear a corsage to the wedding provides her own.

Mayor Whitton Gives Government Tongue Lashing

OTTAWA (CP) — The capital's lady mayor Saturday gave the federal government a public tongue-lashing for refusing to change its decision to move National Film Board headquarters from Ottawa to Montreal.

Charlotte Whitton, the aggressive civic chief, hotly threatened in retaliation to try to spike part of the government's cherished national capital plan unless the disputed transfer is blocked.

The new uproar developed over the cabinet's confirmation Wednesday of a long-standing decision to shift NFB operations to Montreal. This came after consideration of a formal civic appeal accompanied by an offer to provide land for a new board site.

The aroused mayor issued a statement saying the decision should be made by the Commons and that the ministry is making a "parody" of Parliament with a final decision now.

"Ruthless" Move

The uprooting of 330-board employees is "ruthless," Miss Whitton said. It was "all too high a price for Canada, the capital and these families to pay for assuring the election, as the member from St. Laurent, of Mr. Guy Rouleau president of the National Young Liberal Federation."

(The board is to be moved to Ville St. Laurent, a Montreal suburb.)

If the transfer is made, mayor added, she will urge that the city grant a permit for a $3,000,000 Soulbess building opposite Parliament Hill. The modern-type structure has been a subject of dispute because it would not conform to capital planners' ideas that it should follow the grey stone pattern of nearby government buildings.

But, the mayor added acidly, there is this "glimmer of comfort" in the situation:

"Ottawa need not hurry about a city hall and offices. We will be able to bid in on Parliament Hill as a salvage proposition the day the Commons and Senate follow the drift down the river to Montreal and are relocated on the top of Mount Royal."

RCAF Purchases 860 Aircraft In 13 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF has purchased about 860 aircraft from Canadian companies in the last 13 months, it disclosed Thursday.

The figures were given to the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association during the group's brief tour of the experimental section of the RCAF's Rockcliffe station here.

The aircraft were of 17 different types and no breakdown was given among fighters, trainers and reconnaissance and photography planes. The association got a look at various RCAF planes, including the CF-100 all-weather jet fighter. The aircraft figures were given on a chart showing the number of planes tested by RCAF pilots and the number finally accepted.

In the 13 months from September, 1952, to last month inclusive, the air force tested about 1,010 planes and rejected some 200. Rejections ranged from 28 to 91 per cent of aircraft tested on their initial flight.

The air force maintains acceptance teams at the four main aircraft production centres—Montreal Toronto, Winnipeg and Edmonton—and a mobile acceptance team here. All aircraft must be thoroughly tested by these teams before they are accepted by the RCAF.

Freer World Trade Advocated By Queen's Principal

By FORREST REUDE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Dr. William A. Mackintosh, principal of Queen's University, Thursday night warned that time is running out in the attempt to create a prosperous world.

Addressing the Canadian Exporters' Association, he said the United States, Britain and Canada must work towards freer world trade, and added:

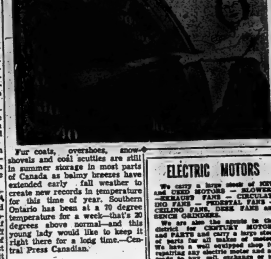
"We probably have two years in which to reconstitute some valuable form of trade in the western world. If we lose it, we will lose it for a long time."

Of the United States, he commented:

"She can live with Europe and other continents and she can increase her standard of living if progressively she drops her tariff protection, whether in the form of prohibitive rates or the obstructionist customs procedure, so as to admit goods from overseas together with related services.

No Sudden Change

"We need not expect any sudden or overnight transformation nor need we minimize the financial and political difficulties which the United States Congress will have in making the decision.



"If the decision is not made, however, the United States and the whole world will suffer for it."

Dr. Mackintosh said that "structurally and economically" the United Kingdom and the other sterling countries can achieve their highest standard of living and their greatest security in an integral part of the western world."

UNEXPLOITED WEALTH

The highlands of eastern Africa are rich in farmland and forest, minerals and waterpower.

Summer Weather in Mid-Autumn

Fur coats, overshoes, snowshovels and coal scuttles are still in summer storage in most parts of Canada as balmy breezes have extended early fall weather to create new records in temperature for this time of year. Southern Ontario has been at a 70 degree temperature for a week—that's 20 degrees above normal—and this young lady would like to keep it right there for a long time.—Central Press Canadian.

OPEN NEW RCAF SCHOOL

Courtesy Letter to Visiting Motorists for Infraction Of Traffic Rules Paying Off

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Visiting motorists who break minor traffic rules in Kitchener get a courtesy letter from police, instead of a summons, and merchants and civic officials are convinced the idea is paying off.

Police chief John Patrick, who signs the letters, follows the theory that the city loses more than it gains in the small fine imposed on a visitor who parks illegally or violates a no-turn rule.

The chief, who has a stack of appreciative letters from motorists, calls it a practical method of averting a accident which can cost a city goodwill and ultimately business.

The courtesy letter, printed on police stationery, sets forth the time, place and nature of the motorist's offence.

Ping for Kitchener

Then it gets in a plug for Kitchener as "the largest Industrial and most progressive city in Ontario."

"We realize the difficulty visitors experience in conforming to different traffic rules and regulations in the various cities so therefore, as a welcome visitor, you are excused," the letter says.

"We hope your stay in our friendly city was pleasant. We want to help you so don't hesitate to make inquiries from our police officers."

Chief Patrick had some misgivings when the plan was started three years ago. But, no one has tried to take advantage of the gesture and some motorists have dropped into the police station to say thanks by person.

Mayor Bruce Weber calls the scheme "one of the finest public relations jobs any corporation can undertake. It's certain to have results."

Although it's hard to relate the plan to actual dollars and cents, merchants feel it is paying off in goodwill for the city.

Surprise For Motorists

One concrete case is that of the Stanford, Ont., man who found a parking tag on his car after he had placed an order with a Kitchener firm for $85 worth of goods.

He promptly cancelled the order. But when he returned to pay, Stanford he received a courtesy letter instead of the expected summons. He reinstated the order.

To the Chamber of Commerce the most gratifying results are the appreciative letters. Some typical excerpts:

Detroit—"A complete demonstration of courtesy."

Port Dalhousie, Ont.—"About the nicest thing that's happened to me in 30 years of driving."

Oshawa, Ont.—"The next time I'm in your city I'll certainly stay longer."

Toronto—"I have shown your letter to several people as I was impressed by it. I can assure you it has been good advertising for your city."

Two Explorers Turn Backs On Civilization for 4 Months To Gather Sea and Air Data

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Two explorers, a Canadian and a Britton, turned their backs on civilization for four months to gather sea and air defence data on a lonely but strategic island in the Canadian Arctic.

"It was a bit rough, but we weren't too uncomfortable," said T. H. Manning, 45-year-old veteran Ottawa explorer who made the jaunt along with a British Army engineer, Capt. M. T. Sparrow, 25.

The two scoured the wet, thawing interior and rugged coastline of Banks Island, a chunk of rock, snow and icy streams thrust into the western segment of the Arctic.

Strategic Position

Inhabited by a few Eskimos, some caribou and arctic game, the island would be the first an enemy might make for attacks launched from Asia over the top of Alaska across Beaufort sea.

Until the two explorers were ordered north by the Canadian Defence Research Board, little was known of the island. Measuring 210 miles in length and 130 miles in width, it lies about 300 miles northeast of the mouth of the Mackenzie river and about 1,200 miles north of Edmonton.

Mr. Manning had started work on the island the previous year. It was Capt. Sparrow's first trip to an area that had not been visited by a white man for about 30 years.

In their jaunt, the two men made navigation history. They were the first to travel through the uncharted Prince of Wales strait in a motor-powered canoe. The strait separates Banks Island from the larger Victoria island which lies to the southeast.

Complete Survey

The men were ordered to find out all they could about the island: Whether its surface could be used for its air base; whether its coastline could make harbors suitable for ships and submarines; the nature of its soil and vegetation.

The explorers moved north in May by plane which landed them at the southerly tip of Banks Island. While Mr. Manning worked there, friendly Eskimos, using a dog-team, guided Capt. Sparrow to the northern point where Mr. Manning in 1823 had lashed a canoe and cached some supplies.

When Capt. Sparrow returned it was mid-summer and the temperature hovered around the 50 degrees above zero. Carrying their supplies, the two trudged over the snow, wading through a half-dozen icy streams, measuring and charting as they went.

It took them 18 days to travel the 320 miles. They lived on eggs, bacon and chocolate. They ate the rarest of some specimens of game they brought back for the national museum and caught a few fish.

Fare Pretty Well

"A man can eat pretty well in the north," says Mr. Manning. "Naturally he can't have all the comforts of home, but he can get along pretty well."

At the northern tip, they made their way down 1,000-foot cliffs to the Manning canoe. They moved round the eastern side of the island through Prince of Wales strait to Holman island, on the west coast of Victoria island, about 100 miles south of Banks.

Early in September, at a Hudson Bay trading post there, they were picked up and flown back to civilization.

The two declined to discuss their discoveries. But of one thing Mr. Manning is sure.

"The north cannot supply a large-scale army. Any fighting would have to be done by small numbers of highly-trained men."

POLIO VICTIM

Canada Selling Wheat to Britain In Big Quantities

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada is selling wheat to Britain in "substantial quantities," getting International Wheat Agreement prices from a nation no longer a partner in the pact.

This was reported Thursday by a Canadian wheat board spokesman in commenting on prospects for selling Canada's bumper grain crop, her third in as many years.

He said Canada's biggest accommodation problem—more than storage space—improves with the export shipment and that wheat exports so far are "fairly comparable" with those for the same period last year.

The spokesman would not state the amount of sales to Britain.

French Withdraw From Red Town

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command announced today that Franco-Viet Namese troops have abandoned the town of Phu Nho Quan, 35 miles southwest of here, after destroying all Vietminh military installations.

Troops were pulled back southwards about eight miles.

An army spokesman said the Franco-Viet Namese troops had clashed with Communist-led Vietminh units just east of Phu Nho Quan, killing 28 and capturing 14.

The Vietminh division which fled Phu Nho Quan before the French and Viet Namese attacked, continued to control the limestone hills west and northwest of the town.

Franco-Viet Namese troops are holding positions on Mandarin road 3 miles north of Phu Nho, but have made no further move toward the big rebel war base.

The French announced meanwhile that the 5th regiment of Moroccan infantrymen has arrived from Germany and is disembarking at Haiphong. Another regiment is expected next week.

Small Swedish Plane Shot Down By Israel Flyers

LONDON (AP) — Reports reached here from Lebanon today that a Swedish plane had been shot down in Syria Thursday. The Swedish consul in Beirut was quoted as blaming the Israeli air force. But an official spokesman in Israel said there was "no truth whatever" to the story.

There were conflicting accounts of just how many persons had been killed in the reported crash. A Beirut message said 35 passengers and crew members were killed and that the bodies were taken to Damascus in Syria. But word direct from Damascus was that the plane was a small one and that only the pilot and copilot had been killed.

The crash was said to have taken place on Mt. Herman Jabal Al Sheikh which rises to 9,232 feet 23 miles west-southwest of Damascus, the Syrian capital.

The Swedish foreign office said it had no knowledge of an incident and the Scandinavian airlines disclaimed knowledge of any crash. This is the only Swedish air line with regular passenger services.

How to Protect Your Flowers During The Winter Months

By Flora M. Saville

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR FLOWERS

My neighbor called me in to see the rose cuttings she had started. There were 18 healthy little canes which she had been started this last summer. They will winter over under their glass jars and most of them will have a bloom, or two next summer.

The early chrysanthemums were balls of bloom, in lavender, pink, rose and white. The late ones are covered with buds but will not open for some weeks yet. By throwing a light-weight dark cloth over some of them for an hour or two in the morning and again in the evening the mums can be persuaded to bloom earlier. It is by shortening the daylight hours florists can make mums bloom every month of the year.

Add Splash of Color

These lovely bushy plants could be dug up and planted in a tub to place either side of the front steps. They may be transplanted to plant boxes, or set out in front of the evergreen border to make a final splash of color before the frost finishes them off for the year. It does not hurt to crowd them now as the season's growth is over. Water the roots well and then cut and lift a good ball of earth with them.

Later they may be returned to the garden where they will become unsightly. Take off the dry foliage and leave the stalks. New shoots will form and these may be separated and set out to flower in the spring. Feed them and cultivate the soil around them often. Keep them pinched back. They will be compact little plants with plenty of blooms in the fall.

As we walked on we admired the calendulas. They were great yellow, very double. Most of these do not last long, and bright them were close to four inches across. They will go on blooming for several weeks. These plants can take it. In fact they are one of the many annuals which can be planted now to bloom next year.

A Box in A Box

Another neighbor who really works at her gardening hobby has a very simple cold frame which she made for herself. On the south side of the garage in a sunny, but sheltered position she drove in four stakes. These were two-by-fours sharpened with a hatchet. To them she nailed four boards six ft. long by ten in. wide. Into this frame she set her flats of seeds. When the boxes were in place she covered the box with an old bed spring. This, she said, kept off the cats, dogs and her children. The plants are protected from strong drying winds but receive the sun and moisture of rain and snow. These plants which winter over, and most of them do, are sturdy and make healthy plants to be set out early in the border.

A good mixture for these flats is made by mixing equal soil, one part sharp sand, and one part moss, either peat or leaf mold. The seeds may be planted in rows or broadcast. Perhaps the best way is to make them the surface of the soil with a yardstick into the moist earth. At the bottom of each square make a small hole with a match and lift a few seed, and press down with the finger. At transplanting time the soil may be cut into squares and the seedlings lifted out with a square cake. This prevents root damage and plants get a better start.

There are many hardy annuals which may be started this way. Snapdragons, scabiosa, nigella, ageratum, cosmos, calendula, linaria, cineraria, petunia, godetia and alyssum are some that will usually come through the winter safely.

Corn flowers and annual larkspur are quite hardy, but they resent transplanting. They should be sown where they are to bloom.

Building Costs Slowing Down New Hotels

MONTREAL (CP)—High building costs are slowing down construction of new hotels in Canada, D. J. Caswell of Sundridge, Ont., executive chairman of the Canadian Hotel Association, said Thursday.

Attending the annual convention of the American Hotel Association, Mr. Caswell said in an interview a first class hotel costs from $15,000 to $14,000 a room, with even the most economical type of building costing about $10,000 a room.

He knew of some companies in Toronto who had considered starting a new hotel but were discouraged by high construction costs.

Hotel business last year was generally good, he said, but the main trouble was lack of guests during mid-week.

One way of coalescing this was to encourage week-end conventions and to give low week-end rates.

Five Anti-Reds Are Executed In East Germany

BERLIN (AP)—Five anti-Communist partisans have been executed by firing squads in East Germany and thousands of Red troops and police are searching intensively underground fighters near the Polish frontier, the Communist high commission's Neue Zeitung reported today.

The newspaper said two Communist police officers and several patriotic workers were killed in a clash within the last 48 hours in the Cottbus district. The East German government had admitted four police dead in gun battles there last week with "Fascist terrorists infiltrated by American and West German spy centres."

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) Bonfires on Jamaica's principal mountain peaks will greet the Queen when she arrives here Nov. 25 on the Royal tour.

FOREST FIRES

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Governor John Lodge issued a proclamation late Thursday closing all Connecticut woodlands and brushlands until the forest fire hazard ends.

The order means that hunters, whose season opened five days ago, will have to forgo their sport until it is rescinded. Connecticut's rainfall has been only about one third normal for two months.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

This department is straying from the sports trail in today's column in order to give its humble support to what we consider a very worthy effort).

FOR VARIETY'S SAKE . . .

Someone asked me the other day "How come the theatre managers of the city and district are sponsoring the big Variety Show being held in the McCarthy Theatre on November 17".

He asked the question with no malice aforethought because he quickly added, "I know Messrs. George Forban, Tommy Masoura, Willard Everett and Larry Dick are fine outstanding citizens and do a lot for their city, but it does seem strange that these showmen would sponsor a project."

It was a fair question, but there is a reason behind the move. If there is anything thicker than the proverbial family ties, blood, etc., it is the fine camaraderie that exists among show people. There is an intangible bond that unites those rosin folk of the shop covers, radio, theatre and television.

In fact the famous slogan of the equally famous "Three Musketeers" which echoed in the ringing cry of Porthos, Athos and Aramis, "One for All and All for One" can equally apply in the case of show people.
